THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE AND THE CITY

By Austin E. Griffiths

The other day I was asked what particular things the League ought now to do. I said there were at least two. My fellow member agreed with me on these two.

Avoid Acute Labor Disputes

We agreed that the Special Committee should report a plan for adoption by the City whereby labor disputes should be met in a rational, humane way and their seriousness thereby prevented. That Mr. Helsel's proposal of a Conciliation Commission should be considered by our special committee.

Seattle has now between four and five thousand employees. Most of them are in non-governmental service. Most of them are employed by the city to do what in former times was private business.

Labor troubles and cause of dispute are bound to arise. My nature, my family wants are the same whether I dig coal for the city or dig coal for John Doe or run cars or furnish light for the city or for a private company. It is therefore hard to have public employees believe their obligations to the city are different than their obligations to private employers. They exercise the right of strike when in private employment but by many persons are denied such right when in public service.

Governmental Service

It should go without saying that persons employed in governmental service, that is to say, those persons whose service or work is essential to the carrying on of government, local, state or national, have no right to strike. Their obligation and duty to the public and to the state are utterly in conflict with the right of strike. Without them, in the last analysis, government would stop.

Business Service

But the case of employees doing ordinary business for the city or state may be admitted to be different. If the city car line stops it is no farther for me to walk than it was before the city owned the line. If the city light employees quit, my house is no darker than it would be if they were private employees and went on strike.

But the line between governmental and business service or work is difficult to draw. Governmental service is indispensable and the obligation not to strike is absolute. Public business is getting increasingly larger and monopolistic and therefore the strike weapon if used will be more harmful to people in general and harder to justify.

All of which means that Seattle should take time by the forelock and provide machinery to avoid serious troubles.

THE LEAGUE WILL NOT HOLD ITS REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING UNTIL SEPTEMBER

In accordance with the custom of past years the League will not hold its regular Tuesday meetings during the summer months. However, it may at any time call a special meeting.

The Board of Trustees will met each week at Wednesday noon during the summer.

Skagit Power Site

We also agreed that the League should have a standing committee to look into the merits and watch the development of the Skagit River Power site investments and operations. At best the trail up there is long and expensive. We want cheap and plenty of power—not another dry dam.

Councilmen come and go. They also have the habit of dividing themselves for and against it may be the best of projects.

The League has no competitive connections, no bias. Such a committee could serve the people exceedingly well.

According to the report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the American loss by fire during the year 1917 was $2.42 per capita and during 1918 $2.76, an increase over the entire country of approximately $40,000,000. The year's loss being $290,959,885. The public can not be too strongly urged the necessity of increased vigilance and caution in the prevention of fires.

MINIMUM WAGE FOR MEN

By James A. Haight

The Labor Party in England has recently put forth a platform containing a plank providing for a minimum wage for men established by law. Prior to the Great War such a minimum existed only for coal miners, railroad men and dock laborers.

During the war both England and America became familiar with wages established by government boards. In America as a rule neither employers nor employees have favored the fixing of minimum wages for men by law. The employers have preferred to be free from official interference. Their employees, if members of unions, have preferred to secure the wages they desired through their unions.

We are now confronted with an unusual situation. Demands for increase in wages are constantly made, based on the very substantial ground that the cost of living has enormously increased. These demands are met with less general resistance by employers than formerly prevailed. They are often disposed to accede to the demands of their employees and add the cost of the increase in wages and their proportionate profit thereon to the price of the product. As these increases are often accompanied by a reduction of hours and a more leisurely method of work during working hours, the employers often increase the prices per unit of output by a larger percentage than the increase in wages. The inevitable result is that prices advance faster than wages and real wages that is wages measured by purchasing power decline.

Some decline is inevitable because the cost of the war has to be paid. The human family has gone through an appalling tragedy and while it is recovering from its wounds and replacing the things it has destroyed, it will have fewer things to consume. It will have to enjoy plain living; may it also be rewarded with high thinking?

If a policy of vaulting wage increases accompanied with echoing price increases continues, all business will become top heavy. As soon as this situation is seen or suspected a crash will follow attended with business paralysis and wide spread unemployment. This possible evil obviously calls for preventive remedies. If the State Industrial Board should be empowered to establish minimum wages for men as well as women and children, it could adopt, fix and alter men's minimum wages with reference to the actual conditions. In this way increases in wages can be brought about without entailing harmful increases in prices and thus the menace of an industrial catastrophe can be avoided.

A system of State established minimum wages based on the findings of the Industrial Board after careful and intelligent investigation should receive careful consideration.

San Diego, California, is using a combination vacuum and rotary sweeper to clean her streets. The machine, which is mounted on a motor truck, has two engines, one to run the truck and the other to operate the broom.

SEASONAL LABOR

By Austin E. Griffiths

It is our duty to stabilize labor and humanize industry. Seasonable labor demand is a hard cruel fact to deal with. It breeds unskilled, discontented, inflammable labor. Measures for permanent industrial progress must keep this fact and its unsocial effect as a central problem.

Men willing to work, out of work and away from work are elements of danger. In the nature of things there should be neither wasted work nor wasted workers.

Labor Exchanges

Labor exchanges and public employment offices are valuable. Our own city employment has been very useful.

But as employment and labor wants are as inter-related as the seven seas Federal aid must supplement local efforts.

Federal Service

Secretary of Labor Wilson has asked for $4,700,000 to carry on the United States Employment Service. The Secretary desires this work continued as a permanent bureau in his Department. He urges a system of public employment offices operated by the states under uniform rules and standards of efficiency prescribed by the Federal Service, and partly financed by the Government. The Federal Service would handle labor clearances between states, inspecting and the gathering of information as to labor and employment conditions.

The Life and the Way

Herein is the thing to be done and the way to do it. The Secretary is pointing the way to do it or to make the best of present fluctuating labor - employment conditions. The main thing to be striven for (and which will be slowly attained) is to do away with seasonal and sectional labor demands. This involves patient, particular and general study and understanding of all lines of industry, their readjustment or even extreme change from the ground up.

League of Nations and Labor

I am glad to see this subject falls within the purview of the League of Nations. I hope never again to see ship loads of steerage passengers going in search of work only to be dumped in a heap at the nearest port.

Gompers and Short

A test of stable character is adherence to leadership. A sign of mental solvency is tenacity in following a policy.

Both Samuel Gompers and William Short are practical leaders. Both embody the principle of immediate evolutionary and sound progress. They both recognize that labor is part and parcel of all human society. They admit the immutable that progress to be beneficial and permanent must be unselfish and comprehensive.

Union Labor has shown itself stable, sane and tenacious in the re-election of these men.

RECLAIMING OUR WASTE

The war is not ended! America is engaged in a struggle which knows no armistice or peace terms. The struggle for the preservation of our national resources, bitter in the past, has been but intensified by the war. The unprecedented demand for raw materials, so essential to the needs of our war industries, intensified the conservation and utilization of waste material. This has resulted in a scarcity of the substitutes for virgin raw material and unless our efforts for conservation are continued the natural resources must be utilized as soon as our industries resume operation at full capacity.

Waste material is the protector of our natural resources. Waste paper, rags and other waste material can be used in new forms, thereby decreasing the annual consumption of virgin material. The conservation of this material must be continued in order to save our natural wealth for future needs.

The present turn-in of waste materials will no doubt be diminished. The cause of this lies in several factors. During the war civic bodies, charitable organizations and women's clubs voluntarily gathered waste matters which were turned in to be remade. Thousands of tons of worn clothes, which in the ordinary course of events would have been remanufactured in the waste industry, have been sent overseas to clothe the destitute of Europe. Thousands of tons of books and papers have also been sent over-seas for our soldiers. All of this material has done its "good work" and will be discarded abroad and thereby be lost to the factories of this country.

Some of the pertinent points about wealth from waste paper and rags as set out by the United States Waste Reclamation Service, follows:

Paper

Economy in the use of paper will release vast quantities of chemicals which are urgently needed.

A pound of paper wasted means from 1 to 3 pounds of coal wasted.

Cutting down the use of paper 25 per cent would mean 6,000,000 tons less freight for the railroads to haul and would at the same time save 2,500,000 tons of coal.

Old magazines, books, stationery, etc., are used in making books, writing, and other forms of paper.

Paper that comes around purchases at the store is made over again into new paper, cardboard, cartons, paper boxes, paper bags, etc.

One hundred pounds of soft white paper shavings will make 90 pounds of new paper.

One hundred pounds of old magazine paper will make 80 pounds of new paper.

One and one-half million tons of book and writing paper were made last year from old paper.

One hundred pounds of old folded newspapers will make 85

Let's Make the Municipal News 8 Pages

pounds of new box board.

Two and one-half million tons of various kinds of paper box board were made last year from old papers.

Cotton and Woolen Rags

One hundred pounds of old cotton rags will make from 65 to 75 pounds of paper pulp; this pulp will make only 2 per cent less than an equal amount of paper.

One hundred pounds of new cotton rags will make 80 pounds of paper pulp.

Woolen rags are converted into shoddy and shoddy converted into wool. The shrinkage from shoddy to wool is the same as from raw wool to finished wool, namely, about 3 per cent.

Seattle like a great number of other cities must adopt the slogan "Don't Waste It; Save It."

INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY

By James A. Haight

One hundred years ago the cross-roads wagon-maker planned the entire wagon and made most of it himself. Occasionally he would have as a helper the son of a neighbor, who served a long term of apprenticeship. The employer was an all-around wagon maker and he taught his apprentice to be the same. His knowledge and judgment planned and the skill and industry of himself and his apprentice constructed the wagon. The work and its responsibilities developed his judgment and increased his knowledge and skill, while his apprentice learned by doing and had the benefit of expert advice and training at every step. The industry built not merely wagons but men.

Now the factory system has extended to wagon making. Powerful engines operate ingeniously turn out parts in enormous quantities, and without any special skill of the operators, most of whom are machine tenders. The modern wagon works produces a thousand wagons where the wagon shop of former days produced one.

The wagon maker has disappeared. His apprentice is gone. The cross-roads schools for making wagons and men are closed. Their places are taken by monstrous hives of clattering machines, ingenious and intricate, that do complicated tasks and repeat them a thousand times without taxing the attention of their tenders. Both men and machines seem automatic, with the machines doing the more intellectual work. The wagons turned out are precisely alike and the men turned out are too much alike. The industry tends to wipe out the individuality of the men as thoroughly as it does that of the wagons. Wagons and men alike suffer from being machine made.

Individuality is the highest product of creation. The instinct of self-preservation leads men to rebel against the erasing of their personality. One form this rebellion has taken is that of demanding a share in the management of the business.

In England, the Miners' Federation early this year demanded the nationalization of the coal mines and a reduction of the hours of labor from eight to six. A commission consisting of employers and employees investigated the matter and made report. The report submitted by the employers was adopted by the Government. It recommended the shortening of the day by one hour after July 16, 1919, and if the condition of the industry so warranted, a reduction of the day by a further hour after July 13, 1921. This report further stated: "We are prepared to report now that it is in the interest of the country that the colliery worker shall in the future have an effective voice in the direction of the mine. For a generation the colliery worker has been educated socially and technically. The result is a great national asset. Why not use it?"

The free spirit of America encourages industrial experiments. One of the most promising is that of the William Demuth Pipe Company at Richmond Hill, Long Island, N. Y. This company is governed by a House of Representatives elected by the employees, a Senate consisting of the foremen, and a Cabinet consisting of the owners. No action can be taken without the concurrence of all three. The saving effected by any improvement is divided equally between employer and employee. Dividends based on the previous two weeks' wages are issued bi-weekly and range from 14½ to 17 per cent. There

SEATTLE BOULEVARDS

By Charles A. Reynolds

It has been said that a chain is as strong as its weakest link. We are apt to judge a boulevard by application of the same principle. We drive over the beautiful boulevards of the city until we come to that stretch between Madrona and Leschi parks. As we bump, bump, bump along, we are forming unfavorable opinion of Seattle boulevards. We continue our journey until we come to Cheasty's boulevard. Crossing over the bumps and boulders of the stretch of boulevard between Franklin school and Rainier avenue to reach this point, the opinion that is finally developed is one not flattering to the boulevard or those responsible for its condition.

If you call the matter to the attention of the Park Board, they will say some of the boulevards are under the jurisdiction of the Street Department of the city, and that the City and the Park Boards cannot agree as to the manner of improvement; therefore the boulevards must continue in their present condition. It would not require a very large expenditure of money to improve these boulevards to such an extent as to make them approximately as passable as a county road, and it seems that our Park Board would at least do this much for the public.

Seattle is becoming a tourist city. Each year more and more travelers from far and near visit the metropolis of the northwest. Is it too much to hope that our Park Board will awaken to the necessity of the situation and improve these links in the chain of boulevards to such an extent

PUBLIC LIBRARY CATALOGUE

By Chas. H. Compton

Every day or so someone asks at the Public Library for the catalogue, and when he is directed to the the card catalogue case with some 540 drawers containing over 400,000 cards, a look of amazement comes over his face. He has evidently been expecting to see a printed catalogue in book form which he can sit down with, look over and even borrow from the library. It seems to be pretty well established that a card catalogue is the most practical way of keeping a complete up-to-date catalogue of a library. At any rate it is the method which all modern American libraries now use. However librarians recognize that there are many disadvantages in the card catalogue system.

One of the chief of these is the fact that a man cannot have a catalogue of the public library in his home. An enterprising New York firm which devotes itself to publishing various indexes and bibliographical tools of value to libraries has recently set out to remedy this matter to some extent at least. It is publishing in parts what it calls a Standard Catalogue, which will be a selection of the best books, especially those which have been published within the last few years. One section which has recently been issued should be of interest to readers of Municipal News. It is called the Sociology Section, but it is broader in its scope than the title might indicate, as it includes books on all topics relating to society as a whole, such as economics, labor and capital, charities, crime and penal institutions, education, government—municipal, state and national—international laws and international relations, commerce, banking, insurance, etc.

The catalogue, which contains about 1000 titles, has been selected in co-operation with a number of the best American libraries and authorities on special subjects, such as Professor Paul Monroe of Columbia University, Professor H. P. Fairchild recently of Yale University, Professor J. A. Fairlie of the University of Illinois, Dr. C. C. Williamson, Chief Division of Economics of the New York Public Library, and Dr. Charles A. Beard, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, New York. The entries are arranged under topics in the same order that books are arranged on the shelves. There is also a subject and author index, so any book can be easily located. What makes the catalogue especially useful is the fact that after each title there is a brief note describing the book. This will enable readers to select books with discrimination.

All of the 1000 books in the catalogue are in the Seattle public library with a few exceptions, and these have been ordered. The library has purchased these catalogues in quantity and they can be obtained at the central library or any of the branch libraries for 10 cents each. This is the cost from the publishers and is very cheap, as the catalogue contains 99 pages and has involved an immense piece of work in compiling. For convenience of readers of the Municipal News the coupon below may be filled out and mailed to the library with 10 cents and a copy of the Standard Catalogue on Sociology will be sent by mail.

Public Library, Seattle:

Please mail to me one copy of the Standard Catalogue on Sociology, for which find enclosed ten cents.

is no labor "turn-over," no labor trouble, no objection to efficiency methods or improved machines. A reduction of hours from 53 per week to 48 was followed by an eight per cent increase in output. The men ceased to be machine tenders and have become part of the business. The responsibility is theirs as well as the owners'. The industry makes more pipes and better men. Thirty other corporations are following this plan while many have long been working along similar lines.

When the custom becomes general for each person in industry to share in the responsibility and profit as well as in the work, men as well as material things will be made and we shall have genuine Industrial Democracy.

FOR LEGALS

AND WE WILL CALL

IS THE NEW AUDITOR A FIFTH WHEEL

By Austin E. Griffiths

The city council has created the position of "Auditor of Appropriations." The appointee, or as lawfully should be the case, the successful Civil Service applicant is expected to earn his salt at the municipal board rate of $250.00 per month.

The proposed appointee, James F. Leghorn, waiving for the moment the bad example of the irregularity of his proposed appointment without civil service competitive examination, is no doubt competent for this position, at least on the financial side.

I do not object to Mr. Leghorn, nor in whatever I may say in apparent criticism of city or other public officials have I any personal feeling. I know the difficulties of public office and the honest fallability of public officials too well to let personal bitterness affect my judgment. But I do believe in public criticism. The people should make it. Officials should expect it. If they deem themselves right they should stand firm. They may explain, but not flinch.

There is no more need for this new position than of a fifth wheel for an apple cart.

The press says that this new 'Auditor' will check appropriations and the monthly statements of the several departments, assist in preparing the annual budget, help coordinate the work of the council committees and act as supervisor of employment. This reads well. It makes a showing to the unthinking citizen. But what the city hall actually needs most are more hard workers and fewer soft jobs.

The comptroller is charged with all auditing relating to the city. He can aid in budget making. He should know to a cent always the amount and state of appropriations.

The president of the council ought to be able to coordinate the work of the council committees or cause it to be done. This is implied in his position.

The department heads and Civil Service Commission are at present charged by charter with the employment subject.

Let's Make the Municipal News 8 Pages

If the council intends by this new office to draw these matters under its own control, there is the objection that as to the office of comptroller and the other departments, their powers and duties are fixed by charter, and that whatever relates to any department falls by law to that department to administer. The council is a legislative body only.

Why the new office? The comptroller and his force, for instance, will be competent until the city is much larger. In peace times we seldom hear of officials of cities of this size suffering a breakdown from overwork. Why increase expense and divide responsibility?

POLICE TYRANNY

By Austin E. Griffiths

Mayor Gaynor told me: "The police chiefs of our big cities are as arbitrary as the Czar of Russia."

The police have no power to make law, nor any rule or practice in conflict with law.

They are civil employees—servants of the state for governmental purposes.

They have no right superior to any civilian.

Their employment is to maintain public order, protect the security of the person and safety of property.

It is the right and duty of each citizen to do the same.

In their work the police keep the peace, pursue criminals and regulate traffic.

They are the civil arm of the government to protect individuals in their fundamental rights.

What are those rights?

We call them free assembly, free speech, free press.

What does the law say of them?

The Federal Constitution forbids Congress to pass any law to abridge those rights.

Our state constitution declares that "Governments are established to protect and maintain individual rights.

"That the right of petition and of the people peaceably to assemble for the common good shall never be abridged.

"Every person may freely speak, write and publish on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right.

"That the provisions of the Constitution are mandatory * * *

"That a frequent recurrence to fundamental purposes is essential to the security of individual rights and the perpetuity of free government."

THE LEAGUE WILL NOT HOLD ITS REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING UNTIL SEPTEMBER

In accordance with the custom of past years the League will not hold its regular Tuesday meetings during the summer months. However, it may at any time call a special meeting.

The Board of Trustees will met each week at Wednesday noon during the summer.

But the police interfere with these rights. They suppress them. They usurp power to do that which is expressly forbidden to be done by fundamental law.

The police prevent peaceable assembly. They prevent free speech in public meeting. They dictate what meetings shall be held. They seize a printing press, confiscate papers and shut up the business and then decide how it shall be run to suit them:

All this is done in the name of liberty and in good faith for the cause of patriotism.

But our liberty is measured by the law of the land, not by a policeman's stick. Our patriotism is to be tested by our courts and not by the ignorance and folly, although in the best of good faith, of any police chief or of any executive over him.

It is true that in time of war or of present danger to the community we will excuse much that is arbitrary and legally wrong, done by the police and other public servants.

Now that we are back to normal the abnormal should not be excused in any public official.

We cannot risk the good feeling of masses of our people towards our government in the keeping of police departments.

A nation that rests its security upon police repression stands on quicksand.

The primary duty of the police is to maintain public order at all times and under all hazards. If the regular force is not sufficient the law provides ample means for immediate emergency strength. A police chief has no authority to declare martial law.

The police club to keep order is often very useful. But the police club as an instrument of government is a curse which spreads dragon's teeth wherever it swings.

The fallacy of the police position is in the false assumption that because men are told not to speak or to think they do not do so.

Public orderly meeting is bet-

RENT REGULATION

By Austin E. Griffiths

A great step in advance would be public loans to enable urban dwellers or workers to own their own homes. Home ownership is the best security a nation can have.

Unless tenantry soon grows less, rent regulation is certain. A moderate measure for this purpose was before our last legislature. The landlord interests unwisely opposed it.

In New York City the subject is up, as appears by this quoted article:

"Rent revisions in New York City, to judge from the crest-fallen mien and anguished statements of everyone one meets, have followed each other in a perfect hurricane during the last few weeks; and there is at least one authentic case of suicide because of the exactions of a landlord. The reason for this unseemly haste of landlords to make hay is to be found in the formulation of plans by the state legislature to bring back the determination of house rents to proper, economic, non-profiteering level. Last week conferences between the organizations principally interested, the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, the Housing Committee of the Charity Organization Society, ended in argument upon four measures of immediate relief; and within a few hours these measures were translated into statutes by both houses of the legislature. They are:

"An amendment of the tenement house law permitting the alteration of four-story and basement private houses into apartment houses accommodaing not more than four families, without conforming to all the rigorous standards adopted for the construction of apartment houses proper.

"An amendment of the state banking law enabling savings banks to lend up to 60 per cent upon the value of land and buildings in course of construction.

"An amendment of the law governing the relation between landlord and tenant, decreeing that a landlord must give to a tenant who has no written lease but is paying the agreed rent, at least twenty days' notice of the termination of his tenancy.

"An amendment of the municipal court act of the city of New York empowering a municipal court justice to stay the issuance of a warrant evicting a tenant in an apartment or tenement house for a maximum period of twenty days, providing the tenant deposit the amount of rent for this period in court or pay it to the landlord.

"The Real Estate Board of the city has issued a protest against the decision of such weighty questions in a special session of the legislature—called primarily to ratify the federal suffrage amendment, which it did—but there is a general feeling that even this immediate action will hardly suffice to prevent severe hardship this coming fall unless equally prompt measures are taken by the legislature to insure the building of more houses at once. The Reconstruction Commission, it will be remembered, is endeavoring to raise capital privately for the financing of large-scale housing enterprise. That plan has met with wide public interest but, of course, takes time to mature."

ter than secret agitation. Public speech is safer than secret propaganda.

By tradition, by historic struggle, through great cost, the men of our race have established these rights, with freedom of conscience as the cornerstone of our liberty—our type of democracy. They are too great to be sacrificed by irresponsible police.

The police form our administrative body to enforce the law in particular cases and on grave occasion to act as a unit to prevent or put down any danger that may disturb public order. But they have no right by a policy of repression to limit our peaceful activities, much less to cut up by the roots our constitutional rights.

Our people are accustomed to self-control. They are better left to obey because they ought to. They are better toughened to observe moderation because it is the law than because subject to police tutelage and police license.

We must fight this police arrogance.

We must not let these illegal interferences become settled, grow into a custom or ripen into a law of police supervision the same as in several Latin or Slavonic countries of Europe, so that hereafter these precious rights shall only be freely and publicly enjoyed at the will of a policeman.

In this critical period self-control is demanded of all of us, likewise reasonable intelligent action. I do not believe our country is a tinder-box. But I do agree that unnecessary friction and causes of ill-will between citizens and officials should be firmly suppressed.

Seattle, July 9, 1919.

NEW POWER UNIT WILL COST HIGH

Installation of an additional unit of 10,000 K. W. capacity at the Lake Union steam plant will cost more than three-quarter of a million dollars according to estimates filed with the city council by J. D. Ross, superintendent of the city lighting plant, who is urging immediate steps to meet what he says is a serious shortage of electrical power.

Mr. Ross' estimate was furnished at the request of the council utilities committee, which has under consideration the proposal to authorize an enlargement of the Lake Union plant. An ordinance providing for a bond issue of $1,125,000 to finance this and other extensions of the city lighting plant is being considered by the committee.

In order to provide a plant capable of producing 35,000 K. W. of electrical energy, for which he is asking, Mr. Ross says it will be necessary to enlarge the present building at Lake Union at an expense of $160,000 and to buy additional ground at a cost of $16,200. Two new boilers to make possible operation to full capacity of the generating units now in use will cost $86,000, while a new turbo-generator, with four boilers to operate the same, will necessitate an outlay of $502,000, bringing the total cost of the proposed extensions to $764,200.

In urging the council to increase the Lake Union plant, Mr. Ross claims there is great need of additional electrical power in the city and that the city light department is daily refusing applications for contracts because the limit of the plant has been reached.

POLICE AND THE RIGHT TO STRIKE

By Austin E. Griffiths

The police have no right to strike. They assume a duty in total conflict with any strike on their part. Their duty is to carry on the government, primarily, by the keeping of law and order, so that all other people may have their rights saved or adjusted under the law.

In a living sense a true policeman is a vicarious offering to the public.

Imagine jailers quitting their posts and the police idle during a riot!

Government functions by agencies only. The police are a continuously essential agent.

A ship sails the seas by human agents only. What right have officers or crew to abandon ship or jeopardize passengers or cargo before the voyage is ended?

The Ship of State is always on voyage.

A so-called right to strike which destroys a duty, does not exist.

The police of whatever name, under any form of government, can have, in the very nature of the purpose and essentialness of their employment, no right to paralyze their own governmental functions. To admit such a right would, in the last analysis, destroy government. Even a soviet cannot exist unless its behests are carried into effect.

A man who expects to strike if honorable will not join the police. If conditions are unbearable, he will make the great sacrifice of resignation.

But why should police have cause to strike?

If they are selected with care—if they are paid decent wages—if they are treated justly by their officers—if they receive due respect from their fellow citizens—then there will be no strike by policemen.

Nevertheless, strike fever has struck with more or less force the guardians of the law in London and Winnipeg and in Portland, Peoria and Nashville in this country.

We want no cause for an attack here.

AMERICANIZATION

By James T. Lawler

The problem of Americanization is a many-sided one which involves primarily the Americanization of the foreign born. However, it is not limited to the foreign born in its scope and operation. A few months ago a movement was started in our city, having for its object the co-ordination of various activities for the purpose of inaugurating and carrying out a program of Americanization. Nothing definite as yet has been accomplished, although all of the representatives who attended the meetings were earnest and sincere in their desire to see the work started.

The definition agreed upon was the following: "Americanization is a movement to develop in both our native and foreign born people a common understanding and appreciation, to realize in our American life and Government the ideals guaranteed by our Constitution." Some of the aims hoped to be accomplished are the teaching of the English language; the maintaining of self-respecting standards of living; the absorption of social groupings and the combating in advance of anti-American propaganda; the acquiring of the national spirit of one citizenship under one flag; and the interpretation of America to the foreign born and the creating of a desire and a real love, affection and reverence for American citizenship.

It will readily be seen that this is a big program and requires big men and women to see it through. Up to the present time the various activities throughout the country have been engaged in the work of naturalization, which is only one phase of the greater subject of Americanization. Merely becoming a citizen and stopping there does not mean that the recipient of such a privilege will have respect and reverence for our institutions. He must be made to feel that he is part and parcel of this nation of ours. He should be made to feel at home.

Governor Smith of New York has approved a bill appropriating $100,000 for organizing and directing this phase of education. The bill permits localities to appropriate money for factory classes, night classes, home classes and other approved forms of giving instruction to non-English speaking and illiterate adults. Recently, business and professional men in Lawrence, Massachusetts, where labor disturbances are frequent and where there is a large unnaturalized element, instituted a great campaign of citizenship, which is designed to undermine the foundations on which violence has rested. The school authorities and the Bureau of Naturalization of the Department of Labor are to co-operate to train

The writer believes that school buildings cannot be used to better purpose. We have complained because aliens live in their own colonies and have newspapers in their own language, but the native born American, by his aloofness has helped to produce this condition. Education of the foreign born and cultivation of better relations with the native born will make more intelligent citizens and will also be effective in preserving industrial peace.

It seems to the writer that the Municipal League could do splendid work in furthering this program and that a standing committee should be appointed for this purpose.

Profitable Patriotism is buying War Savings Stamps.

Debts are the poorest spectacles through which to read advertising columns. Buy War Savings Stamps and get out of debt.

THE LEAGUE WILL NOT HOLD ITS REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING UNTIL SEPTEMBER

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

By James A. Haight

When you buy a loaf of bread you receive the benefit of four kinds of service—the production of the raw materials, the transportation of them, the manufacture of them into flour and the other constituents of the loaf, and lastly the distribution of the bread. When you pay for the loaf you pay Mr. Raw-Material Man, Mr. Transportation Man, Mr. Bakery Man, and Mr. Distribution Man.

When these producers increase their pay, they automatically increase the cost of the loaf. When men in all occupations increase their pay the cost of all objects of consumption increases. When the increases in pay are large we necessarily have a high cost of living.

When these increases of pay are accompanied by shortening of hours and relaxation of effort necessarily the cost of living must increase faster than the pay. When at the same time we wage an expensive war and burn up and blow up and waste in a thousand ways $30,000,000,000 to $40,000,000,000 worth of human effort in two years, the cost of living is bound to go higher still.

War is the champion raiser of the cost of living. Figures show that during the war the cost of living increased 100 per cent in the United States, 150 per cent in England, 200 per cent in France and 300 per cent in Italy.

The war has caused many Americans to live more plainly than they have lived before except in the time of the panic. But their economies have been modest compared with what the English, French and Italians have been forced to practice. While the after-effect in Russia has been a Bolshevik rule that has eliminated all the comforts and nearly all the necessities of life and has made suffering and misery the substance of the daily Russian life to a degree not witnessed in peace anywhere in modern times except in countries where society has been most aristocratically organized.

America, though in the best position, has not escaped serious material loss in the war. Her war expenditure amounts to from $1500 to $2000 per family. While this loss and waste are being made up, the family must necessarily practice economy. The average man cannot spend $500 to $1000 per year for two or three years on firecrackers and roman candles and still enjoy as generous bill of fare or as ample a supply of family comforts as before.

In short, the high cost of living, the decline in real wages, that is, in the day's work measured by the things the day's pay will buy, is simply the practical form that the material loss from war takes. That loss practically falls on everybody. Some persons may be so situated as to escape their share, but as a rule all efforts of Group A to throw the burden on Groups B to Z are futile, because each group can do the same, and as each increases its pay to respond to other increases industry gets into a condition of more and more unstable equilibrium until a crash comes and all incomes suspend and instead of half a loaf or three-fourths or nine-tenths, we have no bread.

Undoubtedly before long the vast acreage of the world available for the production of grain, will be under crop. This will cause wheat and meat to be more normal in price. At the same time as the industries of peace replace those of war in other countries, those countries will be able to buy and pay for an increasing quantity of our productions. Meanwhile our own industries will have recovered from the dislocation of war and will have become normal, an intelligent system of using public works as a means of reducing excessive unemployment will have been adopted and real wages will begin to rise—how high will depend on American effectiveness and invention.

STREET PLAY

By Austin E. Griffiths

The other day Miss Adel Parker pleaded with the Park Board to bring about the use of certain streets for children's play. This was most laudable on her part and I hope she will succeed.

The truth is this matter of street play has been up on and off for years. Nothing is done. So far as I know this matter was first brought to the attention of the old ward council about the year 1909.

The Park Board and the School Board could render no better public service than to cooperate to secure reasonable use of suitable streets for public recreation. However primary and full authority to "regulate and control the use" of streets is vested in the city council. Charter, Article 6, Section 18, Par. 7.

If public opinion were sufficiently insistent I have no doubt the council could bring about a survey of streets suitable for play without hindrance to ordinary traffic. Reasonable rules as to use of these streets for traffic and play a part of each day could then be made. These rules could be applied by the police who would be glad to cooperate and by the park and school board authorities.

There is little sense in letting streets waste for want of use and letting children famish for want of play space. Nor is it good for children to play in streets with a feeling of restraint and fear of reprimand.

Street play is just as lawful as street traffic. The only difference is that play on streets should give way to necessary passing traffic. But traffic has no lawful monopoly of any street or public space.

Parents and children are the important things of life. Parents pay taxes and support children. What is best for them is best for society.

Other cities are using streets for play. Why not Seattle?

COL. ROBBINS SPEAKS ABOUT RUSSIA

By Fred W. Catlett

The public meeting held in the First Methodist Church on last Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Municipal League, which was addressed by Col. Raymond Robbins, was as interesting and important a meeting as has been held in Seattle for many months. The church was packed with a cosmopolitan audience. There were present a very large delegation of Bolshevik sympathizers and a larger but less boisterous representation of anti-Bolsheviks. Mr. Robbins addressed the audience for three solid hours and then after a recess of a few minutes to permit those who cared to withdraw to do so, he continued to answer questions until after midnight. Possibly two-thirds of his audience remained for this latter part.

Mr. Reynolds, the President of the League, who presided, introduced Mr. Robbins very briefly and the speaker at once began to clear the way for a frank and straightforward presentation of the facts, without fear or favor. He asked in the beginning that his audience refrain from applause, as he was quick to appreciate that he had hearers of divergent opinions. It is, of course, impossible to give within the scope of a few short paragraphs any adequate idea of all that Mr. Robbins said. The leading daily papers quoted him but briefly. He expressed himself as being unalterably opposed to Bolshevism, because it was unsound economically and wrong morally in that it declared for control by one class. He distinguished sharply between Bolshevism and the Soviet form of government. He said that the Soviet form was but a development of the Mir or local council, which had its roots deep in the social life of Russia.

When the autocratic national government went to pieces, this local assembly was the only thing left and it was quite natural that the people in building up a government to take the place of that of the Czar, founded it upon the Mir and adopted a Soviet form. Mr. Robbins emphasized the division of the Russian people into two groups, the seven per cent ruling class group and the ninety-three per cent peasants and workmen. There was no middle class in Russia and the middle class is the class that furnishes stability to all governments of western Europe and America. The reason why so much false information is published abroad concerning Russia is because so many persons obtain all they know of the situation from representatives of the seven per cent and are not in touch with the ninety-three. Mr.

Robbins believed that the fault in the policy of the Allied governments toward Russia was due to this fact.

THE FALL PROGRAM

By The Secretary

The Municipal League Trustees will soon announce the opening date and place of meeting for the coming season. A special committee is arranging for a suitable meeting place while the program committee is rounding up the best program possible.

The various committee appointments will be announced in the near future and by the fore part of September things will be ready for a big year's work. It is hoped that the members having special departments of the League's investigation selected for their part of the work would so notify the president or secretary.

In order that the president might make the best committee appointments he has requested the members, and especially among the newer members, to send him the names of the committees upon which they desire to serve. The success of the League depends upon the work of its committees but in order to have earnest, energetic committee work we must have committee men who have an interest in their special line of investigation.

Seattle needs the Municipal League, the League needs the co-operation of every member for its committee work and you need to do some such work in order to properly appreciate your city.

The following are a few of the committees. Select one or more and send in your selection:

Charter Revision, City Government, City and County Consolidation, Candidates and Elections, Civil Service, County Affairs, Education, Finance, Fire Protection, Garbage Collection and Disposal, Municipal Finance and Taxation, Harbor Development

THE LEAGUE WILL NOT HOLD ITS REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING UNTIL SEPTEMBER

SOME OBSERVATIONS ON SINGLE TAX

By M. H. VanNuys

1—Western Canada.

The American business man, whenever Single Tax is proposed, usually is converted—into an instantaneous automatic heater, an article useful for Puget Sound summers. But our Canadian neighbors, living in a newer country, unhampered by Constitutional restrictions, observing how he was being fined annually for every barn and every crop he made and how his wealthy neighbor's lands were almost exempt from taxes because untouched and idle, concluded to try an experiment. And it has worked satisfactorily in nearly all instances.

2—Vancouver, B. C.

In 1895 the tax assessment on buildings was reduced 50 per cent, 75 per cent in 1906 and buildings were totally exempted in 1910. Total cost of buildings erected in 1902 $833,607.00, in 1912 $19,374,542.00. Exempting buildings from taxation stimulated building and attracted immigration. But the land tax being considered lower than the increase of land values and the area affected being small, the wide margin of profit stimulated speculation. Hence the temporary collapse. Single tax laws should be statewide and the tax high enough to prevent speculation.

3—Single Tax Creates Wealth.

In 1897 our state legislature exempted from taxation fruit trees for four years after being planted into orchards—a fragmentary single tax law. This law was held unconstitutional, but if it had remained in force it would have encouraged men to convert idle land into orchards—wealth.

4—The discovery of a natural law.

The presence of population and industrial and social activity, viz people as an aggregate and not the individual, make land—"land" includes all natural resources—valuable, whereas they make improvements on land and personal

BUILD MEN

By James A. Haight

In 1912 the Packard Manufacturing Company of Fort Wayne, Indiana, was in a bad way. There had been a strike and the company had won. The men were back at work. But everything lagged. The output was small. The workmanship was poor. The men's hands, not their hearts, were in their work.

Mr. John Leitch thought he saw a way out. He appealed to the owners. He spoke before the men. He recommended that all concerned follow a program of Justice, Co-operation, Economy, Energy and Service. This policy meant that all should do and plan what was best for the business and that half the saving should go to the men in their pay checks and the other half to the owners. Weekly meetings should be held at which the men and the owners could talk over what could best be done for the benefit of the business.

The result was an immediate and permanent saving of 5 per cent in costs. Then, they discovered that a different kind of coal at the same price would make twice as much steam, and if delivered differently would save useless labor. When it was found that four men could do the work of five, something else was found for the fifth man to do and no one was discharged. When a nine hour day was suggested instead of the ten hour day that then prevailed, the experiment was tried out with the result that an additional saving of 8 per cent was obtained. Later a similar result followed the adoption of an eight hour day.

When the war came on sales almost ceased. The men of their own accord brought up the question of a partial shut down in order to help out the company. After talking the matter over they voted to work only three days each week in spite of the urging of the president that they work four days each week.

At one meeting it was suggested that an efficiency engineer be employed. Some one said "we are 268 efficient engineers" and this disposed of that suggestion.

During the war the number of employees declined to 168. Then came a revival. As business increased the men devised economies. Now the 168 men make more and better pianos than the company ever did. The result has been shorter hours, lighter work, higher pay and, more than all that, a pride in their work, a feeling of comradeship, a sense of responsibility for and loyalty to the business, a conviction of their own manhood that give a new meaning to life.

The president says: "The business builds men, the men build the pianos." Why not do the same in all industries? Why not let the business build the men and depend on such men to build the products?

property cheaper, viz. less expensive to be reproduced. Here then is a natural fund (land values) created by the general public and instantly available and ample for the public organism (the government) to feed on. Nations are and ever have been half starved, because they have allowed this public grainary to be appropriated by a few individuals. How does a man behave who from childhood has been brought up half starved? He is voracious, often unscrupulous; he issues his promissory note freely, is extravagant; he demands an easy job and high pay, and is fond of electric lights. With this picture in mind, let us consider the following statistics of Seattle:

5—Single Tax Individualistic, not Socialistic.

The tax being "single" viz. upon land exclusive of all improvements and personal property, the owners could not well afford to allow useful land (other than lands of no present value) to remain idle long. Further all taxes being thus shifted to land, the owner's equity in the land would be made less valuable, thereby making the selling price lower and lands cheaper to acquire. All this would tend to throw open, in city and country, many and large tracts to industrious and enterprising men. And so long as they paid the tax, they would enjoy exclusive possession and could carry on any legitimate occupation like free born men.

DIRECT ACTION

By Samuel Koch

Our government is a system of checks and balances. But it is surprising to reflect how much of the life of the individual and of the ethical life of the group reflects a similar arrangement; and imposed, not from within, but from without. Two flagrant instances of unwonted clemency to law breakers have occurred in our midst within recent weeks. The decisions of our highest courts have been nullified; the sense of the body politic has been outraged; the public, undoubtedly has felt itself out and injured. Yet no righteous indignation has vented itself either on the part of the local press—except in an innocuous, academic way here and there—or by the Bar or by the Church. Good government organizations, too, have let the episodes go by the board. Without a twinge of conscience or the manifestation of a suspicion as to whither silent acquiescence leads, men as a whole, seem content to leave the business of government to the other fellow, and this fellow usually turns out to be of the interested few with some end to attain. It is only because the mass of men attend to government by proxy that any particular coterie can band themselves together in a successful raid on the communal wish and will.

Just why the disinterested, objective public, the majority in every issue, and the determinants of justice, too, should lack in the leadership whereby men are aroused to a vindication of their outraged rights is hard to explain, unless it be because the men who ought to lead are afraid or too politic—the basis of the fear in question—to risk popularity or business or position or trouble, or too selfish or lazy.

But plainly, an unquestioning acquiescence in unethical conduct by the group only serves as an incentive to other venturesome souls to try to get away with evasion of the law as enunciated by the courts. The question is how far may organized society permit infraction of the law to go without let or hindrance. Every unchecked defiance of the law is an imposition upon the lawabiding body politic. If encouraged sufficiently, society will become chaos and force, and anarchy will usurp law and order, and subvert the ethical standards as determined by the experience and wisdom of the untold generations.

It seems a matter of conscience for the disinterested individual insistently to protest against every brazen subversion of the law. The individual must get beyond a rhetorical effusiveness of "justice" and "democracy" with their kith and kin, to a practical, personal interest in men who are just and in deeds that are true. Then will the group see many of the evaders of the law acting socially, and many of the grievances of society will have disappeared. A direct interest in the governing of ourselves will save us, when a proxy interest, such as we are wont to display, cannot but lead to ruin eventually.

IMPROVED HOSPITAL SUPERVISION URGED

Asserting that more strict supervision of hospitals is necessary, Dr. H. M. Read, city health commissioner, asked Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier recently to draft an ordinance requiring all plans for hospitals to be filed with the health department and the issuance of a permit as a prerequisite to construction; also providing that all public and private hospitals in the city shall be open to the inspection of the commissioner of health, or his deputies, at any and all times.

In his letter to Mr. Meier Dr. Read says:

"There are being established within this city at the present time many institutions of the so-called 'lying-in hospital' type. It is probable that these are legitimate institutions, but at the same time, under the cloak of 'lying-in hospitals,' institutions for criminal practices are often disguised.

It seems remarkable that there should be so many of these institutions coming into existence."

Replying to Dr. Read's communication, Mr. Meier said the city has numerous ordinances relating to the construction, conduct and management of hospitals, and suggests that these ordinances be embodied in one.

PRICE 10 CENTS

THE KIRKLAND FERRY

By Austin E. Griffiths

This morning a business veteran informed me "the carpenters are crazy for going on strike" and he guessed everybody was going crazy. Which reminded me that long ago our old friend Samantha said everybody was crazy" except me and my Josiah and sometimes I think Josiah is crazy." So, I consoled him by saying "Yes, everybody is crazy except you and me," and to this natural and wholesome reservation my friend and labor employer quite agreed.

The last instance of mental aberration I think of was the late raising of Seattle-Kirkland ferry rates.

The county commissioners listened to the fee-fo-fum of feed lawyers and to the harrowing economy pleas of greedy capitalists. The non-passenger rates are up. The effect will be to check legitimate and praiseworthy rural production and supply of the smaller sort for the benefit of Seattle and to choke in part the natural eastward expansion of Seattle across Lake Washington.

This long lake is a smuch a part of the special topography of this country as are the rolling hills or ridges and the heavy woods and wet valleys. Where highways between towns require even unusual deep cuts and fills or extra labor and cost or long trestles in building through heavy stump or swamp lands county boards do not make such highways toll roads nor charge the cost of construction and maintenance against the towns or localities dependent upon them. The whole cost of making and upkeep is a charge on the commune treasury.

Why should a necessary ferry be put on a different basis? True in older days ferry, bridge and road tolls were perhaps numerous. But we are not in the Middle Ages. Toll gates have gone, should the ferry ticket survive? We have free roads, free bridges. Why not free ferries? The fact that a ferry is increasingly used (as is true of the Kirkland ferry) instead of being an argument for a charge or larger fare is a living reason showing the growing social value or even the economic necessity of the ferry service.

Ferry service in some places is as important as a road and its maintenance a necessary ferry ought to be as free as a necessary road. There is no difference in principle between them. Both support or carry traffic.

It is no more arbitrary to assert the Seattle-Kirkland ferry is necessary than to assert the Bothel highway or the Renton highway is necessary. It would be no more unreasonable to close the ferry on the ground that one could reach Seattle or Kirkland by going around Lake Washington than to close the present Lake Forest road to Bothel or the Rainier Valley road to Renton on the ground that there are other though longer roads to Bothel and Renton.

Why not charge for crossing our bridges? Comparing the cost and upkeep of an expensive and necessary bridge and the short length of it with the cost and keep of a necessary ferry and the long distance covered by it, who will say the ferry costs more than the bridge?

But bridge tolls are seldom tolerated. The last one I recall was the private bridge toll over the Chehalis river at Aberdeen. But this thrifty city to encourage traffic with the south side of the river caused the bridge to be free. The bridge over the Columbia at Wenatchee was first a toll gate. Soon the comparatively small volume of public opinion in those parts caused the bridge to be set free. Yet the river there, especially the length of the bridge is as long across as some places are wide where ferry tolls are

THE FIRST MEETING

By The Secretary

The first meeting of the Municipal League will start off with an exceptionally good speaker and a live subject. Dean Stephen I. Miller, dean of the College of Business Administration of the University of Washington will speak on "Controlling the High Cost of Living."

The meeting will be held at Meve's Cafeteria, Second and Seneca, Tuesday noon, September the 9th. The trustees are of the opinion that these quarters will soon be too small to accommodate the expected attendance, and are going to take a few minutes of the business time for a discussion of a larger meeting place.

A report will be submitted by a special committee showing what is being done in the city and county to curb the increase in prices of living commodities.

The League has a big program outlined for the year's work and will need the co-operation of every member in order to properly carry through the plans.

Do not miss Tuesday's meeting.

FEDERAL AID FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION

(Concluded from last week)

(c) The cooperation and support of national organizations can be more readily secured in promoting a single national bill than in promoting a general movement for the stimulation of state legislation.

IV. Because it is necessary to translate into legislative action very quickly the incipient popular interest in physical education which has resulted from our experience in the great war:

(a) This is the time of readjustment in which people are expecting radical measures to meet the needs demonstrated by the war experience.

(b) As a memory of the great war fades into the background, consciousness of the national weakness demonstrated by the war will also become less keen.

(c) The necessary national undertakings involving large expenditures occasioned by the war have prepared the public mind for expecting large national expenditures for the promotion of the public welfare in peace.

V. Because the movement for state legislation for physical education will be helped by the movement for national legislation for physical education:

(a) Every national physical education bill seriously considered, which involves federal aid to the states, also involves the requirement that in order to benefit by the national fund states must reach minimum requirements in the establishment of compulsory physical education providing for teacher training and providing for state administration.

Furthermore, no state legislation at present time proposed would involve the establishment of physical education to the extent that would be required under the federal law.

VI. Proposed federal legislation for physical education would unify the incipient efforts of a number of federal departments and bureaus to dabble with various phases of this general problem.

Rebuttal of Possible Objections

(1) Would not Federal legislation for physical education involve undue interference with states' rights:

(a) The Federal law should provide for the proper amount of local autonomy in the administration of funds, fixing only minimum standards to which every state must rise in order to benefit by Federal aid.

(b) Physical education is so clearly fundamental to the national safety and welfare both in peace and in war that it is obviously a matter of inter-state and national concern.

(c) Physical education is so clearly a fundamental human necessity that it cannot be argued that "special conditions" make it unnecessary in any state or locality:

(1) A study of physical conditions in rural communities has shown that the death rate has been increasing in the last 30 years until it now nearly equals the death rate in the cities.

(2) Could the Bureau of Education be depended upon to administer wisely a Federal physical education law?

(a) In the first place, by making implicit in the law the definite minimum requirements to be attained by the states we would leave to the Commissioner of Education a minimum of responsibility in the distribution of funds:

(b) In the second place, it is futile to argue that no responsibility should be given to a Federal bureau or department until a record of efficiency has been established. Not until our Federal Bureau of Education has placed upon it large genuine responsibilities will there appear an insistent popular demand for the best available leadership. (Allowance, of course, must be made for political animus in criticism of Federal bureaus. Much of the criticism is so vague and indefinite as to be utterly unreliable).

(c) The best vehicle available must be used, whether it be a bureau of education or federal educational department. Physical education is primarily an educational matter and the schools furnish the only hopeful medium for reaching all the children.

(d) Because of the great amount of freedom allowed the various states in the development of their systems of education, the effectiveness of the work done would by no means depend exclusively upon the effectiveness of the federal bureau.

(e) It is futile to argue that all increased delegation of responsibility to federal officials should be held up until we have perfectly solved the problem of placing in these positions men of the highest mental caliber and organizing ability.

How wide must a water course be to enjoy a free bridge or to be afflicted with a ticket ferry? How much should Lake Washington shrink in order to have a bridge? If both sides of Mercer Island were bridged (as will be done some day) how long would the county board have ticket collectors on that new highway? Not longer than to the next election.

I ask the county board why should we be moved to boost fares because of the tales of woe of the Seattle rich who take with one hand the advantage of congesting population in the city and beat down taxes with the other? I have no doubt that if the Kirkland service were left to the ordinary business men of Seattle they would have the ferry free—for the greater benefit direct or indirect of all King county.

But a free ferry is not asked. People are willing to pay a fair charge. Why impose more? I cite two instances, an auto increase from thirty five cents to sixty cents single way and a truck lift from thirty five cents to seventy five cents one way. How can the small producer afford his time and vehicle and pay this and other expense in order to sell in Seattle?

The Kirkland gateway to and from the great east might stand to Seattle as the Appiane Way stood to Rome. But the Romans charged no toll.

PRICE 10 CENTS

CONTROLLING THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

Dean Miller's Address

Dean Ivan Miller's address at the meeting of the Municipal League Tuesday, Sept. 9, was as follows:

Prevailing high prices in the United States are the result of several complex and economic forces.

First—The enormous expansion of credit: Due to the vast increase of credit facilities the purchasing power (demand) of the United States has increased by leaps and bounds. Enlarged purchasing power means the multiplication of bids for both consumers' and producers' goods. Unless the supply of products keeps pace, higher prices must result. Such an increased purchasing power is reflected by American bank deposits, which were $18,624,000,000 in 1914, and $32,588,000,000 in 1918; likewise by the issue of federal reserve notes, which amounted to $1,246,000,000 in 1917 and $2,680,000,000 in 1918. Economists recognize in credit inflation the chief cause of high prices. There can be no state or local control of the monetary situation.

Second — Exports: Foreign countries have been drawing heavily upon American supplies of raw material and finished products.

Nothing less than federal action would be able to regulate the conditions of foreign trade. Due to the high prices in America the tide must turn, but not until Europe has progressed farther in reconstruction.

Third—Waste: The amount of individual, government and business waste in the U. S. is appalling—probably amounting to at least $2,000,000,000 per annum.

This is a problem for public opinion and education. Little immediate relief is possible.

Fourth—Taxation: At the present time taxation must be cut to the minimum. By necessity, salaries, wages and immediately productive improvements must be advanced, but the development of streets and alleys and the building of structures should be postponed wherever possible. Under existing economic conditions labor and materials must be directed to the most immediate and productive means for bringing forth consumers' goods. Considerable can be done by local legislative bodies in curtailing expenditures which are not justified by present economic conditions.

Fifth—Capital investment: A large amount of capital is being used for the extension of industries which at the present time are not economic. A well regulated household would not, when under severe economic pressure, devote its labor and materials to the production of nonessentials. What is true for the family is (Continued on page 3.)

MEVE'S CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA

PROGRAM TO BE ANNOUNCED IN DAILY PRESS

OUR FIRST MEETING

By the Secretary

The first regular meeting of the League which was held last Tuesday noon was a big success not only in the large attendance but also in the interesting and instructive program.

The management of the Meves Cafeteria has promised the League the entire balcony of the cafeteria providing our attendance will warrant it. This will give us ample room to expand and also cut down the noise.

The attendance at Tuesday's meeting was the largest since the present secretary has been in office. The officers and trustees are greatly encouraged over the interest the members are showing in the work, not only by their attendance but also by their willingness to serve upon the various committees.

The outlook for the winter's work is most encouraging. Let's all get together, sign up new members and line up with some committee not already appointed. We are off.

THE CITY RAILWAY

By C. A. LaGrave

The reports of the Superintendent of the City Railway system to the mayor which shows a profit of $14,457.46 for the past four months are rather misleading.

The operating expense actually audited and paid is $106,237.77 greater than the "Known Operating Expense" shown in the reports. This item alone converts the profit named into a loss of $91,779.81.

It is probable that damages will greatly exceed the estimate and possible that about $300,000 of taxes must be paid.

In addition to the expenses shown there should be approximately $800,000 per year paid into a Depreciation Reserve Fund, and this must be real money.

There should also be paid into a Sinking Fund about $800,000 per year to redeem bonds. This liability can be dodged until 1921 but no later, as more than $800,000 of bonded debt falls due April 1, 1921.

A statement at Dec. 31, 1919, should show:

Loss for 9 months
(at rate shown)	$206,504.73
Paid into Depreciation
Reserve (9 mo.)	615,000.00
Discount on Bonds sold	40,000.00

-------------------	--------------

The theory that maintenance has taken care of depreciation is in line with the practice of the Puget Sound T. L. & P. Co. as set out in the report of the accountants employed by the city to check certain schedules entitled "Cost of Property" against the books of the company.

The report is dated Oct. 5, 1918, is City Clerk's file No. 71546, time limit ten days and cost General Fund $1850.00. The first two or three pages explain and qualify the estimate of $15,302,360.85 set forth in 75 pages of figures as the original cost of the system.

It says in part:

"The purchase price of the various companies taken over were represented in many cases, by round sums payable in the form of stocks in exchange for stock of the original company, but the figures shown, in our opinion, represent the actual cost of construction by the original companies."

"We experienced difficulty in getting particulars of many of the items included in latter years and in the first part of the period many details were entirely lacking, but we believe after due consideration of relative circumstances, that the statement may be taken as representing the first cost of the railroad property and equipment."

"No depreciation has apparently been deducted from the various plant accounts, but we are informed that it was the practice of the company to add only the difference between the old and new costs of all replacements to plant account."

The original cost, which is also the book value of the seller includes the original cost of construction, plus the value of all replacements in excess of the cost of the original items replaced.

There is a possibility of water in the stock deal and uncertainty as to missing details at both ends of the construction history of the system that raises doubts as to whether or not the conclusions as to values are justified.

Maintenance has simply repaired or replaced items of track or equipment which have been damaged or destroyed, and cannot, in any case, make an old property as good as new except as to the particular items repaired or replaced in the immediate past.

Depreciation runs constantly and is heavier with each year of the life of a property. In this case the accumulated depreciation of two-thirds of the life of an old property must be met during the next few years, in addition to a constantly increasing cost of maintenance. Some of the properties covered in the report are thirty years old, the stock deals mentioned occurred twenty years ago when practically all of the lines then existing were consolidated, the newest line is more than ten years old. The property has lived more than fifteen years of its allotted life, and not a dollar for depreciation has been charged off in thirty years. The vast amount of depreciation of both track and equipment in plain sight, and that other vast amount that is invisible but is there just the same, proves that the property is worth much less than the city owes for it.

The estimate for 1920 of $7,000,000 covers operation and interest.

The addition of depreciation, damages and industrial insurance will make approximately $8,000,- 000. Less estimated Revenue, $5,720,000, leaves revenue deficit for 1920 of $2,280,000, and still no Sinking Fund.

Even if depreciation is not provided for, and there will certainly be no money available for it, there will remain a loss for 1920 of nearly $1,500,000 in addition to $240,000 for this year.

RESOLUTION

Mr. Edgar J. Wright, Municipal League Trustee, presented at the last meeting of the board of trustees the following resolution which was referred to the Public Utilities committee for investigation and report.

Whereas, the congestion of traffic on the streets of our city has become a menace to public safety, and

Whereas, the delays caused by such congestion of traffic is a serious inconvenience and annoyance to our citizens in going to and from their homes and places of business or employment, and

Whereas, such congestion of traffic can only be remedied by an addition to our present street car facilities by elevated railways or subways, and

Whereas, the Honorable Mayor of the City of Seattle and the Superintendent of Public Utilities have publicly stated that they are in favor of preparing plans for a subway for future submission to the people, and

Whereas, it is to the best interests of the citizens of our city that such plans be carefully drawn in such manner as to best serve the future growth of our city,

Be it Resolved that the Committee on Public Utilities of the League be requested to co-operate in every way with the Superintendent of Public Utilities in the preparation of plans and securing public discussion of the transportation needs of the city.

RESOLUTION

At the Tuesday meeting of the Municipal League the following resolution was presented by a special committee of which Mr. James T. Lawler was chairman, and passed by the unanimous vote of the League.

Resolved, by the Municipal League of Seattle, in view of the great honor that we are to receive in the coming of our great fleet and its Commander and Chief, President Wilson, that we go on record against any raise in prices during the visit of the fleet and the thousands of officers and men who will be our guests; Resolved further that we pledge ourselves to co-operate in all well directed efforts to curb attempts of making excessive charges and to suppress profiteering.

JAMES T. LAWLER,
Chairman.

TUESDAY MEETING

The first meeting of the Municipal League after the summer vacation was held in the gallery of Meves Cafeteria, Tuesday noon, Sept. 9, about one hundred members being present.

Jas. W. Reynolds, president, stated that never had the League entered upon a year when so much constructive work for the League was in prospect.

The new committees were announced, the members rising when their names were called.

L. D. Lewis, chairman of the Program Committee, promised a series of meetings made interesting by live debates and up to date addresses.

Jas. T. Lawler, chairman of the Special Committee on the High Cost of Living, introduced a resolution that was adopted by unanimous vote, expressing the sentiment that no raising of prices during the visit of the Fleet and of President Wilson should be practiced or tolerated.

Prof. Ivan Miller, Dean of the School of Business Administration of the University, was the guest of honor, and addressed the League on the subject, "Controlling the High Cost of Living." His clear statement and his passionate analysis of the problem made a deep impression on his hearers. A summary of his address appears elsewhere.

 true for the nation. During the war much was accomplished at this point. The co-operation of merchants and consumers to curtail the demand for necessities until such time as necessities were more plentiful would be helpful. Public opinion could be stimulated along these lines.

Sixth—Movement of population to the cities: The productivity of American soil is being sorely handicapped by a relative depletion of available labor. In 1800, 3 out of every 100 of our population lived in cities of 5,000 or more inhabitants. Today about 40 out of every 100 live in such cities.

Seventh—Profiteering: Abnormal profits are the result of price control and this control may be exercised by:

- a. Formal price fixing.
- b. Semiformal price fixing, such as "opening prices."
- c. Formal price fixing, such as "marking goods to the market."

Eighth—Labor costs. Increases in wages will affect the selling price of the product unless the increase is taken out of profits or results in greater efficiency.

Ninth—Presence of too many middlemen: The marketing organization of the United States is open to much criticism. It is a well known fact that many of our requirements double in price as between the producer and the consumer. At the present time producer, wholesaler, jobber and retailer make levy upon many products. The complex of middlemen is generally justified by the "trade" due to the extension and area of the market. There is every reason to believe that a much more direct method of distribution could be devised. Every reform along this line has the opposition of a strong vested interest and requires co-operation of the retailers and efficiency of the local government.

TUESDAY'S MEETING

By Fred W. Catlett

A goodly attendance of League members heard last Tuesday's program. President Reynolds announced that by the time of the next meeting the balcony at Meves Cafeteria would be curtailed off from the lower floor, and that, if such change did not keep out the noise, the stairway leading to the balcony would also be enclosed; that, therefore, the League could count upon having better accommodations in the future.

A resolution was then presented by Jackson Silbaugh commending the mayor and others who had taken part in the planning of a celebration on September 17th of the 132nd anniversary of the signing of the Constitution of the United States. After an amendment of the resolution it was unanimously agreed to.

The president then called upon Mr. Griffiths, acting president of the local branch of the League to Enforce Peace, to make a statement concerning the distribution of tickets and the handling of the public meeting at the Arena last Saturday night, where President Wilson spoke on the covenant of the League of Nations.

Mr. Griffiths pointed out the difficulty in the disposition of tickets, due to the small number of seats which it seemed possible to reserve and the very large number of people who desired to attend the meeting. He also expressed the regret of the officers in charge that more people were not admitted to the hall and that in some way the plans for the opening of all the doors simultaneously were not carried out. He said it was his understanding that the doors had been closed upon the orders of the Fire Marshal, who stated that the building was already filled to its capacity, and that he had not been able to ascertain why the police did not permit the people assembled to enter through the University street doors, as arranged. He concluded that the lesson to be drawn from the city's experiences with that meeting was that a large auditorium, such as is planned by the auditorium association movement, initiated by the League, was urgently needed.

The president then introduced as the speaker of the day Captain Malcolm Douglas, a member of the League and a former trustee and a very efficient member of the program committee. Captain Douglas did not attempt to tell of his battle experiences, but confined his talk to incidents occurring under his observation while within the occupied districts of Germany. The address was highly entertaining and interesting and members present regretted that there was not even more time available for it than the half hour allotted.

MAYOR PRAISES POLICE

Mayor C. B. Fitzgerald Wednesday commended Chief of Police J. F. Warren and the members of the department for the efficient service given during "fleet week."

"I think our police department did splendid work," Mayor Fitzgerald said. "It would naturally be supposed that if there are any pickpockets in the country they would be following the President's party and working among the crowds sure to gather wherever he stopped, but we only had a couple of reports of robberies. The police department picked up a lot of fellows and they must have hit on some of the right ones. There was no trouble of any kind, though we had one of the biggest crowds ever assembled in the city.

"I think, myself, that we have a pretty good police department and that Seattle is a pretty good town. We are not having any trouble—not having any fights or shooting anybody—in fact we aren't having any cross words."

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The right of the members of the police department to strike has again been challenged in connection with the recent difficulties in Boston. President Wilson has himself referred to the strike as a "crime." This emphasizes the need of a more thorough discussion of the rights of the municipal employee, with particular reference to his right to strike.

It will be remembered that last spring a committee of the League submitted a report denying such right. The report was debated at considerable length during two meetings, but was finally disposed of, if our memory serves us correctly, by re-reference to the committee that it might couple with the denial of the right to strike some method for dealing with such grievances of the municipal employees as might arise. A report from this special committee soon would be very timely.

At the last meeting of the Board of Trustees the Municipal Finance Committee was requested to investigate the recent sale of utility bonds at a discount and report to the League the reasons why in such an excellent bond market Seattle utility bonds should still sell below par.

An initiative petition to make unlawful the sale, use or possession of cigarettes in Oregon after January 1st, 1921, was filed last Wednesday at Portland. The measure fixes the maximum fine for the first offense at $100.00, for the second at $200.00 and for the third and subsequent offenses provides a jail term of thirty days in addition to the fine.

system. Its consulting engineers have reported to the city commissioners that it would require about $2,000,000.00 to finance a proposed municipal power plant; $1,180,000.00 for the necessary hydraulic plant on the Sultan river; $410,000.00 for the construction of an auxiliary steam plant; and the remainder for the purchase of the present system of the Puget Sound Electric & Power Company. The engineers suggest that it might be desirable to refrain from erecting the auxiliary steam power plant and arrange instead for connecting with the Seattle power lines; that the City of Everett could probably buy its power from the City of Seattle during an emergency, as cheaply as it could manufacture in a steam driven plant. Such an arrangement would effect a saving of $250,000.00 in first cost.

The service of the Pacific States' Telephone & Telegraph Company in this city is now under fire. Corporation Counsel Meier has written to the city council asking for instructions to institute proceedings before the State Public Service Commission in an effort to improve the service.

* * *

Mr. Carl F. Uhden, president of the Universal Electric Company of Spokane, has been selected by City Engineer Dimock and Mayor Fitzgerald to supervise the building of the Skagit power plant. Mr. Uhden was in charge of the construction of the Long Lake dam, a $10,000,000.00 project from which the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway obtains power for the operation of its trains.

Mayor Fitzgerald has suggested that a tunnel should be constructed through Beacon Hill to serve the Rainier Valley district in the matter of sewage. The situation is a difficult one, because of the topography of the district. The mayor realizes that the construction of the tunnel would be costly, because of the size of the bore and its length, but thinks it would be warranted in the long run.

The suggestion from the mayor came as the result of some discussion over the contamination of Lake Washington. City Health Commissioner Read is quoted as saying that the city need have no fear of contaminating Lake Washington at this or any other time. He says that repeated tests taken close to the outfalls of the existing sewers "have never shown a single bacterial culture traceable to sewer contamination. I have made a personal investigation of the water at the bathing beaches and even closer to the sewer outfalls, and the water is free from sewage."

A new style of transfers is to be used by municipal lines. They are to be printed on light cardboard, about the size and form of a moving picture theatre ticket. The transfer will carry a clock face, punched to indicate the time of issuance. Each day a different color will be used. Only one transfer will be given upon the payment of a fare, except in a very few cases. This is for the purpose of avoiding an abuse of the transfer system.

The city has this week been trying the pay-as-you-leave plan upon the Eastlake line. Although it has not yet had sufficient trial to test it, Superintendent Murphine has stated that it has worked well to date.

* * *

The National Traffic Officers' Association, of which Chief of Police Joel F. Warren is vice-president, will hold its first annual convention in Seattle, beginning October 9th. We hope the convention will apply its expert knowledge and give particular attention to the traffic conditions in Seattle.

NEW TRANSFERS TO STOP DAILY LEAK

To stop a leak estimated at $500 a day, a new system of transfers is to be put in effect on the Seattle Municipal Street Railway, Superintendent Thomas F. Murphine announced recently. The new transfers will be about the size of a theatre ticket, of a different color for each day, and with a clock dial on which the time for which it is good will be punched. Only one transfer will be issued for one fare. The new system will go into effect as soon as the transfers are printed.

"We are losing about $500 a day because our transfer system permits too many rides on one fare," Superintendent Murphine said. "Passengers on Yesler Way cable, for instance, can ride down town, transfer to a Second avenue car, take another transfer to any of the east lines, ride a few blocks, then get off and attend to business and walk back to the Yesler cable and ride back home, all for 5 cents. The same system can be worked on many other lines.

"Just to try this out we sent a man out a while ago to see how far he could ride for one fare. He started at 9 o'clock in the morning and was still riding at 4 o'clock. He hadn't stopped for lunch. He said he had all the riding he cared for and wanted to quit. The new transfer system will stop that sort of riding."

RESOLUTION

The following resolution was presented at Tuesday's meeting by Jackson Silbaugh and adopted by the League.

Whereas, an element in this city is constantly seizing upon every opportunity to stir up factional feeling and a feeling of unrest and antagonism towards the Government, and

Whereas this organization is composed of members who are always in the forefront of every movement to uphold and support the Government of the United States. Therefore,

Be it Resolved that the Municipal League commend in the highest terms the efforts on the part of the Mayor and the Americanization Committee and others to bring to the attention of the children of our public schools on the anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution, the history and benefits of that great bulwark of American Liberty.

NEW MEMBERS

Our new members for the past week are, Mr. C. C. Pierce, Mr. J. E. Riley and Mr. B. H. Petley. Now is the time to get the new members. Each Municipal Leaguer should get at least one new member by October 1st.

Thrift is the yeast that swells pennies to dollars. Prove it with War Savings Stamps.

MEMBERSHIP DUES

Those members who have not paid the present year's dues are requested to send in their checks as soon as possible. These funds will be needed to properly start off the winter's work.

Statements have been mailed to all members but if one has not reached you call the secretary at Main 476, and another will be sent.

The amount of each member's dues is small but the aggregate means the League's existence.

Do not delay.

TUESDAY'S MEETING

By Fred W. Catlett

Last Tuesday's meeting was again well attended. The curtains promised by Mr. Meves to screen the balcony from the lower floor were in place and were of material assistance in keeping out the noise. It will be necessary, however, to screen the stairway as well before conditions are all satisfactory.

Mr. Quigley, chairman of the Entertainment committee passed small cards around the tables for the signatures of members present and announced for the committee that members might expect some novel stunts in the near future.

The president announced that the committee to which had been referred the question of the right of municipal civil service employees to strike would report at next Tuesday's meeting.

Mr. E. W. Allen announced the hearing to be held by the State Land Commissioner in the Assembly Room of the Chamber of Commerce for the discussion and presentation of objections to proposed harbor areas on Lake Washington.

The address of the day was delivered by Thomas F. Murphine, Superintendent of Public Utilities. Mr. Murphine spoke on "Some Problems of the Municipal Railway." Only three or four of the large cities in the country had been able to continue street railway service without increasing the fares. The increase of fares in general had not produced the desired result, as every increase of fare produced a larger proportionate decrease in patronage, and in Boston, with the increase to ten cents, Mr. Murphine declared, the receipts were actually less than with the five cent fare. It was impossible to manage the street railway system in the same fashion as under the private company and make it pay with the five cent fare, and so the city authorities had endeavored to make economies in many ways. The wage item had necessarily increased. One of the attempted economies mentioned was the installation of meters on the cars, and already, so far as installed, the meters have accomplished a very appreciable saving.

Mr. Murphine pointed out the inherent difficulties in the topography of the city which forced all the lines to converge and pass along the three down town streets; and second, the lack of manufacturing establishments scattered through out the city which would provide cars with a return load. As it is, cars coming down town in the morning are crowded; on the way back they are empty and the condition is almost reversed in the evening; also, during the middle of the day the cars could carry a much larger load than called upon to carry.

OUR REGULAR MEETING WILL BE HELD

MEVE'S CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA

SPEAKER

HON. FRANK B. COOPER

SUPT OF THE SEATTLE CITY SCHOOLS

SUBJECT

"The Public School Program and Problems"

The special committee upon the right of the civil service employees striking will report upon their summer investigation

Mr. Murphine stated that he was absolutely opposed to any zoning system; that he could not approve of any scheme which would give a bonus to those who rode on the cars during the crowded hours, but that they would probably try the experiment of offering a bonus to those who ride during the offpeak hours. He also pointed out the duplication of service in some localities, in particular in the case of Division A of the municipal line, which parallels within a couple of blocks and for a considerable distance the Westlake line. He said that the ideal situation would be to have no resident of the city more than four blocks from a street car line.

At the end of his address Mr. Murphine was asked several questions. A resident of Beacon Hill presented a protest against the skip-stop system as in affect there. Mr. Murphine stated that in putting in the skip-stop system it was quite possible that some mistakes had been made and that the department would

By Fred W. Catlett

A conference of federal, state, county and municipal authorities was held Wednesday at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club to devise ways and means to check the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs. Chief of Police Warren made the statement that the number of persons addicted to narcotic drugs had increased two-fold in a year's time.

Two committees were appointed, one to proceed at once to check the evil, and the other to make a general survey of the situation and to suggest the necessary legislation. Dr. H. M. Reed the City Health Commissioner, was appointed chairman of the first committee and George H. Walker chairman of the second.

A bill regulating the use and sale of second-hand bedding and wearing apparel came up before the Public Safety Committee of the City Council but was postponed two weeks to give interested parties an opportunity to be heard. Dr. Reed and Sanitary Inspector M. T. Stevens of the City Health Department advocated the passage of the ordinance as a means of preventing epidemics of contagious diseases.

As the Municipal League has formally gone on record in favor of a League to Enforce Peace and as the matter of the peace treaty is still within the purposes of the League, as defined last spring by the League itself, it is doubtless permissible to touch upon the proposed covenant of the League of Nations included in the peace treaty and the discussion of it which is at present raging all over the country. The matter is of such vital importance that, in the judgment of the writer at least, the columns of the News could not be better employed than in the discussion of this covenant while such discussion may be helpful. The position of the writer of these notes in favor of the acceptance of the covenant is well known; but he would be glad to see the News print communications from the League members on both sides of the question.

Such discussion is particularly needed, because, although there have been a great many protestations to the contrary, the contest over the covenant has become very largely, and only too largely, partisan, and much of the discussion which is given space in the public press bears that character. The attack upon the covenant has tended very largely to become anti-Wilson and to become lost in the discussion of Americanism, anti-Japanese agitation or the return of our soldiers from Siberia. If we may place any confidence whatever in the news dispatches it looks as if the partisan play upon the prejudices of many elements of the community is going to be successful in preventing the United States from joining the other nations of the world in the greatest step toward world peace since the world began. Municipal questions in Seattle used to be decided in much the same fashion, not upon their merits, but by an appeal to the prejudices of the people against the Puget Sound Traction, Light & Power Company or some other of the public service corporations.

The opponents of the covenant first appealed to the anti-Japanese sentiment by an attack upon the Shantung settlement. They then appealed to the prejudices and fears of conservative Americans who are afraid that a League of Nations would in some fashion injure the Monroe Doctrine or impair our sovereignty. Next the support of the friends of the Irish is sought by an attack upon Great Britain. The services of the British navy to us in this war are forgotten and Great Britain is painted as seeking world supremacy at our expense. The covenant is a British covenant, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India and South Africa are admitted to it to give England predominance and control. Senator Reed even goes to the extent of making a call upon race prejudice, asserting that the League of Nations means the control of the white race by the black, the brown and the yellow races.

Such a combination of prejudices aroused creates an unreasonable, but very formidable opposition to the covenant. The cleavage fortunately is not strictly along party lines, but seems to be between those who still have a little idealism left and those who have not; between those who are willing to admit that other nations may have as high ideals as our own and are probably willing to treat us with the same degree of good faith that we profess toward them and those who have only suspicion and fear of other nations; between those who hope for a better future and look toward the future as well as the past, and those who see no hope and look and count entirely upon the past. The writer has never voted for President Wilson or been a personal supporter of him, but is a supporter of the covenant and believes that, if Americans who are independent would examine the League covenant itself in the light of the past history and present world conditions and not accept secondhand opinions of the partisan press columns, the great majority of them would support the president in this crisis.

The League covenant may or may not be successful; it may or may not eliminate all war; but it will certainly tend to eliminate war by employing to the end all the means human wisdom has yet devised; and it offers a hope that we may escape the situation of the past and avoid very largely war in the future. The opponents of the covenant too often lose their sense of values and allow minor objections to counterbalance the tremendous gain to the world at the elimination of war.

gladly consider any protests against the scheme as now laid out and be glad to rectify any errors.

Questioned as to the recent sale of the street railway bonds below par, Mr. Murphine said that that was a financial question with which he had nothing to do; that mathematicians said that it was better to sell five per cent bonds at a discount than six per cent bonds at par but that that was the council's problem.

Mr. Murphine stated that the municipal lines were paying; that at the time the city was arranging the deal for the purchase of the roads his department urged that no payment be made upon the principal of the bonds for six years, but that the council saw fit to provide for the first payment in three years; that the lines have been enough to pay the interest on the bonds and a small amount also above all operating expenses; that this amount was, of course, not sufficient to enable the city to pay off a million dollars worth of the principal each year, but economies which they hoped to affect would, he believed, provide that amount by the time a payment upon the principal was required.

He referred to an article which appeared in the News by Mr. La-Grave and said that that article failed to distinguish between expense and expenditures. He claimed that some expenditures had been made which ought not to be charged to expense, such as the $30,000.00 paid for the meters. This was an expenditure, but could not fairly be charged to the expense of a single month and would result eventually in a very considerable saving.

OUR NEXT MEETING

We are pleased to announce as our guest and speaker for Tuesday's meeting, Mr. Frank B. Cooper, Superintendent of the Seattle Public Schools.

Mr. Cooper, a member of the Municipal League, is prominent not only in Seattle but throughout the entire nation as a leader on public school problems. The subject of his address will be "The Public School Program and Problems".

The special committee which has been working during the entire summer upon the resolution presented to the League last spring upon the question of the right of civil service employees to strike, will report at Tuesday's meeting.

Do not miss the program.

MEMBERSHIP DUES

Those members who have not paid the present year's dues are requested to send in their checks as soon as possible. These funds will be needed to properly meet off the winter's work.

Statements have been mailed to all members but if one has not reached you call the secretary at Main 6, and another will be sent.

The amount of each member's dues is small but the aggregate means the League's existence.

Do not delay.

A MODEL INDUSTRIAL AGREEMENT

Last June a committee of Seattle gentlemen representing those directly interested in construction whether as employers or employees reached a tentative agreement governing their relations. It was signed in June and was the result of a month's steady conference and effort.

The committee consisted of Charles W. Doyle, J. A. Roberts, and Frank W. Cotterill representing the Unions in the Building Trades; C. W. Cawsey and E. S. Booker, the master builders; Roy J. Kinnear, the business interests; and John Graham, architect, who acted as umpire. The agreement was so constructive, fair minded and practical that all should read it. The report in which it is contained is as follows.

"To the officers and members of the Seattle Building Trades Council, Seattle Real Estate Association, Seattle Chapter American Institute of Architects, Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club, Seattle Master Builders' Association and the Seattle Port Commission:

"The undersigned committee, being appointed as the result of your joint action at the conference meeting of May 7, have for the past four weeks held daily sessions in an effort to formulate ways and means for securing industrial peace in the building trades. Our actions have been unanimous with a full recognition of the rights of all concerned. We have studied the various agreements, bylaws and working rules that at present govern the unions in their relations to the employers. We have made an exhaustive survey of all matters which might be subject to controvery and we recommend that the following general principals be adopted as a basis on which to formulate a harmonious program for the elimination of controversy in the future.

"Industrial enterprise as a source of livelihood for both employer and employee should be so conducted that due consideration is given to all persons dependent upon it.

"The business interests requires an adjustment of industrial relations by peaceful methods.

"Regularity and continuity of employment should be sought to the fullest extent possible and constitute a responsibility resting alike on employers, wage earners and the public.

"The right of workers to organize is as clearly recognized as that of any other element or part of the community.

"Industrial harmony and prosperity will be most effectively promoted by adequate representation of the parties in interest.

"Whenever agreements are made with respect to industrial relations they should be faithfully observed. Such agreements should maintain provisions for prompt and final interpretation in the event of controversies in regard to their meaning and application and for collecting damages caused by violation of same.

"Wages should be adjusted with due regard to the purchasing power of the wage and to the right of every man to an opportunity to earn a living at a fair wage, to reasonable hours of work and working conditions, to a decent home and the enjoyment of proper social conditions.

"Efficient production in conjunction with adequate wages is essential to successful industry. Restriction of output is harmful to the interest of wage earners, employers and the public and should not be permitted.

"Consideration of reductions in wages should not be reached until the possibility of reduction of costs in all other directions has been exhausted.

"Administration of employment and management of labor should be recognized as a distinct and

TUESDAY'S MEETING

By Fred W. Catlett

Tuesday's program reached a high mark among League programs. Dr. Griggs, of the Ohio State University, lectured upon the eruption of Mt. Katmai, which is located about one hundred miles from Kodiak, Alaska, and which he has been for some time investigating.

The report of the result of his investigation was illustrated by numerous colored stereopticon slides of unusual beauty. It is impossible to present from memory the large number of facts presented by Dr. Griggs or to describe the pictures. Some of the latter of unusual interest included pictures of Kodiak during and after the eruption of the volcano. Although Kodiak is one hundred miles from Katmai, the ashes lay about the streets and houses in huge piles, reaching almost to the tops of the houses and drifted against their sides like snow. All the country around was covered with this light gray blanket, which the people of Kodiak thought put an end forever to the prospects of their little town, but, strange to say, although the ashes are absolutely sterile, the growth came right up through the ashes, and now, some three or four years after the event, the greenery is almost as luxuriant as before the eruption. Where the land had been plowed, however, at the time of the rain of ashes, and the grass and bushes uprooted, no growth now appears. Professor Griggs described the crater of Katmai, which is the largest crater in the world, and showed a number of pictures of it.

Those who were fortunate enough to attend the meeting last Tuesday were outspoken in their commendation of the pro-

Next week the report of the committee on the right of municipal employees to strike will be presented for discussion. This is a matter of interest all over the country at the present time and demands a prompt and correct solution.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The discussion of the ratification of the proposed peace treaty, including the League of Nations, too frequently overlooks the fact that no peace treaty the result of the deliberation of five hundred delegates, and no covenant of the League of Nations which would meet the approval of thirty-two nations, could be expected to be perfect or one to which most of us would not find some objection.

In this connection it is quite pertinent to hark back to the time when our own Constitution had been completed and was presented to the convention for signature by its members. As must be the case in any convention called for such a purpose, there had been lively debate and sharp difference of opinion on a great many questions. The Constitution was the result of compromise, and, as often happens, the compromises were not thoroughly satisfactory to either side. There were many things in the Constitution which were objected to by members of the convention and there were perhaps more things which were not included in the Constitution which members earnestly believed ought to be included.

It was under these circumstances that Benjamin Franklin, then in his eighty-second year, offered a written speech, which, on account of his age, he was himself unable to deliver, and which he had read for him by Mr. Wilson, one of his fellow delegates from Pennsylvania. (The blackface is ours.)

"Mr. President: I Confess that there are several parts of this Constitution which I do not at present approve, but I am not sure I shall never approve them. For, having lived long, I have experienced many instances of being obliged, by better information or fuller consideration to change opinions, even on important subjects, which I once thought right, but found to be otherwise. It is therefore that the older I grow, the more apt I am to doubt my own judgment, and to pay more respect to the judgment of others. Most men, indeed, as well as most sects in religion, think themselves in possession of all truth, and that wherever others differ from them it is so far error. Steele a protestant, in a dedication tells the Pope that the only difference between our churches in their opinions of the certainty of their doctrines is, the Church of Rome is infallible and the Church of England is never in the wrong. But though many private persons think almost as highly of their own infallibility as of that of their sect, few express it so naturally as a certain French lady, who, in a dispute with her sister, said, "I don't know how it happens, sister, but I meet with nobody but myself that's always in the right"—Il n'y a que moi qui a toujours raison.

In these sentiments, sir, I agree to this Constitution with all its faults, if they are such; because I think a general government necessary for us, and there is no form of government but may be a blessing to the people if well administered, and believe farther that this is likely to be well administered for a course of years, and can only end in despotism, as other forms have done before it, when the people shall become so corrupted as to need despotic government, being incapable of any other. I doubt, too, whether any other convention we can obtain may be able to make a better constitution. For when you assemble a number of men, to have the advantage of their joint wisdom, you inevitably assemble, with those men, all their prejudices, their passions, their errors of opinion, their local interests, and their selfish views. From such an assembly can a perfect production be expected? It therefore astonishes me, sir, to find this system approaching so near to perfection as it does; and I think it will astonish our enemies, who are waiting with confidence to hear that our counsels are con-founded like those of the builders of Babel; and that our States are on the point of separation, only to meet hereafter for the purpose of cutting one another's throats.

Thus I consent, sir, to this Constitution because I expect no better, and because I am not sure that it is not the best. The opinions I have had of its errors I sacrifice to the public good. I never whispered a syllable of them abroad. Within these walls they were born, and here they shall die.

Another interesting fact in connection with the ratification of the Constitution by the states is that the question of reservations also came up. The States, however, felt the public need so overwhelming that they voted to ratify unconditionally. Several, however, attached to their ratification suggested amendments, ten of which were lately adopted and added to the Constitution; and two, Virginia and Rhode Island attached what might fairly be called interpretation reservations. Does that not suggest the proper course for the United States with reference to the League of Nations? To a ratification coupled with suggested amendments or with interpretative reservations there can be little or no objection.

A new use has been for Seattle Local Improvement Bonds. Several thousand dollars worth have been employed by a lady in Seattle to cover her pantry shelves.

"In order to reduce the foregoing principles to practice and thus to secure to the community industrial peace, promote better understanding between employer and employee, advance the principles of co-operation in building industries, establish and maintain in the community a means for promoting common interests by providing a lawful and equitable manner of adjusting any differences that may arise in an industry, we recommend that the conclusions of this committee be made effective through the instrumentality of a board of representing all parties interested be known as the building trade adjustment board. This board to be constituted as follows:

"Three members shall be elected by the Seattle Building Trade Council. One for one year, one for two years and one for three years. One member shall be elected by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commerce Club who shall also be a member of the Building Owners Association and shall serve for one year. One member shall be elected by the Seattle Master Builders Association and shall serve for three years. One member shall be ected by the other organized employers in the building trade and shall serve for three years. These six members elect a seventh to act as chairman, preferably an architect or other practical man not belonging to any of the previously mentioned organizations other than the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club.

MEMBERSHIP DUES

Those members who have not paid the present year's dues are requested to send in their checks as soon as possible. These funds will be needed to properly start off the winter's work.

Statements have been mailed to all members but if one has not reached you call the secretary at Main 476, and another will be sent.

The amount of each member's dues is small but the aggregate means the League's existence.

Shantung:

1. Can United States cause Japan to return Shantung to China?

Suppose our Senate finally says to England and France, "We refuse to ratify the League of Nations treaty, unless Japan will agree to return Shantung to China; we are a rich and powerful nation, you have been shattered by the war, and the League cannot get along without us." It is submitted, England and France would reply, "We contracted with Japan that she should succeed to Germany's rights and privileges in Shantung; Japan fulfilled her side of this contract, and rendered valuable service in the war; further Japan has made Shantung prosperous and secure, and more than 481,000 Chinese have voluntarily migrated into Shantung since Japan captured Tsingtau; we would be sorry to lose you, but Japan too is a rich and powerful nation, and there are some 41 other nations that are asked to join the league; consequently we leave it to you to persuade Japan to return Shantung to China, if you can."

Accordingly the United States would be faced with the alternative either to reject the League of Nations or to make war upon Japan.

2. By ratifying the treaty would United States be sanctioning a great wrong?

Gen. Smuts signed the treaty but at the same time he presented a writing declaring he signed under protest. This protest reads (in part):

"There are punishments fore-shadowed, over most of which a calmer mood may yet prefer to pass the sponge of oblivion.

There are indemnities stipulated which cannot be exacted without grave injury to the industrial revival of Europe, and which it will be in the interests of all to render more tolerable and moderate, * * *. Unemployment, starvation, anarchy, war, disease and despair stalk the land, and unless the victors can effectively extend a helping hand to the defeated and broken peoples a large part of Europe is threatened with exhaustion and decay. * * * However, two achievements of far reaching importance for the world are definitely recorded. One is the destruction of Prussian militarism; the other is the institution of the League of Nations. I am confident the League of Nations will yet prove the path of escape for Europe out of the ruin brought by this war. But the League as yet is only the form. It still requires quickening life, which can come only from the active interest and vitalizing contact of the peoples themselves."

It is submitted, the proper course for our Senate is to do

TUESDAY'S MEETING

By Fred W. Catlett

By Fred W. Catlett

Last Tuesday's meeting was taken up with a discussion of the report of the special committee investigating the right of municipal employees to strike. Considerable effort was made to have a member of organized labor present to present its views, but either there was no such representative present, or he failed to accept the invitation to present his views several times extended by the president. There was, however, no lack of speakers.

Mr. E. W. Allen opened the discussion with a statement of the resolution first reported by the committee, discussed at length last spring, and re-referred to the committee to couple with it a proposed scheme by which the municipal employee could secure relief, in case he felt that he had reason to complain either as to wages, hours, working conditions or what not.

R. M. White followed, taking the position that the employee must have the right to strike if he was to secure anything like justice at the hands of the city officials.

Senator Ralph Nichols continued the discussion, contending that the report was not consistent in endeavoring to distinguish between the right of the employee of a private traction company to strike and the right of the employee of a municipal traction company to strike. The public was in both cases equally inconvenienced and he could not accept the reasons for the distinction advanced by the committee.

Mr. Blackwell urged that the committee report ought to go further or that a special committee ought to be formed to assist in the settlement or arbitration of all labor disputes in the city.

Mr. Helsell, a member of the committee, contended that the ultimate question was whether the government was to remain sovereign or be dictated to and dominated by a small minority. In his view the government, which represented the majority, must be supreme and could not permit a group smaller than the whole to thwart it. He pointed out that the logical conclusion of Senator Nichols remarks was not that the conclusion of the committee should be accepted, but that the denial of the right to strike should be extended beyond the public employee and bring in, in effect, compulsory arbitration.

Mr. White and Mr. Nichols replied briefly.

After Mr. Rawlings, chairman of the committee, had closed the debate, the president put the motion for the adoption of the report to a vote, and it carried with but one or two votes in the negative.

To The Municiple League Of Seattle:

Your Civic Development Committee to whom was referred the matter of the proposed removal of the Pike Place Public market as per resolution introduced in the City Council begs to report; After full investigation of the facts we find that no substitute has as yet been found nor offered by the proponents of the move.

The popularity of this market is attested daily in the very condition complained of, viz: that traffic through Pike Place is impossible at certain times. This is a condition that can be remedied if the traffic ordinance prohibiting the "standing" of vehicles were extended to Pike Place after a fixed hour in the mornings sufficient to allow farmers to unload their goods; beyond that, the same rules that govern First and Second avenues should apply.

This market centrally located as it is, is not only popular but is also one of the show places of the City and as such is an advertizing asset of the City.

While we favor the extension of the public market idea to other localities as a means of relieving the pressure at this corner, we do not feel that the taxpayer should have to bear the burden of creating such market. There are some 800 merchants in and around Pike Place (including the farmers) and the revenue derived from rents however small would justify the enterprise of erecting such market if a location equally strategic could be found.

We therefore recommend that the Municipal league oppose any bond issue looking to the removal of this market. And that the safety committee of the City Council be requested to prohibit council. Let us test this by supposing a dispute between United States and England:

(a). Even though United any other nation, unless they, with England, can control the States were to have 6 votes in the council, yet she would be excluded from voting at all, being a party to the dispute.

(b). Before a verdict could be had against United States by the council, the following members of the council, in addition to the 5 British Colonies, would have to vote against United States and in favor of England, to-wit, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Brazil, Spain and Greece, (Art. IV); for the verdict of the council must be unanimous (Art. V).

(c). The United States would have the right to take the case out of the hands of the council, by referring the dispute to the assembly (viz. of all the nations belonging to the League) within fourteen days after the dispute was submitted to the council (Art. XV). Further it is contemplated in the League of Nations covenant that most disputes are to be tried by arbitration and before the Permanent International Court (Art. XIII, XIV).

(d). After all, which would you prefer having on the jury (viz. the council), Japan, Spain and Greece, or Canada, Australia and New Zealand?

Article X

The full text of Article X is: "The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. In case of any such aggression the council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

1. This article must be read in conjunction with the following Articles:

parking or standing vehicles in Pike Place after 10 A. M.

James Bothwell
Fred W. Berg Jr.
A. F. Bailey
Dan Earle

Article VIII. (for deduction of armaments).

Article XII. (Agreement to submit disputes either to arbitration or to the council, and not to resort to war until three months after the decision).

Article XVI. (If any member violates Art. XII, the other members agree "immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations" and even to prohibit any one entering or coming out of it).

Article XVIII. (All treaties to be void unless recorded).

Article XX. (Treaties inconsistent with the League are prohibited and void).

With these articles properly enforced, it can be seen that invasions against members of the League would rarely ever happen; for these Articles strongly tend to starve out the causes of war—fear, hatred and greed—and in their place to establish security and co-operation.

2. Let us test the effect of Article X being cancelled. Suppose Italy were to invade the Serb-Croat-Slovene State. Article X being cancelled, the "council" would have no authority to convene and advise. Neither would the "assembly," since the council, is better adapted to convene and decide. The result would be that the smaller nations could be destroyed with impunity. Further it would be to the interest of the members of the League to quench an invasion at the outset instead of letting it spread.

Respectfully submitted,
October 15, 1919.

M. H. VAN NUYS.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

Mayor Fitzgerald participated in person in a raid on a Chinese gambling establishment last Thursday. His Honor was kept waiting twenty minutes for admission, due to the fact that the joint was protected by a double thick, iron covered door, fastened in place by a heavy bar. The mayor seems to have been peeved by this discourtesy, for the press announces that hereafter no armored doors are to be permitted in card rooms. Seriously, the mayor is, of course, quite correct.

YOUR ATTENTION is called to the fact that BROWN & WHITE CORPORATION — Printers — ALWAYS take care of their customers no matter what the conditions and you need not worry if you are a customer of their's but what they will deliver your BRIEFS ON TIME.

We believe the mayor is also entitled to approval for his decision with reference to the procession planned for October 8th as a part of the Mooney general strike. It is the duty of the mayor to see that public order is preserved, and the sole question for his decision was whether, under existing conditions, such a procession would likely result in disorder.

Recent letters from Austin E. Griffiths, a member of the League, announce that, although delayed, he succeeded in getting away from New York and will attend the International Law convention at Plymouth, England. He hopes, also, to reach Paris before his return.

Following an address at the Members' Council of the Chamber recently by a visiting architect from Portland on city zoning. Mayor Fitzgerald appointed a committee, consisting of local architects and members of the Chamber, to investigate the matter is undoubtedly worthy of consideration, but the presentation last Friday was not entirely convincing.

MEMBERSHIP DUES

Those members who have not paid the present year's dues are requested to send in their checks as soon as possible. These funds will be needed to properly start off the winter's work.

Statements have been mailed to all members but if one has not reached you call the secretary at Main 476, and another will be sent.

The amount of each member's dues is small but the aggregate means the League's existence.

Do not delay.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The so-called zoning ordinance prepared by Corporation Counsel Meier will probably be introduced in the city council at its Monday meeting. If the press reports of its contents be accurate, it is much more than a zoning ordinance, as the commission which it creates will be authorized to recommend to the city council plans and suggestions "concerning the laying out, widening, extending, parking and improving of streets, sidewalks and boulevards; the location of public improvements; the relief of traffic congestion; the betterment of housing and sanitary conditions; and the establishing of zones or districts in which the use of property and the character of business transacted and the use, height and bulk of buildings and structures are limited; and in general it shall be its duty to make a study of and propose such measures as may be advisable for the promotion of the public interests, health, morals, safety, comfort, convenience and welfare of said city and the inhabitants thereof."

The proposed commission is to consist of the mayor, the city engineer, the superintendent of buildings, a member of the Park Board and seven other citizens to be appointed by the mayor. The corporation counsel is to be ex-officio legal adviser to the body. Members of the commission will be unpaid.

A committee of the League will undoubtedly report upon this ordinance, and it is to be hoped that the League will be represented upon the citizen membership of the commission.

Following a conference of the heads of the departments of city government interested, it was announced that the city ordinances designed to prevent congestion in the aisles, lobbies and vestibules of theatres will be hereafter strictly enforced. This is doubtless proper. It does not justify, however, the action of which at least one moving picture theater in this city has been guilty more than once, in keeping a long line of people waiting upon the sidewalk while there were many vacant seats in the theater. That is too evidently an attempt to use its patrons as a living advertisement for the particular film being produced.

The dispute concerning the seniority rights of the trainmen on the municipal street railway system who were formerly employees of the traction company and those who were employees of the old municipal lines was sent back by the Public Utilities Council to Superintendent Murphine for decision. Superintendent Murphine decided it once, but his decision was not acceptable to the former employees of the traction com-

That the municipal traction lines are having great difficulty in securing sufficient revenue is frankly acknowledged by Superintendent Murphine and he is endeavoring, by minor changes, to avoid the increase of fares. At the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees Wednesday, October 22nd, Eimon L. Wiener was elected secretary of the League to fill the vacancy caused by the untimely death of Harry B. Nelson.

TUESDAY'S MEETING

By Edgar J. Wright.

The Tuesday meeting of the league was made interesting by a talk from W. B. Van Valin who discussed the life and habitat of the Esquimox. Mr. Van Valin has spent some years at Point Barrow and holds in considerable esteem the inventiveness and resourcefulness of the natives acquired from years of making a living under most rigorous conditions. They have been known to exist for a year on the ice field with no food except that obtained by their harpoons or guns and no heat except from a fire of blubber. Their methods of trapping game are so ingenious that they have been copied by the white man and are in use in the States. East of Point Barrow Mr. Van Valin has located flowing oil wells and a lake of oil and will recommend to the Department of the Interior that the supply be conserved and developed for the use of the natives whose supply of fuel is very limited. The policy of the government in permitting the indiscriminate slaughtering of seal and walrus was criticized as it is so depleting the food supply of the Esquimox that starvation seems imminent. Among the relics which Van Valin is taking East with him are the remains of a village buried under the ice for centuries.

This address was preceded by an appeal from Rabbi Koch for a complete registration of citizens preceding the school of election. Vice-President Carl J. Smith offered resolutions of condolence to the family of our deceased Secretary Harry B. Nelson and the same were adopted by rising vote. The reverend Roy H. Campbell of Pilgrim Congregational Church gave us a stirring ten accepted by the City Utilities Committee, and, in the form of an ordinance, will now go before the City Council for passage.

The Daylight Saving plan comes to an end Sunday morning. It was introduced in March, 1918, largely as a war measure, but was repealed last summer over the veto of President Wilson. Although it was opposed by several interests, particularly the farmers, we believe that the plan was on the whole of great benefit, and we agree with the president in regretting its repeal.

Charges that the work on the Skagit project was being done at excessive cost were tabled by the City Utilities Committee of the council at its meeting last Thursday. The controversy brought out some interesting figures concerning the work. According to the report by Mr. Dimock, City Engineer, the total amount appropriated by the city council up to October 1st, 1919, was $633,900.00, of which $212,339.94 had been spent, leaving a balance of $421,560.06. Most of this balance is to be used in constructing a road and saw mill. Of the amount spent approximately $35,000.00 went for surveys for the dam sites. This included $8,000.00 for operating a boarding house, $11,000.00 for the pay roll and $3,400.00 for tools and equipment. The Diamond drilling operations at Gorge Creek have cost nearly $79,000.00, the drilling at Ruby Creek nearly $37,000.00. At Gorge Creek the drilling has totaled 8929 feet and at Ruby Creek 3443 feet.

No member of the League should fail to see that he is properly registered so as to be entitled to vote at the forthcoming school and port election.

It was announced earlier in the week that Mr. George H. Walker, a member of the League, has agreed to stand for election to the Board of Education. Mr. Walker is doubtless well known to most of the members of the League and to those he needs no recommendation. To any others it may be said that in our judgment no better man could be secured for the place than Mr. Walker. He is a candidate for the position left vacant by the expiration of the term of Mr. Nathan Eckstein, who refuses to be a candidate again.

For the Port Board Mr. W. S. Lincoln will be a candidate to succeed himself. So far we have heard of no other candidate for that position. Mr. Lincoln has been connected with the Port work, either as auditor or member of the Board, for several years and should be unusually familiar with its problems and the details of the work. In accepting the position on the Commission Mr. Lincoln made a financial sacrifice, which should recommend him to the consideration of the voters.

At a meeting of the legislative Committee of the State Association of County Auditors on Thursday, County Auditor Wardall emphasized the loss to the county through the use of the warrant system. He stated that on the first of the month there was a cash balance in the county banks to the credit of the county of $1,600,000.00, on which the county was receiving 2 per cent interest, and on that very same day he issued current expense warrants amounting to $125,000.00, which were stamped "Not paid for want of funds." These warrants bear 5 per cent interest until called and mean a net loss to the county of 3 per cent. Most of them go immediately to the banks where the county money is being kept. Mr. Wardall recommends a revolving fund for the county, which he says would have saved King County in 1918 $30,219.00. Mr. Wardall also suggested a unit plan of taxation in the county for schools and the abolition of the district system of administration. He thought that, instead of having 500 men in King County attempting to administer the rural schools, one board could manage the whole with 100 per cent more efficiency.

Mayor Fitzgerald has again urged the creation at the spring election of a police commission to take over the conduct of the police department. This matter has been several times considered by committees of the League and the proposal disapproved. The main argument against the commission has been the diffusion of responsibility which it permits. If the commission be appointed by the mayor, it is still subject to his dictation, and if it be elective, as is generally advocated, the question of police administration is made an issue in every municipal campaign.

Disapproval of the proposal before, however, is no reason why the question should not be re-examined in the light of present-day conditions. The mayor urges in its favor that it would relieve the mayor of a good deal of disagreeable work, which is true, and we are not surprised that the mayor should prefer to have the problem of police administration of so large a city as this taken from his shoulders. He certainly has plenty to do without it, but the recent tendency in municipal government has been rather toward a concentration of authority and reduction tended to secure more efficiency. We should, therefore, think twice before committing ourselves to the proposal of a police commission.

A spontaneous movement is under way in Seattle for the creation of an organization devoted entirely to the defense of American principles and the American form of government, and to challenging at every and all times the propaganda of the Red and the Bolshevik. This group of citizens will hold an organization meeting, probably at the Masonic Club Rooms in the Arcade Annex, next Thursday, October 30th, for purposes of perfecting the organization, adopting a constitution and electing officers.

All members of the Municipal League ought to be members of this new organization and are invited as American citizens to be present at the meeting next Thursday.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The Streets and Sewers Committee of the city council recommended that the ordinance providing for the appointment of a city zoning commission be considered and discussed by the city council in a meeting of a committee of the whole. The action of the Streets and Sewers Committee is proper. The matter of city zoning is of sufficient importance to merit thorough discussion. The League should have a representative present at the proposed meeting of the committee of the whole.

An ordinance has been drafted by the corporation counsel's office, to be presented to the city council, making it unlawful to "exhibit or display or to permit the exhibition or display of, in front of or in the lobby or entrance of, any theatre or place where moving pictures are exhibited, any advertising matter, whether in form of notice, handbill, poster, bill, circular, pamphlet, picture, letter or placard, which contains any assertion, representation, statement of fact or display which is untrue, deceptive or misleading, or which misrepresents in whole or in part the character, nature or extent of the entertainment or moving picture provided or displayed within the premises, or which contains any feature of an obscene, indecent or immoral nature, or which portrays a scene of violence in gruesome or revolting manner or detail, or which is offensive to the moral sense or tends to corrupt public morals."

The ordinance provides also that "it shall be the duty of the board of theatre censors to assist in the enforcement of the ordinance and for such purpose this board or any member thereof may investigate any and all theatres and moving picture theatres and shall have the right to demand to inspect, for the purpose of approval or disapproval, any and all advertising matter pertaining thereto or intended to be shown in respect to the same; and it shall be unlawful upon such demand to fail, refuse or neglect to forthwith permit such inspection; and it shall be unlawful to use or exhibit any advertising matter after such advertising matter has been disapproved in writing by the board."

In our judgment an ordinance of this character and strict enforcement thereof has long been needed in this city. The advertisements of performances have at times been questionable in character and often quite misleading. The character of the advertising which, in the judgment of the shrewd theatre advertising man, "gets the crowd" is a sad commentary upon the weakness of human nature of many of us.

The movie is a tremendous educational force among us at the present time. Properly directed it can be of incalculable value. Unfortunately we are permitting it to take its own course, which is dictated largely by the receipts at the box office. The effect of the presentation of the films now being produced ought to be carefully studied. Our own impression is that in general they are not bad in the sense that they are indecent or obscene. There is too much of the problem play to be sure. But perhaps the most general criticism that can be made is that they are so frequently weak, trashy and melodramatic. The general taste of the people is certainly not being elevated.

We would like to see a committee of the League really make a study of the films presented in this city during one month, and make a report of the facts found and the conclusions to be drawn.

TUESDAY'S MEETING

Lieut. Col. D. C. Hall, now health officer of the University of Washington, delivered a splendid address before the Municipal League at its last meeting, in which he vigorously maintained the Italian side of the Fiume question, after first giving a short history of the Italian war operations, and the important part it played in the winning of the world war. Italy, according to Dr. Hall, entered the war to fight for the oppressed Italians under the Austrian yoke, and since, Fiume, like Trieste, was largely Italian, why they reasoned should not Italy be entitled to it?

Since Italy has no harbors to speak of, said Hall, and Fiume being practically the only harbor on the Adriatic, it felt that it should be entitled to it; moreover, there is no reason, he stated, for awarding Fiume to the Jugo-Slavs, the backbone of the late Austrian army, and the arch enemies of the Italian people. Italy wants no hinterland. It wants the "key to the front door"—the control of the Adriatic. This was its chief war aim; the literature of their poets and writers spurred them to the attainment of this ideal, and there was the keenest disappointment felt everywhere in Italy at the action of the Peace conference. According to Dr. Hall, the war for the Italians is not finished. The people are hoping that the king will take their side in regaining Fiume, and, as the king is very democratic it is likely he will.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT LEAGUE ORGANIZED

The Constitutional Government League, Seattle center, was organized last Thursday noon at the Masonic Club Rooms. As stated in its constitution, the objects of the league are: First, to promote a better understanding and a keener interest of the fundamentals of the government of the United States of America.

Second, to secure a higher standard of the performance of the duties of American citizenship;

Third, to defend American institutions against foreign and domestic revolutionaries;

Fourth, to support our public officials in the enforcement of law and order.

ANTI-RENT PROFITEERING ORDINANCE

The proposed Kennedy Anti-rent Profiteering ordinance was hotly debated before the city council committee Wednesday. The council chamber was literally packed with persons who took every means of displaying their pleasure or displeasure at the remarks of the various speakers. Otto Rupp, speaking for the Real Estate Association, stated that rents were not higher in Seattle than the increased cost of labor and materials justified. He said that the income of the local apartment house owners was as low as one-half of one per cent to as high as only seven and a half per cent. The Tenants Association, represented by counsel, brought arguments to the effect that the present high rents were due largely to speculation in leases, uncurbed by the owners. The committee held another session Saturday morning.

Word has reached us from Atlantic City that the foundation of an international organization of business men was laid at that city at the meeting of the International Trade Conference which has just ended its sessions. Four commercial missions, one each from Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium, joined with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in planning the organization.

At this meeting it developed that the whole final problem of European rehabilitation and readjustment of world trade devolved upon the United States to extend to Europe some $2,000,000,000 of credits in a single year. The Credit and Finance Committee of the organization is in favor of extending this credit.

COUSE OF BOLSHEVISM

The following is a portion of an article which appeared in the Wall Street Journal in a recent issue:

What causes Bolshevism? The question was asked this newspaper by a man who said he had never yet been able to find a satisfactory answer. In Chapter XXVI of C. W. Barron's "Peace Finance" is a short but cogent analysis of Bolshevism, in which it is traced to the "false teaching of international socialism as expounded by Heinrich Karl Marx," and further says:

"Marx died in 1882, but his work moves on. It has permeated the whole of Europe, and is fighting insidiously through strikes and socialistic organizations for recognition in the United States and the overthrow of American Democracy, to be succeeded by the autocracy of those who claim to lead the world's muscle workers."

MUNICIPAL NOTES

the state legislature and that, in view of a recent Supreme Court decision, the Port should remain within the bond limit of three per cent of the valuation of property according to the assessment rolls of the district.

The latter portion of this advice will delay the issuance of bonds for an additional pier at Smith's Cove.

Attention of members of the League who are not registered should be called again to the necessity for registration at once. The vote at the school and Port elections has in the past been exceedingly low. Fortunately, and quite providentially, so far as we can see, the result of the school elections has generally been satisfactory, but, as has been said many times, Providence generally helps those who help themselves; and the citizen who believes that the schools and the Port, particularly the schools, ought not to be placed in the control of any party or any class group should not fail to do his full duty as a citizen in voting, in seeing that other qualified members of his family vote, and in urging his neighbors and acquaintances to vote.

There are many of us who believe we are sincere friends of labor, who yet have viewed with very considerable apprehension the course of labor, particularly here in the Northwest, in taking up and pressing at every opportunity the doctrine of class consciousness.

Does Your Money Help Your Community?

You who demand better streets, better sidewalks, better police and fire protection—are you doing your part towards such improvement? Not if you send money out of town—money that would have just as much buying power at home.

Every nickel you send away makes your community so much poorer, for the people who receive it do not re-invest it here. That money goes for the development of another community or city.

Patronize our home merchants whenever possible and you will do one of your foremost duties to your community.

The Best Buying Policy

YOUR ATTENTION is called to the fact that BROWN & WHITE CORPORATION — Printers —
ALWAYS take care of their customers no matter what the conditions and you need not worry if you are a customer of their's but what they will deliver your BRIEFS ON TIME.

About two years ago the writer of these notes had occasion to exchange communications with Mr. James A. Duncan and then expressed his dissent from the doctrines of class consciousness and his apprehension that the teaching of such doctrines would inevitable lead to a sharp stratification of our people, to bitter conflict between the groups and even to armed conflict and disruption of our government.

We think that the developments since that time have tended to show the correctness of these views. We have not lost our faith in labor organization, but it does seem to us that the safety of the state and of the government requires the rejection by organized labor of the doctrine of class consciousness and all that it entails and the end of all such teaching.

TUESDAY'S MEETING

SAMUEL HILL'S ADDRESS

That Seattle should stand for the "open door" policy with Japan, China and other Asiatic countries was asserted by Samuel Hill in an address to the League at its meeting Tuesday noon. Without the trade from these countries, Seattle can never become a really great city, he maintained.

Enumerating the vast resources of Russia, which he said are not commonly understood by the people of this country, Mr. Hill declared it of vital importance to the people of the United States to promote friendly relations with the Russian people who, he said, feel very kindly towards Americans. Unlimited opportunities for commercial expansion would accrue to the United States, he said if intelligent and sympathetic efforts were put forth to help Russia and its distressed people.

Deploring the attitude of many citizens, particularly those of the Pacific Coast, towards the Japanese, Mr. Hill pointed out the dangers involved in discrimination against these people. In Japan, he explained, there is a war party and a peace party. With the signing of the armistice, the peace party came into power. Should friction between that country and the United States be brought about, the war party would be forced into power in Japan and a coalition of that country, Russia and Germany would result, menacing the peace of the world and particularly endangering the United States.

Discussing conditions in Europe as he observed them during a recent tour, Mr. Hill said he found everywhere an organized attempt on the part of Germany to oppose the United States. Especial efforts to turn to their advantage the situation in Russia is also being made by the Germans, he said. The Russian language is being taught in Germany and systematic plans being worked out to exploit that country.

Mr. Hill stated Seattle was the best paved, best lighted, and best drained city in the world. He said it would take one hundred million of dollars to bring Portland up to where Seattle is now in that respect, and that it would take twice as much for San Francisco.

The speaker stated that we are five years behind in production. "Spend less and save more; get the people back to the land", urged Mr. Hill. He closed by saying, "we here in Seattle have every opportunity to make this city the greatest on the Pacific Coast."

Mr. F. W. Bert, chairman of City Development Committee, read the report of the committee on the public market, which appeared in the News, October 18th. The report was unanimously adopted. A copy of the report has been sent to the city council.

Mr. Carl J. Smith, reporting for the Public Safety Committee, stated that the committee had approved the Reid resolution. The resolution passed by unanimous vote. It is as follows:

Whereas, Ordinance No. 36299 of the City of Seattle provides that a clear passage be maintained at all times between the auditorium of all theatres and other places of public assembly, and the street and,

Whereas, the evasion of the provisions of said ordinance by many moving picture theatres who permitted large crowds to assemble in front of their main exits completely blocking egress from said theatres seriously menaced the public health, and safety in case of fire and

By Fred W. Catlett

The Board of Trustees had its usual weekly meeting last Wednesday. The proposed ordinance prohibiting aliens from engaging in any occupation which requires a license was referred to the Americanization Committee for investigation and consideration.

The question of requiring the municipal street railway to bear the expense of paving between tracks was called to the particular attention of the Public Utilities Committee.

Cognizance was taken of the fight being waged at the present time to make Seattle an open-shop town. The trustees voted that a resolution should be prepared and presented to the League on Tuesday and the question of its adoption opened up for discussion.

Most of the business organizations of the city have lined up behind the movement for the open-shop. Whether the Municipal League, as primarily a good government organization, should take part in the contest is a question for the membership to decide. We should not permit ourselves to be carried away by any particular publicity campaign or agitation. On the other hand, if the question of the open or closed shop in Seattle is within the scope of the League purposes, it ought to take some clearly defined stand. This is no time for pussy-footing, but for courageous, plain speaking. The Municipal League is not the tail of any business organization's kite and has not been requested by anybody or any organization to discuss this matter or act upon it. It is, however, one of the vital live questions of the day, coming before the League in a perfectly

At the city election held in Spokane last Tuesday the voters, according to the unofficial returns, defeated by 39 votes an advisory resolution proposing that the city acquire and operate a hydro-electric power plant. At the same time a proposed charter amendment increasing the salaries of the city commissioners from $3600.00 to $5000.00 per year was defeated.

If you have not registered and see this reminder in time, be sure and complete your registration for the school election. Monday is your last day. For the Port election you have until November 15th. The school election will be held on December 2nd and the Port election December 6th. Set those days down in your memory and don't forget to vote.

The Triple Alliance is taking a referendum vote to determine its nominees. The attempt to introduce partisanship, and in particular, class partisanship, into the school board and Port Commission should be emphatically rebuked. Both bodies have been in the past and are supposed to be non-partisan. The public welfare demands, especially at the present time, that all these attempts by classes in the community to dominate the general public in the interest of these particular classes should be defeated. Our public governmental agencies should be conducted for the common benefit of the common weal and the common good, phrases which used to be of considerable power in the ranks of those who have now apparently forgotten them in the selfish endeavor to secure control for the benefit of themselves or their particular group. No individual who binds himself in advance to follow the behest of any particular organization can be safely elected to any public office. In the case of the school and Port elections now before us the only practical way to secure proper results is for all those who hold such views as we have just expressed, and in spite of the good qualities of some other candidates, to combine and vote, and use all their influence to secure others to vote, for George H. Walker and George J. Santmyer for the School Board and W. S. Lincoln for the Port Commission.

The views just expressed are personal to the writer. The Board of Trustees of the League has authorized the appointment of a candidates' investigating committee to investigate the qualifications of all those seeking places on the School Board or the Port Commission and report.

Resolved that this resolution be published in the Municipal News and a copy thereof be forwarded to Mayor Fitzgerald, and the press.

PROPOSED RESOLUTION

By order of the Board of Trustees, the following resolution will be proposed, discussed, and may be voted upon at Tuesday's meeting. If you have an opinion about it be there to express it.

Resolution

Be it resolved by the Municipal League of Seattle, that the following be its declaration of principles applicant to the present industrial and business situation in Seattle:

1. Absolute fairness to employe and employer alike is one of the foundation principles on which Americanism rests.

2. The Municipal League of Seattle will work for the improvement of industrial relations, the elimination of class prejudice, which generally results from misunderstandings, and the establishment of equitable and uniform conditions fair alike to employe and employer.

3. It will always use its influence in opposition to injustice, whether practiced by employers or employees.

4. It stands for the American Plan, which means absolute fairness to all classes of workers whether union or nonunion. It unalterably opposes the "closed shop" which shuts the doors of industry against the American working man who is not a member of a labor organization.

5. It is un-American to interfere with the personal rights and constitutional liberties of the individual. Therefore, it opposes the use of force or intimidation by anyone endeavoring to persuade another either, to join, or to resign from a labor organization.

6. It holds that both the employe and employer are privileged to determine their relations whenever either chooses to do so, unless, of course, there be contracts between them.

7. It does not countenance limitation of the amount of work which may be accomplished in a given time, or the manner in which payment shall be made for such work, whether by hourly rate, piece-work, contract or otherwise. We believe that every workman should have an opportunity to earn a wage proportionate to his ability and productive capacity.

7. By encouraging fair dealings and broad minded policies, this organization hopes to assist in bringing about working conditions and wages which will make Seattle known as a good city in which to work and live.

COMMITTEE HAS SURPRISE.

The reception and entertainment committee, composed of A. J. Quigley, Chairman, and James T. Lawler, and H. D. Bartlett announced that they have a surprise for the members at the meeting of November 11th. The committee has been keeping a record of the attendance at each of the last few meetings and announcements pertaining to this are expected.

PAID AMUSEMENTS MAY BE BARRED AT PARKS.

Operation of a dance hall, moving picture theatre, merry-go-round or similar amusement within 500 feet of any public park or school ground will be illegal if an ordinance approved Wednesday afternoon by the public safety committee of the city council is adopted by the council.

The proposed legislation results from a movement launched by various civic organizations some time ago. Primarily the movement was brought about by the establishment of a merry-go-round near the west entrance to Woodland Park. Citizens residing in the vicinity of the park complained to the city authorities, tervoluminous petitions were filed and several hearings on the matter were conducted by the council.

The ordinance is now being considered by the Theatres and Amusements committee of the League. Mr. Robert F. Sandall, Chairman, George B. Littlefield,

YOUR ATTENTION is called to the fact that BROWN & WHITE CORPORATION — Printers —
ALWAYS take care of their customers no matter what the conditions and you need not worry if you are a customer of their's but what they will deliver your BRIEFS ON TIME.

Victor Zednick, Austin E. Griffiths, A. E. Pierce, and John H. Piper, compose the committee.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING OF NOVEMBER 3rd.

To facilitate registration next year, when every elector must re-register in order to vote, the city council approved the recommendation of Harry W. Carroll, city Comptroller, that the registration books be sent to the several voting precincts for three days, January 15, 16, and 17. A resolution providing for this will be adopted by the city council in December, pursuant to the amended registration act.

By a vote of four to four the council held up temporarily action of the navy department to sell to the city surplus foodstuffs. The Finance committee recommended against the city engaging in the sale of navy department goods and the Harbors and Public Grounds committee recommended that the goods be purchased and resold by the city to citizens. Those who favored the purchase were: Councilmen Carroll, Erickson, Hesketh and Lane, while Councilmen Bolton, Drake, Hass and Moore, opposed it.

At the conclusion of the regular session, the council resolved itself into committee of the whole, for a further consideration of the so-called rent ordinance.

The proposed bill was gone over in detail with representatives of the Seattle Real Estate Association, the Hotel Keeper's Association, the Tenant's Protective League, and the Housing committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

THE NASH ADDRESS

BY EIMON L. WIENIR.

That the failure of the Industrial conference at Washington, D. C., was virtually a victory for the I. W. W. adherents, was the statement made by Louis Nash, head of the retail clerks union and one of the committee for wage adjustment selected by the Associated Industries, in his address to the League Tuesday noon. He emphasized the point, that while the conservative element in labor was disgusted with the extremist wing, the employer must endeavor to meet the conservatives' terms. He declared "You will either deal fairly with this element or you will fight a battle to a finish with the radicals."

Nash declared that neither capital nor labor should wield the power simply because they had it; right not might should win out, he said.

In the present industrial crisis, Nash said, it is well to have generally known the principles and the program for which organized labor is contending. He enumerated the following as the objects sought: democratization of labor; giving it a share in the management of the business by which employed; limitation of hours; regulation of terms of apprenticeship; uniform wages; and the abolition of the piece system.

Mr. Nash pointed out that the closed shop eliminated the trafficking in the human element in competition; that because it establishes equal hours, and equal pay under the same conditions of employment, there would result a stabilization of employment, with the consequent elimination of the "labor turnover", the jumping from shop to shop, and city to city. Nash stated that in his opinion, the closed shop was more of an advantage to the employer than to the employee.

LEAGUE NOTES

Mr. Quigley, in reporting for Mr. Lawler, who was delegated to see the management of Meves Cafeteria, with reference to the elimination of noise, reported that the management had consented to install a glass partition, which would cure the present prevailing condition.

* * *

Mr. Lewis presented a resolution approving medical and physical inspection and clinical services in the schools of the city, which was referred to the Board of Trustees, by them to be referred to the proper committee for investigation and report.

* * *

The resolution proposed by the Board of Trustees, declaring the League's attitude on the present industrial and business situation was read by the Secretary. Mr. Haight moved that the resolution be referred to a proper committee for investigation and report. Motion was seconded by Mr. Catlett and carried. An amendment to the resolution was offered by White, which was also referred to the Board.

LEWIS WINS THE TURKEY

The reception and entertainment committee, which is composed of Quigley, Lawler and Bartlett, certainly came through with the promised surprise. The names of the faithful members, who have attended the League meetings for the past seven meetings, were placed in a hat and one by one the elimination of the contestants began, the lucky man being L. D. Lewis, chairman of our entertainment committee. Mr. Lewis, after a beautiful speech of acceptance, was asked to help carry in a large wooden box, to the center of the room but his hopes of seeing a nice fat turkey, were doomed. He found a toy turkey! However, he was urged to look inside and he ferretted out a perfectly good merchandise coupon for,—well, never mind the sum—and, as Lewis expressed it,

MUNICIPAL NOTES

BY FRED W. CATLETT

We have been favored with a pamphlet entitled "Municipal Reform in Philadelphia", "Advanced System of City Government provided by Charter", "with Introductory Summary by Senator Boies Penrose".

The title itself was startling enough to awaken our curiosity. Was it possible that Philadelphia could be reformed or persuaded to adopt an "advanced system of city government"? Could Senator Boies Penrose be championing municipal reform and an advanced system of city government?

Unfortunately the pamphlet does not set forth the text of the charter, but from the description of it, which it does contain, it is quite apparent that the system established would not be regarded in this part of the country as particularly advanced. It substitutes a single-chambered city council of twenty-one members for the old select and common councils of one hundred forty five members. It establishes a civil service system, provides for a budget for the city finances, authorizes the city to do its own street cleaning, garbage collection and other public works, provides for a purchasing agent, a city architect, raises the bureau of health to the rank of a department and creates a department of public welfare. The city controller is given entire charge of the city accounts and the city solicitor is made appointive by the mayor instead of elective.

These are substantially all the provisions which are enumerated

LOCAL MUNICIPAL NOTES

Judge Ronald confirmed the city's right to issue bonds defraying the cost of improving Shilshole avenue and to pay the condemnation awards resulting from the improvement.

Judge Calvin S. Hall denied the application of O. C. McGilvra and others of an injunction restraining the school board from operating the medical clinic. He praised the medical department of the public schools, terming it a credit and a benefit to the community, and commended the school board for establishing free treatment for children without means.

That the $15000 daily receipts should be spent entirely upon the maintenance of the street car system and not partially in standing assessments for street pavement, with the possible exception of the cases where the car tracks immediately affected the condition of the street, was the opinion stated by Mayor Fitzgerald in a speech made before the Young Men's Business Club Thursday noon.

It was decided to incorporate in contract specifications on city work a clause which will prohibit the hiring of alien slackers on municipal undertakings in compliance with suggestions in a letter from the Mayor. The Mayor's letter to the Board called attention to the state law which not only prohibits the employment on public undertakings of those who surrendered their first paper during the war, but also covers every unnaturalized alien who claimed exemption. All contractors will be required to furnish a list of their employees, showing their citizenship. Not only are the contractors prohibited by law from employing alien slackers, but the alien slacker cannot legally accept such employment.

SEND TELEGRAM

The Board of Trustees, at its last meeting Wednesday, moved that the League, in connection with numerous other organizations, sign the following telegram, to be sent to Governor Hart at Olympia:

"In view of the murderous assault upon the American Veterans at Centralia yesterday, and consequent violations of law, we appeal to you to use every effort within the law to apprehend and prosecute the lawless element in our state parading under the name of the 'I. W. W.'"

"We respectfully suggest that you immediately communicate through an open letter or telegram to the prosecuting attorneys and sheriffs of the various counties of the state, urging upon them the securing of evidence, apprehension of the criminal and treasonable element and their conviction in order to rid the commonwealth of its enemies who are undertaking to destroy it.

"In this connection we would suggest that you also adin the pamphlet to show how advanced the new Philadelphia system will be. Comparison with our own city government will show that we have all of these "new devices" except the public welfare department and the appointive city solicitor. The truth is that Philadelphia has made an advance over its old system, but has been so long in doing so that although the advance is great, it no more than brings Philadelphia up to the procession of its sister cities.

In view of the discussion in this city and the adoption in 1910 of the non-partisan system for nominations and our experience with that system, it is interesting to read from the pen of Senator Penrose the following: "Non-partisan nomination and election of municipal officers and their responsibility direct to the people without the confusing intervention of the party titles of national or state political organizations is an essential for efficiency in city administration. It is an absurdity to mix protection or free trade with highway paving or garbage disposal; to associate the League of Nations or the Monroe Doctrine with trolley fares or street-cleaning".

Nine years ago such arguments convinced the voters of Seattle and induced them to overthrow the partisan primary system. The writer favored the change at the time and is not yet prepared wholly to desert his idols, but, after nine years' experience with the non-partisan system, it is impossible to close one's eyes to the fact that it has its disadvantages and dangers. It was a gain to separate national issues from those purely local, but the non-partisan system destroyed the existing party groups in city elections and disorganized the of the non-partisan system for general public. It placed the visé the prosecuting officers and sheriffs of the various counties that the advice and assistance of the attorney general will be at their disposal.

"We feel that it is imperative that an immediate and vigorous campaign, with all the power of the state behind it, be at once instituted to protect our citizens

power in elections in the hands of the press and of any organized groups which choose to enter the political field.

Now, at the time the change was made labor here was following the accepted policy of the American Federation and keeping out of politics. Since that time the attitude of the local labor organization has changed, and, appreciating its power as an organized group where the population in general was disorganized, it has adopted a policy of not only endorsing candidates, but of creating a ticket of its own and actively campaigning for it. The result is that a candidate brought out by this organized group has a tremendous advantage over any individual who announces his candidacy and must necessarily rely upon his friends or a temporary organization to support him. We believe that the entrance into politics of the labor organization as a group is in violation of the spirit of the non-partisan law. It is injecting into local politics issues which are foreign to it. It is deciding local questions on the basis of class division and the slogan of class solidarity. We cannot see how a labor ticket or a triple alliance ticket differs as to partisanship in any essential degree from a Republican ticket or Democratic ticket, nor do we see any particular gain in breaking down the old political organizations in order to give free rein to a new one.

In addition, this defect in the non-partisan system needs emphasis. Under it there is nobody or group of men to take an interest in seeing that candidates of the proper caliber or of any caliber actually file for the offices. The old partisan organizations through their conventions or in direct primary used to perform this function. Candidates of a certain caliber were at any rate assured, and they were assured a measure of support if they ran. The labor group and the Triple Alliance are now performing this function; they have recently held a primary to nominate their candidates for the offices of school board and port commission. In this way they eliminate, at least almost completely, any opposition candidates from within their own ranks. They present a united front in the contest against the unorganized majority.

We are not prepared to suggest at the present time what steps should be taken to deal with the existing situation in Seattle, but we have endeavored impartially to draw attention to the plain facts as they exist.

The only argument needed for a constitutional government league is the Centralia episode of Armistice Day.

We have long wished for figures to show what proportion of the I. W. W. were American-born. We have clung to the belief that the large majority must be of foreign birth or education. We noted with considerable interest, therefore, that of the 36 men and women arrested as I. W. W. in Seattle raids, 19 were listed as foreign-born, 17 as born in the United States. We recognize that one can not safely draw conclusions from figures so small, but the proportion of those born in the United States is certainly not comforting. It is to be noted, too, that of the 36, 22 were listed as loggers. That may be the result of accident, but also it may indicate the first field for the activity of the Constitutional Government League.

The city council after a public hearing, at which interested parties were present, decided to adopt officially a plan designated as Plan No. 1 submitted by City Engineer Dimock, for the solution of the traffic problem in the industrial district. Plan No. 1 provides in brief that all of the running tracks of the railways, and the railroad yards, as well, shall be raised to such an elevation that subways can be constructed beneath the yards and tracks and drained by gravity into the sewers. Under this plan the service tracks and tracks on East Marginal Way and Railroad Avenue would not be raised. The estimated cost of that improvement is $16,000,000.00. Three other plans were submitted with lesser costs, but the engineer's department recommended Plan No. 1 and also called the attention of the city council to the great gain to be secured by a unification of the terminal systems.

PRODUCERS AND SPONGERS

By Austin E. Griffiths

The beautiful Biblical verse that "Other men labored and ye are entered into their labors" is true in more ways than one. It is true in a lofty way that each generation enjoys the savings and noble monuments of the intellect and labor of "the fathers." This is a trust we should pass on with added worth and glory. It is true in a sinister sense in that many persons reap where they have not sown.

Underproduction is a cry I hear everywhere. Overproduction, if experience be repeated, we shall next hear about.

Overproduction is a myth. We ought to be ashamed to talk of it. The fault in the assumed case is underdistribution. Society has not mastered successful distribution of total production.

The world is overloaded with nonproducers. It is lopsided with consumers.

Many men and women produce no essential values. They put nothing in the common stock of food, clothing and housing. They bear no share of distribution of the store others produce.

The learned professions are overcrowded. Too many are in them for soft snaps.

Public officials and employees are almost as thick as the grasshoppers were in Nebraska when I was a boy. And they eat almost as much of the people's substance.

If the League of Nations covenant is not adopted then the world will support military men and makers of destruction without number.

The world is afflicted with too many middlemen, supervisors, overseers, secretaries, solicitors, agents, clerks, waiters and lackeys.

Business is overstocked with gobetweens and intermediaries.

There are too many young loafers on city streets.

Brain and brawn, labor and capital combined pays too much tribute to secondary and suctorial employment. And we have too many toll gates along our industrial highways.

The good old world is working and paying for too much overhead.

I do not mean all these people are idlers. I would not say their part is not more or less useful. I mean to say there is an increasing human surplus in these occupations whose work is nonproductive of that which keeps mankind alive and makes the common lot more easy to bear.

All must live. But our living cost ought to be self-borne and who will address the Municipal League on the subject of the Skagit River Project.

"A Brief outline of the work with a statement of where the work now stands."

Owing to the unusual importance of the address and the important resolution before the League, this meeting will begin promptly at 12:15. Come early.

"SOME SOURCES OF LABOR INEFFICIENCY"

PROFESSOR DOUGLAS' ADDRESS

Labor turnover, absenteeism and withheld effort are responsible for most of the labor problems the country faces, declared Prof. T. H. Douglas of the College of Business Administration, University of Washington, in an address before the Seattle Municipal League yesterday noon.

"The United States is suffering from an industrial hemorrhage," Prof. Douglas said. "In a recent survey made by Detroit firms and by ninety of the ship-building concerns of the country, it was found the labor 'turnover' among 320,000 employes was as high as 250 per cent.

"The General Electric Company has computed figures to show cost to the employer of hiring a new man for the job is $8.50 for unskilled labor and as high as $80 for skilled labor. A well-known street railway system found it cost the company $400 to break in a new motor-man.

Favors Training and Promotion.

"Every plant should install a specialized department of employment so as to fit the right man to the right job, assist in training the man already on the job, and promote those deserving of promotion.

"This will bring out latent effort in each employe. Then too, each business should know what a day's work is--what an average workman using his best effort can produce--just as it knows what a machine can produce in a day.

"A spirit of fair play between capital and labor will be a third factor in curing the present most not piled upon others who are engaged in essential business and industry.

A partial illustration is seen in the recent statement that 30,000 persons will be required to enforce the prohibition law. If so, most of them will be taken from use ful work. I do not suggest these persons should not be employed for such a purpose. However it is regrettable that in this as in similar instances we are not yet willing or competent to keep the law without a host of guardians who must live off the sweat of productive mental and physical labor.

A similar illustration is afforded by the present use of passports—which requires a new batch of officials the world over who manage to exist of course on the fat of the land.

Before the war the tendency to multiply non-essential offices, places and jobs was very mani-pressing internal question--labor."

"If the co-operative way of dealing with our labor problems fail, industrial warfare will be transferred from outside the plant to inside the plant."

Professor Douglas stated that labor unions were sound in principle. He favors collective bargaining.

power like electric energy is just coming into its own.

What ought we to do?

The world is ripe for great business expansion. But the world faces business contraction. Now it goes without saying that the fewer producers the more disastrous to all of us is lessened production.

A partial remedy may be applied by us as individuals and collectively. More people should do creative or real useful work. This is peculiarly a personal matter. Government can hardly, with success, directly compel individuals to do particular useful or efficient work.

More people should make a bee line to the country. Live under the sun, moon and stars. Hie away from the bright lights of Broadway, Piccadilly and Pike street.

Professor Richardson in his admirable address on the French Revolution showed the corroding evil of class consciousness. I would like to see this lesson put into practice.

It is a question whether responsible labor is more class-conscious so-called than we who are not generally described as workers.

Did you ever hear of a report of a committee made up of ourselves which did not on some ground or other exclude labor candidates from our political support?

I hate the word "class" when used in a separatist sense in this country. It is a moral crime to use that word in that meaning in America.

We are in the same boat. We shall row together. We should be glad to join hands with intelligent labor. But we cannot do this with one hand and keep everything in the other. We should share with labor responsibility for government. We ought to do so even at the risk of "less qualified" working men in public position. I have seen "poor sticks" elected to office even by our own so-called class.

All classes should stand together to deliver the womb of time.

While away recently I sought a formula for present troubles. The best I found is this one:

Work, thrift and the square deal.

PAVING BETWEEN STREET CAR TRACKS

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE AND THE RESOLUTION PROPOSED—TO BE VOTED ON TUESDAY.

TO THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OF THE CITY OF SEATTLE:

There has been referred to your Committee on Public Utilities the question of the paving between the car tracks of the street railway for consideration and report.

We find that the purchase of the street railway system has relieved that system of an annual property tax amounting to approximately $400,000. This has resulted in a material increase in the tax rate.

If the cost of paving hitherto borne by the street railway should be transferred to the general fund of the city or to the owners of the abutting property, this relief of the street railway would necessitate a further increase of the special or general tax burden of the city. We believe that as a rule the utilities operated by the city should be self-supporting. There are plenty of legitimate avenues of expenditure of the general tax of the city for maintaining those functions of local government that yield no revenue, without businesses in which the city may in exceptional cases justify such a subsidy, but the general rule should be that each revenue producing business or utility operated by the city should be self-supporting.

We therefore recommend the adoption of the following resolution by the Municipal League:

RESOLVED: That it is the sentiment of the Municipal League of Seattle that the Seattle Municipal Street Railway system should, out of Capital Account, bear the cost of all original paving between its rails and for a distance of 18 inches beyond the outside rails; and, out of revenue, bear the maintenance and renewal charges; except that original construction may be paid for by special assessment, when properly petitioned for by the assessment district.

fest. The cause is said to be the overrefinements of civilization. If so, obviously then this cause must be the product of superfluous and not of genuine civilization.

The war greatly accelerated this movement.

In former days labor, collectively considered, was ignorant and docile. Labor is now more intelligent and is aggressive for equal justice.

Labor sees itself an Atlas bearing up production and also the fungus growth of destruction.

Like the farmer, labor sees worthless shoots at the root of a promising tree. They sap its life. The farmer cuts the suckers. Society must follow his example—revise its visiting list downward and go to work early and often—at any rate just now.

Discontent is insistent. Labor seeks its own remedies. Labor feels economic strength and in democratic countries begins to use its political power. Ballot

MEMBERSHIP DUES

Those members who have not paid the present year's dues are requested to send in their checks as soon as possible. These funds will be needed to properly start off the winter's work.

Statements have been mailed to all members but if one has not reached you call the secretary at Main 476, and another will be sent.

The amount of each member's dues is small but the aggregate means the League's existence.

Do not delay.

SKAGIT RIVER PROJECT

Speech Delivered by Councilman Thomson and Reported by the Secretary

Electrical energy amounting to 100,000 horsepower will be furnished to the city by the hydro-electric plant on Skagit river, when it is completed as proposed according to a statement made by Councilman R. H. Thomson, speaking before the noon meeting of the Municipal League. The large investment, which will be required to install the huge plant, he said, will more than be repaid in the amount of electric current which can be delivered to the city for distribution at a reasonable price.

Mr. Thomson said the $5,000,000 outlay which will be required for the plant unit at Gorge Creek alone, will be more than justified if it enables the city to eliminate the present steam plant at Lake Union from its power system.

"The estimated cost of developing 50,000 horsepower as made in July, 1917, is $5,000,000," Mr. Thomson said, "but such work would undoubtedly be much higher now. A city substation would cost in the neighborhood of $500,000."

"The Skagit River watershed area covers 1,000 square miles in British Columbia and has a 'run-off' of 50,000 cubic feet a second.

"There are three points of development. One is a little below where Ruby creek enters the Skagit, nineteen miles from the Canadian boundary. A dam of an elevation of 1,400 feet and diverting channel can be built there comparatively cheap. If so built will form a lake nineteen miles in length stretching to the Canadian border. The run-off at this point is 3,750 cubic feet a second, and it will provide a storage for 3,000 horsepower.

"The Gorge Creek site is twelve miles below Ruby creek. Borings have already been made at this point with the diamond drill. An exploration of two and a half miles long has been made between Diversion Dam and Ruby Creek to determine the stability of the river between the bed and bank. During the major portion of the year 50,000 horsepower an hour can be developed here, though between the months of January and March the output may drop as low as 25,000 horsepower an hour.

"The run-off of the Cedar river takes place from December to March of every year, while the run-off of the Skagit river is from June to October of each year. This means that while the Cedar river is at its lowest the Skagit is at its highest.

"The dam at Ruby creek can be built to an elevation of 400 feet, but if built only to a 200-foot level it will have a storage capacity of 75,000 horsepower an hour on an average for the year by using an impound here twice as much power could be produced.

"Intermediate between Gorge creek and Ruby creek is Diablo. A dam can be built here on solid rock, leaving solid walls, producing 280,000 horsepower per hour."

Councilman Thomson said he had made an inspection of the Washington Power Company plant on the Spokane river and that Mr. Uhden, now employed by the City of Seattle, was engineer in charge of that project and overcame the scientific and economic difficulties. The difficulties at Skagit are less than they were on the Spokane pro-

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The voters of the state will not have an opportunity to pass upon the ratification of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution, as the petitions filed by the California Grape Growers' Protective Association were insufficient to invoke the referendum because of shortage of signers.

Mr. H. Allen Moore, member of the State Industrial Code Association, created by the last legislature, has suggested a plan for securing industrial peace.

He would first have the governor of the state declare an industrial armistice on January 1, 1920, to last until the next legislature has an opportunity to set up the necessary machinery to carry the plan into execution. During the period of the armistice all strikes, lock-outs and boycotts are to be declared off. Mr. Moore's plan is apparently to have capital assent to the principle of collective bargaining and labor agree to the open shop. Then he would write into all labor contracts "the principle of seniority of rights" and would provide "fair and just apprenticeship rules." For the decision of questions which could not be adjusted by the parties he would create a state industrial court of five members to be elected by and from the people of the state, the first members of the court to be appointed by the governor, however, to serve until an election. He would provide an appeal from the decision of the industrial court to the governor and then from the governor to the people through the referendum and for a still further step, and something previously unheard of, a "re-referendum."

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

The suggestion of an industrial court or a series of industrial courts is not a new one. During the course of the war President Suzzallo expressed the belief that the industrial court was a practical method of putting an end to industrial warfare. To us industrial warfare seems quite as illogical as private feuds. One of the difficulties in compelling the creation of machinery for the judicial settlement of such disputes has been the conception of the past that the parties to an industrial dispute were the only ones affected or who had any right to say how it should be settled. The extension of the powers of our own city government and of the United States government in war time has served to develop and impress upon the general public the fact that the interest of the public is after all the predominant one and that the public interest in the peaceful settlement of industrial disputes is sufficient to justify it in insisting that some method for peaceful settlement must be established and must be accepted by the parties to the disputes.

When we have accepted the principle of an industrial court, we have not, however, settled all difficulties, as is quite apparent from Mr. Moore's scheme. An appeal from a court to the governor, who is an elected and political official, is far from desirable, and a second appeal from the governor to the people and a third appeal to the people again not only provides an unnecessary number of appeals, but an unsatisfactory method of settling business or trade disputes. Some people seem to be obsessed with the idea that everything should be presented directly to the people for decision. Anyone at all closely observant of the workings of universal suffrage and the direct primary knows that it is even now a very difficult matter to arouse an ordinary voter and educate him so as to enable him to cast an intelligent ballot. Many of us have endeavored to shorten the political ballot for the very purpose of permitting a more intelligent and real expression of opinion. To expect the ordinary voter to inform himself concerning the details of every business, trade or occupation so as to be able to pass a judicial opinion upon any dispute arising in that business, trade or occupation concerning any of the numberless matters over which differences of opinion may arise is to expect the superhuman and impossible. Any system providing for three appeals is in itself too cumbersome. It is almost as important to have a question determined promptly as it is to have it determined with exact justice. The plan suggested would put off for long periods of time decisions of questions of great moment both to business and to the workers in that business.

While, therefore, we think favorably of Mr. Moore's suggestion of an industrial court, we cannot approve the legal machinery he suggests. We hope, however, that his suggestion may provoke sufficient discussion to enable us to work out some practical scheme.

The City Utilities Committee has voted to recommend to the City Council the purchase by the city of the 15th Avenue part of the Greenwood carline in Ballard for the sum of $55,000.00. This figure is reached after an appraisal of the property and the proposal to purchase has the support of Superintendent Murphine. It is said that the Puget Sound Traction, Light and Power Company will sell at that figure.

The Tacoma Street Railway Company has given notice of an increase in street car fares to ten cents beginning January 18th. The present fare, which is seven cents, was declared insufficient to meet the operating expenses. If the private company cannot operate and pay expenses at ten cents, it is obvious that we are fortunate to have the five-cent fare in this city and that we ought to be as lenient as we can in imposing charges upon the municipal street railway, if we wish the present fare maintained.

Filings for municipal offices, including mayor, councilmen and corporation counsel, began Friday. Mayor Fitzgerald, Councilmen Hesketh, Erickson, Lane, Carroll and Drake, and Corporation Counsel Meier will be candidates to succeed themselves. In addition three candidates have announced themselves for the council, Frank E. Kannair, secretary of the Mutual Business Club, Major Carl H. Reeves and William M. Tomlinson.

COME TO THE MEETING!

The Board of Trustees, the Public Utilities committee, the Reception and Entertainment committee, and, of course, the officers of the League urge upon you to turn out to the next meeting. It means a good deal to the League and to the city at large to have a large attendance when matters of importance are to be decided by our organization.

GET INTO THE HABIT AGAIN!

Owing to the many of the war activities of our members, many have not been able to come to the meetings as regularly as formerly. Municipal matters were ignored temporarily for the more important national affairs. War reaction have made many slackers in the performance of civic duties. Remedy this condition by enrolling yourself actively in the work of the League. Encourage those who are on the job and make their work more effective by lending your presence and your voice and your wholehearted co-operation. Come yourself and bring a friend, a member or guest, with you. You will find the meetings inspiring, enjoyable and altogether worthwhile. Get into the habit again!

the County of King and School District No. 1, and

Whereas these municipal corporations are continually offering for sale, bonds of various kinds and amounts, and

Whereas it would seem desirable to conserve the habits of saving and bond investment displayed by our people during the war, and

Whereas it would seem particularly desirable to give our citizens a monetary interest in our public utilities and similar investments and to secure the payment to them of the interest on such bonds, be it therefore,

Resolved that the proper officers of the City of Seattle, King County and School District No. 1, be asked to consider the advisability of first offering for sale in small denominations and on favorable terms such bond issues as may be authorized to the general public and that they be solicited to purchase the same before offering them in bulk to professional buyers.

 ject, he said.

"The reasonableness of size of work depends on revenue to be derived therefrom," he said. "At present Seattle could afford to spend $5,000,000 on this project if it only displaced the 'oil plant' station in this city.

"More power means more factories, and this means a greater population — a greater 'hinterland.'

"Two hundred thousand dollars has been spent on the project so far. The actual construction has not begun; work has been largely of an reconnaissance nature."

(Reported by the Secretary)

Mayor C. B. Fitzgerald, Superintendent of Public Utilities Thomas F. Murphine, and F. R. Singleton a member of the taxation bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club addressed the Municipal League on the matter of paving between car rails at the meeting Tuesday.

The question was regularly brought up by the reading of the report and resolution proposed by the public utilities committee, of which James A. Haight is chairman. The resolution, printed in our last issue reads as follows:

Resolved: That it is the sentiment of the Municipal League of Seattle that the Seattle Municipal Street Railway system should out of its capital account bear the cost of all original paving between its rails and for a distance of eighteen inches beyond the outside rails; and, out of revenue, bear the maintenance and renewal charges; except that original construction may be paid for by special assessment, when properly petitioned for by the assessment district.

Mayor Fitzgerald, the first speaker, stated that there would be no objection to the resolution if there was a 'capital account'. There being none he was opposed to the resolution. He cited further the fact that if a capital account should be created by a general bond issue, the use of such moneys for paving purposes would simply lessen the fund for street railway extension badly needed at this time, as no extensions have been made since 1909.

vocally in favor of maintaining the five cent fare. He stated that the advertising value of nickel car-fare in Seattle is worth millions of dollars to the city.

The street railway of to-day does not wear a groove in the center of the street as it did in the horse-car period of its history.

Mr. Murphine speaking of the resolution said, "If the capital account is going to be raised by general bond issue, interest paid by bonds, then I am in favor of the resolution, but I shall take the position that this is not the meaning of the resolution; that 'capital account' means revenue and confine my remarks accordingly. The fundamental principal of public utilities is that it shall be operated for service, not for profit. Under private ownership the principal is that the utility must be operated at a profit to the stockholders. In granting a franchise to a private company, the city was accustomed to driving hard bargains. Certain franchise obligations were placed upon the company among them being the requirement of building and maintaining eighteen feet of the public street. When the city itself took over the system, all franchise obligations were abrogated.

"Should the fare be increased to seven cents the additional cost to the average family per year would be forty-three dollars, while if the increased cost is borne by taxation there would be an additional levy of one mill, which would mean that the average home-owner would pay an increased tax of three dollars a year."

Mr. Singleton spoke in favor of the resolution. "I agree that paving costs should be paid out of the capital account if such

THEATRES AND AMUSEMENTS

Your Committee on Theatres and Amusements was asked to investigate the moving-pictures presented to the public at the principal theatres of this city, from November 15th to December 15th inclusive. Under this instruction the Committee investigated the following theaters: The Clemmer, Coliseum, Strand, Liberty, Mission, Rex, Colonial, Madison, and Society.

Each of these theaters presented a varied program, which, with some minor differences consists of music, a main story or drama, a current news service, and a comedy film. Without mentioning the specific titles of the the period of our investigation, we have classified them as to theme presented, and find the following to have been given: 12 love stories, 8 comedies, 7 problem plays, 4 dealing with adventure, 2 detective stories, 2 religious, and several that were perhaps an admixture of all of the above themes.

Generally speaking, it may be said that the theme presented in the main play in all of these theaters is fine and of a high type, the plays themselves are taken largely from books that have been written and that have been found suitable for stage production. We found nothing unworthy or reprehensible from a moral standpoint in any of them. There are minor details which will be spoken of more specifically in this report later on, but at this point let it suffice to say that the theaters are presenting and the public demanding good pictures with themes that are elevating and inspiring.

Some of the theaters on our list present what is known as "second runs". By that is meant a play that has been presented at one of the larger theaters and is later put on a second time at another house. The Society theater located out on Broadway, is a notable example of this, as is the Madison theater. Thus ordinarily, these little houses are presenting pictures as good as those in the down town houses, altho they have been seen before in Seattle. They can do this more successfully, being nearer the residential districts, than would otherwise be the case. They offer to those, who perhaps do not have the opportunity of getting down to a movie, the chance of seeing good photo dramas near home.

The Rex is a smaller down town theater, which has a tendency to stage sex problem plays. Its system of advertising, it seems to your Committee, is unfortunate. Its billboards play up these sex problem plays in fantastic colors, calculated to attract the eye of the curious. Now and then they put on a play of a different nature, but use the same type of billboard for the latter. It would perhaps be more candid with the public, were the merits of the plays allowed to attract, rather than the display of its billboards.

The Colonial is another of the smaller down town theaters and is an attractive place. To quote from one of the Committee-men, "The pictures presented are most agreeably pleasing, and they are far above what might be expected in what is generally regarded as a second-rate house." This particular theater, a short time ago, launched a program of better pictures and is succeeding.

The Strand has been presenting what are called "super-plays." An extra charge is made for admission, and the play consumes more time than those ordinarily exhibited. Three of these plays were shown during the period of our investigation, entitled in the order of their having been presented, "The Miracle Man," "Broken Blossoms," and "Male and Female." It may be interesting to know that the first of these plays, "The Miracle Man," was of a highly religious nature, and that it ran for three weeks to capacity houses, and that midnight matinees were put on to accommodate the waiting crowds. It was a powerful play, and the long lines of people waiting to gain admission prove the demand for good picture plays. The second, "Broken Blossoms," brought forth special mention from some of the committeemen because of the extreme brutality displayed by one of the characters in the play toward a helpless child. It was intimated that such scenes should not be portrayed, even though perhaps they present life as it really is in some of our communities. Others saw no wrong in the picture. Neither this play nor the play, "Male and Female," met with the large attendance that the first did, although both attracted large crowds.

Special attention is given to music at the Coliseum, Strand, Clemmer and Liberty, and most of the renditions are splendidly done. This feature is a great attraction at all of these houses.

The comedy features displayed are for the most part merely amusing and although some of them are somewhat questionable, they perhaps need not be censured. The Liberty, however, displays what is called "Sayings from the Smart Set." Your committee believes that this feature should be eliminated. For instance, one of the sayings displayed was, "A woman's idea of hell is that she has no men to go out with her and clothes do not fit." Another, "Kissing one's wife is like dining out in one's own restaurant." These cheap, supposedly witty, views of life are not particularly healthful, especially to the rising generation. These comedy features are to some extent being supplanted by nature pictures, which is a desirable substitute. The camera man takes the audience through some particularly scenic spot, while the organ or orchestra is playing suitable music, and the effect is wholly worth while.

As has been heretofore mentioned, all of the above theatres have a news service. This consists of five or ten minutes of current events of important happenings throughout the civilized world. This feature is a splendid addition to the program and is perhaps the most instructive. It affords the privilege of actually seeing up-to-date events as they take place. Perhaps a specific instance would be worth mentioning. Some time ago, your chairman saw at one of the moving picture houses the process by which perfume is made in Southern France. Shortly thereafter, a service man who was in that country visiting one of the perfume factories saw the process there, and wrote telling of all he had seen. As the letter was read the entire process as revealed through the medium of the moving picture, made the letter plain and intelligible, which might otherwise not have been the case. One of your committeemen felt that a theatre house could succeed by displaying nothing but news service as an entire program. However as that might be, this feature as it is now carried on, cannot be too strongly recommended.

In closing, it may be said that one cannot intelligently observe moving picture houses at the present, without realizing that the moving picture as an institution is here to stay. All of the picture houses are crowded every day in the week. The audiences are made up of men, women, and children of all ages. They attend with minds fully open to receive what is presented, because they go for recreation and pleasure.

The average individual perhaps retains more that he has actually seen portrayed before his eyes than through reading. Thus, there is presented to the moving picture industry today, an opportunity that is limitless. Those who are conducting the industry in the principal houses of Seattle seem to be mindful of this fact and are presenting programs that as a whole are commendable. No destructive criticism is called for at the present time. Intelligent observation should be made from time to time, however, and constructive suggestions offered, suggestions which will still further assist the management in improving the service.

exists, and if none does exist, then out of the capital earnings. In justice you cannot put a burden on the already overburdened tax payer of this city. It may be that we would be justified in operating some public utilities in which the health of the community is involved, at a loss, but certainly not the street railway system."

"Why buck against economic laws? Everything else has gone up in price, why not the street-car fare? Certainly there is no sacredness about the five-cent fare."

Mr. Singleton closed by stating that the jitneys should pay a proportionate share of the paving costs.

So many others desired to speak on the question that it was regularly passed that the matter should be taken up at the next regular meeting of the League, at which a vote on the resolution will be taken.

"Why do we call a handcuff a bracelet?" asked a commissioner of an Irish recruit at recent police examination.

"Faith, because it is intended for arrist," replied the applicant, and he got the job at once.

GERMANY AFTER THE ARMISTICE

By Eimon L. Weinir

That a republic was founded in Germany because of the defeat of the Military party and not because of any wide-spread democratic movement was the declaration made by Professor Ralph H. Lutz of the University of Washington in an address to the Municipal League Tuesday.

The Spartacus rebellion was the final effort of Bolshevism to seize the German Empire. There was plenty of Russian gold in Berlin to finance the revolution. That the rebellion failed was due mainly to the volunteer civilian forces rather than the government's troops. To-day Germany is a victim of Bolshevism.

At thirteen days after the revolution, Hirsch, minister and president of the first constitutional assembly, declared: "The chief task of the first constitutional government of the republic of Prussia is with the help of our land to found on the ground of democracy new and secure conditions of life. Freedom and order are the foundation stones. Old Prussia is gone forever."

Prof. Lutz stated that while there was little or no sympathy for the Kaiser there was none for the Crown Prince, who it is said, while nominally at the head of the army, was found playing tennis with his staff far behind the lines during one of the most crucial battles of the war.

"The peace treaty when it was announced in Germany nearly overthrew the Republic. An organized demonstration was directed chiefly against the Americans, showing that the Government had not lost its old tricks of manipulating the people for political purposes.

PRISON REFORMS

Dr. Matteson is master of his subject, having just completed an investigation of sixteen penal institutions. He is forcible and convincing and he has a remedy to suggest that will prove interesting to every public spirited man.

Bring in a list of ten prospective members for the Membership Committee

"The treaty was signed because it had to be signed. The nation would not permit either active or passive resistance to the terms of peace. The Spartacans made another threat of revolution in case the treaty was not signed."

Prof. Lutz stated, that in his opinion, Germany would recover rapidly in an economic way. There are only two draw backs to such recovery he said: The breaking down of the transportation system and the strike mania which seems to persist.

Speaking of the work of the American Military Mission, Prof. Lutz stated that had it not been for its effective manner in feeding the 300,000 Russian prisoners in Germany and in keeping them from breaking out of the camps, they would have helped the cause of Bolshevism in Germany.

A feature of the meeting was the introduction of the following new members to the League:

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

At their last meeting Wednesday noon the Board of Trustees referred a number of important matters to committees for investigation. These included the proposed purchase of the Greenwood Avenue Line by the city, the proposal to buy the Seattle, Renton & Southern for $1,600,000.00, the charter amendments to be submitted to the voters at the forthcoming election, the matter of an increase in the police force as requested by the chief and a resolution proposed at a recent meeting that all bonds to be issued for the benefit of public utilities by the city be in the future general bonds, if the purpose of the issue were purchases or expenditures on capital account.

* * *

No one who has helped to bear the burdens of the League during the difficult war period can fail to observe with pleasure the increasing spirit and activity apparent in the League meetings and in the operation of the League committees. As economic conditions grow more settled, the interest of men everywhere is likely to turn back more to matters of municipal concern. As the writer has asserted again and again, the League fills a niche in this community and one which is not and cannot be filled by any other organization. The writer has looked with a little alarm at this proposed Junior Chamber of Commerce suggested by a committee of the Chamber. The writer is not in favor of the consolidation of all our civic organizations into one great organization, does not believe that the Chamber should endeavor to monopolize all activities and does not believe that the Chamber can accomplish as good results in civic matters, particularly in making reports upon proposed municipal projects or departures where a large number of the voters desire to decide the question rightly and want data which they can rely upon and which they can feel is from a source as independent as humanly possible as can the Municipal League. The Chamber is a business organization and properly so. It is very largely under the influence of so-called big business, although it is more democratic and more representative and more public-spirited than it was formerly. Because of its larger supply of funds and its membership it can accomplish desirable results through its Civic Bureau. As far as it has gone at the present time we have felt that there has been no serious or unjustifiable overlapping, but, as the Junior Chamber of Commerce plan has been presented, it seems to us an unnecessary inroad upon the League's field, a movement, judging from the probable way in which it would work out, more designed to strengthen the position of the Chamber at the expense of good government organizations such as the League without really increasing or strengthening the forces working for good government. It may be that we are too fearful or do not understand the purposes of the Junior Chamber. If so, these few remarks will serve to start the discussion which may clear up the matter.

One of the most important functions the League performs is its periodical investigation and report on candidates. Another municipal campaign is approaching and the Board at its last meeting authorized the president to appoint a committee to investigate the candidates for municipal offices and report.

City Engineer Dimock presented to the Streets and Sewers Committee of the council on Thursday tentative plans with estimates of cost for extending Olive Street from Bellevue Ave. to Broadway. The purpose of the improvement would be to relieve the congestion of traffic on Pike and Pine streets. To the south of these streets it may be necessary in the future to put a tunnel under the hill in continuation of Union Street, but such a tunnel would be extremely expensive and Mr. Dimock believes the proposed extension is a necessary and vital part of our future street system; that the extension can now be made without the destruction of any important buildings and that the right of way can be acquired at much less expense than in the future. Mr. Dimock presented two plans for making this improvement, the first of which would cost, it is estimated, $437,000.00, and the second $474,000. He favors the first plan, because of a lesser grade and an earlier diversion of traffic from North Broadway.

The council met Friday to take up the question of an addition of seventy-five men to the police force, as requested by Chief Warren. The increasing amount of crime in the city would seem to justify some addition, even if it be only temporary.

* * *

The Public Utilities Committee of the council has again expressed itself in favor of making physical connection between the Lake Burien and the Alki and Fauntleroy car lines. The Board of Public Works is opposed to the plan. The basis of the rejection of the plan by the Board was a report prepared by the Superintendent of Streets and City Engineer which concluded that the proposed connection was dangerous because it would cross at grade several steam railroad tracks and also a public roadway and because of difficulties in switching from the Lake Burien to the Alki and Fauntleroy lines.

NORTH DAKOTA'S EXAMPLE

From Post-Intelligencer

The decision of the supreme court of North Dakota holding that the state can legally enter upon any industrial program puts the final proof of the oft-made assertion that there is no limit to a democracy. Under the constitution with which North Dakota entered the Union, there may have been no legal provision whereby the state could become a business corporation and engage in general business in the same manner as a private corporation. But the original constitution was subject to amendment; it was within the power of the people of the state to make whatever changes in the state constitution they saw fit.

The people of North Dakota availed themselves of this right of amending their constitution and specifically asserted their right to build and operate grain elevators, flour mills, and engage in other industrial enterprises. A friendly suit was brought to test the validity of these amendments and the supreme court of the state has held them valid.

The supreme court, of course, does not pass on the wisdom of the folly of these innovations. It merely states that they are legal; that they have been launched by legal methods and that there is nothing in the law or the constitution to invalidate them. The people of the state have simply expressed their will in a constitutional manner and there is nothing to prevent the carrying out of the will of the people.

What North Dakota has done, any state in the Union can do. There is, therefore, no sense and less honesty to all this blatant talk about the tyranny of government, about the inability of the majority to put its wishes into effect. North Dakota is no different from any other state and North Dakota passes the lie to all the varieties of red radicals who talk about the downtrodden people.

We are far from certain that the experiences of North Dakota are to be happy. The recent bank scandal does not indicate that all the North Dakota theories are as economically sound as they are legally valid. But that is beside the point of our discussion, which is, that the people of any state in the United States can, by the simple method of amending their constitution, bring about any change in state government, and increase to any extent the functions of their government. That is liberty; liberty with law and order, the only liberty that is tolerable.

PRISON RECONSTRUCTION

ADDRESS DELIVERED BY DR. MATTESON

(Reported by the Secretary)

Asserting that more than $200,000 was wasted annually in the maintenance of penal institutions of the United States and that a reconstruction of the system should be undertaken, Dr. H. H. Matteson, writer and until recently physician at the Federal Prison at McNeil's Island, outlined a program of reform to be made in penal institutions, in an address to the Municipal League Tuesday.

"The average prisoner is a young man, less than 24 years of age, serving a term of from one to four years for a crime involving the infringement of rights against property. He has committed crime chiefly because he has never had his energies properly directed. Instead of punishing such offenders by all sorts of restrictive measures, gradually killing such self-respect as he has, we ought to have vocational training for them, fitting them for some useful occupation in life," said Dr. Matteson. "A vocational officer, not a 'warden' is necessary at such institutions."

Other methods of reconstruction urged by Dr. Matteson included: The removing of prisons from political control and domination; assisting pardoned or paroled persons from such institutions in getting a proper start when they are returned to civil life; to occupy all able-bodied men incarcerated in such institutions in useful and productive work for which they are best fitted, so that such institu-

Northwest Representative of Community Service Organization Will Address the League on the Purposes of the National Community Service Organization

MR. CARL E. CROSON

will speak on

"The Thrift Campaign in Seattle"

The report of the Public Welfare Committee on Community Service (Incorporated) appearing in this issue recommends that a representative of that organization be invited to address us. The subject is one that merits your consideration. Come and hear it presented authoritatively by Mr. Carter. Call up a friend and bring him to the meeting; he will enjoy it and so will you.

Mr. Croson's abilities as a public speaker are too well known to need mention.

"5000 BY 1921"

(By the Secretary)

Five thousand members by January 1921 is a big job but one that will be put over no matter how great the difficulty.

A campaign of this kind is one in which the active co-operation of every member of the Municipal League is most earnestly requested. After two weeks from the meeting when Capt. Plummer asked the members to send in a list of at least ten names but three members have complied. This is falling far short of what was expected of the League.

Don't be a slacker in this drive, get behind the gun and help put it over. Give five minutes of your time in dictating a letter to your stenographer and mail it immediately to the office of the Secretary, 510 Central Building.

It is hoped that the committee will be able to report an increase of at least 100 members by the 1st of February which will be but the start of a long hard pull.

ENDORSE BILL

By a practically unanimous vote the League endorsed the Williams bill pending in Congress to provide American assistance for Armenians and authorized President Reynolds to wire Senator John Sharp Williams announcement of the League's action.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The city council by a vote of three to six refused to pass the ordinance increasing the police department by five sergeants and seventy patrolmen to serve under ninety-day appointments. Whether the council will be willing to grant any lesser increase remains to be seen.

* * *

On the question whether the municipal street railway should bear the cost of paving between the tracks and for eighteen inches on each side thereof the council has apparently taken the view which, according to Mr. Murphine in debate on the floor of the League, was the view of the Public Utilities Department. That was that the street railway should bear whatever additional expense was caused by the presence of the street railway tracks in the street either in the original paving or its subsequent maintenance.

The original ordinance for the creation of a Zoning Commission was killed, but another ordinance providing for such a commission to consist of nine members, six to be appointed by the mayor, with the Superintendent of Buildings, the City Engineer and a member of the Park Board as the three city representatives, was recommended for passage. This ordinance ought to be carefully framed, and yet it ought to furnish the commission with sufficient power and authority to obtain the information and assistance necessary from the city departments, at least so long as the giving of such assistance or the furnishing of such information does not unreasonably interfere with the working of those departments. The proposed ordinance, which merely gives the Commission the power to "request" such assistance with the approval of the mayor, is hardly sufficient. The provision, also, with reference to the control and disposition of bequests made to the city for the purposes of the commission is not carefully worked out and ought to be re-framed before passage.

There has recently been considerable agitation for the placing in the hands of a single corporate body the public properties capable of use for industrial purposes and the suggestion has been made that the port commission was the proper authority to handle such properties. At its meeting last Monday the council, however, went on record as favoring a retention of its control over city properties and asserting the necessity of taking up with it in connection with the port commission any proposals for the use of such city property.

* * *

At the last meeting of the school board a report on the buildings now in use was made, showing that since August 5th 76 new temporary and portable buildings have been added to the school equipment, making a total of 175 buildings now owned by the school district, of which 169 are actually occupied and used. A report of Superintendent Cooper of methods for the relief of congestion in the schools until the completion of the building program was presented. In it Superintendent Cooper stated that either more temporary buildings would have to be erected, or double sessions in the schools would have to be instituted. He did not favor the latter course because it would lessen the efficiency of the classes.

At the meeting of the Members' Council of the Chamber a week ago Mayor Fitzgerald advocated daily meetings of the council, extension of the mayor's term and operation of the street cars under a traffic expert. He also favored consolidation of city and county governments. The reason he gave for suggesting the longer term for the mayor was the greater freedom which would be given him from political activity. We believe that the reason is a good one and that the extension of the mayor's term to four years would be a step toward greater efficiency.

The Taxpayers' League came out later in a report suggesting again city-county consolidation and asserting that $1,000,000.00 a year could be saved by such a change. The Municipal League has been the only local organization to make a thorough investigation of the matter of city-county consolidation and present a report dealing with it in some detail. A great many people favor consolidation in theory, but when it comes to giving it practical effect find insuperable difficulties in the way. The suggestion of a million dollars saving is merely a guess, as nobody has endeavored to make or can easily make any reliable estimate. The assertion is frequently made that the duplication of officials could be eliminated in many instances, but that, too, when reduced to instances contains much less of truth than it seems. The fact is that some duplication could be avoided and some head officials could be eliminated, but the saving in that regard would not be very large. The greater saving would have to be secured in the more careful expenditure of the public funds and the closer supervision which municipal bodies and citizens would be able to give the expenditures if made by a single legislative body.

We favor city-county consolidation, but not on the lines some times suggested, that is, consolidation of the present city with the present county of King. Our idea of the only practical consolidation is a division of the county and then a consolidation. The city would extend its limits and make them co-terminous with that portion of the county which would be separated from the county of King and might well be called the county of Seattle. We would then have a consolidated city and county of Seattle similar to the city and county of San Francisco.

It is true, as stated by the report of the Taxpayers' League that a proposed constitutional amendment permitting city-county consolidation was presented to the state legislature by the Municipal League, but was not passed. Our own committees have two or three times concluded that the first step toward city-county consolidation was by constitutional amendment. Those who are favorable to consolidation should, therefore, prepare the way for putting pressure upon the next legislature to pass the desired amendment, or at least to submit it to the people. At the present time the discussion of the question has the value only of general publicity.

COMMITTEE REPORT

Dec. 6, 1920.

To the Municipal League:

Your committee on Public Welfare to which was referred consideration of the purpose and value to our city of Community Service Incorporated, begs leave to report its approval of the purpose and work of this nation-wide organization to secure recreational and personal and civic value out of our leisure time, and say in brief the purpose is a broader continuation of War Camp Community Service for all the people through fellowship and co-operation of present and other desirable agencies and to recommend that a representative of Community Service, Incorporated, be invited to address the League on this subject.

TO CHECK CITY FINANCES

A resolution was introduced by Carl H. Reeves recommending appointment by the League of a committee to check each department of the city and county government to determine whether public money was being too freely expended. The resolution was referred to the Board of Trustees. The Board of Trustees voted that a committee be appointed by the president to carry into effect the above resolution.

My Dear Mr. Griffiths:

I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of your "Open Letter on Capital and Labor," as published in the Seattle Municipal News. I am mailing each member of our State Industrial Commission a copy of the letter also a copy of the resolution passed by the Seattle Municipal League bearing upon the same subject and suggesting a new idea and that is the "Profit and Loss Sharing" plan of industrial partnership. We have heard quite a bit about profit sharing, but nothing about "loss sharing." It appears to me that the commission should sometime arrange for a meeting so you might thoroughly explain this new principle in industry. Anticipating that you and the tions can be placed on a self-sustaining basis and the present wasteful methods abolished.

"I am not here to defend the inmates of penitentiaries nor to indulge in mawkish sentimentality in their behalf," Dr. Matteson said. "Most of those confined are there because they deserve to be there. But the fact remains that penitentiaries fail of their primary purpose because they do not help the inmates to learn a vocation and attain a measure of self-respect."

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

Extensions of the Ravenna car line on East 55th street to 35th Avenue Northeast was urged before the meeting of the Utilities Committee of the city council last Thursday. The residents of Beacon Hill also desire an extension of the Beacon Hill car line.

At the meeting of the Streets and Sewers Committee resolutions approving two large improvement projects in the south end were passed. The first provides for a sanitary fill in the district bounded by 9th and 5th avenues south and Massachusetts and Stacy streets. The estimated cost is $293,000.00. The other provides for grading and paving 9th avenue south from Massachusetts street to Charlestown street in the South Seattle at the estimated cost of $660,000. Vigorous protests were voiced by property owners in the district affected.

The hearing on the Olive street extension, which contemplates the establishment of an arterial highway north of Pike street to connect with the North Broadway and University districts, was postponed for hearing four weeks hence.

The re-registration of voters has proceeded rapidly. At this date more than 85,000 names are on the books. The municipal campaign is assuming definiteness. The closing of the filing lists found only three willing to enter the mayoralty race, the present mayor, C. B. Fitzgerald, former corporation counsel, Hugh M. Caldwell, and James A. Duncan, secretary of the Central Labor Council. All five of the

THRIFT RESOLUTION

In line with the thrift program and reporting on a resolution recently introduced by Edgar J. Wright, the Finance committee offered the following:

It is the sentiment of the Municipal League that in cases in which the City of Seattle is authorized to sell bonds at a private sale, the council, by ordinance, should provide for the sale of bonds in small denominations to the general public, under such regulations as is best calculated to make such sale a success.

W. T. PERKINS.

The resolution was passed by the League.

At the annual convention of the American Civic Association, Lawson Purdy, President of the National Municipal League, emphasized the vital and immediate importance of zoning in cities for protection of values, of health, industry and life itself. At this convention the working motto was proposed: "Make your own town the best town to live in."

WHY COMMUNITY SERVICE?

(By the Secretary)

Ray F. Carter, Pacific Northwest representative of Community Service, Incorporated, addressed the Municipal League Wednesday noon, on the work about to be undertaken in this city. He said in part:

The organization of Community Service was brought about by the demand of many public spirited communities for the continuation of the work done by The War Camp Community Service during the war emergency period in training camps and cities adjacent to them. It was felt that an organization such as ours could assist in the solution of certain problems existing in every city which the life of the children and adults after school and work hours.

Our present intensified industrial and business system, with the consequent development of large cities, has squeezed out of our lives many healthful recreational past-times that were enjoyed by our forbears in the past, living as they did under simpler conditions of life. Children have been forced to play in the city streets, dodging "cops" fearing infraction of the law; becoming jaded long before their time.

We must preserve the right of the child to be a child when it is a child. It is fact that many of the "outbreaks" of mature life are directly traceable to a restricted play-life during childhood.

Adults, too, must have the right sort of recreation. We must create more opportunities for contact with nature itself; old time neighborliness must in a sense be restored. These old time recreational opportunities we can never restore completely, at least we can not restore com-

The public schools can and should be the center of social neighborhood activities. This will make for democracy and better understanding of our government by all classes of our citizenship, and will certainly help to Americanize large portions of our foreign element. We must put grace and beauty into our cities - cities that are so drab at the present time.

A resolution endorsing Community Service (Incorporated) was passed by the League.

Carl E. Croson delivered an inspiring address on Thrift. He urged not only economic thrift in the ordinary sense, but character and cultural thrift as well. Establishing our symphony orchestra on a firm financial footing and laying of plans for an art institute were urged by Mr. Croson.

The proposed bond issue for the construction of the West Seattle bridge, will be reported on by a special committee, headed by Fred W. Catlett, and the following: A. K. Fiske, A. R. Hilen, Ralph D. Nichols and C. D. Watson.

THAT LIST OF TEN

Have you sent to the Secretary that list of ten prospective Municipal League members? No? You have wanted to, but just didn't get to it. Very well, you will be forgiven. But won't you just sit down at your desk and write out such a list and mail it in to me? This is the only thing you are asked to do to help out the membership committee in its diligent effort to increase the enrollment of the League. Surely you will do this. You want to do it. Then please do it now! The office is at 510 Central Bldg, Phone Main 476.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE CANDIDATES

The committee to investigate the qualifications of candidates for the office of mayor and the city council has been appointed. It is composed of the following: L. D. Lewis, chairman; J. D. Blackwell, Robt. S. Boyns, Arthur H. Hutchinson, Joseph Jacobs, W. S. Johnson and J. D. Mudge.

The American City, in its last issue, comments editorially on increases of salaries for public servants. A portion of the editorial is as follows: "It is obvious that if cities are to continue in business and are to retain competent and trained county and city engineers, health officers, superintendents of water and lighting departments, street superintendents, city and county clerks, police and fire chiefs, and the necessary technical men of various municipal construction groups, they must pay salaries at least approximating those paid by outside business. The high mortality of technical and trained employees is eloquent evidence of this need." The article goes on to say that while examination of the increases reported shows them to be in the neighborhood of 10 to 20 per cent, the increase in the cost of living since 1915 has been not less than 63 per cent and some estimates run as high as 80 per cent.

This year's program of the National Municipal League centered chiefly upon a model state constitution. Aside from that the principal subject discussed was the street railway situation. Dr. Delos F. Wilcox pointed out the difficulty in the way of operating the modern electric street railway at the present high prices on a five cent fare. Peter Witt, Cleveland's traction authority, advocated the use of one man cars and zone fares. The conference was unanimous in opinion that governmental expenditures and governmental revenues must be planned in advance in some sort of budget measure.

The secretary of the Factory Site Commission of Baltimore state that advertising in the great magazines of the country was largely responsible for many new industries coming to that city.

The Legislature of the State of Ohio has just passed an act providing that a city health district may merge with the general health district of the same county, forming a big, general health district.

Mr. Eastman of Kodak fame, has recently given $3,500,000 to establish a Symphony Orchestra and School for Music in Rochester, N. Y.

The health commissioner of Toledo declared recently that the advent of the automobile and the interurban has increased venereal disease in rural communities until now it is as prevalent there as in the city.

Mrs. William R. Hawthorn of Seattle, was appointed chairman, serving for the State of Washington, by the National Director of Thrift, to help make the U. S. a thrifty nation.

NEW BENEFITS FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

The Treasury Department, Bureau has issued a bulletin for publication giving new and more liberal benefits for ex-service men and their relatives and beneficiaries, effective December 24, 1919.

Under the new amendment to the War Risk Insurance Act which has been passed by Congress and which became a law on December 24, 1919, when it was signed by the President, war term insurance or United States Government life (converted) insurance may be made payable to any of the following list of beneficiaries:

Parent, grandparent, stepparent, parent through adoption, wife or husband, child, grandchild, stepchild, adopted child, brother, sister, half-brother half-sister, brother through adoption, sister through adoption, stepbrother, stepsister, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, a person who has stood in the relation of a parent to the insured for a period of one year or more prior to the insured's enlistment or induction, the children of such parent; parent, grandparent, stepparent or parent through adoption of the insured's wife or husband.

United States Government life (converted) insurance may now be paid at death in a lump sum or in installments for 36 years or more at the option of the insured.

The rate of compensation for disability has been greatly increased.

Under the War Risk Insurance Act the same scale applied for total and permanent disability as for temporary total disability. A distinction is made between the two in the new law. Under the latter the compensation monthly for total and permanent disability is $100.

Under the new amendment i the disabled person is so helpless as to be in constant need of a nurse or attendant, an additional allowance is provided, in the discretion of the Director, not exceeding $20.

Under the W. R. I. Act the same provision was effective, except that a man receiving $100 per month (as outline below) could not be given an additional allowance.

Both under the W. R. I. Act and under the new law, compensation for the loss of both feet or both hands or the sight of both eyes, or for becoming helpless and permanently bedridden is $100. In addition, the new law provides that compensation for the loss of one foot and one hand, or one foot and the sight of one eye, or one hand and the sight of one eye, shall be $100.

The new law provides that for double total, permanent disability the rate of compensation shall be $200.

The new law provides that each of the impairments mentioned shall be deemed to be total permanent disability.

The new law provides: "If and while the disability is rated as partial and temporary, the monthly compensation shall be a percentage of the compensation that would be payable for * * * total and temporary disability equal to the degree of the reduction in earning capacity resulting from the disability * * *"
 "If and while the disability is rated as partial and permanent, the monthly compensation shall be a percentage of the compensation that would be payable for * * * total and permanent disability equal to the degree of the reduction in earning capacity resulting from the disability * * *"

In no case is compensation payable for a reduction in earning capacity rated at less than 10 per cent.

CITY ELECTIONS AND PARTIES

By Austin E. Griffiths

A lot of twaddle has gone the rounds that in City elections group or party support of candidates is unlawful. For the sake of political clarity we should set ourselves straight on this subject.

Of our political rights the most fundamental are the right to vote and the right to organize groups or parties. Certainly these liberties are the most practical and useful. To the extent to which we secure collective political action we express and carry out the group or community will. We thus to that extent destroy the old time one man voice and government.

However because city affairs and offices were often prostituted to state and national party partisan purposes our charter in particular was amended to prevent this sort of thing.

We call our city elections non-partisan by reason of three provisions:

A candidate "Shall make affidavit to the fact that he has not become a candidate as the nominee of, or because of any promised support from any national or state political party or any committee or convention representing or acting for any such political party."

"Nothing on the ballot shall be indicative of the source of the candidacy or of the support of any candidate. No ballot shall have printed thereon any party or political designation or mark, and there shall not be appended to the name of any candidate any such party or political designation or mark, or anything indicating his views or opinions.

It is clear from the foregoing

COUNCILMANIC CANDIDATES
WILL ADDRESS THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE
Tuesday Noon, February 3, 1920
MEVE'S CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA

Acceptances of invitation to speak have been received from nearly all of the candidates. The speeches will necessarily be brief and snappy. The speaking will begin promptly at 12:15, so come early—come by noon, if possible, in order to get a seat; for it will be a rattling good meeting.

The following new members will be introduced at Tuesday's meeting: Edward Connor, Judson T. Falknor, Geo. A. Grant, Joseph L. Greenwell, D. W. Henderson, A. W. Leonard, Roy C. Lyle, Bert A. Northrop, Helmer S. Peterson, W. B. Shoemaker and J. J. Wettrick.

that only recognized parties such as the republican, democratic or socialist are barred by the Charter. These are known to be state wide and national in their objects. They have a place by law on the official ballot. For this reason support from these or similar parties is denied in our municipal elections.

I take it that no group or so-called party is intended to be excluded from participation in our city elections unless it has acquired official recognition. This is done by casting at a previous election the statutory percentage of votes. And unless it has at least state-wide purpose and members. Clearly the Charter is not aimed at domestic or civic groups or parties having municipal questions to promote or settle. It is sufficient if the ballot is kept clean of descriptive matter.

In the recent School and Port Elections it was unlawful for any party to have a hand. The Charter governs the city only.

I have in my mind the hue and cry raised in those elections against the Triple Alliance. The same cry is raised in the pending city contest. But is this group within the Charter prohibition? It has no official standing and has not even enjoyed a maiden state campaign. As far as I know it does not profess to be a political party. Its aim thus far shown is to select for support its own or other candidates.

In the eye of the Charter how does this group differ from the Public Ownership League, the Single Tax League, the Building Owners and Employer's Associations, the Bolo Club and other clubs and organizations which from time to time support or op-

CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR ADDRESS LEAGUE

By Eimon L. Wienir.

The three mayoralty candidates addressed the League Tuesday noon, laying their claims for office before membership of the organization, at one of the most interesting and enthusiastic meetings of the year.

Hugh M. Caldwell, the first to address the League, said in part as follows:

Having been twice elected a legal adviser of the city and its various officials and departments, my record is already known to many thousands of the voters of this city. I also know the problems confronting the city, and believe that my experience and training, together with my determination to serve all the people justifies me in becoming a candidate for mayor at this time.

Mayor Fitzgerald had nothing whatever to do with the Skagit River project until after Mayor Gill had sent J. D. Ross, superintendent of lighting, and your humble servant as corporation counsel, to Washington, D. C., in October, 1917, where we laid the foundation for obtaining a permit for the city to develop the Skagit.

I have declared my intention to see that the people know the facts about their utilities, that the figures which are given out are not juggled. I do not believe that we should keep in office the friends of the men who bought the Municipal railway line.

se. Quoting the statement made by the mayor, Duncan said that he was not for shutting off the water, light, etc., at the time of the general strike in Seattle. Duncan read a letter, written by him in response to the invitation to the Central Labor council to participate in the Preparedness day parade, in which he outlined labor's position in not joining in such undertaking.

"I was hopeful that the shipyard workers would not strike, and so expressed myself at the time, while I was East, even though the strike was the result of the most autocratic and bureaucratic oppression in the history of the country.

"I disagreed with Gompers because Gompers is against prohibition; though we are the best of friends, personally.

"The issue in this campaign is not the Skagit project, or the railroads. There is no room in this city for hatred by groups of citizens. I believe that I can bring about a better understanding between the employers and labor better than any of the other candidates."

* * *

MAYOR FITZGERALD'S ADDRESS

Mayor Fitzgerald, after giving a brief account of his record as councilman and mayor, stated that he is in favor of city-county consolidation; honest work at honest wages for returned ex-service men; the development of the Skagit project to its maximum possibilities; an efficient street railway department.

"The real issue in this campaign," stated Mayor Fitzgerald, "is the issue I have with Mr. Duncan. I opposed him at the time of the Preparedness parade. I opposed him during the war. Our real clash came, when just previous to the general strike being called in Seattle he threatened to shut down all industry in Seattle, including the municipally owned utilities. I opposed and disagreed with him since I have been mayor, when he, Duncan, came down to the city hall requesting a permit to hold the Mooney Day parade as a protest, as he said, against the unjust incarceration of political prisoners and demanding their release. I refused then, as I would refuse it now."

Mayor Fitzgerald declared that his actions as councilman and mayor had not been called into question by his opponents and that they are now advocating as part of their proposed policies the things which he, as a public official, has already done.

ZONING IN PRACTICE

This is the title of an article appearing in the National Municipal Review for January, and just received by the secretary's office. It was written by Charles H. Cheney, Secretary California Conference on City Planning and Consultant Portland and other city planning commissions. It was considered the most valuable paper delivered at the recent Buffalo Conference on City planning. It represents the new California viewpoint in some respects and advances ideas that are not, as yet at least, universally accepted, although "received with entire respect" by city planners.

Discussing the zoning plan generally, the article says:

"Zoning is the first fundamental step in any city to establish a practical basis for constructive city growth. Until zoning is done, no city planning commission can effectively prove its case as to the necessity for the adoption of a Major Street Plan, or properly promote greater economy, convenience, safety, health, and comfort in industrial, business or living conditions; nor make the city more beautiful and attractive. Once adopted, a well worked out zone ordinance will guarantee a definite and safe place for industrial investment; protect home neighborhoods; stimulate home ownership, and assure more contented labor conditions; remove much of the suspicion and uncertainty from real estate, while stabilizing property values afford greater security for mortgage loans; form a surer basis for assessment; and provide the city for the first time with a firm foundation for the solution of the problems of congestion, traffic, paving, sewers, and recreation."

public utilities, housing, schools, "Every city can show a large number of property owners who are against zoning and all other city planning proposals which are new to them, no matter how suitable or practical they may be. But take up with these same men the specific question, 'shall the city permit a laundry, a public garage, or even an apartment to go next door to your house?' and the matter has a different aspect immediately. As a neighborhood affair among neighbors, which it really is, practical proposals are soon forthcoming, and generally with the profound thanks we have found, of those most vitally concerned. I believe that we have sometimes made the mistake of too much general talk and publicity, and of too little conference with neighborhoods. The genuine civic consciousness aroused at these meetings is better in effect than many years of general agitation. It creates a real understanding and demand for city planning. With the zoning finished it is easier to get an agreement on a major street plan, paving program, tree planting program, boulevard system, etc."

The writer compiled a list of figures showing the relative number of existing business firms and institutions in coast cities. Seattle is included in the list and the following data may be interesting: (figures are number of buildings in each group).

Class III. Department stores, hotels, offices, retail, banks, theatres, and clubs—8,106.

Class V. Wholesale business work shops, public garages and stables, storage houses, railroad stations—560.

Class IV.—Fire and police stations, religious and educational institutions, parks, large clubs—441.

Class VI.—Homes, hospitals—36.

Classes VII and VIII—Manufacturing, yard storage, power houses, R. R. yards—446.

The author quotes these figures to show that a beginning must be made somewhere in the concentration of these facilities, and to stabilize as much property as possible.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN ATTENTION

What work has your committee done this year? Have you rendered any reports to the League? Have you reports that have not as yet been submitted? The efficiency of the League's work depends upon your aid and your committee. If you have not met the obligation in the last few months, get a new start, and do your part. If you have lost the names or addresses of your committeemen, phone the secretary and he will supply you with the necessary information. As a whole, the work of our committee has been excellent. Many have rendered especially commendable service, and have won for themselves the thanks of the entire membership of the League and that of the city.

YOUR ATTENTION is called to the fact that BROWN & WHITE CORPORATION — Printers —

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

A committee of the Municipal League, appointed by President Reynolds, will investigate and report on the advisability of placing the reservoir at Volunteer Park. The ordinance was passed by the Council, but the matter is being held up by Mayor Fitzgerald until a report is made. The committee consists of W. C. Morse, chairman; William G. Mann and J. Thomas Dovey.

* * *

Last week statement of dues were sent out and generally the response was satisfactory. However, it is desirable to get all the back dues in; there are many obligations to be met. May we have your check?

* * *

The campaign for membership is progressing nicely but not what was hoped for by the membership committee. Every member has been asked to submit a list of ten prospective members to the League, but so far but a few of these lists have come in. Is it possible that the membership doesn't read these notices in the League paper? Or is it due to indifference? It is earnestly believed that none of these presumptions are true, but that it is attributable to mere oversight. If you are one of the delinquents take a few moments to get up a good list and mail it to the Secretary. The League must have a greater membership in order to do effective work. Are you doing your part?

The Candidates Investigating committee has sent out a questionnaire to each of the candidates, inquiring among other things, into the candidates business and professional experience, training, previous public service, and special fitness. The committee is meeting today from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M., at the council chambers, County-City building, for the purpose of receiving information as to the fitness or unfitness of candidates. A schedule has been prepared for the appearance of individual candidates, but between these hearings citizens will be given an opportunity to state their views. A court reporter has been engaged and a transcript of the hearing will be available for the committee at the time of preparing its report.

 pose municipal candidates?

Pure non-partisanship in city affairs is not required by law and is not attainable in practice. Groups of voters are working openly or quietly in every election. Our objections to a candidate or to his support ought to be put on solid ground. If the objection is personal, political or otherwise, state it so. If legal, the objection ought to be well established because it goes against common right.

Unless the law plainly forbids group or party activity in local politics we have a clear right to such participation. In big cities especially group or party action on local subjects ought to be encouraged.

In setting our cities free from the domination of the old parties much good was done, although chaos in official responsibility followed.

I am opposed to factions, but I would like to see municipal parties based and divided on local issues, by their platforms. Public officials might then be held and in fairness judged.

Seattle Municipal News

A Weekly Publication Devoted Solely to the Betterment of Seattle

VOL. IX. NO. 6.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1920.

PRICE 10 CENTS

WHY HIGHER DOCKAGE IN SEATTLE THAN SAN FRANCISCO

I have been requested to explain to the readers of the News, the reason why a shipper has to pay from 15c to 80c a ton more for freight handled on the docks in Seattle than he has to pay in San Francisco.

From the time the vessel lands at the pier until the freight is loaded for a movement east on freight cars, there are three distinct freight handling movements:

1. From ship's hold on to the dock at the end of ship's sling.
2. A trucking movement from the ship's sling into transit shed where the freight is sorted according to difference in character of packages or marks, and placed in pile.
3. A trucking movement from pile in the transit shed to car and loading into car.

Where the freight is consigned for local delivery, the 3rd movement is a movement from pile on the dock into truck.

In Seattle, there is a wharfage charge on freight to and from the Orient of $.25 a ton. In San Francisco, the wharfage charge is $.15 a ton. This wharfage charge is one fixed by the Port Commission for the public docks and by the owners of private docks for their properties.

The question arises, could not the Port Commission meet San Francisco and reduce wharfage to $.15. The Commission would have to levy taxes for the support of the public docks. Until a year ago, San Francisco's wharfage was but 5 cents a ton. The reason San Francisco can charge as low as 5 cents, when the Port Commission must charge at least 15 cents, lies in the fact that the constitution of the State of California prevented the selling of the waterfront on San Francisco Bay to private concerns; therefore, the State has always owned the main waterfront in San Francisco. When we, in Seattle, started in to operate docks, the public had to buy back portions of the waterfront from private owners at a great cost to the public. The public docks must either earn sufficient money to pay the interest on the money expended for these sites, or the taxpayer must be called upon. Therefore, the Port Commission is faced with the alternative of either going to the taxpayer or having a wharfage greatly in excess of that charged in San Francisco.

The foregoing differential of 10 cents a ton does not seriously militate against Seattle. Another factor, however, does.

In San Francisco, the handling charge described in No. 2 above, viz., the trucking charge from ship's sling to pile in transit shed including the work of sorting the cargo according to package and mark, is paid by the steamship companies. Up to Sept. 1919, the steamship lines coming to Seattle, delivered freight at ship's sling, but the railroads paid $1.00 a ton to the docks for wharfage and handling. Until a year ago, the $1.00 paid for wharfage and charges by the railroads practically covered the handling movements 2 and 3 described above. The great increased cost of labor and dock equipments made this $1.00 inadequate.

The Port Commission took the lead in the latter part of 1918, to get the steamship companies to absorb the handling cost from ship's sling to pile as the steamship companies did in San Francisco. As a matter of fact the steamship companies absorb this cost of handling freight from

COMMITTEE REPORT ON CANDIDATES

APPROVED BY LEAGUE FEB. 10.

The Municipal League of Seattle
Seattle, Washington.

Gentlemen:

1. Your Committee appointed to investigate and report upon the qualifications of candidates for the office of Mayor and City Councilmen to be voted upon at the primary election, February 17, 1920, submits the following report:

2. The Municipal League is organized mainly for the purpose of promoting efficiency in our city government and to that end none of its functions are more important than that of aiding in securing competent public officials. In pursuance of its work the committee has held numerous meetings: has acquainted itself with the issues in the campaign: has invited and received from the public and from the candidates themselves, information concerning the candidates' records: has had the advantage of personal interviews with all but two of the candidates, and it has taken a stenographic report of all these interviews. The committee's comment on each candidate will include: First, a brief biography setting forth his education and business experience; second, his views on certain important municipal problems: third, his special qualifications for the office he seeks as estimated by himself: and finally a statement of the impression obtained by the committee from its general personal interview of the candidate.

3. In arriving at this general impression, the committee has been guided by the following considerations:

(a) That all city elections to our city charter providing must be non-partisan in character that a candidate for office should declare that he is not becoming a candidate as "the nominee of, or because of any promised support from, any national or state political party, or any committee or convention representing or acting for any such political party."

(b) That if any candidate is violating this important provision of the city charter, either in spirit or letter, or is profiting from its violation, in spirit or letter, by any organization, the public should be aware of that fact in casting its ballot.

Based upon a careful consideration of the question, this committee is of the opinion that the Triple Alliance is violating the spirit of this important provision of the charter; that its purpose is to control city elections as it is admittedly its purpose to control county and state elections: that in the pursuance of these purposes it is locally allied, for political purposes, with elements so radical as to be inimical to the best interests of the community. The committee believes that the issues of ultra-radicalism and violation of non-partisan provision of our city charter, are so vital at this time, so imminently important to the welfare of the city, that it should ascertain if possible, and reveal to the public, each candidate's relationship to these issues.

(c) That candidates should possess certain qualifications as to education, business experience, character, etc., and that lacking such qualifications they should not be given public office. The committee believes these qualifications to be as follows:

The Mayor of a city should have executive ability of a high order; should have a broad grasp of the real problems of city government and with constructive ideas for their solution; should have clear conceptions, broad vision and courage; should be a man of sterling honesty and integrity, possessed of a good business capacity and education, and should be the representative will impartially and fairly ad-of no class or group, but one who minister the affairs of the city in the interest of all the people. We believe that a councilman should also practically measure up to requirements above enumerated excepting that, being in the legislative branch of city service, he would not require the same executive ability.

4. It is regrettable that a general election of this character always calls out many candidates utterly lacking the necessary qualifications for the office they seek and with no warrant for such seeking, other than the legal right of any citizen to run for office. It is important, then, that the electorate consider carefully the relative merits of candidates for office, weighed justly in the light of their definite qualifications and their views on public questions with which the city is concerned. It is believed that the general impression obtained by the committee from its investigation and interview of candidates should be of assistance to the electorate, and that inclusion of this general impression in its report is, therefore, justified.

5. A detailed consideration of individual candidates here follows:

Candidates For Mayor

Hugh M. Caldwell

Born in Knoxville, Tenn. Age 39; married; graduate of the National Law School; practiced law in Seattle since October 1905; two years Chief Deputy Prosecuting Attorney by appointment; twice elected Corporation Counsel of the City of Seattle; resigned to enter military service of the United States, being honorably discharged as a Major in Judge Advocate's Department.

He is in favor of immediate development of the Skagit River project; believes that "a continual and systematic effort to cut down crime is better than a campaign for that purpose"; believes that the police force is at present inadequate, and is in favor of County-City consolidation; believes in reducing the tax rate consistent with necessary improvements, bearing in mind the high cost of living; is opposed to class rule and the teaching of class prejudice; believes in enforcement of law and order; that there can be no compromise or question of loyalty; is in favor of free speech and free press but not for abuse of it; opposed to the unionization of the police force and the right to strike, but would not deny them the privilege of organizing an employee's league.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: "Acting as legal advisor for the Municipal Government, its departments and officials, for two and a half years; my practice of law and the handling of important litigation, advising clients on business matters etc."

Committee's opinion. Mr. Caldwell is a man of good educational qualifications, fine moral character; has always been active in civic affairs; made a very commendable record as Deputy Prosecuting Attorney and as Corporation Counsel; has a broad knowledge of Municipal affairs; is independent; a man of strong personality and strong opinions; so strong as may at times impair his relations with co-workers; his Americanism is unquestioned.

James A. Duncan

Born in Scotland; age 41; came to the United States in 1900; secured his citizenship in 1906; attended school and four winter term, college, in England, and night high school in Seattle; married; is a machinist and mechanical engineer; marine engineer for four years on ocean liners; four and a half years Secretary of the Central Labor Council of Seattle and vicinity.

Disclaims endorsement by the Triple Alliance; state that he is a member of the Triple Alliance; declares that the strikers had a just cause in the "General Strike" Committee" that it was "foolish but says he told the "Conference to talk about pulling a general strike", believes in the unionization of the police and fire departments, but would not extend it to military organizations; recognizes the existence of classes, class struggle and class interests, and maintains that we should be segregated into classes and "never change from that condition until we change working conditions"; claims that the general attitude of a man seeking office is more important than executive ability; favors municipal ownership; is for the development of the Skagit River project at the highest possible maximum at minimum cost.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: "An intimate knowledge of the activities, desires and rights of the various elements that go to make up our citizenship; a standing with those elements that will make it possible to bring contending factions together, and which constitutes the greatest need of Seattle at this time."

Committee's opinion. Mr. Duncan is a man of good moral character may be sincere but is misguided in his efforts to bring about advantage to labor; in our opinion his judgement is warped as to questions of general policy; his election would tend to accentuate class consciousness.

C. B. Fitzgerald

Born in Wisconsin; age 39; attended the public schools in Ashland and Seattle; graduate of business college; married; accountant in various businesses from 1909 to 1914; city councilman from 1914 to 1919; mayor since that date.

"Unalterably opposed to James Duncan, Triple Alliance candidate or to any man or men who attempt to control Seattle by partisan politics or substitute minority or class rule for real Americanism which I understand to be." To uphold the institutions of our American Government with liberty and justice guaranteed by the will and vote of the majority." Thinks the solution of the tax rate problem in Seattle is to elect men to the city council and to executive positions in the city long enough so that they will be able to "get in touch with the things and plan ahead." Is in favor of County-City consolidation; believes that it will make for a saving in the cost of government; is against unionization of police and fire departments tho in favor of a municipal employees' league; believes in experts as heads of various departments; favors the creation of a street railway department with expert at head even tho it necessitates paying a large salary and declares that "Politics should not interfere with this department"; in favor of amending the city charter so as to create greater responsibility in department heads.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: member of the city council from 1914 to 1919; four year Chairman Finance Committee one year President City Council one year Chairman Conference Committee that arranged for joint county and city building; mayor since August, 1919.

Committee's Opinion: Mr. Fitzgerald is a man of good moral character; has had practical experience in city government affairs to qualify him for the office has proven himself to be a conservative and practical councilman, diplomatic in his handling of public affairs with tendency to occasionally sacrifice his own positive convictions to politics; his Americanism is unquestioned.

Candidates For Council - 3 Year Term

A. Lou Cohen — Born in Poland; age 55; entered United States in 1866; admitted to citizenship in 1884; attended High School in New York City; in cigar business in Seattle 34 years; has never held public office.

Believes in maintaining 5 cent fare if possible, but that if there is a deficit that the fare should be raised to meet such deficit; against unionization of police department; favor construction of the Spokane Street bridge; thinks the matter of park bond issue should have been submitted to the people; advocated municipal lighting system and city garbage collection system; believes that police department ought to be increased; strict enforcement of traffic laws; in favor of reduction of taxes by more economical management.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Close attention to all public matters in national, state, county and city affairs; that it is his desire, as a citizen, to serve the people he had lived among for thirty years.

Committee's Opinion. Mr. Cohen has been very successful in his business; is a large tax payer; has great knowledge of civic problems; his place of business has been the rendezvous of political groups for many years past; is a good citizen; has a wide acquaintanceship and many friends.

C. M. Dahlager — Born in Minnesota; age 38; has been married but is now divorced; eighth grade education; was for seven years secretary and manager of the Truck Drivers Union in Seattle; is now in the insurance business.

He favors immediate development of the Skagit River project; favors maintaining the 5 cent fare on city car lines, absorbing deficits, if any, into taxation; says he is absolutely closed shop man and believes in unionization of police and fire departments with right to strike in a body, even if the city was unable to replace them, tho he thinks such extreme action would never be necessary if the public were fully advised as to the controversy involved; has no views on city zoning; is in favor of establishing adequate hospital facilities in the city; is a member of the Triple Alliance.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Common sense and good judgment all my dealings."

Committee's opinion. Mr. Dahlager impressed the committee as having no familiarity with general municipal problems, and as lacking educational qualifications and character of business experience necessary for an efficient performance councilmanic duties.

Oliver T. Erickson — Born in Minnesota; age 62; married; attended High School in Minneapolis two years; is a carpenter by trade; later superintendent of construction and ten years as manufacturer of electrical machinery; four years as county commissioner in Minneapolis, and nine years as councilman in Seattle; is a member of the Triple Alliance.

Mr. Erickson was invited to meet with the committee; failed to appear, but phoned stating that other engagements prevented his appearance; that he has appeared before a Municipal League Committee on two previous occasions and did not think it necessary to do so at this time. Maintains right of police and fire department to unionize and strike; says he "would deprive no man of his civil rights."

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Experience and knowledge of public affairs.

Committee's opinion. While we consider Mr. Erickson a man of strict integrity and not afraid to abide by his convictions, we do not consider his judgment of affairs at all times wise or unbiased; his affiliations with the so-called liberal elements of the community have diminished his influence and made him the subject of much criticism. At this time we do not consider him as one of the best fitted of the candidates for council.

Lee Roy Henry — Born in Tennessee; age 31; unmarried; graduate of Ballard High School and Adelphia College; ten years public service in Seattle, of which the last seven years has been in the Fire Department; has never held public office; belongs to no civic organization; is a member of the Fire Fighters Local No. 27 which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor; belongs to the Triple Alliance.

Believes in unionizing the police and fire departments, but would give the city ample time to call in militia in case of strike; has no views on city zoning; opposed to County-City consolidation; thinks car line should be an independent department with expert railway head; knew practically nothing of past or present tax levies in city.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: "Education in hydraulics and electricity and observations taken by watching the council in action."

Committee's opinion — His lack of business experience and his extreme radicalism would make it dangerous to intrust him with councilmanic responsibilities.

Robert B. Hesketh — Born in England, Scotch descent; age 50; came to the United States in 1889 and has been a resident of Seattle since; secured citizenship in the spring of 1896; attended common school, high school and business college in England; employed as printer two and one half years; in restaurant and catering business in Seattle 12 years; business agent for labor organizations 8 years having clean conservative record; International organizer A. F. of L. 2 years; served two years on the Charter Revision Committee appointed by Mayor John F. Miller; member of the city council since March 1911 continuously to date; served as Vice-chairman State Liberty Loan Committee in four Liberty Loan drives; member of Loan Industrial Committee; did valuable service in both capacities; states that Labor affiliations have had no influence on his conduct in office; is a member of the Triple Alliance; states that Triple Alliance was reported by the Union Record of Tuesday, Jan. 20th, to have endorsed him among other candidates; he published a repudiation of the reported indorsement, stating that he regarded it as a violation in spirit of non-partisan municipal elections.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: 9 years in the council; interest in all matters pertaining to civic welfare; experience on Charter Revision Commission; investigation of conditions in other large cities particularly with reference to transportation traffic and "matters in general;" believes that he is "fair, honest and sincere in every vote I take;  I love my home city and I am proud to be an American. I do my best to represent our people and devote my entire time to the work."

Committee's opinion. Mr. Hesketh is a good citizen and has been a hard-working and generally satisfactory councilman; is a conservative union labor man; is an astute politician and, while he brings no particularly constructive ideas to bear on public matters, he votes sensibly on most matters considered by the council.

Frank E. Kannair — Born on the high seas under British flag; age 47; came to the United States in 1877; granted citizenship in 1896; attended common school in New York City, two years night school Peter Coopers Union; married; has been employed as salesman and manager of various plate glass companies in this city; organized the American Glass Company, later selling his interests; at present secretary of Mutual Club; never held public office.

Advocates commission form of government for Seattle; favors City-County consolidation; believes in municipal ownership but opposed to the acquisition of additional utilities; favors developing a single unit of Skagit River project to determine whether it would pay; against unionization of police department; thinks this department sadly lacking in efficiency.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are common sense coupled with business experience.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Kannair is a good average American citizen; fairly well informed on municipal problems, but possessing no distinctive qualities that would recommend him for this office.

Fred W. Kelly — Born in New York State; age 40; graduate of Central High School Seattle; unmarried; has engaged in engineering work since 1898.

Favors municipal ownership; believes that utilities should be self-sustaining; is against the unionization of the police force or any other department of city government; favors county-city consolidation in theory.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: experience gained in the course of his practice; his contact with the council, street and engineering departments of Seattle, would be valuable to the city.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Kelly shows considerable knowledge of city affairs; from what we can learn, his work at the city hall has, in the main, been in opposition to improvements ordered by the city council, and in objecting to assessments placed upon property of his clients, and in seeking to recover damages to property resulting from grading and regrading projects; is very combative and has so drawn upon himself the ill will of many at the city hall as to render improbable satisfactory cooperation with them.

Joseph Kildall—Born in Norway; age 55; came to the United States in 1883, admitted to citizenship in 1889; attended private school and business college in Norway; married; in lumber business three years; general merchandising, steamship, packing, export and import business since 1887; now retired; has had no membership in civic organizations except Chamber of Commerce.

Favors the development of the Skagit River project; believes the present police situation fairly satisfactory; states that he is thoroughly loyal in principles; is looking for support from the general public rather than from any particular class; favors county-city consolidation, but has given no special study to the problem.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Thorough business experience.

Committee's opinion: Mr. Kildall is a successful business man; has devoted his entire time to business to the apparent exclusion of any activity in civic affairs.

W. D. Lane—Born in Iowa; age 53; attended common school and high school in Iowa; graduate Northwestern Law School and University of Minnesota; degrees B. S., M. S. and LL. B., married; served as State's Attorney Roberts County, So. Dakota four years; practiced law 17 years; member of the Legislature 1915; active in civic affairs in Seattle many years.

Believes it is undesirable for the police and fire departments to unionize in such manner as to affiliate with the A. F. of L.; sees no prospect of immediate remedy for present high taxes; defends refusal to submit park bond issue to people on ground that the submission of one and one half million dollars of bonds was enough for one year; is not satisfied that the police department is fully efficient; favors a city zoning plan; thinks the price paid for the railway system was much too high but is in favor of rehabilitating the system even at considerable expense; states his stand for law and order has always been firm; states that he spoke after the banquet for Hulet M. Wells on "Making the World Safe for Democracy," as he would before any other group to which invited; is a member of the Triple Alliance but disclaims endorsement; believes that only through the combined vote of labor organizations and farmers can progressive legislation be secured.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office as follows: "I do not know that I have any except as above stated. For years I was something of a student of municipal government, and now have the advantage of some experience.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Lane is a man of high moral character; has excellent educational qualifications; is devoted to his duties as councilman; he has subjected himself to the criticism, at this time, of having questionable political alliances and of being radical.

Charles Marble—Born in Nebraska; age 46; common school and high school education in Kansas and Nebraska; married; four years in county offices of Thomas County, Kas; railroad and express office work eleven years; real estate business Seattle 1905-1912, and 1916 to date; served in Seattle City Council, Chairman Harbors and Public Grounds Committee 1913-1916.

Favors Spokane Street bridge; favors city-county consolidation; would retain 5c fare if possible but would increase fare rather than charge any deficit to general taxation; thinks park bond propositions should have been submitted to the people.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: four years' previous experience as councilman.

Committee's opinion: Regardless of his declared principles, he is regarded by the committee as having been a weak and colorless councilman.

P. C. Merriam—Born in Illinois; age 48; attended common schools for two years; unmarried; never held public office.

Favors development of the Skagit River project but not at prohibitive cost; when asked to make a general statement, he declared his policies to be as already announced; reported to be a member of the Triple Alliance.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office to be: "Hard headed business man."

Committee's opinion. Is lacking in education; has not been successful in business; a fair public speaker, but under examination by the committee proved to be extremely visionary and lacking in balance.

Frank P. Mullen—Born in Canada; age 59; citizen of the U. S. more than 30 years; was locomotive engineer and belonged to labor union; subsequently in the liquor business in Seattle; served in the City Council from 1902-1911 as Chairman of the Streets Committee; defeated for re-election largely by reason of reputed favoritism to traction interests.

States he was always willing to let people vote on such matters as issuance of park bonds; never favored municipal ownership, but believes in making municipal railway a success by creating separate department and getting expert at head; favors construction of Spokane Street bridge; against unionization of police and fire departments.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Experience in the council.

Committee's opinion: Mr. Mullen is undoubtedly one of the strongest men that has ever served in the city council; has somewhat limited education, largely off-set by his natural shrewdness and business ability; has always been a conservative and most of his official acts have been sound; has a wide knowledge of public work, partly inherent and partly acquired by long experience in the construction department of G. N. Ry. Co.; sometimes accused of being partisan to the larger business interests.

Carl H. Reeves—Born in New Jersey; age 40; married; attended common schools in New Jersey; High School in Seattle; graduate of University of Washington; 20 years engineering experience; employee of local engineering firms on improvement projects in neighboring cities; several years with city engineer's office and State Public Service Commission; four years in private practice specializing in roadway and bridge work; 23 months service in U. S. army during the war; discharged as Major.

Is in favor of immediate development on the Skagit to meet immediate needs, but gradual development thereafter; strongly favors City-County consolidation; favors the construction of Spokane Street bridge; believes it should have been built long ago; feels that taxes are higher than they should be and that we should do everything to remedy that condition; states that if it is not practicable by increased efficiency to operate the street car lines on 5c fare, it must be increased rather than meet deficit by general tax; feels that outlying districts have not sufficient police protection; opposed to unionization of police and fire departments; opposed to increased pay for councilmen.

tions fitting him for the office are: since a good many of the city's problems are of an engineering nature, his training and experience as an engineer would be of great value in the council; also that the loyalty of certain candidates is open to question and believes they should be replaced by men of undoubted loyalty; states that he has a real desire to serve the city.

Committee's opinion. His experience, interest in public questions, long residence, good citizenship and educational qualifications should entitle him to favorable consideration.

R. Sartori—Born in Switzerland; age 69; entered the United States 1866; granted citizenship 1871; educated common schools of Switzerland; one year college in Switzerland; widower; has engaged in real estate and mortgage loan business for past 17 years in Seattle; also successful saloonkeeper for years; never held public office.

Thinks that the council puts through bills, issues bonds, etc., without proper consideration; believes that councilmen should be tax payers and have large interests in Seattle, but claims he is in sympathy with the small home owner; has no views with reference to the Skagit River project; favors City-County consolidation; thinks social conditions are better in Seattle than eight or ten years ago; opposes unionization of police and fire departments; claims that if elected to city council he has leisure to study and learn about various municipal problems and that he would make good as a councilman; believes that he could cut down the tax rate by not making improvements that are not necessary.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: that he is a heavy taxpayer, paying close to $7,000 a year in taxes, which compelled him to strictly observe and learn the management of the city administration and get acquainted with its work.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Sartori is undoubtedly a successful and conservative business man but seems to have given but little attention to municipal problems, and we believe that he has not sufficient breadth of knowledge, either of municipal problems or social movements to make him a good councilman.

Philip Tindall—Born in Washington, D. C.; age 43; unmarried; attended common and high school and Columbia University Law School in Washington, D. C.; practiced law with few interruptions since 1901; with American Expeditionary Forces from beginning of the war to Sept., 1919; legal advisor to War Department Claims Board, Sept. 20, 1919 to January 2, 1920, Washington, D. C.

Favors development of the Skagit River project as soon as possible; would not commit himself as to County-City consolidation, but stated there would undoubtedly be a saving by avoiding a duplication of personnel, and that the question requires more study; believes there has been wasteful expenditure of money in some engineering ventures believes in whole-hearted attempt to make the car lines a success; that if there is a deficit it should be met by a reasonable increase in fare.

States that the special qualification fitting him for the office are: general business and legal experience.

Committee's opinion: A clean cut man of fine character and good educational qualifications; of analytical temperament; slow in reaching conclusions on important questions but with courage of his convictions when conclusions are reached; has had no broad business experience.

W. M. Tomlinson—Born in Indiana; age 44; married; has common school and business college education; six years in contracting and building business in Indiana; two years publishing business in San Francisco; 17 years in printing and publishing business in Seattle; has never held public office.

Not in favor of unionizing the police and fire departments; believes in municipal ownership; favors operating municipal gas plant; favors construction of the Spokane Street bridge; believes in County-City consolidation.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: "Ability to meet men and issues and the experience that has come to me through work in and with organizations having for their objects the betterment of community and national life"; especially interested in street traffic regulation and has many ideas on that subject.

ship's sling to pile and from pile to ship's sling in every port in the United States except Seattle.

As a result of the agitation by the Port Commission supported by private docks and many large shippers, an agreement was entered into whereby the steamship companies agreed to pay 60 cents a ton to the docks for taking care of the two moves numbered 2 and 3 described. This has subsequently been increased to 65 cents. The agreement, however only covers freight moved to and from the Orient including the Hawaiian Islands, that is consigned to eastern points on a through bill of lading.

In case of freight which is consigned on a local bill of lading the steamship companies do not pay the 65 cents a ton for handling from ship's sling to pile on the dock. In San Francisco, New York and I believe in the other leading ports, the steamship companies take care of this handling movement from ship's sling to pile.

This is a serious matter to Seattle. It militates very strongly against the location here of industries using raw material from the Far East. It also militates against the location here of large distributing and jobbing firms who wish to take local delivery on Oriental imports, warehousing them and subsequently selling and distributing them over the United States.

I can make this clear by a concrete example:-

A cargo of rubber of 3,000 tons comes to Seattle enroute for Akron, Ohio. All that rubber has to pay is 25 cents a ton wharfage, if it moves upon a through bill of lading. If, however, the rubber factory is located in Seattle, the local rubber concern has to pay not only the 25 cents wharfage, but the 65 cents handling charge from ship's sling to pile. In other words, the local factory has to pay a terminal charge of 90 cents, while the factory in Akron, has to pay only a terminal charge of 25 cents.

Again, if a large importer of rubber should locate in Seattle and bring his rubber here to hold for subsequent sale and distribution, it would not be practical for him to have his rubber move on a through bill of lading, but he would have to take a local bill with local delivery.

Imagine a competing importer of rubber located in Chicago:- The Chicago man would bring his to Chicago on a through bill of lading, and the only terminal charge would be 25 cents. The local importer would have to pay 90 cents.

The foregoing illustration regarding rubber, applies to all of the principal imports, vegetable oils, rice, matting, tea, pineapple, hemp, etc. In other words Seattle can not expect to become either an industrial center, manufacturing raw materials from the Orient into finished products, with a differential against it of 65 cents a ton on every ton of freight imported. Neither can Seattle expect to become a great distributing and jobbing center of these raw materials from the Orient with a differential of 65 cents a ton against it.

The Foreign Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has been working aggressively on this problem and largely through the excellent work of the Director of the Bureau, Mr. Roy O. Hadley, the Shipping Board has agreed to absorb this 65 cents handling charge on freight locally consigned, provided it is re-consigned for eastern delivery within a period of 10 days. This is a big step in advance, for it will mean a saving of many thousands of dollars to shippers and will prevent much freight from being diverted to other ports. Other steamship lines, however have not agreed to this. Even, if they should, the main problem still remains unsolved, viz.- the failure of the steamship lines in Seattle to absorb this cost of handling freight from ships sling to pile where the freight is consigned to Seattle for local delivery to be manufactured here or held for a considerable period of time for future sale and distribution.

The Shipping Board is still discriminating against Seattle in this matter, which is clearly contrary to the spirit if not the letter of the Shipping Board act. If the Shipping Board vessels can absorb this handling charge in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco, the Shipping Board should also absorb the same charge here.

son is generally regarded as a good citizen; has given some time to public and community interests, but possesses no intimate nor technical knowledge that will specially aid him in his work as a councilman.

John D. Wenger—Born in Illinois; age 48; married; attended common school and high school in Virginia; night school in New York and Philadelphia; four years Commercial salesman; six years merchandise broker; two years insurance agent; twelve years marble and granite business.

In favor of development of municipal street railway to highest point of efficiency; has no views on city zoning; views on Skagit River project are the same as expressed on municipal railway; against unionization of police and fire departments; thinks all public questions should be submitted to the people.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: organized the Ballard Home Owners Association; member of the Ballard Booster Club; felt that it is a patriotic duty and one which he owed to Seattle and the people in his particular district to file for the city council.

Committee's opinion. Fair type of man; moderately successful in a small business way; inclined to be captiously critical of way city business is now handled, but has no well thought out constructive policies to offer.

Candidates For Council * Two Year Term

A. T. Drake — Born in Iowa; age 41; unmarried; four years in High School; railway clerk in various capacities until he entered the service of the city in 1904, where he has served continuously as auditor in the Comptroller's office and as finance committee clerk until elected to the city council in 1919.

Believes that the tax rate cannot be reduced so long as the present policy of continuing to do the things we are doing now by general taxation; is for the Skagit River project, but has no first-hand knowledge and relies solely upon experts for information; voted to submit park bonds to the people.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Good working knowledge of the city's financial affairs learned through fifteen years of experience.

Committee's opinion. Did not impress the committee as being a strong man nor as displaying any broad public spirited interest in municipal questions; has not much familiarity with the physical phases of our public works; his long contact with, and knowledge of, the finance problems of the city constitutes his chief claim for return to office.

Charles H. Gallant — Born in Pittsburgh; age 31; married; attended the common school at Renton for eight years supplemented by three years High School; course in correspondence school; six years with power companies in various departments; four years with the city light department as contract agent; during later period has had some contact with Skagit project; is a member of the Triple Alliance but disclaims endorsement.

Believes in the unionization of the police and fire departments; states: "I do not believe they should be deprived of the right to strike because it would mean slavery." Would charge deficit of municipal railway to taxation and is opposed to increase of fare; favors development of the Skagit River project.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Practical knowledge of the electric light power and street railway utilities.

Committee's opinion. Lacks an adequate business experience; is an extreme exponent of the theory of class consciousness; without ability or training qualifying him for the office he seeks.

T. M. Parker — Born in Ireland; age 42; married; came to the United States in 1895 and secured citizenship in 1898; had three years in High School in Ireland and one year in business college in Butte; engaged in farming, wholesale grocery, packing business and real estate; never held public office.

Believes municipal railway needs organization and efficiency; is opposed to increase of car fare in the event of deficit; favors development of Skagit River project; favors Spokane Street bond issue; against unionization of police and fire departments; favors county-city consolidation.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: "My business experience of a nature to acquaint me with the business needs of the city in general and its problems of city government."

Committee's opinion. The committee feels that his meager civic interest prior to filing for office and general lack of study and experience in municipal affairs entitles him to but little consideration.

George E. Ryan — Born in Kansas; age 38; unmarried; attended high school; two years in college and five months in business college; general mercantile lumber and grain business, Kansas; grocery and meat market business three years; in real estate and mortgage loan business from 1907 to date.

Believes in the maintenance of five cent fare, but in the event of loss, deficit to be charged to the general fund; favors increase of police department; favors development Skagit River project; is for County-city consolidation; against unionization of police and fire departments.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: does not claim any special qualification aside from the fact that he has sufficient education and training to discharge the duties of the office.

Committee's opinion. Clean cut young man, well informed on general topics; has never been very successful in business ventures; Would not make a strong councilman.

George B. Worley — Born in Minnesota; age 56; married; attended high school and two years in State University, Minneapolis; also private instruction; engineer and contractor for thirty years; has never held public office.

Favors immediate development of Skagit River project; against unionization of police department; has no definite plans to reduce tax burden; favors County-City consolidation; favors 5c fare, and deficit, if any, charged to general fund.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Connection with the city engineering department of Seattle and engineering work in other cities.

Committee's opinion. Has been a successful contractor; has long service as city sewer inspector; is familiar with city affairs; is a man of decision and should be able to render valuable service as councilman; the strength of his convictions may possibly impede harmony with co-workers.

Candidates For Council—One Year Terms

John E. Carroll—Born in Louisiana; age 43; married; attended Seattle high school four years and University of California two years; practiced law since 1900; was Justice of the Peace, Seattle from 1907 to 1917 when he resigned to enter the army; served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France as Major of Infantry; member of the City Council since June, 1919, being elected by the councilmanic body to fill a vacancy.

Says he is a municipal ownership man and favors immediate development of the Skagit River project; favors maintaining 5c fare on city car lines if possible, being willing to absorb a moderate deficit into taxation if a raise of fare could thereby be avoided, but if a large deficit developed, would then favor a raise of fare; is opposed to unionization of police and fire departments; has no definite views on city zoning.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: Extended public service in this city is a better criterion for the people than anything he might say at this time for himself as to special fitness for office.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Carroll has a long and commendable record as Justice of the Peace in Seattle; he stands well in the community; possesses all necessary qualifications as to character and education; has had no broad business experience; may be regarded as a conservative.

Ben F. Nauman—Born in Missouri; age 40; married; attended common school in Spokane a few months.

Not able to appear before the Committee because of illness; allied with extreme radical wing of labor party; a member of Triple Alliance; reported to have been secretary of the "General Strike" Committee.

States that the special qualifications fitting him for the office are: "I shall not plead guilty of being either so-called professional or business man, for I am a product of the rank and file of labor and know their problems."

Committee's opinion. Utterly lacking in educational and business qualifications, and his violent class prejudice and extreme radicalism renders him undesirable for public office.

Respectfully submitted,

AMONG THOSE WHO DID

(From Pacific Builder and Engineer)

CARL H. REEVES

Carl H. Reeves, candidate for election to the city council of Seattle comes qualified in many ways to render a good account of himself in that body. Added to the fact that he is an engineer whose business in life is to do things worth while, is the fact that he has already done important work for city, state and nation, his last service, which recently ended, was 32 months spent as a soldier handling numerous important assignments for the government. He was born at Allentown, New Jersey, October 24, 1880, of old colonial stock. Education was obtained in grade schools, in State College, Pennsylvania, Seattle high school and University of Washington, graduating from latter institution in May, 1901. He came to Seattle in 1893. Engineering experience began with the old firm of Cotterill & White in 1900; handled field work in connection with gravity water system for Port Townsend and Forts Worden and Flagler; connected with city engineer's office, Seattle, from August 1, 1901, to September 1, 1906, as computer, draftsman and designing draftsman; handled many large projects on estimate and design, including Volunteer Park standpipe, North trunk sewer, Connecticut Street trunk sewer, Eastlake trunk sewer, 27th avenue trunk sewer; many paving and grading improvements and numerous engineering matters in connection with city development in general. From September 1, 1906, to March, 1915, he was with the Seattle Electric Company and Puget Sound Traction Light & Power Company, in charge of construction and field work on track roadway and bridges. System now owned by city was doubled under his direction. He also handled location of many high tension power lines and is especially interested in the proper development, proper construction and maintenance of the city's lines, and all utilities. Reeves handled special work for the State Public Service Commission of Washington on track, roadway and bridges from March to October, 1915, then entered private practice, specializing in municipal engineering, street and interurban railways. He was the first engineer officer called from Seattle to active duty assignment in engineer corps, directing engineering work at Camp Fremont, California, Puget Sound forts, Camp A. A. Humphreys, Va., Camp Doniphan and Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and at Camp Cody, New Mexico, having charge of both construction and engineering in two of the above camps and was discharged as a major June 4, 1919. He entered private practice October 1, 1919, with offices in the American Bank building, handling municipal matters and general engineering. Major Reeves is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and of the Engineers' Club.

DO YOU WANT SERVICE OR POLITICS?

This man has served Seattle well. Do you remember that the newspapers have always spoken highly of his ability, his integrity and his service to the city?

After two years of service as legal adviser of the city as Corporation Counsel, The Star said editorially:

"Caldwell has the spirit and ability to serve the people diligently. He fights injustice with energy. He does not sidestep. He sees the issues clearly."

After two and one-half years of service to the city The Seattle Post-Intelligencer said editorially:

"As Seattle saluted Hugh Caldwell only a few months ago with the largest majority ever given to a candidate for a contested office, Seattle today, with undivided front, salutes Capt. Hugh Caldwell, U. S. A., and wishes him mighty well. Relinquishing his important and honorable post of corporation counsel in order to have a direct and active part in the war, he demonstrates his caliber anew and typifies that American spirit which is finding expression in eagerness for service and readiness for sacrifice all over the land, and which all the more gloriously is today exemplified on the fronts of France and Flanders. Subordinating everything else to duty, to country, he is enrolled with the proud legion engaged in winning the war. He is not exceptional in sacrifice; only one of Washington's countless gallant sons. Emulating them he accentuates the fine American philosophy that service to Uncle Sam is paramount and by comparison official honor and emolument shrink to nothingness. To such as he, not to be serving under the Stars and Stripes becomes impossible.

"Whatever his detail in whatever capacity it be given him to serve, Hugh Caldwell—Capt. Hugh Caldwell, if you please—will make good. He made good at law and as corporation counsel and above all, has made good and impressed his character upon this community as a sterling citizen."

He is hampered by no ties or promises, except to serve the whole people. He is not the part of or supported by any political machine. He has no political debts to pay, nor is he carrying any political heirlooms of a former administration. Mr. Caldwell has shown his desire and willingness to serve this community. Don't you believe, especially if you are a taxpayer, that he should be given this opportunity to further serve the city. If so then elect Hugh M. Caldwell Mayor.

VOL. IX. NO. 8.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1920.

REPORT ON MUNICIPAL CANDIDATES

So many requests have come to the Secretary's office for a copy of the report of the Candidates' Investigating Committee, that the Board of Trustees at its last weekly meeting voted to reprint portions of the report pertinent to the candidates selected at the primaries.

The Municipal League of Seattle, Seattle,

Washington.

Gentlemen:

1. Your Committee appointed to investigate and report upon the qualifications of candidates for the office of Mayor and City Councilmen to be voted upon at the primary election, February 17, 1920, submits the following report:

Based upon a careful consideration of the question, this committee is of the opinion that the Triple Alliance is violating the spirit of this important provision of the charter; that its purpose is to control city elections as it is admittedly its purpose to control county and state elections; that in pursuance of these purposes it is locally allied for political purposes, with elements so radical as to be inimical to the best interests of the community. The committee believes that the issues of ultra-radicalism and violation of the non-partisan provision of the city charter, are so vital at this time, so imminently important to the welfare of the city, that it should ascertain if possible, and reveal to the public, each candidate's relation to these issues.

CALDWELL

He is in favor of immediate development of the Skagit River project; believes that "a continual and systematic effort to cut down crime is better than a campaign for that purpose"; believes that the police force is at present inadequate, and is in favor of developing the same; is in favor of County-City consolidation; believes in reducing the tax rate consistent with necessary improvements; bearing in mind the high cost of living; is opposed to class rule and the teaching of class prejudice; believes in enforcement of law and order; that there can be no compromise or question of loyalty; is in favor of free speech and free press but not for abuse of it; opposed to the unionization of the police force and the right to strike, but would not deny them the privilege of organizing an employee's league.

Committee's Opinion. Mr. Caldwell is a man of good educational qualifications, fine moral character; has always been active in civic affairs; made a commendable record as Deputy Prosecuting Attorney and as Corporation Counsel; has a broad knowledge of municipal affairs; is independent; a man of strong personality and positive opinions; so strong as may at times impair his relations with co-workers; his Americanism is unquestioned.

Disclaims endorsement by the Triple Alliance; states that he is a member of the Triple Alliance; declares that the strikers had a just cause in the "General Strike", but says he told the "Conference Committee" that it was "foolish to talk about pulling a general strike", believes in the unionization of the police and fire departments, but would not extend it to military organizations; recognizes the existence of classes, class struggle and class interests, and maintains that we shall be segregated into classes and "never change from that condition until we change working conditions"; claims that the general attitude of a man seeking office is more important than executive ability; favors municipal ownership; is for the development of the Skagit River project at the highest possible maximum at minimum cost.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Duncan is a man of good moral character; may be sincere but is misguided in his efforts to bring about advantage to labor; in our opinion his judgement is warped as to questions of general policy; his election would tend to accentuate class consciousness.

CANDIDATES FOR COUNCIL 3 YEAR TERM

COHEN

Believes in maintaining 5 cent fare if possible, but that if there is a deficit that the fare should be raised to meet such deficit; against unionization of police department; favor construction of the Spokane street bridge; thinks the matter of park bond issue should have been submitted to the people; advocated municipal lighting system and city garbage collection system; believes that police department ought to be increased; strict enforcement of traffic laws; in

REPORT ON VOLUNTEER PARK RESERVOIR

To the Chairman of the Municipal League:

Your Committee, appointed to examine into the advisability of placing the City Water Department Reservoir in its proposed location in Volunteer Park, immediately north of the present Volunteer Park Reservoir, respectfully submit the following:

The Committee met and having no opportunity to obtain information other than that compiled by the City Engineer's Department, the City Water Department and Mr. Thompson of the Park Board took occasion to gather data from each source, which is presented as follows:

State of Arthur H. Dimock, City Engineer of Seattle:

There have been several sites suggested as alternative reservoir sites that have been called by your committee, viz:

One situated immediately south of the present reservoir in Volunteer Park, but outside the park.

One near the vicinity of 15th and Republican.

One on Queen Anne Hill, and one on Beacon Hill.

The objections to the first three of these sites is one of finance and time necessary for condemnation and construction. Either site on Capitol Hill would cost for condemnation from $350,000.00 to $450,000.00, with an added cost for either site of approximately $100,000.00, due to added pipe line or embankment cost. The site on Queen Anne Hill, while considerably cheaper from a property standpoint, is very considerably more expensive due to the extremely long pipe lines necessary to reach it from the present Cedar River

The objection to the Beacon Hill site is the fact that it is 104 feet lower than the Volunteer Park elevation and does not permit the supplying of any zone except the low pressure zone.

Mr. Dimock states that there are no engineering problems in the construction of the reservoir in Volunteer Park, but that the problem of finance and element of time are material elements if the reservoir is constructed at any of the other proposed locations.

Mr. L. B. Young states that the proposed site in Volunteer Park is owned by the Park Board but at the time of construction of the present reservoir, the Water Department bought 9½ acres, which was used to increase the size of Volunteer Park, of which the Water Department now uses 3½ acres. That the elevation of the proposed site is 420 above city datum. That it is necessary that reservoirs of the intermediate zone be held on the same level. That reservoirs can be constructed as suggested on either of two points on Capitol Hill or on Queen Anne Hill. But at a materially increased cost due to condemnation and pipe line connections. That it is not possible to use the low pressure site on Beacon Hill on account of the inability to supply West Seattle, Green Lake and all high-service districts. That it would take approximately one year to condemn property in any site not owned at the present time by the city. That during the summer of 1919, the peak of consumption was slightly in excess of entrance flow. That he was only able to carry sufficient water to supply the demand by filling his reservoirs on Sunday when the consumption was materially lessened. That had another reservoir been available, it would have relieved the situation to the extent of 39,000,000 gallons. That a new pipe line is about to be constructed which, to be efficient, will require further reservoir capacity.

Mr. J. W. Thompson, Superintendent of the Park Board, objects to the construction of the reservoir in its present proposed location in Volunteer Park on the grounds that it will spoil the beauty of the park. We find considerable difference of opinion as to this; some people feeling that it is an increase and some a decrease in the beauty of the park. There is no disputing the fact, however, that it will reduce the park area available for use by about 5 acres. Mr. Thompson of the Park Board, takes the position that added reservoirs are not needed at this time but that pipe lines are required on the ground that if the present pipe lines are not sufficient in size to supply the demand of the city, it is money thrown away to construct added reservoirs. His desire, however, is that reservoirs of large capacity be built on Beacon Hill. Mr. Thompson desires that an outside engineer be employed to go over the entire city end of the water system.

Due to a consideration of the above facts, your committee recommends that the reservoir be constructed upon the site selected in Volunteer Park.

favor of reduction of taxes by more economical management.

Committee's Opinion. Mr. Cohen has been very successful in his business; is a large tax payer; has great knowledge of civic problems; his place of business has been the rendezvous of political groups for many years past; is a good citizen; has a wide acquaintanceship and many friends.

Mr. Erickson was invited to meet with the committee; failed to appear, but phoned stating that other engagements prevented his appearance; that he has appeared before a municipal League Committee on two previous occasions and did not think it necessary to do so at this time. Maintains right of police and fire department to unionize and strike; says he "would deprive no man of his civil rights".

Committee's opinion. While we consider Mr. Erickson a man of strict integrity and not afraid to abide by his convictions, we do not consider his judgement of affairs at all times wise or unbiased; his affiliations with the so-called liberal elements of the community have diminished his influence and made him a subject of much criticism. At this time we do not consider him as one of the best fitted of the candidates for council.

Believes in labor organization and advocates the right of collective bargaining, but denies the right of police and fire department employees to strike under any circumstances.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Hesketh is a good citizen and has been a hard-working and generally satisfactory councilman; is a conservative union labor man; is an astute politician and, while he brings no particularly constructive ideas to bear on public problems, he votes sensibly on most matters considered by the council.

W. D. LANE

Believes it undesirable for the police and fire departments to unionize in such manner as to affiliate with A. F. of L., sees no prospect of immediate remedy for present high taxes; defends refusal to submit park bond issue to people on ground that the submission of one and one half million dollars of bonds was enough for one year; is not satisfied that the police department is fully efficient; favors a city zoning plan; thinks the price paid for the railway system was much too high but is in favor of rehabilitating the system even at considerable expense; states his stand for law and order has always been firm; states that he spoke after the banquet for Hulet M. Wells on "Making the World Safe for Democracy," as he would before any other group to which invited; is a member of the Triple Alliance but disclaims endorsement; believes that only through the combined vote of labor organizations and farmers can progressive legislation be secured.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Lane is a man of high moral character; has excellent educational qualifications; is devoted to his duties as councilman; he has subjected himself to criticism, at this time, of having questionable political alliances and of being radical.

CARL H. REEVES

Is in favor of immediate development on the Skagit to meet immediate needs, but gradual development thereafter; strongly favors City-County consolidation; favors the construction of Spokane Street bridge; believes it should have been built long ago; feels that taxes are higher than they should be and that we should do everything possible to remedy that condition; states that if it is not practical by increased efficiency to operate the street car lines on 5 cent fare, it must be increased rather than meet deficit by general tax; feels that outlying districts have not sufficient police protection; opposed to unionization of police and fire departments; opposed to increased pay for councilmen.

Committee's opinion. His experience, interest in public questions, long residence, good citizenship and educational qualifications should entitle him to favorable consideration.

PHILIP TINDALL

Favors development of the Skagit River project as soon as possible; would not commit himself as to City-County consolidation, but stated there would undoubtedly be a saving by avoiding a duplication of personnel, and that the question requires more study; believes there has been wasteful expenditure of money in some engineering ventures; believes in whole-hearted attempt to make the car lines a success; that if there is a deficit it should be met by a reasonable increase in fare.

Committee's opinion. A clean cut man of fine character and good educational qualifications; of analytical temperament; slow in reaching conclusions on important questions but with courage of his convictions when conclusions are reached; has had no broad business experience.

* * *

A. T. DRAKE

Believes that the tax rate cannot be reduced so long as the present policy of continuing to do things we are doing now by general taxation; is for the Skagit River project, but has no first-hand knowledge and relies solely upon experts for information; voted to submit park bonds to the people.

Committee's opinion. Did not impress the committee as being a strong man nor as displaying any broad public spirited interest in municipal questions; has not much familiarity with the physical phases of our public works; his long contact with, and knowledge of, the finance problems of the city constitutes his chief claim for return to office.

CHARLES H. GALLANT

Believes in the unionization of the police and fire departments; states: "I do not believe they should be deprived of the right to strike because it would mean slavery." Would charge deficit of municipal railway to taxation and is opposed to increase of fare; favors development of the Skagit River project.

Committee's opinion. Lacks an adequate business experience; is an extreme exponent of the theory of class consciousness; without ability or training qualifying him for the office he seeks.

JOHN E. CARROLL

Says he is a municipal ownership man and favors immediate development of the Skagit River project; favors maintaining 5 cent fare on city car lines if possible, being willing to absorb a moderate deficit into taxation if a raise of fare could thereby be avoided, but if a large deficit developed, would then favor a raise of fare; is opposed to unionization of police and fire departments; has no definite views on city zoning.

Committee's opinion. Mr. Carroll has a long and commendable record as Justice of the Peace in Seattle; he stands well in the community; possesses all necessary qualifications as to character and education; has had no broad business experience; may be regarded as a conservative.

BEN F. NAUMAN

Not able to appear before the Committee because of illness; allied with extreme radical wing of labor party; a member of Triple Alliance; reported to have been secretary of the "General Strike" Committee.

Committee's opinion. Utterly lacking in educational and business qualifications, and his violent class prejudice and extreme radicalism renders him undesirable for public office.

CITY ENGINEER DISCUSSES PROBLEMS

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Arthur H. Dimock, city engineer of Seattle for the past eight years, discussed the engineering problems confronting the city of Seattle at the weekly luncheon of the Municipal League Tuesday.

Vice-President James T. Lawler, who presided, pointed out the fact that this city has had but two city engineers in the 27 years last past.

The most important engineering problems confronting the city at the present time, Dimock declared, are connected with the Skagit project, the development of Swan Lake, extension of the city's water supply system, the matter of grade separations in the tide flats, including the opening of additional arterial highways through that district, and the street railway system.

In speaking of the organization of his office, Mr. Dimock stated that he had an engineer in charge of the water supply system; the sewer system—"the better it is built the less you know about it"; bridge building and structural designing; a geographical engineer, who meets with the contractors and the property owners interested in the improvements undertaken. It is Mr. Dimock's idea that the plans for all work done should be first submitted to the engineers who are responsible to him for the efficient management of these departments, so that they and he should have the benefit of the suggestions and criticisms made. A special sub-department is also organized for the preparation of cases for the courts, and the furnishing of engineering data. Close attention to these cases has

"He is distinctly one of the leading orators of the United States today," So stated Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, in describing who will address the Municipal League

Tuesday Noon, March 9, 1920

MEVE'S CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA

The Public, New York City, said of him: "In point of native ability, in normal integrity, and in the understanding of natural law in the economic world Mr. John Z. White has no superior." His subject will be:

"Relation of Taxation to Community Development" saved the city hundreds of thousands of dollars, stated Dimock.

A chemical department pays attention to the matter of securing standard specifications of the commodities purchased or used by the city, such as steel, cement, gas, and numerous other things. The Physical Testing Department, enjoys the use of the largest machine west of St. Louis. New inventions and improvements are under constant study with the object of securing the best possible materials at the lowest cost.

Mr. Dimock is an exponent of Senator Jones' bill for the creation of a national department of Public Works. "Such a department will eliminate the duplication of departments in national and state governments, and will thus result in a more wise and useful expenditure of public funds. It will also tend to establish a budget system, which is badly needed by national, state, and city governments."

In speaking of the Skagit, Mr.

Dimock said: "No one man knows all there is to know about a project of such magnitude as the Skagit and the best results can be secured by availing ourselves of engineers experienced in the construction of hydro-electric plants. After giving careful consideration to the suggestions they offer we will decide upon the plan that seems most likely to produce a plant of maximum efficiency at minimum cost of both construction and operation. C. F. Heney, of Portland, who made a survey of the Skagit development and submitted recommendations, probably knows more about certain features of hydro-electric power-systems than any other man in the country."

As to the street railway problem: that of improving the service and maintaining it on a five-cent fare, Mr. Dimock stated that his office was now studying the problem and hoped that it would be solved satisfactory to the people of Seattle.

WESTLAKE AVENUE CEMENT PAVING

(By O. A. Piper, Assistant City Engineer, Seattle, in Concrete Highway Magazine.)

In addition to other numerous paving activities, Seattle has undertaken the paving of Westlake avenue north, one of its main arterial highways, with 8 inches of concrete. This thoroughfare originates in the fast growing center of shopping activities and forms the principal avenue of traffic leading to the northern portion of the city. The section of street in process of being paved is approximately 9,000 feet long and skirts the westerly rim of Lake Union. For approximately 85 per cent of its length the street was originally part of Lake Union and in 1910 and 1911, was filled for a width of 90 feet, the fill varying from nothing to 60 feet. The plan of the street providing for a sidewalk area 12 feet wide, for a sidewalk 50 feet wide and a street railway right of way 18 feet wide with an additional berm of 10 feet for safety. The remainder of the 150 feet is reserved for railroads and future utilities.

In 1914 the westerly portion of this roadway was improved with 20 feet of asphalt paving laid on a 6-inch concrete base. This ribbon of pavement has cared for a volume of traffic which has multiplied year by year. At the present time it carries two continuous streams of traffic of all degrees of loading. During rush hours the traffic becomes delayed and congested. Due to the fact that there are no traffic streets crossing this strip of asphalt pavement for its entire length, it has cared for the intensive traffic imposed upon it with a fair degree of safety and little delay.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

The growth of industries and the resulting increase of traffic has, however, overtaxed the capacity of this narrow pavement and made additional room imperative. A recent check on the volume of traffic passing over this thoroughfare showed the following figures during a period of observation between the hours of 6 a. m. and 1 a. m.

Street cars.....	1553
Passenger automobiles....	6100
Commercial automobiles	1719
Horse-drawn vehicles.....	41
Motorcycles	79

In a city so well provided with pavements of liberal width, it appears strange that so important a link should have been so poorly cared for. Various reasons are responsible for this condition, chief among which has been the difficulty in providing the necessary funds.

The growth of industries and increasing demands of traffic have, however, compelled the city to provide further room on this thoroughfare.

Unfortunately the work was undertaken late in the season and facing adverse weather conditions, but we anticipate that it can be completed before the end of December.

The new pavement being laid is 20 feet wide and 8 inches thick. Concrete pavement was chosen as most suitable to meet the conditions. This is being laid in slabs varying in length from 20 feet to 30 feet, provision being made for 3-8-inch premolded joints.

The pavement is being laid at a grade corresponding to the existing asphalt base so that in any future surfacing the entire roadway may be uniform. A gap of 6 feet is left between the two pavements to care for future utilities. This will also serve to control the direction of traffic.

The concrete is being mixer with a 4-sack batch mixer. Tamping is performed with temple tammers and finished with wooden floats, squeegee roller and otherwise in the same general manner as is used in best recent practice.

The work presents no unusual features as to construction but will be of special interest to engineers interested in pavements in that the volume of traffic it will carry will prove or disprove many points as to the adequacy of concrete for heavily traveled city streets. The pavement will have the advantage of a subgrade very little disturbed by excavations which so frequently are the direct cause of settlement and breaking of the concrete base. The grade will be practically level, drainage being provided by undulating the gutter and discharging the water at intervals of 600 feet.

The materials used for the concrete are the best grade of washed sand and pebbles. The sand answers to a specification requiring 100 per cent to pass a 1-4-inch screen and not less than 20 per cent nor more than 35 per cent to pass a No. 30 screen. The pebbles are graded to a fairly uniform proportion, varying from 1-4 to 2½ inches with no stone larger than 4 inches measurement through its greatest diameter.

The concrete is mixed in the proportion 1:2:3½, the cement content being based on the measure of 3½ cubic feet to the barrel. This is equivalent in practice to 1 2-3 barrels of cement to each cubic yard of concrete.

This stretch of concrete pavement is perhaps the most important undertaken by the city of Seattle and the results will be watched with much interest.

The work is being handled by the City's engineering department, of which A. H. Dimock is the head. The writer is the Assistant Engineer in direct charge of the work.

The water supply system was restricted in development during the war, said Mr. Dimock, "we have a sufficient supply to meet our needs next summer, but we shall be short after that. Although the work at Swan Lake will not be complete by that time, we will have from ten to fifteen millions of gallons additional for supply; this we must have, irrespective of high cost."

Plans are now under way to extend Fourth avenue south so as to form an arterial highway to the White River Valley. A street 150 feet wide will be built, with a roadway for through motor vehicle traffic and another for use by abutting property owners, to accommodate the huge traffic which Dimock believes will inevitably result from a development of that district.

FAMOUS CITY PLANNER TO ADDRESS LEAGUE

Lorado Taft, the noted sculptor and city planner, will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given Tuesday noon, March 16th, at the Masonic Club Rooms, Arcade Building, under the joint auspices of the Municipal League and the One Hundred Per Cent Club. In order to accommodate all those wishing to attend members of the Municipal League are requested to make reservations in advance for themselves and friends, a special section having been reserved for the Municipal League, we desire to know, as nearly as possible, how large a number of our members will attend. Phone Mr. Wiener, Main 476.

Various other city organizations will be asked to send their representatives to the meeting.

THE FATHER AND SON DINNER which was postponed some time ago, will take place Tuesday evening, March 9th, at the Masonic Temple. Municipal League members are cordially invited to attend.

JAPAN HAS 2,000 JOURNALS

News-writing, in recent years, has developed into a profession; and the newspapers, natural outlets for journalistic work, have increased accordingly and taken important places in the affairs of the world. This fact is illustrated by the interests and regard the Japanese have placed upon the newspaper. Less than 45 years ago there was only one newspaper in Japan, and that was hardly worthy of the name. Today there are over 2,000 important journals and papers. Before the Russian-Japanese war, the people did not care for news that did not concern their own country, but since then they have taken a great deal of interest in the affairs of other nations.

Instead of the Japanese newsboy running along the street trying to sell each person a paper, he merely stands on a corner ringing a string of four or five bells and at the same time crying out the important news. —Totem (Lincoln).

OH SAY, CAN YOU SING?

Oh, say can you sing, from the start to the end,
What so proudly you stand for when the orchestra plays it;
When the whole congregation in voices that blend,
Strike up the grand tune and then torture and slay it?
How valiant they shout when they're first starting out.
But the "down's early light" finds them floundering about,
'Tis "The Star-Spangled Banner" they're trying to sing,
But they don't know the words of the precious, brave thing.
Hark, the "twilight's last gleaming" has some of them stopped,
But the gallant survivors press forward serenely
To the "ramparts we watched," when some others are dropped,
And the loss of the leaders is manifest keenly.
Then "the rocket's red glare" gives the bravest a scare,
And there's a few left to face the "bombs bursting in air,"
'Tis a thin line of heroes that manage to save
The last of the verse and "the home of the brave." —Ex.

SINGLE TAXER ADDRESSES LEAGUE

Reported by Eimon L. Weinir.

John Z. White, lecturer for the Henry George Lecture Bureau, famous single taxer, addressed the League Tuesday noon, on "The Relation of Taxation to Community Development." Witty, incisive, and forceful Mr. White made a difficult subject seem simple. He was merciless in his attack upon our present system, declaring it "the meanest perpetuation of aristocracy that has burdened the modern world."

A distinction was drawn by the speaker between property that originated by virtue of human industry and that resulting from legal establishment. His solution is to tax the latter kind of property but not the former.

"Landtd property constitutes one half of all property; yet it pays but one fourth of the taxes. As the city grows, a large commercial center is established where men trade and co-operate with their fellows. Property in such districts will take on value those few owning it will become rich as a matter of course. That development is bound to occur not through any effort of theirs, but as a matter of law. Such artificial increase of values results in land being held for speculation. More than 60 per-cent of city lots are either vacant or poorly improved; this chokes a city's growth, hurting the country generally.

"Stop taxing industry, which is for the benefit of the consumers. Stop taxing improvements on property, and the nation will make more rapid strides than ever before. There is no excuse for the prevailing high cost of the living. If we had prosperity during the war, with five million men out of the ranks of labor, business, and the professions, surely we can not be the poorer now, when those men are returned.

"This is not saying that real property shall not be secure. Any nation that will impair that right will begin to disintegrate. But it must become plain that under the present system you can not tax capital. You can tax land or industry, but not capital."

A series of articles will appear soon by members of the League on, "What I Would Do If I Were Mayor." Those desiring to contribute articles on that subject or any other of civic interest may send copy to the office of the Secretary.

You don't know how hard the world is until you slip on a banana peel.

LEAGUE WILL HEAR NOTED SCULPTOR

Lorado Taft, famous Chicago sculptor will address a joint meeting of the Municipal League and the One Hundred Per Cent Club, Tuesday noon, March 16th. The luncheon-meeting will be held at the Masonic Club Rooms, Arcade Building, and not at Meves Cafeteria, the usual meeting place of the League. This has been done in order to accomodate the many who will wish to hear Mr. Taft.

Mr. Taft has gained an enviable reputation not only in sculpture, but in the fields of writing and lecturing. He spent six months in France with the Young Men's Christian Association, and later with the army educational corps.

Stirs Civic Pride

Mr. Taft will discuss "Beauty in the Home Town—The Problem of Making the Community Interesting to Itself." Of late years the sculptor has felt an increasing sense of citizenship of all that relates to the good of the community, particularly the artistic needs of the small community. His message is formed to stir a city's civic pride, which in time may take the form of beautiful memorials, fountains, and statues which will perpetuate the significant in American history and ideals.

Seattle possesses one of Lorado Taft's work of art, the statue of George Washington, which stands at the entrance of the University of Washington campus. Civic works, which have won for him national prominence, such as those for which he will speak in the morning assembly, are: "The Eternal Silence," Graceland Cemetery, Chicago; the Columbus Memorial Fountain, Washington, D. C.; The Ferguson Fountain

By Fred W. Catlett.

One of our "esteemed contemporaries"—in time one can apparently acquire the journalistic pen in the same way that the lawyer acquires the legal mind—carried an editorial last Sunday which struck an answering chord in our heart. The large vote for Mr. Duncan was by no means the result of lack of patriotism, but largely a result of dissatisfaction with present economic conditions, a dissatisfaction which, as was observed, extends much beyond the ranks of Mr. Duncan's supporters. The truth is probably that only the patriotic argument kept large numbers from joining the ranks of the dissatisfied. The peculiar thing about the present situation is that it bears hardest upon the salaried and the professional classes. Although the rise in wages has not kept step with the rise in prices, the so-called working classes have received large benefits in increased wages. The business and manufacturing classes have also benefited very largely from the advancing and increased prices, but the teachers, both in the school and university, many of the salaried employees and the professional man have received no equivalent increase in income while forced to meet the largely increased living costs. It will be interesting to observe just what the social effort will be, whether we shall see a leveling or coalescing of the so-called working classes and the middle classes, or whether in the end the incomes of the teachers, salaried employees and professional men will be increased so that the ratio existing before the war is re-established.

Mayor Caldwell goes into office well equipped to render the city unusual service. In the Skagit project, about to be launched, and the placing of our municipal street railway upon a more satisfactory financial basis the mayor will have problems quite worthy of his abilities. We assume from what the mayor-elect has said that there will be some changes in the heads of departments. The press has carried the announcement that he would appoint as Superintendent of Public Utilities a man specially qualified by his training for the handling of such a transportation system. The problem of finding a man so qualified who possesses also the executive ability to run the Public Utilities Department, and who at the same time is acceptable politically to the very large municipal ownership sentiment of the city, is not an easy one. The chief reason for the difficulty lies in the fact that there are practically no other cities where men can get experience in operating municipal owned street railways and there are many of our people who cannot escape from the feeling that a man who has had his training under a privately owned system cannot be expected to have the sympathy with public ownership and the interest in its success that one trained under public ownership would have. The mayor, therefore, if he puts at the head of the department a trained street railway executive, will have to take such a man from private corporation work, and such a man is unlikely to be looked upon with favor by the public ownership group. A possible solution of the problem is, of course, for the mayor to appoint as the head of the department of executive ability known to be in sympathy with public ownership and to permit him to appoint as the operating head of the road a man trained in street railway management and operation under private control. This solution of the question is almost made necessary by the salary fixed for the Superintendent of Public Utilities. It would seem quite improbable that any man of sufficient training and experience and executive ability could be found to fill so difficult a role on the small salary of the Superintendent of Public Utilities. As the operating manager of the system, however, it would be possible to pay him a salary which would more adequately compensate for the services required. We are anxious to see the municipal ownership experiment succeed in Seattle and shall await with much interest the actions of the new mayor with respect to it.

Mayor Caldwell has also said that he will go into the facts and circumstances surrounding the sale of the road to the city, with special reference to the real value of the property transferred and the representations made in respect thereto by the private company's officials. We hope he will do so, as we should be glad to have any light possible upon the question of the actual value of the roads at that time.

During the campaign a great deal was said in criticism of the purchase, but nothing was brought out to convince us that with such facts as they had before them at the time and under the circumstances then existing the people did not by their vote to approve the purchase accept the best solution of the traction problem. It is undoubtedly true that the city consummated the purchase without sufficient investigation of the values of the property to be taken over. No private corporation would have made such an extensive purchase without a very careful valuation of all the property to be received. So far as we could find out at the time no such careful valuation was made. The mayor, the superintendent of public utilities and a majority of the council insisted that the system was worth $15,000,000, but this was based largely upon opinion and not upon any ascertained figures.

Mr. Erickson insisted that the road was not worth to exceed eight millions and produced some figures to prove his contention. Mr. Lane, while voting for the purchase, as we remember it, stated publicly that, although he did not know the exact value of the property, he felt that it was much less than fifteen millions, but that it was worth the difference to get the roads and eliminate the traction company. And we believe that a good many voted for the purchase in much the same frame of mind. If the new mayor can give us any light upon its value, we should be glad to have it, and if he can give us the facts as to the actual costs of operation at the present time and the financial situation of the system, we should be glad to have those, and if he is able to discover that there was any misrepresentation or concealment or fraud connected with the sale to the city, we hope the company may be brought to book.

After all is said and done, however, the sale to the city is probably an accomplished fact and the problem facing us is how to continue to operate the lines, pay the expenses of operation and maintenance, lay aside the proper sums for various charges, pay the interest of the outstanding bonds and provide a fund which will take care of the retirement of those bonds serially at the rate of $75,000 a year when the time shall arrive for such retirement.

We should be glad to preserve the five-cent fare, but we are sure that the city will support the mayor in an increase of fare if after an examination into all the facts he and his Superintendent of Public Utilities should determine that such an increase is necessary in order that the municipal line should be self supporting.

At its session last Monday the council finally approved a bond issue of $6,000,000.00 to pay for the Swan Lake extension of the city's water supply system. It is proposed to construct an immense impounding basin at Swan Lake, from which a pipe line is to run to a storage reservoir to be built in Volunteer Park. It is said that this proposed extension of the system will afford Seattle an adequate water supply for many years to come. Preliminary work on the basin at Swan Lake has already been done and the construction of a dam at the outlet of the lake is to be commenced immediately.

The vote upon the proposed charter amendments produced some interesting and almost amusing results. The voters were refuse any increase of pay to the city councilmen and only a little less determined to permit an increase for the corporation counsel, the city comptroller and city treasurer.

It has often been marked as a tendency of our municipal governments to overpay the inferior employees of the government and underpay the higher officials. The position of corporation counsel at the present time certainly justifies a salary of $6000 a year. There has been no increase during the period of rise in prices, but, in addition to that, the importance and responsibility of the office have increased by the taking over of the municipal street car lines. The corporation counsel now handles the damage suits against the city and we fancy that no private corporation would be able to hire a capable official to carry the responsibility of all its litigation for a sum less than twice or three times the proposed salary of the corporation counsel.

A LIGHT WISH

By Austin E. Griffiths

I wish some venturesome unsophisticated person would write some newspaper editor of either the "kept or free" press to request the Honorable Mayor or common council to enact an ordinance or pass a resolution to require the Board of Public Works to direct the head of some department to ask his chief assistant to have the proper inspector in charge to tell his foreman to get the gang boss to order the workers under him to be good enough to clean our street lights.

The globes of our street lighting system have become in process of time dark spots. This greatly accelerates the activity of twilight. One globe deprived of the dust of ages would give more light than the present five in the cluster.

It is even claimed the safest place for footpads to engage in profit making, and where they can enjoy seclusion longest and divide their booty in security is under the protecting shadow of our cluster lights.

Pike Street in particular appears to extend to these enterprising and numerous unlawful profiteers this superior advantage.

Let the long suffering tax paying community but think of the easy economy of cleaning one globe and saving the current of the other four besides saving the items of breakage, depreciation and damage from automobile in the dark—let the economisers and reformers who swarm the city hall think of these things but once and no doubt the promised retrenchment and reformation will begin without undue delay by giving the city more light for less money.

NOTED ARTIST MAKES PLEA FOR BEAUTY

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Loredo Taft, noted American sculptor, made a most delightful and inspiring impression upon those fortunate enough to hear him at the luncheon held Tuesday noon jointly with the One Hundred Per Cent Club. More than 300 persons attended, including representatives of organizations for civic betterment, and about thirty-five of the alumni of Mr. Taft's alma mater, the University of Illinois, who greeted the distinguished visitor with some real collegiate cheering.

"Our ancestors who came to New England turned their backs to art; they did not bring any art treasures with them—excepting that wonderful lot of furniture that came over in the Mayflower—; we have poured money into the education of our youth—and then dropped them off. It is high time that we should remedy conditions. There should not be a cry of, "What can a fellow do in a town like this?" in any town in the United States.

"Cities need publicity, but many are indifferent as to what sort of publicity they get. You all know what made Milwaukee famous," said Mr. Taft, and went on to say that although Milwaukee was in itself a very beautiful city and one in which civic pride ran high it was looked at by the world through a sort of "amber glow". He then added: "its a pity to take the spirit out of a town."

Without art life is inexplicable. Art is all that we leave behind; without it life would be a ghastly joke.

"We're fed up on cathedrals," was the response given by the American doughboy in France to Mr. Taft when he tried to point out to them the artistic beauties of that country. The doughboy was idealizing the home town, which is according to Mr. Taft

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR THE NEW MAYOR

The problems confronting our new mayor are so serious as to challenge the ability of even a man of his high calibre. The most serious one after getting adjusted to the office is the question of ways and means. Taxation has already retarded our growth and threatens, if increased, to confiscate much of our unimproved property. Though it is undoubtedly true that we have generally received good value in our expenditures for all classes of public works, and that we have in those properties a very valuable asset, and though the Seattle families are saved a considerable sum annually by services which are free here and must be paid for elsewhere, the comparative tax rate does not show these facts, and consequently it frightens away many prospective residents and investors. Since it will be necessary in the immediate future to raise more revenue for schools, park maintenance and street railway charges, and since there is very little apparent increase in taxable value, it would seem absolutely necessary to cut down, if possible, the number of employees on the pay roll. It would be practicable to abolish a considerable number of positions and to consolidate some others, and as soon as practicable a scheme of City-County consolidation should be put forward, for which the necessary legislation can be had. Such a measure, in order to get legislative approval, must contemplate the consolidation of the agencies which the two municipalities have in common, such as the Treasurers' offices, Auditor and Comptroller, City and County Engineers' offices, City and County jails, City and County Hospitals, etc. Any consolidation which contemplates divorcing Seattle from King County cannot be passed, since such action would only result in reducing our taxes at the expense of the County, and it would render King County Government even more expensive. Since one or two proposals with considerable backing are already in sight for the purpose of increasing city taxation for the benefit of the counties, past history would indicate that there is very little chance of this counter proposition being successful.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

Since there must be an increase in revenue, and since the proposed economies would hardly seem sufficient to provide what is necessary, a study of additional sources of revenue with a view to providing other forms of taxation at an early date should be made.

Efficiency and economy are difficult to arrive at in a city government and harder and harder as the form of government departs from the manager form toward the bureaucratic form in which the various departments are continually competing with each other for added authority, added payrolls and increased appropriations. Our charter was never very satisfactory and it has been amended so much as to make quite a patchwork of it. The charter which was voted down several years ago seemed to me admirably suited to our needs. It might be advisable to consider whether that charter, with some modern revision, should not be submitted again to the people at the next general election.

For the social good of the Seattle of the future, a study of our municipal plant and equipment should be made with a view to increasing its use in meeting the social needs of the people. Much of the city's property could render fine service if used in conjunction with such agencies as the Community Service organization.

As to material developments, our utilities require a lot of study. The water plans are fairly well completed, but the Skagit project and the city's electrical service will require much expert study. The transportation system is our largest material problem of the future. Not only must the present car system be made more efficient and more nearly self-sustaining but plans must be made for future growth. Quite probably an improvement in service can be made by a reduction in fares during off peak hours and an increase during peak load hours. The fare question should be studied carefully and especially in conjunction with proposed extensions of the street railway system. While the retention of the 5 cent fare is highly desirable, we should remember that at least 60 per cent of the city's area is still unimproved, and that our living costs are already increased by the extensions into outlying suburbs of car lines, arterial highways, water mains, lighting service, etc. Not only the direct costs of these extensions but the delivery costs of construction materials and daily supplies add a considerable sum to the per capita cost of living. Since view and neighborhood, rather than distance from down town and accessibility, seem to determine land prices, it would seem desirable to put some additional tax on outlying property in the form of increased light and water rates, and possibly a zoning plan in the collection of car fares. This should result in a considerable increase in population in areas adjacent to the business center, with a consequent increased profit in the operation of the trunk lines of the railway system. It is doubtful if car line extensions should be made in view of the probability that a 10-cent fare will certainly be in effect there shortly and that with a 10 cent fare in effect, jitney competition will take the bulk of the business. The rapid transit problem is, to my mind, inseparable from the motor traffic problem. Within five years we must have some provision for rapid transit through the business district, both for street cars and for automobile traffic. Motor traffic now carries at least half the people, and but for reduction in motor output during several years of the war period, the percentage would already have been larger. The city already has an investment of close to one hundred million dollars in passenger motor vehicles. To get maximum service from this investment requires that some provision for ready access to the business district during hours of congestion be made, and that parking facilities for a large number of cars at two or three points in the business district be provided. At the same time, any considerable increase in ground values in our business district is dependent upon providing better transportation for all classes of traffic. As I see it, an arterial highway passing under Stewart, Pine and Union Street, then crossing above Second and First Avenues with a terminus somewhere in the neighborhood of Pier One, and in conjunction therewith a three track line system and several levels of automobile parking spaces, will be the solution.

Altogether our mayor has a big job without departing from the lines made familiar by past mayors, but the future offers much that is fascinating in the way of possible solutions of our difficulties, and we are indeed fortunate in having in the office a young man with much ability, high enthusiasm, and years of service ahead of him.

UTILITY BONDS

The City of Seattle now owes Utility bonds to the amount of more than $21,000,000.00 and has authorized the sale of $10,000,000 additional bonds of the same class.

These bonds are payable only from the revenues of the Utility for which issued, but are by their terms prior liens upon such revenues over operating and maintenance.

It necessarily follows that in case the revenues fall short, part of the operation of a utility must be paid from a tax levy.

The revenues of two of our utilities are now and have been for more than a year insufficient to pay current obligations in addition to interest and sinking fund.

We are certain to hit the tax levy for utility deficits this year but can soften the blow by borrowing money on the best terms possible and only when needed.

It has been a universal rule that we have been compelled to pay a higher rate of interest on utility bonds than on general bonds for the sole reason that there is a limited liability expressed in the former that is more apparent than real.

During the past 18 months the city has sold at several times nearly $5,000,000 of utility bonds all on a 6 per cent basis, yet at the same time 5 per cent general bonds could have been sold at par.

The city can, if it will issue general bonds, at such times and for such amounts as needed for construction work, save at least 1 per cent per annum on bond interest, and an additional 3 per cent on 4 per cent on money lying in the banks for which the city receives 2 per cent interest. This idle money now amounts to more than $3,000,000.

an American tendency. The railroad depot at home looks better to the doughboy, after his life in France, than all the artistic beauties of France. The sculptor announced his intention of bringing home to the boys who have returned a better appreciation of the beauties to be found abroad which so many of them missed entirely.

Mr. Taft is an ardent believer in community centers. He believes that such centers will do a great deal towards bringing our foreign born to a better understanding of American traditions and ideals, as well as bringing out the ideals and love of beauty that such people bring over with them. "What a pride of citizenship we could arouse!" declared Mr. Taft, "for after all it is not money, but the life a community provides that is its real wealth."

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

Some time ago a committee of the League was appointed to investigate the question of the proposed sale of municipal bonds by the municipality direct to local investors. The committee reported in favor of such a method. The city council at its meeting on Monday authorized the making of an experiment along this line in the case of the Skagit bonds, of which $1,000,000.00 worth are now on sale at the office of the city comptroller.

The appointment of Major Carl H. Reeves as Superintendent of Public Utilities did not come as an entire surprise. It was forecasted very definitely and positively the day after the election. Major Reeves is and has long been a member of the Municipal League and since his return from the service has been active in attendance and in his interest in municipal affairs. As Superintendent of Public Utilities Major Reeves will have charge of the old department as it existed prior to the taking over of the street railway and will also have charge of the financial, accounting and clerical side of the street railway; in fact, will have charge of everything connected with the street railway except the actual operation of the lines. By virtue of his office Major Reeves will also become a member of the Board of Public Works, where his experience as an engineer ought to be of value to the city.

At its meeting on Monday the city council passed an ordinance granting the members of the fire department one full day off duty every eight days and authorizing an increase of eighty men in the department in order to permit this lay-off. This increase required an additional appropriation of $70,000 to pay their salaries for the last half of the year, as the ordinance does not become effective until the first of July.

The mayor and Superintendent of Transportation are reported to have stated publicly that they are not yet ready to recommend an increase in fares on the municipal street railways lines, in spite of the poor showing of the lines as evidenced by the financial statement of the city comptroller. The mayor announced that a saving of $36,000 had already been made in the department through the re-organization just effected.

In a message to the city council on Monday the mayor asked the council to regulate the jitney traffic. He asserts on the authority of the Superintendent of Railways that the jitneys on fourteen routes are securing a yearly revenue of approximately $1,140,000.00. The regulations suggested are such as to place the jitney operation "upon a strictly legitimate basis with the municipal car lines", force the jitney operators to "observe schedules, operate to the end of their respective routes at all times and stop the practice now said to exist of blocking the entrance to street cars". He also wishes legislation requiring the jitneys to secure a license in case of violation of requirements.

It is very difficult to see how any of the suggestions made can possibly transfer to the coffers of the city very large portion of this $1,140,000.00. The regulation suggested may be desirable, but if it has any material effect upon the income of the jitney operators, it would seem as if it would be to increase that income by making the jitney service more regular, less dangerous and more reliable and dependent. If it is the purpose to secure the $1,140,000.00 by legislating the jitneys out of business, a different form of legislation will certainly be necessary. It will also be remembered that Mr. Murphine en-

THE CRISIS IN EDUCATION

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir.

George N. Porter, head of the English Department, Broadway High School, addressed the Municipal League, Tuesday noon, on "The Crisis in Education."

"If the problem of unrest is to be solved, it can be solved only by proper education, and yet the lowering of standards in the teaching profession is appalling. Sixty per cent of the next generation will, unless an immediate remedy is applied, be educated by untrained teachers," declared Mr. Porter.

The "turnover" in the teaching profession in this State, is one-third of the total number of teachers employed. Only three years is spent by the average teacher in the profession, stated Mr. Porter.

"The attitude of the general public toward the teaching profession—as persons to be pitied, to be commiserated with, is responsible for the present shortage in the teaching staffs.

"And then again industry is willing to pay its recruits who are learning the business, while a teacher must spend several years in institutions of higher learning, and not only not getting anything for his time, but spending a good deal of money in securing training.

"Teachers cannot live and meet the demands made upon them by the public on the salary they get; unless an increase in pay is given them there is bound to be even a greater shortage than there is now.

"Seattle levied thirteen and one-half mills to operate its schools. One and one-half mills additional is needed to meet the ordinary increase, due to the growth of the City. To relieve the situation, an even greater increase must be made.

"The Smith Turner bill in Congress can help to remedy the situation. It provides for a Secretary of Education, which will combine all of the various bureaus of education under a single departmental head. It will certainly stimulate leadership in education. The bill provides for an appropriation to each State, requiring only that the State make an equal appropriation. This bill should be brought out of committee and should be passed by Congress.

deavored to get some jitney legislation from the council, but without very much success.

The mayor professes to accept as accurate the comptroller's report showing a deficit of $500,000.00 in operation of the municipal lines for nine months of 1919. To a layman it looks as if depreciation had been figured for the full twelve months of 1919, instead of for the nine months during which the city operated the lines. But, be as it may, in adopting the viewpoint of the administration there is already a deficit of $500,000.00 from 1919. Three months of 1920 are gone, presumably with not less than the same proportional deficit. No economies of any very substantial amount have yet been effected and in less than two years' time the city will be called upon to pay upon the principal of the bonds $833,000.00. To a man with half an eye and no head for figures it looks as if the municipal lines would not only have to pay the expenses paid in the past, but, if they take care of the deficit already created, pay all proper charges in the next two years and accumulate a sufficient sum to pay this installment on the bonds, they must increase their income to the amount of over $2,300,000.00, or over $1,150,000.00 per year. For nearly a year Mr. Murphine, and, it is probably fair to assume, Mr. Henderson, for he has been an employee of the department of public utilities heretofore, have been seeking for economies, have doubtless made some, but have not made any substantial enough to take care of any such amount, and it may well be questioned whether the present administration in failing to take the bull by the horns at once is not thereby making it practically certain that the general fund and ultimately the general taxpayers will have to pay the $833,000.00 due in 1922. Indeed, a prominent advocate of municipal ownership remarked to the writer a few days ago that it was generally accepted as a certainty that the $833,000.00 in 1922 would have to be taken care of by an issue of general bonds.

We wonder whether the general taxpayers have yet contemplated this as a certainty and whether any management of the street car lines which renders this a necessity can be regarded as keeping faith with the people who voted for the purchase of the lines on the express understanding that the lines were to pay for themselves and that they would never be a charge against the general fund of the general taxpayers of the city.

As we remarked before, to raise the fares requires courage, as it is likely to be an unpopular move with certain classes of the people who see only the higher fares paid and do not appreciate the need therefor. It has been remarked a number of times in the discussion of this matter, as if it were a sort of final argument in connection with it, that the experience of other cities in raising the fare had not been satisfactory and that such a raise had not in many instances produced an actual increase of income. So far as we have been able to hear, the only place where it is asserted that an increase of fares actually produced less income than before was in Boston and we have had no opportunity to ascertain the facts as to the Boston situation, but the fact in the cases of the other cities seems to be that an increase of income was secured, but not an increase quite proportionate to the increase in fare. This seems the probable result anywhere, as the tendency of an increase in fares will be to deter some persons from riding who might otherwise have taken a car, but the idea that increase in fare in Seattle would result in an actual reduction of the income is so very unlikely that it ought to be discarded from consideration. The fact remains that on their own showing the municipal lines ought to pay their way, they have not paid their way, they are not paying their way; therefore, the income from them must be increased by at least $2,300,000.00 in the next two years, and no sufficient economy has up to the present time been suggested, except the regulation of jitneys, which is not designed to produce any considerable increased financial returns to the city street car lines. Even if it produces $200,000 a year as Mr. Henderson estimates, the saving is far from sufficient to meet the emergency.

Faced with such a situation the ordinary business man would raise the fares. When the municipal line is on a sound basis and when costs recede, as they will at some date more or less distant, the fares can then be reduced to the proper point. If such a course is not taken, we may look forward confidently to a tax rate increasingly higher than the present enormous rate of 7.15%, and then let us have sense enough to place some of the responsibility for it where it belongs.

PETITION FOR A STATE MEMORIAL

Whereas, a large number of men and women throughout the State of Washington have made the supreme sacrifice in the late World War, and

Whereas, no State Memorial now exists for these Ex-Service Men and Women, and

Whereas, plans are now being made for the construction of a Stadium on the University of Washington Campus, where the ex-service spirit of contest, victory, honor and loyalty will be engendered and perpetuated; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Service Club of Washington, representing 1800 ex-service University men, that the proposed Stadium be designated as a State Memorial to the memory of our Comrades of the State of Washington who died while in the service of our country during the great war; and be it further

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Service Club of Washington and that copies be sent to all Ex-Service organizations throughout the State, petitioning such organizations to endorse and advocate the designation of the proposed Stadium as a State Memorial.

(Signed):

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL, SERVICE CLUB OF WASHINGTON.

The members of the Washington State chapter of the American Institute of Architects through their president, Charles H. Alden, have invited the members of the Municipal League to visit the chapter's architectural exhibition being held at the galleries of the Seattle Fine Arts Society, 1213 4th avenue. The exhibition will be open until April 15th.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE BY-LAWS

(Submitted to the Municipal League, March 30-1920, by Austin E. Griffiths)

It shall be the policy of the league to have the personnel of any committee on qualification of candidates for public office drawn so far as the league membership will admit from all descriptions of its membership including workers and employers and representatives of labor as well as of capital in order that the committee may be regarded as impartial and its report carry greatest weight among the entire citizenship, and

To secure this end any committee on qualification of candidates for public office shall be chosen by nomination from the floor of the league or by the president or Board of Trustees as may be decided by the league when occasion for such committee shall from time to time first arise, provided appointments by the president or Board shall be submitted to the league in regular session for approval, rejection or substitution before such committee shall have power to act.

MUNICIPAL AVIATION FIELD REPORT

The following report, submitted by the special committee appointed to investigate into the advisability of the county issuing bonds for the purchasing of an aviation landing field, has been referred back to the committee by the League, with instructions to report the following:

1. What other cities are doing along this line, and how they are doing it.
2. What prospective business can be expected by Seattle as a result of such field.

March 30, 1920.

To the Municipal League,
Seattle, Wash.

We, your committee, appointed to investigate and report upon the advisability of the county issuing $500,000 general obligation bonds for the purchase of a tract of land of about 255 acres at Sand Point, the clearing of, and the building thereon of the necessary hangars, machine shop, etc., for a municipal aviation field, would report as follows:

1st—The tract seems to be admirably situated topographically for an aviation field, except that it is about eight miles from the post office.

2nd—The price quoted by the Ferry Leary Land Co., of $1,000 per acre for 220 acres, not only includes upland, but about 15.4 acres of water, called shore lands. The balance of 35 acres is held by the respective owners at a higher price. This price, in our opinion, is excessive, and if it is deemed advisable to acquire this tract, we would recommend that it be condemned under the special act of the 1919 Legislature, which provided for the condemnation of tracts for such purposes.

3rd—The detail estimate furnishing the basis for the asking of a $500,000 bond issue, is as follows:

Land	$278,000
Clearing & Improvements	238,500
Total	$516,500

Your committee has given some consideration to the benefits to be derived by the City of Seattle and the County of King from the establishment of such a landing field.

We believe that it would have some advertising value; we question however, if the amount of business arising therefrom or the increased facilities for fast mail or freight would be sufficient to warrant our calling it a business investment.

Respectfully submitted,

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

In his address before the League last Tuesday, Major Reeves, Superintendent of Public Utilities, stated that the present division of authority between himself and Mr. Henderson was a sort of gentlemen's agreement, but that he had worked with Mr. Henderson before and believed that they could work together in harmony.

Major Reeves is quite correct in his statement of the situation. The ordinance defining the scope of the duties of the General Superintendent does not make perfectly clear the line of demarcation between the functions of his division and of that of the Superintendent of Public Utilities. Major Reeves said further that he thought it was the intention, as soon as the necessary steps could be taken, to create a separate department of the city government for the handling of the street railways.

Irving M. Clark, long an active member of the League and a resident for eight years of Hunt's Point on the other side of Lake Washington, has announced his candidacy for the county commissionership in the north district, which comprises the northern part of the county and in main that portion of the city north of the Canal.

Mr. Clark has been a resident of Seattle for fourteen years, is a graduate of Yale University and of the University of Washington Law School, Class of 1909. Since his graduation he has been actively practicing law, except during the period from 1917 to 1919 when he served in France, first as a volunteer with the French Army and then with the American Red Cross. In the latter service he had charge of two departments in the southwest corner of France and has been complimented highly for his effective service.

Mr. Clark will be a candidate on the Republican ticket for the seat now occupied by Mr. Dobson. The primaries are in September and the election a month later. In the primaries only the voters in the north district participate, but in the election the voters of the entire county may vote for the county commissioners in the different districts.

We are glad to give our hearty endorsement to Mr. Clark's candidacy. He is just the kind of man who should be encouraged to stand for office and who should receive our earnest and active support in his candidacy. Our county administration has not been satisfactory nor efficient, and it cannot be made entirely so by mere improvements in machinery. We must elect high-class, capable men. The salary is quite insufficient to attract any such and quite obviously affords no reason for Mr. Clark's candidacy. Mr. Clark has the training, the intelligence, the brains and the time to be of great service to the voters of the county. He is a man of sane and yet progressive views. He believes that the county funds have not been efficiently handled in the past, particularly in the expenditures for the maintenance of county roads, and he enters the campaign solely to serve in making the county administration more efficient and less wasteful and expensive.

Now, men like Mr. Clark cannot be elected without support. What we have said represents, of course, the personal opinion of the writer only. We hope, however, that those who read will agree with us and take advantage of every opportunity to commend Mr. Clark's name to the voters.

Mr. Henderson, Superintendent of Railways, has reported to the mayor that economies have been effected amounting to $18,000 a month. May the good work go

PUBLIC UTILITIES HEAD SPEAKS TO LEAGUE

(Reported by Eimon L. Wienir)

Major Carl H. Reeves, speaking before the Municipal League Tuesday noon, declared that a gentleman's agreement to co-operate on all matters pertaining to the reorganization of the street railway department was made, and that so far as he was concerned, the tendency to maintain the street railway department as a separate unit would hold good. His relation with Mr. Henderson, he states, is such that there is no anticipation of any friction between them.

"The experience of our Government indicates clearly that the regulation of privately owned utility properties is a proper initial step for the public to take in its aim to own and operate all public utilities," stated Major Reeves.

"This supervision and control is affected in Seattle by the Public Utilities Department, which prescribes standards for all the construction placed beneath, upon or over the surface of our streets and which prescribes standards for maintenance of that construction, and also, in a measure, prescribes standards for the operation of the properties.

It may be interesting to you to learn that beneath the surface of the streets of Seattle there is what may be a traffic which in its nature is very complex. Lines of flow for water, sewerage, steam, refrigeration, electricity for lighting and power, gas for lighting, heating and cooking, telephone and telegraph and police and fire alarm circuits, must all be arranged so that interference can be avoided.

"The plan and method originating in the Seattle department of public utilities has recently been adopted by the City of Brooklyn, New York and several other cities have profited by the pioneer work of our department."

Other functions of the department, stated Major Reeves, are: the work of controlling, of directing and harmonizing of the various railroad interests in Seattle, the determination of the proper provisions of each new franchise application, the supervisions of the setting of the light and telephone poles in the streets and enforcement of general ordinances regulating the operation of public service companies.

"In addition to that there is devolving upon our department the duty of guiding and directing the extension plans of the public service companies along lines which will not alone meet express demands but which will anticipate the needs of the future."

In conclusion Major Reeves declared that the efficiency of any department, while depending to a large extent, upon its own interworking and policy, still is beneficially influenced by the co-operation of the public with it.

"Our earnest wish," stated Major Reeves, "is that the obligations we owe the people of Seattle will be more than balanced by the results achieved. We feel that such a meeting as this allows the department to get better in touch with our citizens and therefore we are grateful for such opportunities to meet the public."

The ordinance regulating the jitneys has been transmitted to the Utilities Committee of the council. Under the provisions of the ordinance the council decides upon what streets the jitneys may operate and has the authority to modify the route, terminal, schedule or rate of fare proposed, in any application for authority to operate a jitney bus line. Under it every operator of a jitney must obtain a permit from the city council stating in his application, the route to be followed, the schedule to be observed and fare to be charged, and other data. A penalty of $100.00 and imprisonment in the city jail for not to exceed thirty days is provided for the following offenses: to operate a jitney bus without a permit; to operate a jitney bus without having the permit fastened on the front of the vehicle; to charge in excess of ten cents for adults and five cents for children; to fail to operate according to schedule, except in case of accident or emergency; to fail to operate between the termini and over the entire route specified, except between seven o'clock A. M. and eight-thirty o'clock A. M. and four-thirty o'clock and six o'clock P. M., when outbound jitneys may turn back upon discharging the last passenger. A diversion is also permitted from the regular route to deliver passengers, if consented to by the other passengers. Other offenses are: to fail or refuse to comply with all traffic regulations of the police department, and violation of any such regulations permits the cancellation of the certificate; to permit any person to occupy with the driver the driver's seat in excess of its fixed seating capacity, or to ride upon the running board or in any place in front of the front seat or upon the fender, dash board or upon the top of the seat backs, or to carry at any time more than two passengers in excess of the seating capacity, provided that in counting passengers children under six years shall not be counted; and to operate any jitney which has not been inspected and approved as safe by the Superintendent of Public Utilities.

Last week we expressed in these columns a doubt whether the regulations which had been suggested would accomplish the purpose for which they were ostensibly designed, that is, to transfer any large portion of the $1,100,000.00 said to be their income for a year to the city treasury, and the regulations now suggested in greater detail do not remove our doubts; but whether the regulations accomplish the ostensible result, we think that they are, at least in the main, desirable. We have long been of the opinion that the crowding of persons in the driver's seat was a dangerous practice and that the overcrowding in the other parts of the cars was both dangerous and undesirable for other reasons.

The mayor has vetoed the ordinance granting the city firemen one day off in eight, providing for an increase of eighty men in the department to permit this lay-off and for the expenditure of $70,000.00 to pay the salaries of these men during the second half of 1920. In general his objection is that the ordinance is a deficiency ordinance which provides for the spending of money not raised and that there is another way of accomplishing the same result without so increasing the expense of the fire department.

In spite of the unpopularity of the veto in some quarters, we believe that the mayor has taken the proper stand. The matter can well wait until the making of the new budget the latter part of the summer and, in view of the very high and increasing cost of city government, this additional expense should certainly be avoided unless absolutely necessary to do justice to the men.

Those of us with even short memories can recall that not long ago we had the single-platoon system, with the men on duty nominally for the whole of the twenty-four hours, but permitted to have one day off in eight. The records at that time showed that in many of the outlying stations the men were actually called upon to spend in actual work a ridiculously small amount of time, although, of course, on paper the hours looked long.

The change to the two-platoon system meant such an increased expense that the city council was unwilling to authorize it and the question was submitted to a vote of the people, and, as is very likely to happen when a question of that sort is submitted to the general vote, a strong and active campaign was made for it by those having a direct interest in the result, and the general unorganized public and body of taxpayer made little or no campaign in opposition thereto. The two-platoon system carried and the fourteen and ten-hour shifts were created.

Now, while these hours would be long if the men were engaged in active labor, they are not as duous in the case of the firemen. The men on the night shift can sleep most of their time and the men on both shifts are not actively engaged any large portion of the time. We do not wish to minimize the service which the firemen render at times, dangerous as it may be and calling for unusual strength and courage but, considering the department as a whole, the high cost of government, the many demands for the city's money for other objects which cannot be denied, we believe that the situation of the firemen is not such as to call for an emergency relief in the matter of shorter hours.

The fact that the position of the firemen in the City of Seattle is not unattractive was pointed out by the mayor. It is conclusively shown by the ease with which vacancies are filled and the competition that, except for the time during the war when there was a shortage of man-power, has for a long time existed for positions in that department.

Since our last issue Mayor Caldwell has appointed James E. Blackwell as Superintendent of Buildings, and his appointment has been confirmed. Mr. Blackwell has long been an active member of the Municipal League, is a man of independence and with plenty of experience and long training which should well qualify him for the position he now fills.

LONDON AND CRIME

(Submitted to the Municipal League, March 30-1920, by Austin E. Griffiths)

The following I take from the London police report for 1919.

London's population is largely seven million.

Seattle has about three hundred thousand.

It would be interesting to compare the crime figures of the two cities for the same year.

Murders in Seattle for the year ending December 1st, 1919, were fourteen.

Murders in London in 1919 were twenty-six or one more than in 1913.

London is "wet." Seattle is "dry" or "wet" in spots as the speaker may happen to express himself.

The report is also useful as showing the initial work of police women--and the possibility of aircraft as an aid to crime.

"In February, 1919," says the report, "the experiment was made of creating a body of police women for special duties in connection with their own sex and with children. The establishment was fixed at 110, and the women were put through a course of five weeks' training, exactly on the same lines as the male recruits. Reports from the superintendent in charge of training indicate that in every case police women have proved good pupils, and as students are in no way inferior to their male colleagues. The actual work of the police women has been retarded by the failure of the contractors to provide uniforms, but enough has been seen of their work to more than justify their existence, and during the coming year it will be possible to form a decided opinion as to their permanent continuance as a portion of the Metropolitan force. Some inconvenience has been occasioned by amateur women police organizations posing as police women in the streets of London, but steps will be taken to do away with this anomaly." As indicating the amount of work done by these women officers, it is pointed out that between June and November last year they "cautioned" 9,448 persons; the police-court charges numbered 147, and no fewer than 31,173 persons were assisted.

Aircraft and Crime.

Referring to the important changes which have taken place in the Criminal Investigation Department, the suggestive and interesting announcement is made that "the possibility of the use of aircraft in carrying out certain classes of crime is receiving attention."

It is reassuring to read that "crimes of violence continue to be remarkably low, more especially when the conditions under which such large numbers of men have been living during the last five years, and the frequency of mental disturbance caused by shell shock, etc., are considered. There are only 26 cases of murder of persons over one year of age reported in 1919, as compared with 25 in 1913, whilst manslaughter, attempts to murder, wounding, etc., are actually less than in 1913. It is, perhaps, too early to form an opinion, but the figures appear to be a remarkable indication of the moral stability of the nation as a whole."

"Cases of the use of firearms by criminals have shown a tendency to increase. New legislation is anticipated with the object of regulating more strictly the sale and possession of such weapons. Certain classes of crime against property again show a considerable increase. The numbers of cases of burglary and housebreaking show little variation from those of 1913, but shopbreaking has become much more common. This is probably due largely to temporary causes; in particular, the depletion of the police force, necessitating longer beats, a condition which is rapidly improving, the scarcity and high value of certain commodities which must act as an incentive to theft, and the demobilization of men who before the war were engaged in crime and have reverted to it. A more permanent cause is the indifference of owners, who leave premises containing valuable property unattended at night, relying upon the security which insurance provides."

As to lost property, it is stated that during 1919, 55,384 articles had been deposited, of which 24, 174, of the declared value of 44, 674 lbs. sterling, have been restored to the owners.

JITNEY REGULATION AGAIN TOPIC OF DEBATE

(Reported by Eimon L. Wienir)

Resolutions for the regulation of jitney traffic offered by Jackson Silbaugh, chairman of the Public Safety committee, were debated by the League Tuesday, and referred to the Board of Trustees.

The resolution provides that "operation of the jitney as a means of conveyance on the public streets should be prohibited except where such service supplies a district not now provided with street cars" and that "the jitneys should be so regulated as to compel reasonable prices and a schedule of runs that will accommodate the people."

"Extra compensation derived from this source should be used in extending street car lines to districts now without any service, in double tracking and otherwise improving service to the outlying districts."

Fred W. Catlett pointed out that before 1922 the street railway must increase its revenue by two and one half million dollars to meet the bond issue due. "If the road isn't able to take this up, the general fund of the city will be called upon. Either the fare must be raised or other methods devised of increasing sufficient revenue," he stated, "as the economies thus far put in operation are wholly insufficient."

Isaac Cooper, speaking in favor of the proposed resolution, laid stress on the fact that other large cities of the country had increased street car fares, and such increase, plus whatever additional revenue the railway would obtain from the jitneys being put out of business would certainly help the situation, he argued.

"COME SEVEN" CLUB SUCCESSFUL

By Geo. S. Kahin.

The new membership committee of the Municipal League, the "Come Seven" Club, is rapidly developing into a well drilled and highly efficient organization. Not only has this club, within the last two weeks, secured more than seventy-five applications for membership, but the foundation has been laid for a continuous increase of the membership rolls. Every member of the committee has pledged himself to get seven new members, working with an assistant who is given credit for three. Each assistant must in turn secure four additional members.

Claude H. Anderson, chairman of the club, will render his final report to the League Tuesday, at the same time announcing his selection of a new chairman for the club. Mr. Anderson will also bring to the attention of the League recommendations of the committee relative to making the club a permanent feature of the League's activities.

In the meanwhile applications for membership in the club will be entertained. A number of additional speakers, to be known as "Seven Minute Men," are also needed to present the aims and objects of the League to other organizations. It is hoped that those who desire to serve in this manner will communicate with the secretary.

Among the organizations addressed by the members of the "Come Seven" club was the Young Men's Business Club of Rainier Valley. Not only were five new memberships obtained at this meeting but the "Seven Minute Man" received the following note from the secretary of the

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE APPROVES MUNICIPAL LEAGUE WORK

The Board of Trustees of the Chamber of Commerce at its meeting of last Tuesday voted in favor of a motion that the trustees approve the work of the Municipal League "in the interest of economy, good citizenship and good government.

This action was taken following a statement made by L. D. Lewis, a member of the Board of Trustees of the League, in which he outlined the aims of the League and some of the problems to which the League will address itself in the immediate future.

Responding to an invitation issued by the Chamber of Commerce, President James W. Reynolds has appointed a committee of the Municipal League to the Know Your Schools Club of the Chamber of Commerce. The committee consists of:

Fred W. Catlett, L. D. Lewis, Robert F. Sandall, Jackson A. Silbaugh, and Eimon L. Wiener.

TAKES EXCEPTION

Editor Municipal News, Seattle.
 Dear Sir:

One of your last issues contained a communication from Mr. La Grave regarding a statement said to have emanated from the State Auditor's office, regarding state finances. The communication was so singular that I wrote to the Auditor regarding it. I enclose copy of his reply, which in justice to him should be reproduced or summarized in one of your early issues.

In this connection, I will say that I consider that the tax situation in this state is reaching a very serious stage, and that organizations such as the Municipal League should be carefully considering what steps must be taken to prevent taxation reaching the point of confiscation, which it has already very nearly done.

Very truly yours,
 E. SHORROCK.

April 23, 1920.

STATE OF WASHINGTON
 AUDITOR'S OFFICE,
 OLYMPIA.

Mr. E. Shorrock, President & Manager, Northwest Trust & Savings Bank, Seattle, Wash.
 Dear Sir:

We are in receipt of yours of the 21st enclosing a clipping from the Seattle Municipal News and asking if the same is correct. In reply will say that we are enclosing you two statements, one prepared by this Bureau after the legislature adjourned showing the amount of appropriations made and the estimated revenues to meet the same. On page 3 of the pamphlet marked "A" is shown the total appropriations from the general fund of the state, made by the legislature, to have been $10,561,000.42. The available revenues to meet these appropriations during the biennium, consisted of estimated receipts from the different departments of $3,232,200.00; cash in the treasury less outstanding warrants $418,372.71; cash in the hands of county treasurers April 1st, $719,735.73 and uncollected taxes $1,133,515.00.

The maximum levy that could be made for 1919 was three mills on an estimated valuation of $1,050,000,000.00 producing $3,150,000.00 which would leave a deficit at the end of this biennium of $1,907,176.89. In other words, if the appropriations are all spent on April 1st, next, and all outstanding taxes are collected, there will be this deficit at the end of the biennium. That was the situation when the legislature last adjourned, but unfortunately the late Governor insisted on cutting down the requests of the penal and eleemosynary institutions to such an extent that we the raise in cost of materials, supplies and salaries and the increased number of inmates, every one of these institutions will face a deficit at the end of this year.

Also the five higher educational institutions found themselves confronted with largely increased attendance and demands from their employees for increases in salaries to meet the increased cost of living. These deficits were estimated by the heads of these departments at $1,208,579.7 to complete the biennium April 1st. A copy of these estimates is continued in Exhibit "B" herewith enclosed.

In going over the different appropriations made for other departments, however, and through the efforts of the Governor to reduce the deficit, we find that approximately $500,000.00 of the $10,561,000.00 appropriated will possibly revert April 1st. That would leave the net deficit $1,407,176.89 but the uncollected taxes average about $1,133,515.00 so that to keep the treasury on a cash basis, we must add those taxes to the deficit, after we have deducted them in the first place, as an asset available against the appropriations. The result of this would show treasury deficit April 1st of $2,540,691.98. Now add to this the 749,271.35 treasury deficit to be taken care of during the next biennium.

It can easily be seen that without taking into consideration an increase in the appropriation for the next biennium, three mills each year, which would only produce approximately $605,000.00 in the two years would not take care of the appropriations for the next biennium and wipe out this deficit. Therefore, it was recommended to the legislature that the old maximum limit of three mills for general fund purposes be raised to five. This does not mean the legislature has levied five mills. The legislature levies no taxes. They only fix a maximum within which the state board of Equalization will make a levy to take care of the appropriations to be made by the next legislature, and whatever deficiencies appear at that time.

Thanking you for your kind consideration in sending us the clipping, we remain,

Yours very truly,

C. W. CLAUSEN,

Chief Inspector

(Signed) JAMES F. LEHIGH

BALLARD HAS COMMUNITY PAGEANT

Local Newspapers have recently carried stories of a big community enterprise which culminated in an artistic dramatic production called the "Ballard Community Pageant." This event was staged in the auditorium reports state, was all too small the Ballard High School, which to accommodate the large crowd that turned out to witness the production. Though the theme of the pageant was cleverly woven around the community life of Ballard, and presented in a clear cut visualization not only a picture of early days and pioneer struggles, but present day tendencies, and the many opportnities which now are offered to the youth of today. The actors in the huge entertainment numbered six hundred and fifty and in themselves would comprise a good sized village. They were drawn from the various walks of life in Ballard and represented business, social, educational, recreational, and the other aspects of modern life in a well organized suburban community. The barest thread of a plot running through the many episodes served to tie the events together and to sustain the element of dramatic interest which kept the two thousand spectators in their seats until the final curtain.

It was a very definite and concrete demonstration of what a community of people can do in their own neighborhood to provide wholesome entertainment for a great mixed gathering of young and old.

Ballard Citizens expressed public appreciation to Seattle Community Service, which made this activity possible. The Community Service Organizers helped the people to recruit their neighborhood resources and directed the rehearsals and the production of the pageant.

"The jitney is a vampire. It is getting business that rightfully belongs to the street railway, and we ought not to permit it."

Austin E. Griffiths, re-emphasized some of the arguments he made at the League's last meeting, and stated further that "the only justification for regulation is that it is good for the business sought to be regulated." He cited many historical instances of opposition to new modes of transportation and concluded by saying that, "it is the constitutional right of individuals to choose their own method of transportation."

George S. Kahin and Walter S. Johnson spoke in favor of the resolution.

Why did you tell him you had to go to the dressing room for some cold cream? asked the chaperone.

I had to do something to get the chap off my hands, answered the Flirt.

FIRE PREVENTION EXPLAINED BY SHIVELY

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Two addresses, marked with fervor and surpassing sincerity were delivered before the Municipal League at its Tuesday's meeting. J. H. Shively, formerly State Insurance Commissioner, and at present publicity director of the National Association for Fire Prevention, spoke on the work of that organization and Dr. Wm. N. Van Patten of the State Health Department urged the passage of J. D. Blackwell's resolution calling for the reinstatement of the appropriation for special hygiene work.

"The call of the flag was not silenced when the Armistice was signed. Never was a time more necessary for the exercise of high citizenship and patriotism than now," declared Shively.

Speaking of the difficulty of arousing interest in fire prevention, Mr. Shively said: "No one is active in opposition, but all have the 'prejudice of indifference' - to paraphrase Dr. Suzzalo - can account for this indifference on the following grounds:

"The American people are so accustomed to fires that they accept them as a matter of course. Fires, they believe, must be looked after by the fire departments at the time they occur, and by the insurance companies afterwards in adjusting the losses. They forget that even when insurance companies pay the total loss, the fact nevertheless remains that the accumulated energy and value represented by the property is a loss to the city.

"The American people can not be moved by mere citations of property loss. They are used to hearing large figures quoted that 50 to 300 millions of dollars lost

DEAN STEPHEN I. MILLER WILL ADDRESS LEAGUE AT ANNUAL MEETING

Monday, May 24th, 6:30 P. M. is the time that has been set for the annual meeting and banquet of the Municipal League. And the Hotel Washington Annex is the place that has been selected. Election of officers will precede the dinner which will be featured not only by excellent food but by a splendid program.

Dean Stephen I. Miller, of the University of Washington will make the address of the evening, taking as his subject, "Problems for the Municipal League."

Alexander Myers is in charge of the music and the membership may look forward with pleasure to that end of the program.

The President's report, an address from the new president, and the induction of many new members will be other features.

It is urged upon you to reserve a plate for the banquet immediately as the caterer must know the approximate number of guests in advance. Please phone the Secretary, Main 476.

Following J. D. Blackwell, who introduced a resolution urging our Senators in Congress to aid in reinstating appropriation items for the interdepartmental social hygiene board, Dr. Van Patten of the State Board of Health, pointed out the grave need for funds to carry on the work against social diseases.

"We are fighting an old enemy," stated Dr. Van Patten. "In 1917, alone, 200,000 persons died of syphilis. Most of the inmates of our insane asylums and 15 percent of the prisoners in our penitentiaries are there because of that disease.

Dr. Van Patten quoted figures to show that the state and nation spend millions each year in caring for those afflicted with the disease, and argued that an ap-

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The attention of all members of the League is again called to the annual meeting at the Washington Annex, Monday, May 24th, at 6:30 P. M. Let's get together and have an evening of civic discussion as we used to have in the days before the war drew the attention of most of us away from civic matters. If you can go, get your ticket at once from the secretary or one of the trustees.

The school board has adopted finally a schedule of teachers' salaries which grants an increase of $240.00 a year to each teacher, except to those now drawing a maximum, and they will receive an increase of $300.00. Mr. Cooper has recommended a salary schedule providing for an increase in approximately double the amount granted, but the majority of the school board felt it unwise to submit to the voters a proposed levy larger than that necessary to pay the schedule adopted. The board is authorized to levy to the amount of ten mills without the necessity of any special vote. The expenses of the schools for the next year will require a levy of sixteen and a half mills, and the proposal to levy the additional six and a half mills will be submitted to the voters on June 15th.

The time for discussion of the schedule of salaries is now past and it is the duty of all friends of the public schools to endeavor to minimize any ill effect of the lower schedule, to do everything possible to induce the teachers to accept the result, and to use every effort to secure the approval of the voters to the proposed increase in levy. The agitation which has occurred will undoubtedly result in further investiga-

Mayor Caldwell has this week appointed Captain W. H. Searing in place of Joel Warren, who has served two years and a half. It has been quite apparent for some time that Chief Warren did not have the confidence of the mayor, and the appointment of Captain Searing was by no means unexpected.

Since our last comment in these columns upon the proposed jitney regulation and the finances of the street railway very important developments have taken place, and they have been quite in line with our contentions.

The city treasurer precipitated action by announcing that he would have to put the street railway fund upon a warrant basis unless radical steps were taken to increase the receipts. The fund was already overdrawn more than $300,000 and the overdraft would apparently reach $500,000 by the first of June. The mayor and city council immediately met in conference on the question and decided to pass the ordinance regulating the jitneys. This was not precisely the same ordinance which we discussed previously, but had been modified in important particulars. The jitney drivers maintained that the ordinance would put the jitneys out of business, since it provided for licenses for jitney operators and left the matter of issuing the licenses to the discretion of the superintendent of public utilities. Acting under the terms of the ordinance the superintendent of public utilities fixed Thursday at five o'clock as the time limit for the filing of applications for licenses, if the jitneys wished to continue to operate. Only five applications from regular jitney drivers were received. Instead, almost at the last minute the attorneys for the jitney drivers filed an application for a temporary restraining order in the Federal Court.

At the same time that it was agreed to pass the jitney ordinance it was also agreed to give Superintendent Henderson a free hand in enforcing economies and restricting service. The mayor and superintendent were quoted to the effect that the time had not yet come for an increase in fares. Since that time however, sentiment in favor of an increase has been growing. No one wants an increase of fare, if it can be avoided, but the existing financial situation of the road is an emergency situation and its solution cannot be delayed much longer. As we suggested previously, it would seem to be the wiser plan to take the course which will certainly place the system upon a paying basis, and then, if an increase of income results from economies or jitney regulation, and it is found that the revenues exceed the expenses, the fares can easily be reduced to the proper level.

The press reports that several of the council favor a seven-cent fare and figures have been prepared by Mr. Henderson estimating the receipts from such seven-cent fare. The principle lines should not only pay their own way, but be prepared to pay the installments which will begin to fall due in 1922 upon the principal of the bonds issued for the purchase of the road. We had supposed that this principle was generally accepted to be the sound and only fair one, but its fairness has been challenged by Mr. Erickson and Mayor Caldwell.

Mr. Erickson says frankly that he will fight to retain the five-cent fare, irrespective of consequences, and that the deficit should be paid out of the general fund. The mayor takes a middle ground and will not oppose raising the fares to six cents. Such a raise, it is estimated, will not enable the lines to pay expenses and accumulate a sufficient sum to pay the installments upon the principal. The mayor says that he thinks it only fair that the installments on the principal should be paid out of the general fund.

This radical difference of opinion as to the proper basis for the regulation of municipal street railway finances requires a thorough and outspoken discussion of the matter at once. We believe that the position taken by the mayor and Mr. Erickson is wrong in principle. The general taxes are paid by the owners of real and personal property in the city and largely by the owners of real property. A certain portion of real property owners who rent their properties may be able to pass on increased taxes to their tenants, but the great majority of us who own our own homes are not able to pass on any portion of the tax, and we therefore bear it. The mayor's theory seems to be that this group should pay for the street railway property, because either it is the group which bought it, or it is the group which will own it when it is paid for. The mere statement of the position shows its unsoundness. It is neither the group which bought it nor the group which will own it when it is acquired. The property owned by the city is the property of every citizen, whether he happens to be himself a property owner and tax payer or not.

Again, the street railway lines were no more bought by the taxpayers of the city than by the non-taxpayers; in fact, if the vote could be segregated there is little question but what a larger proportion of the favorable votes were cast by individuals paying absolutely no taxes.

There is this further fact. The lines were paid for by bonds secured by the utility itself, and the lines were purchased upon the express statement, made many times by the responsible officials of the city government, that they would be paid for out of the earnings of the utility and would not be any burden upon the general fund or the general taxpayers. Any change of opinion now on the part of the city is nothing less than a fraud upon the general taxpayers. The people felt at the time of the vote and, many of them at least, feel now that the fair way to pay for the municipal lines is to let the users of the lines pay for them. When the lines are owned by the city, although theoretically the property of every citizen in the city, in fact the beneficial use of that property belongs to those who ride in the street cars. If the street car users pay for the lines, then they pay in proportion to the use which they actually make of them and thus in proportion to the service which they receive at the hands of the city, and this would still seem to be the just method.

The mayor's proposal is wrong in any event, because it forgets that the general fund is by no means scathless, even though not called upon to pay the principal of the bonds. The general taxpayers have had to make good out of their pockets for the losses in general taxes upon the street railway, which taxes were previously paid by the company, for the lost two per cent of the gross profits of the company, for the lost contributions to the maintenance of certain bridges and the lost expenditures of the company for paving between the tracks. This list may not comprehend all the losses of the general fund but those losses mount into very large figures. General taxes in this city have already become a distinct menace to our future prosperity. They ought not to be increased beyond the point now reached, and when an occasion arises where the expense cannot only be raised in other fashion, but on sound principles and in justice and in fairness ought to be raised in the other fashion, then the taxpayers of this city should rise up in defense of the general fund.

HYGIENE APROPRIATION URGED

propriation by Congress would materially aid in preventing the spread and contraction of the disease.

The resolution was passed by unanimous vote and telegrams were sent by the League to Senators Jones and Poindexter urging them to aid in reinstating the appropriation items for the work.

annually in fires mean next to nothing to them.

"But remember the casualty list! 12,000 people in this country are burned to death each year! And the pity of it is that 85 per cent of the fires are preventable.

"939 fires in 24 Pacific Coast cities occurred because of the indifference of cigar and cigarette smokers. 735 fires occurred on this coast because of the fact that parents allowed their children to play with matches.

That a great proportion of fires occur because of egotism - "I can do what is dangerous with safety though somebody else can not" - was another assertion made by the speaker. "Unapplied knowledge" and the "unseeing eye" - "no co-ordination between the eye and the hand" - were other causes given.

Mr. Shively concluded by pleading for a universal study of fire hazards and greater carefulness on the part of our citizenship.

"Waiter," asked the impatient customer, "do you call this an oyster stew?"

"Yessuh," replied the negro waiter.

"Why, the oyster in this stew isn't big enough to flavor it."

"He wasn't put in to flavor it, sir. He is jes' supposed to christen it."

"PROBLEMS FOR THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE"

DEAN MILLER

By Eimon L. Wienir

"It is through organization that American democracy is going to be redeemed; we are ceasing to be so individualistic and are becoming more co-operative in government," stated Dean Miller.

"One of the greatest weaknesses in American civic government lies in the administration of the law. The spirit of the frontier with its highly developed individualism on the one hand and the heavy mixture of population on the other is responsible for this. But the newspapers, movies, and our modern system of transportation and communication all tend to overcome this weakness. Ideals, today, move rapidly.

"There is scarcely a city in the country that begins to create a scientific budget. Yet a budget would greatly help to check extravagant expenditures and would put our civic governments on a business basis.

"Improvements would never be undertaken in good times when the city must compete with industry in paying high prices for labor and material. It is when hard times strike us that we should undertake improvements; for then do we not only pay less for them but we furnish work when work is needed most.

The Municipal League ought to be a clearing house for all civic organizations in the city, declared Dean Miller.

"The League should encourage and bring out good men for public office. Men who are making a fight for better govern-

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

In the belief that the most important matter before the city at the present time for determination is the proper basis upon which street car fares should be fixed, the League has arranged for a public discussion, under its auspices, at the Masonic Club Rooms in the Arcade Building, in the very near future, date to be announced later.

Councilmen Thomson and Erickson, Mayor Caldwell, former Superintendent of Public Utilities Thomas F. Murphine and Mr. Henderson will speak. A committee of the League has been appointed to investigate the question, to be present at this public meeting, which will be in the nature of a hearing, and to report to the League its findings and conclusions on the question. If there is time after the main speeches, the subject will be thrown open to public discussion for a short time.

It is not intended that any action should be taken at the meeting, nor will any action be in order. Care should also be exercised to concentrate the discussion upon the real question under investigation; that is, the proper basis for the fixing of the street car fares. The discussion will be useless if it is permitted to degenerate into a political discussion of how economies might have been made or should have been made which would have rendered any raise unnecessary.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The city faces a practical situation. The city lines have run and are running rapidly behind and the situation is so bad that it is very generally conceded that fares must either be raised or the general fund must pay the deficit. The real question at issue at the present time is whether the fares should be raised to such a point that the income of the road will pay not only the running expenses, but also the principal payments on the bonds issued for the purchase of the road, or the general fund be called upon to pay all of the deficit now accumulating or at least the principal payments upon the bonds.

Mr. Erickson proposes to keep the fare as it is and let the general fund take care not only of the deficit for operating expenses, but also the payments on the principal of the bonds. The mayor proposes such an increase of fare as will enable the road to pay operating expenses, but nothing on the principal of the bonds. Mr. Thomson proposes a fare which will enable the road to pay operating expenses and all proper charges and also the principal payments on the bonds, as they fall due.

Under no one of these proposals will the general fund be free from a very large contribution to the municipal street railway. This involuntary contribution occurs because of the lost taxes and payments which the private company previously made, but which the municipality does not have to make, and also the cost of certain services to the municipality which were previously furnished without cost to the citizens by the private company. We have never seen an accurate statement of these amounts, and if any of our readers can furnish such a statement, we would be glad to have it. We have been informed, however, that the total is around $1,000,000.00 a year. In any event, the contribution from the general fund at the present time is very substantial. The concrete question at the present time is, therefore, whether the contribution from the general fund shall be increased by $833,000.00 a year, as proposed by Mayor Caldwell, or by from a million and a quarter to a million and a half, as proposed by Mr. Erickson. The discussion next Thursday ought to help to form public sentiment aright with reference to the settlement of this question.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

The annual meeting of the League held on the 24th was distinctly encouraging. The League membership has increased during the year and its activities have strengthened and widened. The attendance was gratifyingly large and of high quality.

The success of the meeting raised the question in the minds of the trustees as to whether more frequent evening meetings might not be desirable. The noons are becoming overcrowded and the time permissible for the presentation of a subject or for debate is so short that it frequently proves wholly unsatisfactory.

If any members have suggestions along this line, the trustees will be glad to consider them.

Our interest in the question of street railway fares should not prevent us from doing our part in securing the approval of the voters to the proposed increased levy for school purposes. There has been no opposition voiced in the press, but one hears it occasionally on the street.

Recent statements given out by Superintendent Cooper and Mr. Shorrock of the school board have caused some confusion of mind. The conflict in the statements was more apparent than real. Mr. Cooper's statement pointed out that approximately one-third of this increased levy over last year's levy was for the salary increases given to the teachers this year. Mr. Shorrock pointed out that a very considerable proportion of the 6.5 mill increased levy went to pay increases in teachers' salaries, the increases occurring, however, last year and this. As we read the statements, both are accurate, but are saying different things.

Neither statement, however, furnishes any argument against the passage of the proposed levy. Teachers' salaries were increased last year and have been increased again this year. The teachers did not obtain anything like what they desired, and, although there is a difference of opinion, as to whether they should have had more, there is practically no difference of opinion that even with the increase of this year they are not getting too much.

A failure to approve the increased levy would make it almost impossible to operate the schools. This year the levy authorized was 13.5 mills and a failure to approve the proposed levy will limit the school board to ten mills. Operation of the school on the ten-mill basis seems almost inconceivable.

Consequently, in spite of the high tax rate, we think no one should contemplate a rejection of the proposal presented to the voters on June 15th.

* * *

At its meeting last Wednesday the council utilities and finance committees approved an increase of lighting rates, averaging about twenty per cent, and an increase in the monthly minimum charge from fifty to seventy-five cents.

These increases are made necessary by the advancing cost of production, particularly the increased cost of fuel oil. It is estimated that the increases will produce an additional revenue of $300,000.00.

In pursuance of his announced policy of investigating the traction deal, Mayor Caldwell directed a letter to Corporation Counsel Meier asking whether there was anything which the city could do. Mr. Meier has replied advising that there are two things which the city might do if the facts justified action, but saying that he is without such facts and that the mayor has given him none.

If there is anything in the way of fraud or misrepresentation in connection with the sale, we should be glad to have it disclosed and Mr. Meier suggests that the way to go about it is to take the statements of the mayor, councilmen and other responsible city officials in office at that time. Mr. Caldwell himself, was Corporation Counsel during the early period of the negotiations and during the time when the misrepresentations were probably made, if made, for, according to his own statement, he resigned on the day when the city's offer was made, which offer was later accepted by the company.

So far no evidence whatever has been suggested publicly constituting fraud or misrepresentation.

Edith and Flora were spending their vacation in the country.

"Do you know," said Edith "that young farmer tried to kiss me. He told me that he had never kissed any girl before."

"What did you tell him?" asked Flora.

"Why," replied Edith, "I told him I was no agriculture experiment station."

ANNUAL DINNER GREAT SUCCESS

By Eimon L. Wiener

The annual meeting of the League last Monday evening at The Washington Hotel Annex was a huge success from every standpoint. Not since before the war has the membership turned out as they did Monday night. Featured by an able address from Dean Stephen I. Miller, extemporaneous addressess by seven past presidents of the League, an address of welcome to new members by Edgar J. Wright and a most excellent musical selections by the University Church quartet the program went off with a dash that was truly inspiring.

James T. Lawler won the presidency from Carl J. Smith by a close margin of votes. Malcolm Douglas and Frank P. Helsell were elected vice-presidents. The following trustees were elected:

Edw. W. Allen, Howard A. Adams, A. H. Albertson, Geo. S. Kahin, Robert F. Sandall, and Jackson A. Silbaugh.

A. F. Bailey was elected treasurer to succeed Alexander Myers.

ment should be supported by it. Other reforms urged by Dean Miller were scientific management of cities, the establishment of a Municipal research bureau by the League and an employment supervisor for city employees to bring out initiative, recommend promotions when due, and eliminate waste in departments.

Other things Dean Miller said, were:

"Modern government must hurry along to keep up with modern business."

"We have a long ways to go yet in order to make government truly representative."

"The term professional politician" is a misnomer; for professional embraces the idea of a trained mind, public service, and pride in its work. It is manifest that the politician today as we know him is not professional.

"We must give due credit to and speak laudably of good officials whenever and wherever possible."

OPPORTUNITY IN THE PHILLIPINES FOR SEATTLE

Reported by Eimon L. Weinir.

Emphasizing the fact that the Phillipine trade with the United States could be increased to a billion dollars annually, and that Seattle has a tremendous opportunity to share in this trade, Paul P. Whitham, United States trade commissioner, delivered an address Tuesday on "Manila as a Commercial Base" at a luncheon before the League.

Foreign trade of the islands amounts to $235,000,000 a year, 62 percent of which is with the United States, declared Mr. Whitham. This represents, he said, but the bare touching of the islands' potentialities.

Of prime importance in development, he went on, is the enlarging of the existing wharf and terminal facilities, particularly in Manila; and he asserted it is up to America to assist in this as future trade will be more or less directly in proportion to the extent of this help.

The Phillipine authorities, he said, had already authorized a bond issue of $10,000,000 to relieve the congestion in Manila harbor, intended to show America its good faith.

Not exploitation but the conservation and promotion of the best interests of the Phillipines was the policy America has pursued and should pursue in the future, he declared.

The Orient likes American methods of doing business, and particularly our policy of keeping an "open door"—of giving a free and equal opportunity for all.

The Islands should support a population of forty millions; now they have but ten millions. The Public Hearing on Increase of Street Car Fare to be held at Masonic Club Rooms, Evening of June 11

J. D. ROSS, Superintendent of City Lighting Department, will address the Municipal League Tuesday Noon, June 8, on "The Proposed Tunnel Under Cedar Lake"

MEVES CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA

The public meeting to be held under League auspices to discuss the proper basis for street car fares, originally scheduled for June 3rd, has been postponed to Friday, June 11th at the Masonic Club Hall in the Arcade Annex at eight o'clock P. M.

Councilman Thompson and Erickson will be present in person and Mayor Caldwell will send a communication. It is expected that Mr. Henderson and former Superintendent Murphine and two or three citizens will also appear on the speaking program. After the set program has been finished the question will be thrown open to discussion for a short time, the speeches being limited to three minutes each and of necessity confined strictly to the particular subject under discussion.

An invitation is extended to all citizens, whether members of the League or not, to be present.

THE CITY RAILWAY

By C. A. La Grave.

The Expenses of the City Railway for operation, maintenance and interest for the four months ending April 30th last, was $2,081,183.89. Receipts for the same term were $1,741,100.67.

On this basis the Expense for the year will be$6,243,551.67
And the receipts 5,223,302.01

Showing a loss of $1,020,249.66

This is exclusive of bond redemption, depreciation or other items which must be provided for in the near future. The addition of $833,000—to the operating loss for bond redemption totals $1,850,000 which must be met by an increase of revenues or a reduction of expenses.

Now, for the remedy:

There is no possibility of a reduction of expense to meet any great part of the deficit. An increase of revenue can be

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

Interest at the present time is centered upon the steps being taken to secure an investigation of the traction deal. Mayor Caldwell in a letter to the city council requested the council to instruct the corporation counsel to make an investigation. Councilman Moore introduced an ordinance appropriating $5000 for an investigation by the mayor. At a meeting of the meeting of the Public Utilities Committee, attended by Mr. Moore and Mr. Tindall, the letter of the mayor was placed on file, and the amount to be appropriated for the investigation was increased to $10,000, which was to be turned over to the mayor in cash, "relieving him of accounting for the expenditures made until after the investigation is completed." The committee expressed itself as being opposed to having the corporation counsel mixed up in the investigation in any other way than as the city's advisor.

The reason for this view was not stated. We think, however, there is a very good reason for not placing the investigation entirely in the hands of the corporation counsel, and that is that the corporation counsel lacks power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents, and would thus be considerably handicapped in getting at the facts, and particularly facts and records possessed by the traction company.

We favor a thorough investigation of the traction deal. So far as we have heard and read, no facts have been stated tending to show either fraud in the consummation of the deal or graft or dishonesty on the part of any city official. There has been nothing except suspicion of the wildest sort all too prevalent in our municipal life and thoroughly reprehensible. But, although so far as has yet appeared, the suspicion has no foundation in fact, still it is worth a reasonable cost to make a thorough probe of the matter to discover any fraud or dishonesty, if it existed, and, if not, to satisfy the minds of many reasonable people in doubt that there was no such fraud or dishonesty. We hope, also that the probe will be not only thorough but immediate, so that this issue may be out of the way and the city officials be free to take up the problems of street railway operation without that element of uncertainty now existing in the situation.

The mayor has asked the corporation counsel as to the legality of the payment by the general fund of the principal payment due upon bonds for the purchase of the traction system, due annually, beginning in 1922. So far we have not heard that any opinion has been rendered.

We believe that, were it not for the provision, inserted after considerable discussion, making the bonds a first lien upon the gross earnings of the road which provision automatically throws the burden of any deficit in maintenance and operation upon the general fund, there would be little doubt of the illegality of any attempt to pay out of the general funds these obligations secured only by the utility.

Whether the provision inserted should alter our conclusion, we are not prepared to say. We have no doubt that the legality of any such payment will be thoroughly tested in court if it be attempted. We are prepared to re-affirm what we have previously asserted that, even if not strictly legal, such a procedure would be immoral and a positive fraud upon the general taxpayers of the city, for the reason that the lines were bought upon the express understanding that the road would be paid for out of its own earnings and would not be a burden to the general fund.

The suggestion has come from one of our members that the tenor of the comment in these columns for the past three or four weeks has been unfriendly to municipal ownership. The truth is quite the contrary. We have been contending merely for a fair and sane administration of the finances of our municipal lines, so that it might not be possible for outsiders to point to municipal ownership in Seattle as the classical example of how municipal ownership has been tried and failed. The City of Seattle has embarked upon the largest experiment in municipal ownership and operation yet attempted in this country, and we hope to see it succeed but it cannot succeed if not administered on sound principles and without consideration of political expediency.

So the doctor told you to go to a warmer climate. What was the nature of the trouble you consulted him about?

I went there to collect a bill.

OUR MUNICIPAL STREET CAR SYSTEM

By John Eddy Franklin

The purchase of the street car system was justified even at an extortionate price. A rapidly growing city cannot afford a complete break down of its rapid transit facilities. We were on the eve of this experience and there was no choice save to buy out the company at the lowest price it would accept.

Moreover the experience of every large city has proven that the private corporation—greedy for gain—neither fears God nor regards man. It never observes franchise obligations and is always a corrupting influence in city politics.

Whether the street cars have made expenses during the past year cannot be determined by any formula of accounting or other tests yet suggested. If the bond interest and operating expenses have been paid and the track and equipment are in as good condition as a year ago the street car system has been self-supporting, otherwise it has not. It is not true to say that the street railway system lost money if it has not also accumulated a fund to retire purchase price bonds. No private corporation ever figures in this way. When a bonded debt comes due it is always refunded—not paid. Ultimately our street cars ought to accumulate some profit to pay on the purchase price bonds but he would be a fool to expect such an outcome this past year with all operating expenses and maintenance charges greatly increased and with fares remaining as heretofore.

It is absurd to say that the life of a street car system is only twenty five years and that it then has practically no value. That therefore in addition to expenses and maintenance it must accumulate funds to amortize its original cost; that if it cannot do this it is really a losing proposition.

The fact is no street car system is either built or operated on the idea that it has a limited life.

The ordinary maintenance charged out of the income takes care of renewals of cars—ties—rails and other equipment so that any well operated street car system is worth as much at the end of twenty five or thirty years as it was the day it was completed. It is usually worth more, for in renewing its equipment it has gotten improved cars and has put down heavier rails and better ties.

With abnormal expenses to meet the street car system must have greater revenue or become an unfair burden on the tax payer. To my mind the logical thing to do is not to raise fares but to abolish transfers. By this course the income will be greatly increased. Every street car manager knows that a large item in the expense of operating and maintenance both of track and cars is stopping and starting. It consumes time; it grinds the track; it racks the equipment. This service is performed twice for the man who takes a transfer and why should he not pay more than the man who does not exact this double service.

secured by:

1. A zone system which seems to be the best and fairest plan.

2. A flat increase of fare to 7c—assuming that there would be no loss of business therefrom there would be an increase of receipts for the year of $2,089,000—or $239,000 more than the deficit.

3. A tax levy of approximately 8 mills to meet the current deficit for the year. In view of the fact that there is already in sight a great increase over last year's tax levy this alternative should not be considered.

There will be in addition to the foregoing a deficit at June 10th when the City Treasurer stops paying warrants of approximately $800,000, made up of overdraft, warrants outstanding, unaudited, claims and pay rolls, and unless this is provided for at once the finances of the Railway will be in a desperate condition immediately after June 10th.

I have not taken into account any provision for a depreciation reserve which should be provided for but is too heavy a load to handle at present.

Some desks would make a good golf course—plenty of 19th holes.

'Ring Out Wild Bells' will now lose its popularity at 3:10.

OPPORTUNITY IN THE PHILIPPINES FOR SEATTLE

Filipinos, themselves, favor the importation of labor to develop the islands, but are inclined to have the federal government and commercial interests of America carry on further improvements. "We didn't get a 'lemon' when we secured the Philippines; neither did we spend our money in developing them. On the contrary, we spent their money in building roads, schools, etc. It can be truly said that they developed themselves, under American guidance" concluded Mr. Whitham.

STATES POSITION ON CAR FARE INCREASE

June 8th, 1920.

Mr. James T. Lawler,
President Municipal League,
Seattle, Washington.

Dear Sir:-

I am in receipt of your letter of June 1st, advising me that a discussion of the Street Car situation will be held by the Municipal League on the evening of June the 11th. As I will not be able to be present at such meeting I am submitting the following statement for your information and consideration.

At a meeting in my office on the 7th inst. seven out of the eight councilmen now in the city voted to pass an ordinance raising the street car fare to seven cents, with certain modifications, and providing for the sale of tokens or tickets. I decided to sign such an ordinance if passed, and my reasons for doing so are hereinafter set out.

While at a formal meeting in my office, at which this matter was discussed with the City Council and Advisory Committee, I made the proposal for discussion that we might consider the advisability of paying the installments on the principal as they became due out of the General Fund, which would probably require an authorizing vote of the people, I have concluded for the following reasons that the necessary funds should be raised by increasing the rates of fare.

(1) In the first place, the holders of the fifteen million dollars of bonds must look to the receipts from the operation of the street cars. I am unwilling to place these bond holders in any better position than they now are. Should we undertake to transfer

THE SCHOOL ELECTION

By Fred W. Catlett.

Of primary importance this coming week will be the school election on Tuesday, when the voters will have presented to them the question whether the school board shall be permitted to levy an additional tax of 6 and one-half mills for school purposes.

It is difficult for us to see how there can be two opinions upon this matter. The increased levy must either be voted, or the schools must be operated during the coming year upon a ten mill levy. As the board has had great difficulty in keeping the school expenses this present year within the 13 and one-half mill levy authorized last year, one can readily imagine the situation which would develop if the increased levy should fail.

In spite of our very large tax rate, the increased school expense is a necessity, or should be regarded as a necessity which cannot be avoided. The teachers are entitled to the increase which has been granted them, and, although they have been disappointed in not receiving as large an increase as they hoped for, it nevertheless seems probable that the great majority of them will loyally accept the salary schedule as fixed by the board and will remain with the schools. It has been said that if the levy did not pass, more than three hundred of the teaching force, in addition to the normal number of withdrawals, would resign from the service. Such resignations as will occur on that account will very likely be from the most energetic and efficient teachers in our schools and Seattle cannot afford to have such withdrawals occur.

Make it a point to see that you and your family vote early on Tuesday and show enough interest in the matter to speak to or call up half a dozen of your friends and urge them to vote.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

The mass meeting scheduled by the League for June 11th was given up as soon as it appeared that the mayor and city council had determined to raise the fares upon the street railway lines to seven cents. This decision has been criticised on the ground that it is but a temporary solution, as the rate will not supply sufficient funds to pay running expenses, provide for the payment of the principal of the bonds and also provide for desirable extensions and improvements, but we are inclined to think that it is a reasonable settlement of the fare situation.

No one can forecast with accuracy just what the increase in income will be from the advanced fare. According to the estimate made by Mr. Henderson that fare should produce a small surplus above expenses and the necessities of the payments on the principal. In addition, Mr. Henderson may be able to save some further amount by economies and the jitney regulations which have been recently announced will almost entirely eliminate the jitney as a competitor of the street railway, thus increasing the revenue of the latter. A letter written by the mayor for presentation at this meeting is reprinted elsewhere in our columns and states very adequate grounds, we think for the proposed increase.

An additional reply to the criticism previously voiced is that it is not likely that a majority of the legislative body could have been brought to a larger fare than seven cents, and it is certainly not yet clearly apparent that any larger fare will be necessary.

council that a commission be appointed to make a survey of conditions at Cedar Falls and formulate a plan for developing the city's Hydro electric plant there. One of the duties of this commission would undoubtedly be to examine carefully into the proposal made by Superintendent Ross and detailed and illustrated by him at our meeting last Tuesday. The mayor's suggestion would seem to be the sensible one.

* * *

The regulations prepared by Major Reeves, the Superintendent of Public Utilities, governing jitney operation in the future will eliminate the jitneys from the down-town streets and along the tracks of the municipal street railway, except for small distances. The down-town terminus of the Broadway, Capital Hill and Cowen Park Lines is fixed at Seventh Avenue between Olive and Stewart; that of the East Union and East Madison lines at Ninth Avenue between Hubbell Place and Pike Street; the Phinney Avenue and Fremont-Ballard lines at Fifth avenue between Stewart and Virginia Streets; the Alki and Gatewood lines at King Street between First Avenue South and Occidental Avenue; and the Rainier Valley and 31st and Jackson St. lines at Main Street between Fourth and Fifth Avenues. Each jitney would follow a specified route and operate on a specified time schedule and increased service would be provided during the peak hours.

These regulations are undoubtedly stringent and will cut off so much of the traffic that we do not see how jitneys operation can be profitably continued.

* * *

We notice that petitions are now in circulation in the City of Everett for signatures, requesting a special election for the selection of fifteen freeholders to prepare a new charter for submission to the voters. It is said that the movement is sponsored by those who desire a change from the present commission form to the old mayor and ward council form, with possible provisions for the appointment of a city manager.

MAYOR CALDWELL STATES POSITION ON CAR FARE INCREASE

the payment of the principal as an obligation on the General Fund, it would make the bonds gilt edge security and would probably enhance their value one or two million dollars. Under present changing conditions in modes of transportation no person is able to say that in ten years from now transportation on our surface railways will not be as obsolete as horse-car transportation is now. Under the ordinance consummating the purchase, the city obligated itself to charge a sufficient rate to pay the principal and interest. Beyond this, however, its obligation does not extend. Consequently, if ten years from now--to use an arbitrary date for purposes of illustration--the present mode of travel is so obsolete that people are unwilling to use it, it may be necessary to continue the increase of rates in an effort to obtain enough receipts to make the payments, until ultimately the rate charged would further deter the use of this mode of transportation. We could then no longer operate the lines; the operation supplying all demands would be so limited as to produce insufficient revenue to make the payments to the bond holders. Under such a contingency the bondholders would doubtless be in a precarious position, and I know of no way in which they could enforce the collection of the amount due on the bonds. Consequently, I am unwilling to adopt any course now that would create a general fund obligation, thus making gilt edge security of what is now only a special fund obligation.

(2) The statement has been made, and properly so I think, that the Street Car System is a benefit to the whole city--not merely to those who ride upon it; and it has been suggested that for this reason a portion of the burden we are now carrying on our Street Railway should be born by the tax payers; that all of it should not be paid by the car riders. The answer to this in my opinion, is that the tax payers, whose money goes to make up the General Fund of the city, are carrying approximately a half million dollars of the burden which they did not have when the Street Car Lines were privately owned. For instance, we obtained revenue from the private owners of the car lines, about $400,000.00 in general taxes, and about $80,000.00 a year as 2 per cent of the Gross Earnings Tax. This money is now being made up by additional taxes upon other property in the city. Besides this, additional clerks have been employed in the Law department, Purchasing Department, Comptroller's and Treasurer's Departments, who are paid out of the General Fund, but whose employment was necessitated by our taking over the Street Car Lines. Consequently, it may be said that about $500,000.00 of the $750,000.00 annual interest being paid to the bondholders is borne by the general tax payers. Therefore, the general property owner is now contributing to the municipal operation of the Street Railways.

(3) The County Assessor informs me that the average tax rate of the City of Seattle is 70.44 mills; that by reason of the State School Law passed by the 1920 Legislature 3.47 mills will be added to the present levy, making an average levy of 73.91 mills for next year. To this will doubtless be added the 6.50 mills--the City School Levy to be voted on by the people this month, raising the average levy to 80.41 mills. The elimination from the tax-rolls of the Street Railways, which were valued for taxation at $5,640,000.00 will necessitate increasing the rate on the remaining property, as referred to in the preceding paragraph; so that there is no doubt but that the levy for the coming year will be between 80 and 85 mills, a rate unprecedented in the state, and existing nowhere else in the country, so far as I am informed. Needless to say, under such a condition additional revenues should be raised if possible in some manner other than by adding to our already burdensome tax rate.

(4) The residents of Rainier Valley in paying a seven cent fare upon the Rainier Valley lines, should not be further burdened by a general tax to make up any deficit on the other Street Railway lines. They pay their own car fare, and it is unjust to ask them to pay the fares of others besides, as they would be doing if they had to pay as part of their taxes any further portion of the Municipal Railway expenses.

(5) By raising additional funds through increase of car fare will be collecting from transients and those who do not now pay any real or personal tax. In view of the unenviable rate of taxation which we will have to stand, deriving revenue from additional car fare seems to me the most logical course to pursue at this time.

Yours truly,

HUGH M. CALDWELL

ROSS EXPLAINS CEDAR LAKE TUNNEL PLAN

Reported by Eimon L. Wiener.

J. D. Ross, superintendent of the city lighting department advanced arguments favoring the building of an 8500 foot tunnel under Cedar Lake in an address before the Municipal League Tuesday.

The most cogent argument in favor of the plan, stated Ross, is that it will cost nearly as much to replace the two large pipes from Cedar Lake to Masonry dam as it would to carry to completion the tunnel project. New pipes, he stated, must soon replace the old pipes which have been in use for sixteen years.

Mr. Ross estimates that the total cost of this project will be $1,100,000, and when completed it will make effective an increase of current of from 5000 k. w. per hour to 28,000 k. w. per hour the whole year round.

"When the present dam began to leak," stated Mr. Ross, "I was enthusiastic for sealing it. But I soon discovered that sealing was ineffective; the results of the $400,000 spent in sealing being practically nil. It would cost several million dollars to seal it properly, and then we would get MUMY."

Only half the power that we could get under the tunnel plan.

The ground through which the tunnel can be built is solid rock thus being ideally suited for tunneling.

"A conservative estimate is that it will take three years before the Skagit river plant will be in operation. In the meanwhile the department is carrying the burden of the steam plant at Lake Union, which, last year, cost us a half million dollars for fuel oil alone. This year the cost will be even higher."

Mr. Ross estimated that the project could be carried through in about six months time.

Stereoptican slides illustrated the address.

REPORT

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OF SEATTLE ON THE WORK OF THE MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE (COME 7 COMMITTEE) COVERING THE CAMPAIGN OF TWO WEEKS. BEGINNING APRIL 25th AND ENDING MAY 8th, 1920.

Your Membership Committee in charge of the campaign for new members covering the period of April 25th to May 8th inclusive renders the following report:

1 New members secured - 60.

2 Estimate of prospective members who very probably will be secured within the near future - 40.

3 Outline of the activities of the Committee. Attached is a copy of the plan followed by the Committee in its work.

4 Reasons for continuation of the Committee.

The Membership, or Come 7 Committee, at its last meeting, Thursday, May 6th, in addition to summarizing its work during the campaign, felt that it was your intention in creating the Committee, and therefore the duty of the Committee, to consider the matter of whether or not its efforts should be continued since its life was not limited, and certain other matters appearing to be important to the Committee which have naturally arisen as a result of the Committee's efforts.

a On the first point, that of the life of the Committee, it appeared to the membership that the work which has been started should not be discontinued even though the past two weeks has been considered as the period of the campaign. Continued efforts appeared to the Committee to be advantageous for three reasons.

1 Several members of the Committee have not yet secured their full quota of seven members.

2 Some members of the Committee have not, according to the reports which have reached the Secretary, appointed their assistants and unless this is done the self-perpetuating or continuous chain idea on this matter would be lost.

3 It has been impossible to complete that part of the plan of the Committee which provided for the presentation of the cause of the Municipal League before the various business, commercial and civic organizations of the city and it is considered by the Committee to be highly important that this be continued until every organization in the city has been reached and its members given an opportunity to join the League.

Therefore the Committee recommends that it be continued, and as a result of its experience during the past two weeks presumes to offer the following brief outline of suggested activities as a supplement to the plan which has been followed during the past two weeks, copy attached, for your consideration and the consideration of the succeeding chairman.

5 Suggested plan of future action.

a That the Chairmanship be changed every two weeks.

1 It is the judgment of the Committee that it is impossible to find a chairman of the Membership Committee who could continue at that post of duty indefinitely and give the Committee the services which it needs. Moreover it appears to the Committee that it would profit by succeeding Chairmen at brief periods. It is therefore suggested that the Chairmanship be changed every two weeks.

2 Since the present chairman was given full authority to organize, plan and direct the work during the campaign just ended he was advised by the members of the Committee that it was their judgment that he had power to appoint a chairman to succeed himself in conformity with the proposed plan. He accordingly has presumed to appoint, with the approval of the President, Mr. Howard W. Adams as the succeeding Chairman.

b It is further suggested that a Special Speakers Auxiliary to the Come 7 Committee be organized, in order that the work of presenting the cause of the Municipal League to the various organizations of the city, mentioned above, may be done in the most expeditious and efficient manner.

COMMITTEE APPROVES CAR FARE INCREASE

To the Municipal League of Seattle:
Gentlemen:

Your special committee, to whom was referred the question of the proper rate of fare to be charged on our municipally operated street car lines, begs to report as follows:

In acquiring the lines operated by the Puget Sound Traction Light and Power Company, the city obligated itself to charge a rate of fare that would yield sufficient revenue to meet operating charges, interest, and provide a sinking fund for redemption of principle. The Traction Company burdened as it was with the obligations to pay taxes, two per cent of its gross earnings and upkeep of streets between the tracks, found it impossible to meet the increasing wage demands and cost of materials for operation and fulfill its franchise obligations and have anything for the stock-holders and it was only by concessions as respects paving between the tracks and waiving the two per cent of earnings conditions that they survived. The run down condition of the equipment is well known. In the U. S. thirteen per cent of the total electric mileage was in the receiver's hands April, 1919.

The train-men's wages, formerly from twenty-two to twenty-four cents per hour, are now from fifty-nine to sixty-five cents per hour, plus additional five cents to grip-men and four cents for the one-man car operators, which is an increase of over one hundred per cent in the wage item.

It is shown that in the years 1914-15-16 the cost of operation per car mile was fifteen cents

In accordance with the custom of the League to adjourn for the summer no meetings will be held during the rest of this month, July, and August unless otherwise announced.

WHAT BRANCHES OF CIVIC IMPROVEMENT ARE YOU INTERESTED IN?

The officers of the League are about to decide on the personnel of committees for ensuing year. They desire to appoint men who are willing and able to serve. Indicate your willingness to serve and preference, if you have one, by writing to or phoning the secretary, 510 Central Building. Phone Main 476 and at the present time twenty-eight cents or practically double. Therefore, it is patent that greater revenues must be derived if the growing deficit already apparent is to be overcome.

Investigation of results of increasing fares in other cities indicates that there is a point where the increase ceases to be productive, but operates to diminish revenues. A fare of six or seven cents, however, has been found productive of substantial increases in revenues in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, New Orleans, and other cities, and while we do not anticipate that a two cents raise in fares will operate to yield forty per cent additional revenues, we are of the opinion that one cent extra (or six cents) would not be adequate to meet requirements.

Your committee believes that the transfer privilege now in operation should not be disturbed, nor should the rate of fare charged school children.

We furthermore believe that no part of the operating expense should be imposed upon the tax payers other than is already indirectly assessed them through the loss of income of taxes formerly paid by the Traction Company, amounting to approximately four hundred thousand dollars, which of course will have to be made up by the general tax payer. We feel it would work an injustice to many who do not have occasion to patronize the city's lines to tax them for carrying other people and it is part of the agreement under the bond that the road itself is the sole guarantee to the bond holder, a special vote of the electorate being necessary to change the covenant. Finally, we believe that economies in operation can be effected through extension of the one man car system, having terminal systems at either end

CEDAR LAKE TUNNEL SHOULD BE STUDIED BY EXPERTS

(Public Utilities Committee)
The Municipal League of Seattle:

Your committee on Public Utilities to whom was referred Mr. J. D. Ross's proposal for a tunnel tapping Cedar Lake, reports as follows:

Mr. Ross, the city superintendent of lighting has reached the conclusion that Cedar River above the new dam cannot be sealed and the sealing operations should be discontinued. He believes that power from the Skagit River will not be available for use for three years; that the portion of the pipe line that lies between the new dam and Cedar Lake must soon be discarded because of age; that a tunnel from the dam to the Lake tapping it at the bottom as Mr. Ober suggested several years ago would increase our electric power supply by twenty thousand kilowatts. This would save the cost of the oil consumed in producing an equal amount of electricity at the steam plant and the sum thus saved would be practically equivalent to the cost of the tunnel.

Your committee is not convinced that the sealing operations should be discontinued. Those operations were begun on the advice of competent and practical engineers. A great deal of the expense was incurred in getting ready. A force of men is kept at Cedar Lake to operate the valves when it is necessary to change them. They could operate the hydraulic plant already installed at a relatively small outlay.

There is too much switching from one policy to another in our public business. We hastily adopt some plan involving large expense and then after spending thousands and ten thousands of dollars, hastily change our plan and discard what we have accomplished. The question of deriving electricity for light and power from the Cedar Lake and River is full of problems.  Your committee on Public Utilities to whom was referred the matter of the Olive Street extension and tunnel reports that in the opinion of its members this project is part of the entire rapid transit problems of the city of Seattle.

The committee believes that any action regarding this extension or tunnel in advance of a rapid transit system duly studied, planned and adopted would be premature.

COMMISSIONERS EXPLAIN LANDING FIELD PURCHASE

Eimon L. Wiener, Executive Secretary, Municipal League of Seattle,

Dear Sir:

We want to thank you for enclosing a report of the Municipal League in your esteemed favor of June 14th.

For the benefit of the members of the Municipal League will state that the commissioners have been making an exhaustive study of this matter for more than four months. The government has sent some of its most noted aviators here and without a dissenting voice these disinterested men who navigate the air unanimously agreed that Sand Point, on account of its location on the fresh waters of Lake Washington and its close proximity to the City, where it would never be necessary to have industrial plants, houses, telephone pole wires, etc., between this land and the Lake, was the most ideal site in the world and this statement was heartily concurred in by Mr. W. E. Boeing, who has a large plant in this city for the manufacture of air planes.

Every site submitted, and there were many of them, was, not only inspected by the commissioners but by a competent which is on file in our office, of man who made a written report every site submitted. In addition every site was also inspected by experienced aviators from the air.

We would most respectfully invite your honorable committee to call at the office of the commissioners and examine our records and all circumstances in connection with this exchange of property, as well as speeches of government aviators and citizens who appeared at several public hearings in the commissioner's auditorium during the last three months on the subject of acquiring an aviation base.

There are two reasons why we did not condemn this property.

First: We could not have exchanged our unimproved land north of Ballard, in a condemnation proceedings.

Second: Condemnation would have necessitated immediate cash payment and we were opposed to any deal that would add One Hundred Thousand Dollars, or more to the immediate tax burden.

The deal as closed puts back on the tax roll our idle fifty five acres sold for twelve hundred and fifty dollars per acre; we acquire this splendid water front property (SAND POINT) (nearly a mile of water front) for eight hundred ninety five dollars per acre and they accept five per cent ten year bonds for the difference.

All that will be added to the tax roll the coming year for all of King County and Seattle is about six thousand dollars interest.

In other words we acquire, at once, what has been declared by people competent to judge an air and sea plane base second to none in the world, without adding to the immediate tax burden of the people.

Appreciating the interest you manifest and trusting we may always have your full cooperation in all matters for the upbuilding of this community,

We remain,

Very truly yours,

of the city and this will soon be imperative, unless some means are found such as subway, or elevated lines, of accommodating the increasing traffic, fast exceeding the capacity of our main (surface) thoroughfares.

The cost of all commodities and labor having increased as it has in recent years one hundred per cent or more, the traveling public must recognize that the cost of transportation, including street cars, is seriously affected, and greater revenues are absolutely necessary to meet present day conditions, and we believe that the seven cent fare proposed is not excessive under present operating conditions,

REPORT OF COME SEVEN COMMITTEE

(Concluded from last issue)

6 The Committee found its discussions on these matters leading naturally into what appears to it to be some very vital considerations for the future welfare of the Municipal League. Although it might seem to be super-arrogation of authority for the Committee to presume to make recommendations to the trustees of the League, the matters considered have been deemed by the Committee to be so important that notwithstanding this fact the Committee unanimously makes the following recommendation to the trustees:

a That the trustees endorse and put into operation for the ensuing year (That is after the officers and trustees are elected for the new year) the tribute idea as outlined by the Committee in its plan of action, copy attached.

This, in addition to that part of the plan which provides for constantly succeeding principals who will have become tribunes under the proposed plan, appears to the Committee to give reasonable promise of maintaining and steadily increasing the membership of the League to very considerable numbers.

b It appears to the Committee that a more satisfactory meeting place and one which would ac-

CATERPILLAR PEST DESTROYING TREES

Are all the trees of Seattle to be bare of leaves this summer? Are we going to continue to let the caterpillars pest turn all our green trees into nothing but sickly looking branches? If we're not we have got to exterminate these pests? There are millions of them in the Puget Mill company's land right above Youngstown. If the High School pupils would organize they could compel the city to take some action on getting rid of these pests. The caterpillars seem to be getting a good start on destroying these trees. Nearly every tree looking on Avlon Way has a large colony of caterpillars that are quickly eating their leaves off. If the citizens in Seattle tolerate the destruction of nature's beauty, it is time the high school pupils take some action that will awaken them. For they are asleep.—Chinook (West Seattle High School.)

STATE GENERAL FUND DEFICIT

By C. A. LaGrave

A summary of the estimates upon which the Legislature in extra session based a tax levy of two mills, reads as follows:-

"If all revenues are collected and all appropriations expended, the Treasury would have the following deficit in the General Fund, March 31, 1921 $1,907,176.89. Estimated reverting appropriations $500,000.00. Estimated warrants outstanding, or overdraft $1,407,176.89. Estimated uncollected taxes, March 31 $1,133,515.09. Treasury deficit $2,540,691.98.

The above lines show clearly the fallacy on which the estimates are based and a method of using figures in such utter contempt of two of the fundamental rules of Arithmetic that it would disgrace a Hottentot tax collector. The first few lines quoted base a so-called deficit on the appropriations in the tax levy of 1919 for the bi-ennium ending March 31, 1921. The fourth line indicates that the Bureau thinks that $500,000 of the appropriations may lapse. The fifth line shows the size of the deficit after line four got to work. The sixth line estimates that there will be some uncollected taxes March 31, which as a matter of fact can be used only to reduce the deficit.

Here is where the Bureau "gets in its deadly work," by adding these taxes to the deficit and creating a "Treasury Deficit" of $2,540,691.98 shown on the last line. When this amount gets in the tax rolls the State General Fund will have $3,674,207.08 uncollected taxes to pay a deficit of only $1,407,176.89 - Can you beat it!

There is another fatal objection

FIREMEN'S DAY-OFF BILL SIGNED BY HAAS

Efforts of city firemen to secure one full day off duty every eight days were finally successful Thursday when Councilman A. F. Haas, president of the city council and acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell affixed his signature to the ordinance authorizing the chief of the fire department to put the plan into operation beginning January 1, 1921.

The ordinance was passed by the council at its meeting last Monday. Mayor Caldwell had vetoed a similar ordinance, designed to become effective July 1, 1920, because it would have involved a deficiency appropriation of $70,000 to pay the salary of 80 additional members of the department, authorized under the ordinance, for the rest of the year 1920. There has been much uncertainty at the city hall as to whether he would approve the new ordinance, which eliminates the deficiency appropriation objection by making the legislation effective at the beginning of the next fiscal year. Mayor Caldwell was relieved of the necessity of passing on the revised ordinance when Councilman Haas, as acting mayor, approved the measure Thursday.

Indications are that the proposed legislation may meet with some opposition in the council when the 1921 budget is prepared at least one member who voted for the ordinance having stated an intention to oppose the $140,000 appropriation required to carry out the new system during the year 1921 in event the total budget for the next fiscal year exceeds that of the present year.

GARBAGE ORDINANCE PASSED

An ordinance which has been the subject of much controversy, was passed by a 5 to 2 vote. It provides for the collection and sale by the city of garbage from all restaurants here.

The garbage ordinance has been strenuously opposed by hotel and restaurant men who assert that the city, in taking over the collection and sale of garbage from their places of business, will deprive them of a source of revenue aggregating $200,000 annually. Under the present system, the owners of eating-houses sell their garbage by contract to owners of hog ranches. Advocates of the ordinance, which was introduced by Councilman Philip Tindall, declare it necessary as a public health measure in order to give the city jurisdiction, so far as sanitary measures are concerned, over hog ranches.

Under the ordinance as passed, the city of Seattle is given exclusive right, through its authorized agents, employees and contractors, to collect garbage within the limits of the city and to transport the same over public streets and to dispose of the garbage thus collected. All others are forbidden under penalty of the law from collecting garbage.

The board of public works is authorized to let a contract to the "best and highest bidder" for the collection and disposal of garbage within the city, or any portion of the city, for a period not exceeding five years, which contract may be terminated by the city upon a year's notice. The contractor is required to furnish bonds in the sum of $25,000 conditioned upon "due and faithful performance of contract."

It is also stipulated that "only

ARMY OFFICER TO PLAN AIR BASE

Work on the drawing of actual plans for the municipal airplane landing field at Sand Point will begin next week, when Lieut. Leland W. Miller, of the army air service, returns to Seattle to take charge of the operations.

Lieut. Miller, who recently spent several weeks here mapping the surrounding country for aerial navigation, has been detailed for the work at the special request of Claude C. Ramsey, chairman of the board of county commissioners. Mr. Ramsey received a wire from the department air service officer at San Francisco informing him that his request had been granted and that Lieut. Miller would be here in a few days.

Plans for the field will be drawn in the county engineer's office, under the personal direction of Lieut. Miller.

The idea of requisitioning Lieut. Miller's services, Mr. Ramsey explained, was based not only on the fact that his work will save the county thousands of dollars by obviating the employment of special experts, but it is also planned to make the field an air base for war as well as peace times, which, of course, makes it absolutely essential to have a military aviator directing the plans.

While the governing purpose of the enterprise is to have an air field that will meet the commercial requirements of Seattle both now and in the future, Mr. Ramsey said, an effort will also be made to make it an important addition to the country's system of national defenses, and, with this in mind, the plans will be submitted to both the war and the navy departments before they are finally adopted.

This feature, the commissioner added, will in no way detract from the field's usefulness for commercial purposes, as the ideal military base would also be the ideal commercial base.

The navy is drawn into the matter by the fact that it will not merely be an airplane base, but seaplanes will also be accommodated at the same place.

ELECTRIC LIGHT RATES GO UP

Increases ranging from 9 to 25 per cent in the rates charged for city light will be come effective July 21. The city council has passed an ordinance fixing the new rate schedule and favorably reported by its utilities committee.

Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell had previously vetoed the ordinance on the ground that it did not meet all of the requirements of J. D. Ross, superintendent of the lighting department, and also because he claimed Supt. Ross had not been consulted during the drafting of the measure. This was vigorously denied by councilmen who asserted that Mr. Ross attended meetings when the ordinance was drawn, had given his approval to the measure and had even furnished the figures which showed the necessity of the increase. Supt. Ross, when questioned after the mayor's statement regarding his reason for vetoing the measure was made public, refused to state whether or not he had been consulted.

Councilmen William Hickman Moore, R. H. Thomson, T. H. Bolton, Philip Tindall, Robert B. Hesketh, A. T. Drake and John E. Carroll supported the committee report recommending passage of the bill over the mayor's veto. Councilman Oliver T. Erickson was absent on leave of absence and Councilman A. F. Haas, as acting mayor, was not entitled to vote.

The new schedule of light rates advances the rates charged for residence lighting from 5½ cents a kilowatt hour for the first 45 kilowatt hours and 2 cents a kilowatt hour for current in excess of that amount to 6 cents a kilowatt hour and 2½ cents a kilowatt hour, respectively. The minimum charge for residence lighting is increased from 50 cents to 75 cents.

The new ordinance also requires a charge of $1 for each account opened by a residence customer. No such charge is made under the existing rate ordinance. Light department officials say the purpose of this charge is to meet the bookkeeping cost of opening accounts. It is designed to reach patrons who change their place of residence frequently, the number of changes of residence accounts at the light department averaging 125 daily.

Rates for business lighting purposes are increased an average of 20 per cent, while those for current used for power purposes establish advances ranging from 10 to 25 per cent.

Necessity of increasing the revenue of the light department in order to meet the advancing cost of production at the Lake Union steam plant is given by city officials as the reason for the new schedule of rates. Light department officials estimate the total annual increase under the new schedule of $292,085 as follows: Residence lighting, $74,343; commercial lighting, $83,624; cooking rate, $10,226; power rate, $64,412; account transfer charge 32,000; increased minimum monthly charge, $27,480.

League at its regular meeting Wednesday noon went on record as being opposed to the ordinance if it involves any additional expense to the city.

SCHOOLS CANNOT USE FILMS

Proposals to amend the fire ordinances to permit the exhibition of moving pictures in public schools were rejected by the council public safety committee at its meeting Wednesday afternoon, when representatives of the fire department had declared present restrictions cannot safely be removed.

The proposition came before the city council in the form of communications from Mrs. Clare Ketchum Tripp, director of the educational bureau of the State Chamber of Commerce, and Frank B. Cooper, city superintendent of schools. Mrs. Tripp declared that films have become of practical value in school work, and suggested the passage of an amendment to the fire ordinance authorizing exhibitions of moving pictures in rooms having a seating capacity of not to exceed 100.

Local Dealers' Advice Is Often Helpful

Your local merchants know their goods and are always glad and willing to let you profit by their knowledge when you go to them for merchandise.

When you are undecided between two articles—when you don't know which is best for your needs—your local dealer's advice may make your problem an easy one.

But when you buy by "sight unseen" methods you have no one to ask for advice. Then your experience is the only teacher, but, unfortunately, a poor adviser. Moral: Patronize the local dealers and get their advice on important purchases.

The Best Buying Policy

Superintendent Cooper's communication urged "serious consideration of the desirability of making it possible to have motion pictures in the schools as a medium of illustration and demonstration," and also stated: "Unless the picture machine can be used with little hazard from fire, their use should be prohibited, but I think it is entirely within the bounds of reason to believe that a type of machine can be found that will make the danger from fire negligible."

Agents of a company manufacturing a portable moving picture machine appeared before the committee contending that their machine is practically safe, conducting a demonstration to prove that, even though the film should catch fire, the flames would be confined to the metal box in which the apparatus is installed. Inspectors from the fire marshal's office maintained that the machine could not be safely used unless operated in a fireproof booth, as required under the present ordinance.

Members of the public safety committee, deeming the risk too great, voted unanimously to reject the petitions for an amendment of the fire ordinance.

citizens of the United States 21 years of age or over and engaged or intending to engage in good faith and their own right in the raising of hogs, poultry or other food-producing animals, or corporations, the entire stock of which is owned by citizens of the United States," shall be eligible to bid on the contract.

The board of public works is directed under the ordinance "on application by any persons or firm eligible to bid on the original contract, to designate by location or otherwise as in its judgment shall be just and practicable, a portion of such contract sufficient to meet the needs of such applicant under such terms, conditions and regulations as the board of public works shall prescribe, but at a price not to exceed the price stipulated in the original contract, the total of such sub-contracts not to exceed 25 per cent of the amount of the original contract."

It is made unlawful "for any person, firm or corporation conducting any hotel, restaurant or public eating house to permit to be accumulated on or in such place or in any alley, street or public place, any garbage unless the same be securely kept in a tightly closed or covered metal can or vessel, separate and apart from coffee grounds, ashes, glass, tins, rubbish, soap, lye, and other substances likely to injure such garbage for the purpose of feeding it to hogs, poultry or other food-producing animals, which can or vessel must be kept within the rear premises or in the basement, area, or passage-way so as to be readily accessible for collection and shall not be kept in any street, alley or sidewalk or other public place. All such cans shall be promptly delivered to the collector when called for and returned by him to the place or places from which obtained without unreasonable delay; and no person except the duly authorized collector shall in any manner interfere with such cans or other contents thereof."

The ordinance becomes effective thirty days after its approval by the mayor.

to this levy.

The power to tax for any purpose must be specifically conferred by the State Constitution and Art. VII authorizes a levy for a real deficit in the following words

"Whenever expenses of any fiscal year shall exceed the income the Legislature may provide for levying a tax for the ensuing fiscal year sufficient with other sources of income to pay the deficiency.

The deficiency clearly defined by the Constitution is a real deficit and can be levied for only after it has become a reality.

In this case the levy is made to pay a theoretical deficit which cannot even exist at March 31, 1921, or at any other time.

The method of using estimates and figures shown herein never did and never can in any case show a true deficit. It is based on a fallacy and a lie, and in this case will cost each over-burdened tax payer of the State a two-mill tax for a so-called deficit that does not exist and never will exist.

I respectfully suggest that the mayor or city council may see a way to relieve the tax payers of the city of an impending load of $480,000 - by getting the opinion of the Law Department as to the validity of this levy.

Whereas, a petition has on this 17th day of June, 1920, been presented to Honorable Mitchell Gilliam, Judge of the Superior Court, King County, Washington, by Western Commissary Company, a corporation, incorporated under the laws of the State of Washington, to be dissolved and disincorporated, accompanied by a certificate of the president and assistant secretary of said corporation certifying that at a meeting of the stockholders called for the purpose and duly held on the 17th day of June, 1920, at the City of Seattle, King County, Washington, it was decided, by a vote of more than two-thirds of all the capital stock subscribed or issued and outstanding of said corporation and by a vote of more than two-thirds of the stockholders, to dissolve and disincorporate said corporation, which petition prayed that such notice be given of such application as is provided by law and so that an order may be entered by said judge and court declaring said corporation dissolved; and

Whereas, the said judge of said court has fixed the 16th day of August, 1920, at the hour of 9:30 o'clock A. M. at the court room of Department No. 1 of said court before the Honorable Mitchell Gilliam, judge of said court, in the King County Court House, Seattle, King County, Washington, or at the court room of any other department which may then be in session and to which this matter may be assigned;

Now, Therefore, notice is hereby given that said petition of Western Commissary Company for an order declaring said company dissolved and disincorporated is coming on to be heard before the Honorable Mitchell Gilliam, judge of the Superior Court of the State of Washington for King County, or such other judge as may be then presiding or to whom this application may be assigned, in the King County Court House in the City of Seattle, King County, Washington, on the 16th day of August, 1920, at the hour of 9:30 o'clock A. M.

Dated this 17th day of June, 1920.

LACK OF FUEL OIL HITS LIGHT PLANT

Acting upon a communication from Mayor Caldwell declaring the city light plant was confronted with a serious situation because of its inability to secure fuel oil, the council utilities committee at its meeting Thursday morning instructed city officials to make every effort to obtain relief through the Standard Oil Company "even if the city has to purchase oil from said company at the company's prices."

In his communication to the council the mayor stated:

"On account of the absence from the city of the superintendent of lighting, I beg to call your attention to the very serious situation of the municipal light and power plant, due to our inability to obtain fuel oil.

"About June 10, there being only about three days' fuel oil in sight, the superintendent of lighting obtained a loan of 15,000 barrels from the Union Oil Company. Appeal has been made to the General Petroleum Company, the shipping board, and the Union Oil Company.

"According to the superintendent of lighting, the General Petroleum Company can get us a cargo of 50,000 or 60,000 barrels in San Francisco, but so far we have been unsuccessful in obtaining a tanker to transport this oil to Seattle.

"A telegram received by the superintendent of lighting from the head of the bureau of light and power of Los Angeles, indicates the condition there to be the same as here.

"I attach hereto copy of wire received by me from the director of operations of the U. S. shipping board, Washington, D. C., claiming inability to assist the

COUNTY UNABLE TO PAVE LESCHI DRIVE

King County, is without legal authority to aid the city in paving Lake Dell Avenue. Leschi Park, in the opinion of Prosecuting Attorney Fred C. Brown, who Monday submitted a statement to the county commissioners.

County Commissioner Thomas Dodson had requested information on the project. The proposed improvement consists of a pavement 3,400 feet long and twenty-two feet wide, along Lakeside Avenue from Yesler Way to East Alder Street; along East Alder Street to Lake Dell Avenue, and thence along Lake Dell Avenue to Thirty-second Avenue. The city had estimated the cost at $71,000. The municipal improvement district could be taxed for only $17,000 of this, and the city had asked the county to contribute the remaining $54,000. The new paving would con-

SHORROCK ANSWERS ATTACK

Editor,
Seattle Municipal News,
Seattle.

Dear Sir:-

In your issue of June 26th, Mr. La Grave again attacks a statement made some time ago by the State Auditor, with regard to the State finances. His criticism is not entirely fair, for he ignores the point which the State Auditor was aiming to emphasize, which is that while at a certain date the actual deficit in the general fund was estimated to be $1,907, 176, the actual cash deficit would be $2,540, 691, because of taxes which, while an asset, would not have been collected at that date. In other words, at that date there would be warrants outstanding to the last named amount.

The question in the State Auditor's mind is whether it is good policy to have so large an amount

JITNEYS ORDERED TO STOP OPERATING

Whatever action the City Council may take toward entirely eliminating jitney busses from the city streets, none will be operating in Seattle after midnight Tuesday, July 6.

Maj. Carl H. Reeves, superintendent of public utilities, notified the Auto Drivers' Union that all drivers except those who have been granted permits under the existing city ordinance must cease operating their jitney busses by that time, and the records of the Council show that no such permits have been granted to date.

While the utilities committee yesterday voted to reject all the applications now on hand, and to ask that an ordinance be drawn prohibiting jitneys from operating at all, the report which will go to the Council on the matter next Tuesday has been materially changed since the meeting of the committee, in informal conferences between its members.

Change in Plan

As it stands now, Corporation Council Walter F. Meier will not be asked to draft a new ordinance forbidding jitneys to operate entirely, but simply "to prepare such ordinance as may be necessary to prohibit interurban busses from doing a local business within the city limits.

The change was made after the councilmen had consulted with Meier, who contended that no new ordinance is necessary, inasmuch as three federal judges have already ruled that the city has the right to regulate the jitneys, and may refuse to permit them to operate under the terms of the existing ordinance if it sees fit.

Council Committee Clerk L. O. Shrader drew up a new report of the utilities committee to submit to the Council, embodying Mr. Meier's suggestion, and the report received the approval of all the members of the committee who favor elimination of jitneys with the exception of Chairman R. H. Thomson, who was absent from the city hall during the forenoon.

Report of Committee

The committee's report as it now stands is as follows:

Your committee on city utilities, to which was referred the matter of applications of jitney drivers for permits, and the matter of routings for jitneys, recommends that all applications heretofore made be denied, and the reports of the superintendent of public utilities thereon placed on file, and that the corporation counsel be requested to prepare such ordinance as may be necessary to prohibit interurban busses from doing a local business within the city limits.

The committee, in making the above recommendations that applications for jitney permits heretofore made be rejected, which applications were to serve sections of the city already supplied with adequate street car service, wishes it understood that bona fide applications for permits to serve districts now without street car facilities for the purpose of enabling the people of such districts to reach the cars of the Municipal Street Railway and be transported to and from their homes for a 10-cent fare, divided 50-50 between the jitneys and the street railway, will be considered by the committee on their merits when received, having in mind tentative routes as follows:

From East 65th Street and Ravenna Avenue to connections with Cowen Park and Ravenna cars at 14th Avenue Northeast; also from 14th Avenue Northeast and East 40th Street to Laurelhurst district; also, from Beacon Avenue and Spokane Street to Beacon Avenue and 39th Avenue South; and also on Beach Drive from Orleans Street to Bruce Street.

Maj. Reeves said that his order for discontinuance of jitney operation at midnight next Tuesday is based upon the authority conferred upon city officials by the jitney regulation ordinance passed by the council two months ago. Under that ordinance, persons desiring to operate jitney busses were required to file applications for permits stating the route and schedule to be followed. The city council, acting on recommendations by the department of public utilities, is authorized to issue or refuse permits on these applications or to modify the routes and schedules proposed.

Approximately 200 applications for permits have been filed with the council under this ordinance but so far only those that specify routes serving territory not reached by the municipal car lines have been granted by the council. Pending action by the council on the applications for permits, Superintendent Reeves has been permitting the jitneys to operate on the routes and schedules specified in their applications. When the council utilities committee, at its meeting, decided to withdraw this permission and to forbid jitney drivers to operate after next Tuesday unless they have permits.

Petition Action Pending

A petition for the submission to popular vote of a proposed ordinance that would permit jitney men to select their own routes and fix their own schedules, is pending before city officials. Corporation Council has furnished the city comptroller with an opinion upholding the legal requirements of the petition and the lists of signatures will be checked by the comptroller's office.

stitute an approach to the county ferry dock.

In his opinion, Prosecuting Attorney Brown stated: "In 1915 the legislature directed that the county treasurer shall remit to the city or town treasurer 15 per cent collected for the general road and bridge fund, the moneys to be expended by the corporate authorities on roads and bridges within the city or town connected with roads leading out into the country known or designated as county roads.

"The discretionary authority conferred by the earlier laws upon the board of county commissioners has been thus withdrawn by statute. The board is now without legal power to appropriate moneys for the improvement of streets and highways within the limits of any city or town other than by bond issue funds authorized for specific streets and roads, or by any of the highway improvement laws, none of which apply in the case of Lake Dell Avenue."

of warrants outstanding, or whether a special tax should not be levied for the purpose of maintaining the State on a cash basis, even if the amount of outstanding taxes is large. This being the case, there is no justification for Mr. La Grave's bitterness.

He is on safer ground when he raises the question whether a tax can be levied for this purpose, and whether the policy of maintaining the State on a cash basis, instead of having large amounts of warrants outstanding during a substantial part of the year, is legal. On this, I offer no comment at this time.

Yours very truly,
E. H. SHORROCK.

AIR PLANE MAIL SERVICE TO VICTORIA

Inauguration of air mail service between Seattle and Victoria the first service of its kind between an American and a foreign city, has been authorized in a communication from Otto Prager second assistant postmaster general, to the Seattle postal officials. Details are being arranged by Edward McGrath, superintendent of railway mail service for this district, who spent one day this week in Victoria conferring with Canadian postal officials.

The instructions received by the Seattle officials permit of the immediate institution of the service and the first flight probably will be made within the next two weeks the Boeing Airplane Company, which has bid for the contract of carrying the mail by hydro-airplane. The Seattle-Victoria air service route will result in the saving of a full day in the transpacific mail service.

A survey of the service is being prepared by Superintendent McGrath, Postmaster Edgar Battle and Assistant Postmaster C. M. Perkins and the information will be forwarded to Washington for approval.

Mr. McGrath has been in communication with the Victoria and Vancouver postal officials for the last month on the arranging of the delivery of mail from the Oriental steamers direct to the planes at Victoria and active co-operation has been assured the Seattle office in the handling of the mail for this service.

RELIEF REPORT MADE.

The semi-annual report of the finances of the Police Relief Association, by Inspector of Police

Hans Damm, president of the association, shows total assets of $12,427.05 at the close of the half year, June 30. The association has liberty bonds and real estate valued at $25,450 and cash amounting to $16,977.05.

Disbursements of the association averaged over $400 a month for the past year, according to Inspector Damm. Six death claims of $150 each were paid and amounts ranging from $1 to $100 were paid for sickness and injuries to members.

Capt. J. T. Mason was re-elected a member of the trustees and Patrolman Frank Ducett elected to the board at the annual meeting Thursday.

OLD DESKS TO CUT COST OF SCHOOLS

The prospects of paying $10 apiece for school desks that could be purchased for $3 before the war caused school board members to throw up their hands in helplessness at yesterday's meeting until Director W. J. Santmeyer proposed that every dilapidated, ink-stained and hand-carved desk be brought out from school basements and attics and put in service to cut down the high cost of school supplies. The board decided to try out his plan.

The school board is not in favor of the proposed county-city merger of all municipal corporations and instructed President Winsor to cooperate with the port commission and other municipal bodies which have gone on record against the proposed move. Judge Winsor, who attended a recent conference on the subject, under the auspices of the port commission, reported to the board that in his judgment the merger would place the administration of school affairs in the hands of those not exclusively concerned in school matters and in his opinion the cost to the taxpayers would not be lessened. He said he believed local school districts prefer to govern their own affairs.

Vice Principalships Created

On account of the increased attendance in Seattle high schools, a number of vice principalships were authorized and positions as heads of various departments were created. George H. Porter, acting principal of the evening school at Broadway, was made vice principal of the new East Branch High School under construction at East Jefferson Street and Twenty-fourth Avenue. E. H. Moore, head of the science department at the Queen Anne High School, was named vice principal at that institution. Both will receive salaries of $3,120.

city by the use of a tanker. There is also at the telegraph company's office for me a telegram from Senator Poindexter's secretary stating that the shipping board believes that the General Petroleum Company can take care of us if it so desires.

"According to the superintendent of lighting, unless fuel oil is obtained by the end of the present month, approximately 80 per cent of all customers of the city lighting plant, including street lighting, will be without electric current.

"The situation is serious and aside from fully informing your committee of the situation, it occurred to me that perhaps some source of relief may occur to you."

Mayor Caldwell, Friday morning sent a telegram to Senator Miles Poindexter asking that authority be obtained for the General Petroleum Company to use a Norwegian oil tanker to transport fuel oil to Seattle to relieve the shortage of oil confronting the City Light Department.

The mayor said in his message that the company used two Norwegian tankers during the war period but that these cannot be used under existing legislation without special authority.

"If authority to use one of these tankers can be obtained," the mayor said, "I believe the company will be able to make deliveries to Seattle."

The mayor sent the message after conference with representatives of the oil company.

NO REFERENDUM ON CAR FARE INCREASE

City officials will refuse to submit the recently passed ordinance increasing the fare on the municipal street railway to 10 cents in cash or a 6 1-4-cent metal token to a referendum vote.

Convinced that they cannot be legally compelled to put the question up to the people, they are prepared to defend their action in court if necessary in the event a referendum petition is filed.

This became practically certain when city officials, upon conferring with Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier, ascertained that the state law vests in "the city council or other corporate authorities" the sole right to increase or decrease the rate of fare charged on municipally-owned street railway systems and that under supreme court decisions, its action in these matters is not subject to a referendum vote.

Charter Not Mandatory

Although the city charter authorizes a referendum on all acts of the city council except in the matter of licenses, provided the required number of voters petition, Meier indicated his belief that the charter provision will not apply in cases where sole authority to legislate on the subject is conferred by state law on the city council or other corporate authorities. He also stated that in numerous cases where similar language was used the supreme court has held that the state statute controls, rather than the charter provisions.

City Treasurer Ed L. Terry issued a statement Thursday in which he declared his intention to place the city railway fund on a warrant basis June 25 if the

PETITION SIGNATURES MUST BE REPORTED

Declaring that City Comptroller Harry W. Carroll, in certifying to the city council the number of signatures attached to the petition for submission of the jitney regulation initiative measure, proposes to exclude the signature of those persons who are not registered voters, representatives of the jitney interests instituted legal proceedings to compel the city comptroller to report all signatures except those that are duplications or forgeries.

Upon application of E. C. Sears, an officer of the Jitney Drivers Union and one of the signers of the initiative petition, Superior Judge Boyd J. Tallman issued an alternative writ of mandate directed to City Comptroller Carroll requiring him to "report to the city council not later than July 15, transmitting therewith the initiative petition filed in his office June 25, 1920, which petition contains the signatures of 27,975 persons, and in said report show the percentage of signatures of persons who are shown to be registered on the registration books in his office and all signatures appearing on the petition except those that are duplications, fictitious, or forgeries, or the signatures of persons who are not qualified voters within the limits of the city of Seattle, or else show course in this court on July 12, 1920, at the hour of 9:30 a. m. why he has not done so."

Immediately after representatives of the jitney interests filed with the city comptroller June 25 a petition for the submission as an initiative measure of a proposed ordinance giving jitney operators the right to determine

COUNCIL REJECTS STREET PROJECTS

Acting on the recommendation of its streets and sewers committee, the city council rejected petitions for fifteen street improvement projects, aggregating in estimated cost $200,000, on the ground that the expenditure in each case would exceed the legal limit of assessment on property within the improvement district created.

These projects, many of which have been pending for several months, follow: Paving and curbing West Seventy-third street from Fifteenth avenue Northwest to Twenty-fourth avenue northwest; construction of a pile bridge on West Florida street from Harbor avenue Southwest to Twenty-sixth avenue Southwest; grading Twenty-sixth avenue Northwest, Twenty-seventh avenue Northwest and Earl avenue Northwest, each from West Seventy-third street to the north line of the Loyal Heights addition; paving and water mains on East Northlake avenue from Pasadena place to First avenue Northeast; curbing on Nineteenth avenue Northwest from Sloop place to Canoe place; water mains on West Fifty-ninth street from Fourteenth avenue Northwest to Thirty-second avenue Northwest; grading and curbing on Sixteenth and Seventh avenues Northwest from West Seventy-fifth to West Eightieth street; paving on Turner Way from Twenty-third avenue North to Twenty-fourth avenue North; sewers on Sixty-second avenue south from Waters avenue to the south line of Fern Hill addition; paving Ellis avenue from Bailey street to East Marginal Way; grading and curbing Forty-second avenue South-

$5,000 TO CHECK JITNEY PETITION SIGNATURES

Steps preliminary to a decision as to whether the ordinance for jitney regulation proposed in an initiative petition filed with the city comptroller recently shall be submitted to popular vote at a special election were taken by city officials when City Comptroller Harry W. Carroll, on the strength of an opinion from Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier, began an investigation as to the sufficiency of the signatures attached to the petition and the council finance committee appropriated $5,000 to pay the expense of checking the list of signatures.

Answering inquiries by the city comptroller, Corporation Counsel Meier held that "registration is not a necessary element in the qualification of a voter to entitle him to sign a referendum petition" and that "any person who possess all the requirements of an elector under the constitutional laws of this state is qualified to sign an initiative petition even though he may not be registered."

The corporation counsel also declared that the city comptroller determines whether a petition filed under the initiative and referendum law contains the requisite number of signatures of qualified voters and that "in determining the sufficiency of the signatures to the petition, he may proceed in any reasonable manner and may make use of the registration books or any other reliable information obtainable."

Revising a report adopted at its meeting Thursday morning, the council utilities committee unanimously approved the following recommendation to the city council:

"That all applications now pending be denied and that the reports of the superintendent of public utilities thereon be placed on file.

"That the corporation counsel be requested to prepare such ordinance as may be necessary to prohibit interurban busses from doing a local business within the city limits.

"The committee, in making the above recommendations that applications for jitney permits now pending be rejected, which applications were to serve sections of the city already supplied with adequate street car service, wishes it understood that bona fide applications for permits to serve districts now without street car facilities for the purpose of enabling the people of such districts to reach the cars of the municipal street railway and be transported to and from their homes for a 10-cent fare divided 50-50 between the jitneys and the street railway, will be considered by the committee on their merits when received, having in mind tentative routes as follows:

"From East Sixty-fifth Street and Ravenna Avenue, to connections with Cowen Park and Ravenna cars at Forteenth Avenue Northeast; also from Fourteenth Avenue Northeast and East Fortieth Street to the Laurelhurst district; also, from Beacon Avenue and Spokane Street to Beacon Avenue and Thirty-ninth Avenue South, and, also, on Beach Drive from Orleans Street to Bruce Street."

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

OMAHA BUYS GAS PLANT BY CONDEMNATION

The city of Omaha, Nebraska, has just bought a gas plant at a price fixed by a Condemnation Court at $4,500,000.00. Omaha is the largest of 127 cities in the United States which now operate municipal gas plants.

The question of municipal ownership of the gas plant has been under consideration since November, 1907, when a special election was called to submit to the public the question of voting bonds in the amount of $3,500,000.00. At this election the proposition was defeated, but again in May, 1918, the proposition of acquiring the gas plant by the exercise of eminent domain through Condemnation Court was carried.

Wide Difference in Valuation

The City of Omaha and the Company had appraisals made which were submitted to the Condemnation Court. The Company had three separate appraisals made and the City had the property appraised by Burns & McDonnell. The four values placed upon the property were as follows:

Burns & McDonnell (representing city) $3,760,000.

W. H. Taylor (representing company) $6,281,000.

H. C. Anderson (representing company) $5,518,000.

Wm. A. Baehr (representing company) $5,570,000.

The above figures represent the depreciated value of the property and include going value. Early in February, 1920, the Condemnation Court rendered a decision awarding the Gas Company $4,500,000 as the value of the property and on March 20th, 1920, the City Commissioners voted to take over the gas works and its operation at the price of $4,500,000. The City Commissioners further voted $1,000,000 as working capital for improvements and extensions.

The appraisal and hearing before the Condemnation Court has required approximately one year's time, and thirteen years after the original proceedings were started the City of Omaha came into possession of the gas plant, and it will be operated by the municipality under a bi-partisan board of directors with a manager in charge of the property.

RAISE GRANTED POLICE MUST LAST FIVE YEARS

The common council of Northampton, Mass., has taken favorable action on the petition of the policemen for an increase in salary. This petition was acted on at the last meeting by the Board of Aldermen who favored the increase in salaries. The salaries of the police department according to the increase will be as follows:

Chief, $2,372; captain, $2,190; sergeant, $2,007; first year men, $1,358; second year men, $1,642; third year men and thereafter, $1,825—on condition that the police do not ask for another raise for five years. Captain Lyons of the police force has stated the officers would give a written agreement if desired. It was decided not to require this, but to take the word of the men.

WORKHOUSE POPULATION REDUCED BY PROHIBITION

Population statistics from the Milwaukee House of Correction show a reduction from 525 in 1918 to 273 inmates, the present daily average. Last year the number was about 400. Supt. William Mounsen, according to the Christian Science Monitor, attributes the reduction directly to prohibition.

The fine new buildings of the institution have a capacity of 800 persons. A plan for throwing open vacant space to tenancy by the public is being considered there.

west from West Puneau street to West Morgan street; grading on Seventeenth avenue. South from Corwin Place to Beacon avenue.

The council passed an ordinance for a 10-cent fare on bus lines operated in connection with the municipal street railway system, including the right of transfer to or from the car lines.

An ordinance introduced by Councilman T. H. Bolton, under which "flash lights" operating intermittently would be permitted on front of business houses in the downtown district would be permitted under the same regulations as are imposed on electric signs operating continuously, was referred to the public safety committee.

A communication from Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell calling attention to the situation confronting the city light department on account of the threatened shortage in fuel oil and stating the steps he has taken to relieve this situation was referred to the utilities committee.

A communication from the mayor accompanying his veto of the garbage ordinance was referred to the public safety committee.

their own routes and schedules City Comptroller Carroll referred the petition to Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier for an opinion as to what signatures should be counted in determining the number of qualified electors signing.

Mr. Meier, in reply, stated that the city comptroller is vested under the city charter with the right to determine whether a petition filed under the initiative and referendum law contains the requisite number of signatures of qualified voters and that "in determining the sufficiency of the signatures he may proceed in any reasonable manner and may make use of the registration books or any other reliable information obtainable."

Seattle, Wash., July 9, 1920
Editor Municipal News,
Seattle,
Dear Sir:

In your issue of the 3rd inst. Mr. Shorrock claims that I was not entirely fair to the State Auditor when I ignored the purpose or policy behind the recent tax levy.

My attack was directed at the official record as it stands and at the work of the State Bureau in so twisting figures as to induce the Legislature to make an impossible tax levy. Neither the purpose, policy or opinion of the State Auditor, or any one else, affects in the slightest degree the question of the validity of the levy, and for that reason I ignored them.

Mr. Shorrock has not defended the levy and I have too high an opinion of him to even imagine that he will do so when he examines it. It seems to me he can do a real service to the taxpayers by joining in a request for an opinion from the Law Department as to the validity of this levy.

It is undeniably true that if this levy was made for a necessary purpose it should stand. If no such purpose existed it should fall and the people should be relieved from an unnecessary burden of more than two million dollars.

C. A. LaGRAVE.

fare increase scheduled to take effect July 19, is delayed through the filing of a referendum petition.

The increased revenue from the new rates of fare is needed in order to place the street railway system on a self-supporting basis and to furnish to holders of warrants drawn on the city railway fund a guarantee that these warrants will eventually be paid, Terry said.

The city railway fund was overdrawn $366,000 Thursday and Terry estimates the overdraft will be approximately $500,000 when $150,000 street railway warrants are cashed July 10, the next pay day.

New Ordinance Can Be Passed

Until their conference with Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier Thursday, city officials had taken it for granted that the referendum could legally be invoked against the fare increase ordinance, although the question had not been formally presented to the city legal department with a request for an opinion. In an opinion asked several weeks ago by Mayor Caldwell, that question was not presented, the mayor requesting only information as to when the ordinance would become effective if he approved the measure.

Councilmen pointed out that under Mr. Meier's opinion to the mayor there is a possibility that an ordinance increasing the fare can be passed in such form as to constitute emergency legislation within the meaning of the city charter. In that event, the ordinance would not be subject to referendum. In advising the mayor that, in his opinion, the facts stated in the council bill increasing fares were insufficient to support its enactment as an emergency measure, Mr. Meier added:

"From this conclusion however, it must not be assumed that a state of facts does not, or may not, exist upon which an emergency ordinance could be predicated. That is not a question of law, but rather one of fact, to be determined in the first instance by the legislative body of the city. The only matter determined by me in this opinion is that the bill in question, as now drawn, does not permit of its enactment as emergency legislation."

COUNCIL APPROOVES STREET PROJECTS

Seattle's city council at its session Monday afternoon authorized a number of important street improvement projects, including the paving of Minor Avenue North.

Under the ordinance as passed Minor Avenue North will be paved from Mercer Street to Fairview Avenue North, Pontius Avenue from Mercer Street to Roy Street, Roy Street from Fairview Avenue North to Eastlake Avenue, Valley Street from Minor Avenue North to Eastlake Avenue, Aloha Street from Minor Avenue North to Yale Avenue North, Ward Street from Fairview Avenue North to Yale Avenue North, and Prospect Street from Yale Avenue North to Eastlake Avenue.

The improvements include the installation of sewers, water mains and concrete sidewalks. The council passed resolutions for the following improvements and set Thursday, August 2, at 2 p. m. as the date for public hearings on the proposed work: Paving King Street from Twelfth Avenue South to Rainier Avenue, grading and paving Forty-third Avenue Northeast, Forty-fifth Avenue Northeast, Forty-seventh Avenue Northeast, East Thirty-first Street and East Thirty-third Street.

An ordinance authorizing an agreement between the City of Seattle and the State of Washington for use of certain portions of the Roosevelt Highway in Whatcom County as a means of access to the Skagit River power plant was referred to the city utilities committee.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

At its last session the Massachusetts legislature passed an act increasing the number of members of the Boston City Council from nine to fifteen and providing for their election in districts. For about eleven years, if our memory serves us correctly, Boston has had a council elected at large, a method which has been unsatisfactory to both of the national political organizations, although it is our impression that it has been more satisfactory than the old ward system to good-government organizations. And we note that in this instance the Good - Government Association, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Boston Charter Association urged the governor to veto the bill. He refused to do so, however, because the bill carried a referendum which comes before the voters at the election this November.

Two cities, Baltimore and St. Louis, have taken up municipal dramatics. In Baltimore, under the name of Everybody's Playhouse, a municipal community theatre has been opened on the municipal recreation pier. It is situated in the heart of a densely populated district of various nationalities, and it is expected to offer folk plays and plays which will inculcate Americanism. In St. Louis the city is producing municipal opera in the natural amphitheatre in one of the city's parks. It will be interesting to hear the results of these experiments.

In Nottingham, England, at least, a city is able to make its municipal undertakings, with the exception of the water works, pay in dollars and cents. The profits from the tramway operations during the year amounted to over $500,000. The average daily number of cars in service was 121 and the number of passengers carried 46 million and a half. The average fare paid per passenger was 3.14 cents. The municipal gas plant made a net profit of nearly half a million and the sewage disposal plant also showed a comfortable balance.

The City of Cleveland has established a municipal research bureau under the control of a committee of five prominent citizens. It would certainly seem as if Seattle could well afford to follow the example of these Eastern cities. We need a bureau which can have paid employees to delve into the facts of our municipal government. No citizen organization can be expected to do this essential work.

The thirty days has now expired since the passage of the ordinance giving the mayor $10,000 with which to investigate the municipal car line purchase and that sum is now available to him. Some have believed that such an investigation was already under way, but, if so, no news concerning it has leaked out, and so far it is not known just what course the mayor intends to pursue. As we have said before, we hope the investigation will be thorough and that all of the facts will be made public.

Since we last treated of the matter of jitney regulation in these columns the city's attitude toward them has apparently changed. It will be remembered that upwards of a month or two ago an ordinance was passed for

CITY EMPLOYEES ASK PAY INCREASE

City Engineer A. H. Dimock submitted a request for substantial advances in the pay of employees in his department and the Council of Municipal Employees petitioned for an increase of $30 a month in the pay of every city employee.

In nearly all estimates the departmental head asks for such increases in salaries only as go into effect automatically under the sliding scale based upon length of service. The engineering department is the only branch of the city government for which a general increase of pay is requested.

The police department estimate filed with Auditor Strouse Monday proposes an appropriation of $118,000 for the year 1921 in order to enable the department to give each member one day off duty each week.

The Municipal Employees' Council in urging a flat increase of $30 a month in the pay of all city employees, presented to the council a schedule of prices purporting to prove that the cost of necessities of life had increased approximately 23½ per cent since the last salary adjustment was made.

The aggregate estimate by Mr. Dimock for the city engineering department for 1921 shows a substantial reduction over that of 1920. The total asked is $910,010, against $1,178,312 in 1920. The salary estimate for 1920 was $468,500 while that for 1921 is $595,520. Appropriations for betterments and construction work in 1920 were $673,500, while for 1921 they are only $269,240. The following contributions to local improvement funds are listed: Rock fill on Railroad Avenue, $200,000; sewers on East Seventieth Street, $4,800; paving Avalon Way, $6,500; University Street viaduct, $40,000.

The police department estimate aggregates $1,329,092.50 against $1,112,360 in 1921. The allowance for salaries in 1920 was $1,010,050, while for the 1921 allowance proposed is $1,174,087.50. In addition to the $118,000 for the one day off in seven plan, the estimate asks an additional $11,000 for paying street railway fare of policemen and $20,955 for exchange of old automobiles for new machines.

The park department estimate totals $331,102, as follows: Salaries, $262,572; supplies, $56,400, and betterments, $12,130. Attached to the estimate is the following note:

"The estimate submitted here with aggregates $331,102 or $41,102 more than will be derived from a 1-mill tax levy, together with other departmental revenues, which allowance the board is compelled to ask for owing to salary increases and the general high cost of feed and all materials needed."

The civil service department estimates its needs at $44,610, against $41,610 in 1920. The library department asks $217,915 for salaries and $94,997.40 for supplies, a total of $312,912.40.

Councilman A. T. Drake, chairman of the council finance committee, announced to members of the council at its meeting this week that consideration of the 1921 budget will be commenced

Tuesday afternoon, July 20, at 2 o'clock.

MANY OFFICES TO BE FILLED

Besides taking part in the state election, at which all state elective officials from governor down are to be chosen, King County will elect nine judges of the superior court, one justice of the peace, one constable, all county officers, twenty-five members of the lower house of the legislature, one member of congress from the First district (which also includes Kitsap County) and will assist in the election of a member of congress from the Second district. The registered voters of the state will also elect one United States senator.

Two members of the board of county commissioners are to be elected, the terms of Commissioner Claude C. Ramsay, chairman of the board, who represents what is known as the city district, and of Commissioner Tom Dobson from the north district, expiring. Both Ramsey and Dobson will be candidates for re-election.

Registration for the primary election is now open, and will remain so until up to twenty days preceding the primary election, which will be August 25.

The Board of Trustees of the League have gone on record as favoring the appointment of a committee to investigate the records and qualifications of candidates seeking to represent Seattle in the state legislature. President Lawler will announce the personnell of such a committee shortly.

OFFERS SUGGESTION ON GAS PUMPS

Suggestions that the city council prescribe by ordinance the districts in which gas tanks and pumps may be installed at curbs and the regulations under which such installations may be made was conveyed to the council public safety committee by the board of public works.

Declaring that the number of curb pumps is growing fast, the board suggested that regulatory steps have become advisable. Fire Marshal Harry W. Bringhurst, in a written statement, said that gasoline tanks placed four feet under ground are not a fire menace.

The board also recommended that in lieu of the bond now required from those to whom permits to instal curb tanks and pumps are issued, an indemnity agreement running against the property would be advisable. By fixing a rental charge equaling the cost of a bond, the city would derive $2,500 a year revenue, it was said.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

The city of Scranton, Pa., retained Frank Koester, consulting engineer and city planning expert, New York City, to make an investigation and report regarding an entire new system for lighting all streets and some forty municipal buildings. Mr. Koester proposed to use the garbage and refuse (60 tons per day) as the bulk of the fuel required; the present maximum daily demand of the power plant is 500 k. w.; however, the plant is provided for twice this capacity. Some 1300 nitrogen-filled tungsten lamps are to replace arc lamps.

In addition a very extended boulevard lighting system of some 400 single lamp standards are provided for the four business sections of the city. With the exception of the underground wires in the business sections, all other wires of the 11 circuits are to be overhead. The engineer's report shows that the city will save yearly some $25,000 by owning this municipal lighting system instead of renewing the contract with the local light company. A similar report was made very recently by the same engineer for the city of Allentown, Pa., where the savings effected would be $15,000 per year.

MUNICIPAL NOTE

their strict regulation and the power to make recommendations as to what regulations should be enforced was placed in the hands of the superintendent of public utilities. The superintendent of public utilities was reported to have made certain recommendations to the city council.

Before their adoption, however opinion seems to have changed and a decision was reached to eliminate the jitneys, except on certain short runs where they operated as feeders to the municipal street railway lines. A notice was recently served upon the jitney owners that unless they had been given a license in accordance with the ordinance they must cease operating by the night of July 6th. The jitney drivers, however, appeared in court on that day and had a temporary restraining order issued holding up the enforcement of the notice.

We have not previously expressed an opinion with reference to the principle upon which the jitney regulation should be based, but we find ourselves, for once at least, in accord with an editorial which recently appeared in the morning paper, taking the position that the proper point of view is that of the public generally. It seems quite likely that the city has in general power to eliminate the jitneys, if it desires to do so, and it is a question whether the jitneys themselves have any rights that need be considered, since their owners constitute but a small minority of the total population, and the interests of the few must frequently yield to the interests of the great majority. But the general public has shown by its continued patronage of the jitneys, even since the taking over of the street railway properties by the city, that it prefers, or a considerable portion of it prefers, to ride in a jitney instead of in a street car. If certain people prefer that kind of service and are willing to pay the price for it, why should they not be permitted to have it and why should they be forced to ride in the street car in preference to a jitney, whether they wish to do so or not? It is hardly necessary to point out that the city refused to regulate the jitney when the street railway was in private hands. It probably should have regulated them, even then, with respect to speed, proper loading, proper lighting, regular routes and maximum fares, but we think it was justified then in refusing to eliminate the jitney competition in order to save the finances of the road. If the city was justified in taking that stand then, does the change in the ownership of the line justify it in altering its attitude? In other words, what the city is now doing is to employ its governmental powers to aid it in purely business undertakings. The city has rightly refused to exercise those governmental powers in favor of any private business; has it any better right to exercise them in favor of its business undertakings?

Press reports have indicated that petitions were being circulated for a referendum on the ordinance increasing the fares on the municipal street railway. This news speedily brought forth the contention that the referendum could not be legally applied to such an ordinance, as the law placed the matter of fixing the fares in the discretion of the city council and under decisions of our Supreme Court that exercise of discretion could not be delegated to the people by referendum. We are not aware that the corporation counsel has passed directly on this question, but it would seem that this view is correct.

Quite apart from its legality, however, any attempt to invoke a referendum on the ordinance would be most unfortunate and ought not to receive any support. In the first place, the application of the referendum to such a measure, even if the vote were against the measure would be equivocal. The voters might oppose the present measure because they believed a larger fare should be imposed or some quite different tariff. The effect of an adverse vote would deprive the municipal street railway of funds which it very badly needs, would undoubtedly force the placing of the railway fund upon a warrant basis and subject all city employees to a discount on their wages. The city council might save the discount by pledging the resources of the general fund behind the warrants, but the legality of such a pledge would be open to serious question.

A referendum which resulted in the defeat of the present ordinance, if interpreted as a refusal of the people to permit the imposition of a fare sufficient to pay the interest and principal on the indebtedness and the maintenance and operating expenses, and as a determination on the part of the people to refuse to make any contribution to the increased expenses through larger fares, but to place the increased cost and the risk of deficits upon the general fund, would be the most serious blow ever dealt to municipal ownership in this country. If it were once demonstrated that the probable result of municipal ownership would be simply the placing of continued and arbitrary impositions upon the general fund and the general taxpayers, the other cities of this country would be extremely slow to follow the experiment being tried here. Even if such a referendum were unsuccessful, the unpleasant notoriety attached to such an attempted breach of faith with the voters of this city and such an attempt to gouge the general taxpayer would be extremely undesirable and would go far to deter further investment in this city.

In view of these objections and the legal obstacles, it is quite unlikely that a referendum will ever take place on this ordinance.

OCCUPATIONAL TAX OPPOSED IN BOSTON

That the city of Boston should look about for ways of effecting better economy in the running of the municipal departments and thereby save enough money to take care of increased expenses; or that, if additional taxation be necessary, it be secured in a way that would not discourage business or increase proposals most in evidence at the cost of living, were the two

A. Doucett, Defendant. No. 143799.
Summons.
The State of Washington to the said
Fred A. Doucett, Defendant:
You are hereby summoned to appear within sixty (60) days after the first publication of this summons, to-wit:
within sixty (60) days after the 3rd day of July, 1920, and defend the above entitled action in the above entitled court; and answer the complaint of the plaintiff herein and serve a copy of your answer upon the undersigned attorney for the plaintiff at his office below stated; and, in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you in accordance with the demand of the complaint, which has been filed with the Clerk of this court.

The object of the above entitled action is to obtain a decree of divorce dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between plaintiff and yourself, on the ground of non-support and incompatibility.

Attorney 613 Hoge Bldg
IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE State of Washington in and for the County of King.

In the Matter of the Application of Western Commissary Company, a Corporation, for an Order Dissolving and Disincorporating said Company.
No. 144,007. Notice.

Whereas, a petition has on this 17th day of June, 1920, been presented to Honorable Mitchell Gilliam, Judge of the Superior Court, King County, Washington, by Western Commissary Company, a corporation, incorporated under the laws of the State of Washington, to be dissolved and disincorporated, accompanied by a certificate of the president and assistant secretary of said corporation certifying that at a meeting of the stockholders called for the purpose and duly held on the 17th day of June, 1920, at the City of Seattle, King County, Washington, it was decided, by a vote of more than two-thirds of all the capital stock subscribed or issued and outstanding of said corporation and by a vote of more than two-thirds of the stockholders, to dissolve and disincorporate said corporation, which petition prayed that such notice be given of such application as is provided by law and so that an order may be entered by said judge and court declaring said corporation dissolved; and

Whereas, the said judge of said court has fixed the 16th day of August, 1920, at the hour of 9:30 o'clock A. M. at the court room of Department No. 1 of said court before the Honorable Mitchell Gilliam, judge of said court, in the King County Court House, Seattle, King County, Washington, or at the court room of any other department which may then be in session and to which this matter may be assigned;

Now, Therefore, notice is hereby given that said petition of Western Commissary Company for an order declaring said company dissolved and disincorporated is coming on to be heard before the Honorable Mitchell Gilliam, judge of the Superior Court of the State of Washington for King County, or such other judge as may be then presiding or to whom this application may be assigned, in the King County Court House in the City of Seattle, King County, Washington, on the 16th day of August, 1920, at the hour of 9:30 o'clock A. M.

Dated this 17th day of June, 1920.
PERCY F. THOMAS, County Clerk and ex-officio Clerk of the Superior Court, Seattle, King County, Washington.

POWER AT THE LOCKS

Mr. Jas. A. Haight,
Chairman, Utilities Committee,
Municipal League,
Dear Mr. Haight:-

1 Your Committee recently referred to me, for preliminary report, the matter of possible development by the City of hydro-electric power at the Lake Washington Canal Locks, as a measure of partial relief from the very expensive power which the city must now generate at its Lake Union Steam Plant. I have not had, nor will I have, time to give the matter serious consideration and I must, therefore, report now on the basis of such study as I have thus far been able to give it.

2 I am advised that, by stipulation between the United States and shore-land owners on Salmon Bay and Lake Washington, entered into just prior to construction of the locks, the lake surface must be regulated between elevations 24 feet and 26 feet above extreme low-water of Elliott Bay. As the tidal range, referred to same datum, is 0 feet to 19 feet, the gross head available for power would vary between 5 feet and 26 feet. From records of the U. S. Engineer's office for the period June 1, 1917 to June 1, 1918, this being the only 12 month period for which data have been developed, there was a water wastage at the locks amounting to 967800 acre-feet which is equivalent to a continuous flow of 1337 cubic feet per second.

3 Although there were several months (Aug. to Nov.) of the above period when there was little or no wastage at the locks, the regulation afforded by the

COUNCIL PASSES BUDGET MEASURE

Appropriations aggregating $1,316,460.50 by four departments of city government for the fiscal year 1921 were approved by the city council sitting as a budget committee.

Acting upon estimates submitted by heads of the different departments, after eliminating numerous items and reducing the appropriations proposed in others, the council fixed the following budgets: Health department, $1,130,490; civil service department, $44,610; city treasurer's department, $100,580.50, and board of public works, $40,780.

The city treasurer's estimate was approved as filed. The appropriations carried are salaries, $84,000; supplies and expenses, $16,580; against $80,820 for salaries and $17,580.50 for supplies in the 1920 budget.

An item of $2,040 as the annual salary of an additional buyer in the city purchasing agent's office was stricken from the estimate of the board of public works, which totaled $29,340 for salaries, $11,440 for supplies, against $25,740 for salaries in 1920 and $10,580 for supplies.

In acting upon the civil service commission's estimate, the council fixed the scale of pay of civil service commissioners for the next year at $75, $100 and $125, the present rates being $75 and $100. Hereafter members of the commission are to receive $125, but two members of the present board will be ineligible to this increase until they complete their present terms. The budget for this department totals $44,610, of which $40,140 is for

GRANTED ONE DAY OFF IN EIGHT

Beginning January 1, 1921, Seattle policemen and firemen will be granted one full day's rest every eight days.

The city council decided without a dissenting vote, to appropriate in the 1921 budget $35,000 to pay the salaries of twenty additional patrolmen and $139,200 for the salaries of eighty additional firemen, with the understanding that the extra men furnished will be used to put into effect the one-day-off-in-eight plan.

Chief W. H. Searing of the police department asked an increase of sixty patrolmen and an appropriation of $118,000 to pay their salaries, but the councilmen allowed him only twenty men and $35,000, declaring that forty-one patrolmen added last winter as an emergency measure should be considered part of the sixty needed to enable all members of the department to have a day off once a week.

Declaring the city is not over policed with the present membership of the department, Mayor Caldwell advocated before the council compliance with Chief Searing's request for sixty men. He said that if the council granted the one day off in eight, and added only twenty men to carry out the plan, it would make necessary reduction of the number of patrolmen on duty.

The policemen had asked for one day in seven, but committees representing the different patrols told the councilmen that one day in eight would be more satisfactory. As this would correspond to the plan already approved by the council for the fire department, the councilmen did not hesitate to make the change.

A reduction of $90,000 was made in the police department estimate and $69,000 in the fire department. Items aggregating $76,000 in the fire department estimate were postponed for future consideration.

Employees of both departments were given an increase in salary under the general plan approved by the council at the opening budget session, each employee being advanced to the next higher rating in the grade and class to which he belongs.

In the police department, eight captains are advanced from 225 to $230 a month; eight lieutenants from $195 to $205 a month; twenty-seven sergeants from $175 to $185 a month; 243 patrolmen from $160 to $165 a month; forty-two second grade patrolmen from $155 to $160 a month; fifty-nine third-grade patrolmen from $145 to $155 a month, and eighteen fourth-grade patrolmen are granted $145 a month. The total increase of salary allowed members of the police department, including the special service corps, is $164,037 over last year's budget.

At the request of Chief F. L. Stetson, five lieutenants in the fire department were advanced to the rank of captain, their places as lieutenants being left vacant. Chief Stetson reported five lieutenants in charge at station houses and declared they should be advanced to the rank of captain. The advance in each case carries an increase in salary from $175 to $195 a month.

As approved by the council, the fire department's budget makes the following advances in salary; two battalion chiefs from $225 to $230 a month; one fire marshall from $225 to $230 a month; forty-four captains from $195 to $205 a month; forty-nine lieutenants from $175 to $185 a month; 321 firemen from $160 to $165 a month; sixty firemen from $155 to $160 a month; thirty-five firemen from $145 to $155 a month, and grants twelve firemen at $145 a month to enable the department to carry out the plan whereby each fireman is to have one day off in eight.

The harbor department's estimate for 1921 aggregating in proposed expenditures $91,045, against $55,620 in 1920, was cut $30,000. A proposed appropriation of $20,000 to purchase an additional patrol boat for service in Lake Union was stricken from the estimate, and the appropriation for maintenance and operation reduced from $13,000 to $10,000. The portwarden was allowed an additional assistant at $160 a month and one additional wireless operator at $145 a month.

Mayor Caldwell's budget for the executive department was allowed as submitted, the total expenditure for 1921 authorized being $14,130, an increase of $1,980 over last year. The salary of the mayor's secretary was increased from $230 to $250 a month, and he was granted an additional clerk-stenographer at $145 a month.

The city comptroller's estimate proposing expenditures aggregating $63,407.50, against $60,377.50 last year, and the city clerk's budget carrying $60,260 against $70,690 last year were approved without change.

County Treasurer William A. Gaines' departmental estimate for the year 1921, filed with the county auditor, shows a decrease in the total proposed appropriation of $2,662 over the amount allowed in the 1920 budget.

The saving is effected by the installation of a new system whereby the office is conducted with less help, Mr. Gaines says, no salaries being reduced and some raised. The budget allowance for salaries in 1920 was $108,100, while that proposed for 1921 aggregates $102,080, a decrease of $6,020.

While the appropriation for supplies and other expenses shows decreases in many items, the total reduction is not as large as that for salaries, for the reason that it was necessary to include an appropriation of $2,500 for steel indexes and tables in connection with a new index system recently installed, $1,500 premium on bonds for the office force, the bonds now in effect having been issued in 1919 and running two years so that no appropriation for that purpose was necessary in 1920, and $500 increase in postage because of an increase in the number of statements mailed.

Because of the discontinuance of delinquent tax certificates, approximately $80,000 in interest that has heretofore gone annually to private investors is now paid into the county treasury, in accordance with an order issued by the county commissioners on the treasurer's recommendation.

Of an appropriation of $25,000 for interest on warrants in the fiscal year 1919, $13,000 has not been used.

salaries and $4,170 for supplies, and $300 for betterments.

The health department estimate, proposing a total of $1,140,490 against $998,115 in 1920, was cut in numerous places. for medical inspectors, which is for medical inspectors, which is an increase of $4,000 over last year, was reduced to $18,000. An appropriation of $3,720 for two additional sanitary inspectors was stricken from the budget, as was also an appropriation of $1,440 to pay the salary of an additional milk sample collector.

No changes were made in the appropriations for supplies, the total allowance for this purpose being $727,00, against $652,400 in 1920.

lake storage makes it possible to draw on the available supply uniformly throughout the year, or with such reasonable daily variation as might be required, and yet maintain a lake-surface elevation within the stipulated limits of 24 ft. to 26 ft. The lake storage also makes it possible to select those periods of the day for releasing the water when maximum head would obtain and maximum power could be developed, i. e., the intervals between mean tide and low tide. On this basis approximately 13,000,000 kilo-watt hours of electric energy could have been developed during the year ended May 31, 1918.

4 That, however, was a year of unusually heavy run-off and the dependable normal runoff might not be more than three-fourths the amount referred to in previous paragraph. It should be noted too that whatever water wastage there may now be at the locks, available for power, its quantity is subject to progressive depletion from year to year from two sources to-wit:

a Increased diversions from Cedar River for Seattle's increasing domestic water requirements.

b Increased diversions from the canal for the increasing number of lockages.

Taking cognizance of these facts, and assuming that any power plant installed would be operated only when the head was in excess of 14 ft., I have roughly estimated that about 9,000,000 kilo-watt hours per year could be developed now at a cost of about 6-10 cents per kilo-watt hour and that 20 years hence the output will have been reduced to 4,500,000 kilo-watt hours while the cost per kilo-watt will have doubled. With a production cost at city's steam plant of one and one-third cents per kilo-watt hour, as stated recently by Mr. Ross, the apparent immediate saving from a plant at the locks, on the above basis, would be about $66,000 per year with, however, a successive reduction at the rate of about $3000 per year, production cost at the steam plant remaining the same as at present. At this rate of saving the initial cost of new plant would be retired in 8 years.

5 To operate the plant 12 hours per day, as above assumed, will develop far more power than to operate it 24 hours at the lesser head and lesser flow that would obtain for that period. If the plant, at 12 hour operation, can be coordinated with that of the steam plant so that continuous power would be available it might be desirable on account of its larger output, although an installation for 24 hour operation apparently produces the cheaper power. This latter, I estimate, will yield about 4,000,000 kilo-watt hours per year at a cost of about ½ cent per kilo-watt hour and that 20 years hence the output will have been reduced to 2,000,000 kilo-watt hours with unit cost increased to about 1 cent per kilo-watt hour. This indicates a saving on steam plant production of $33,000 per year with successive reduction at the rate of $1350 per year which means that the initial cost of new plant would be retired in 6 years.

6 Whether or not any power development at the locks is worth while, however, depends upon several factors that cannot be appraised by me at this time for lack of data. Among these are the following:-

a That there can be co-ordination of power at the locks with that at the steam plant without loss of economy to the latter.

b That the cost of fuel oil will continue abnormally high for many years and that no cheaper power than that at the locks becomes available in the mean time.

c That the city will for many years be sufficiently behind its power demand to compel continuous daily usage of its steam plant. With Skagit and Cedar River projects under way this is not likely to be the case.

d That the cost per kilo-watt hour of power developed at the locks will be cheaper than Skagit or Cedar River power.

7 As I view the above contingencies now I think it very questionable that any power development at the locks can be justified. The most that can be said is that there is some indication that such an installation is desirable and might prove economical; that the city itself possesses, to larger extent than any other agency, the basic data necessary for an adequate study of the problem; that the matter should therefore be referred to the city for such consideration as it cares to give to it.

Very Truly Yours
JOSEPH JACOBS.

COMMISSION URGED FOR CEDAR FALLS

That the city of Seattle is losing money because a definite policy in regard to the hydro-electric development at Cedar Falls, has not been adopted was asserted by James E. Blackwell, city superintendent of buildings, in a communication to Mayor Caldwell.

Asked by the mayor his opinion of the city engineer's report on plans for Cedar Falls development, Mr. Blackwell declared that the report does not discuss the real issue in regard to the Cedar Falls dam. The mayor, he said, recommended appointment of a commission of nine disinterested and impartial persons to consider solution of the question. Mr. Dimock, he says, does not report on this plan, but "discusses, in a very few words, the scheme proposed by J. D. Ross, superintendent of light."

"When we consider that the city has in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 invested in this dam and plant at Cedar Falls, it does seem to me that this fact warrants a very thorough study of the problem, and I believe the method of a commission to study the problem is the best that has been offered up to this time," Mr. Blackwell declares.

Mr. Blackwell's communication was transmitted to the city council and by that body referred to its utilities and finance committees. In a letter accompanying the communication Mayor Caldwell declared he has twice written the council on the subject, and that the city utilities committee has "pigeon-holed them or placed them on file." "This," the mayor declares, "leaves us exactly where we started."

He renews his recommendation for the appointment of a commission consisting of three members of the city council not committed to any particular plan to remedy the situation at Cedar Falls, a like number of members of the board of public works and three engineers not officially connected with the city government, none of whom are committed to any plan, to investigate and report a plan of procedure.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

One of our evening papers, which has been quite frequently inflicting us of late with editorials ending with a slogan paraphrasing our old friend, Cato, came forth on Thursday evening with a hectic assault upon our municipal light system.

This opposition to the municipal lighting plant is one of the historic policies of the paper in question. For many years it has from time to time asserted that the municipal lighting plant was running at a loss and from time to time it has endeavored to support that assertion by figures. Superintendent Ross has always maintained that the plant was not losing money and has always been prepared with figures to support his statements. League committees have at times endeavored to make investigations to determine whether there was any truth in the charges, but has generally been balked by the extent of the detailed work required to ascertain the facts. The job is really an accountant's job and would require a lengthy and burdensome examination of the books of the light department and of the city comptroller. No citizen organization can expect a citizen committee to make such an investigation. It must be made by paid employees. This is one of the services which a Bureau of Municipal Research could well perform.

The people of Seattle have not been entirely satisfied with the accounts which have been furnished it of the financial operations of its municipal undertakings. On the other hand, the majority of Seattle citizens have stood staunchly by the municipal light plant and the other municipal services and intend to support them until it is demonstrated that they are unworthy of support. We are convinced, however, that they would like to have the facts made known.

The newspaper in question makes certain definite assertions. It says that light and power are sold below cost. Of course, it is common knowledge that there are cases where this has been done and doubtless is being done, but it is justified by other considerations. The editorial apparently intends to have us understand, however, that light and power have been generally and are now being generally sold below cost. If that be so, we certainly want to know it, because most of us cling to the view that our municipal undertakings should be self-supporting.

The editorial goes on to say that the municipal lighting plant is run at a perpetual loss and that the taxpayers are forced to pay the difference between the city's rates and what it costs the city to produce. The editorial in question presents no facts to support such an assertion and we do not believe it has been true or is true, as a general proposition. Perhaps the paper has the facts and, if so, they ought to be made public for no newspaper has the right to make any such assertion unless it does have the facts to support it.

The article charges that the municipal light plant is an extravagant municipal department; that the salaries therein are inflated; and that jobs are "twice reduplicated," which we understand to mean eight times too numerous. Instead of an asset the municipal lighting system is decried as not only a liability, but a monument to stupidity and the great American political job. Such charges, we are quite certain, cannot be substantiated by the facts.

In addition the editorial rages because the city council has voted $600,000.00 for the development of the Skagit project. The obvious answer to any such outburst is that it is quite belated. The time for the newspapers of this city to take a stand in opposition to any proposed project is at the time its adoption is under discussion. The absolutely spineless attitude of a considerable portion of the press at the time the citizens were trying to decide whether the city should buy the street railway lines, or not, is still within our memory. In this government by public opinion the newspapers owe a duty to present all the facts to the people without willful discoloration and to endeavor to lead public opinion to the correct conclusion, and any newspaper which does not do so is thereafter stopped from criticizing the decision made. The city has therefore determined the question as to whether it would or would not enter upon the Skagit project and the city council and the city officials are certainly not subject to criticism for following the course heretofore mapped out.

But, let us have a Bureau of Municipal Research in Seattle and for one thing settle this question of whether the lighting plant is or is not making money.

The League committee on city-county consolidation, consisting of E. S. Booth, chairman, Claude H. Anderson, Irving M. Clark, Vivian M. Carkeek, F. E. Rawlings, B. G. Owen, C. E. Bogardus, J. T. Jennings and Frank P. Helsell, has reported in favor of city-county consolidation and "of an amendment to the constitution which will not only permit the city and county to be consolidated, but other municipal corporations along with it, if the voters so elect." To the report is attached a copy of the proposed "Carkeek Constitutional Amendment," which the committee approves in its general outline.

The purpose of the Carkeek Amendment has been somewhat misunderstood. The Port Commission has gone on record against consolidation of the Port District with the city and county and has sent a communication to the school board asking it to express its opposition to the consolidation of School District No. 1, or all the school districts in King County, with the city and county. The Port Commission bases its opposition to such con-consolidation upon the ground that the Port is but a business and administrative corporation and ought not to be combined with the political and governmental corporations. Perhaps the position of the Port Commission is well taken, but the question raised by it is one for future discussion. The proposed constitutional amendment is nothing more than an enabling act permitting the legislature to provide for combined city and county governments. It gives the legislature power to permit the people of the districts to determine whether any of these other corporations shall or shall not be consolidated with the city and county. We believe this is proper and we do not believe the Port ought to oppose the grant of power. When the time comes to determine whether or not the Port shall also be consolidated, the views of the Commission will be entitled to weight.

The proposed amendment, as is quite proper, does not determine how the city-county consolidation shall be carried out. Under the amendment an existing county might be divided and the portion containing the large city combined with it into a city-county corporation. Under it, also, the city's boundaries might be extended to coincide with the boundaries of the existing county. Under it, also, in case the latter plan of consolidation were adopted, the combined city-county government has the power to create taxing districts or zones and levy varying taxes in the different districts or zones. If the second plan of consolidation suggested were adopted, this power would be essential.

Mr. Evans, the assistant corporation counsel, has recently passed an opinion upon a plan of city-county consolidation which we believe is the same one passed on by the committee. He makes certain suggestions in connection with the amendment which should be carefully considered.

As our committee report indicates, the committee is not bound to any particular constitutional amendment, but favors a general enabling act by which the city and county governments may be combined. The act applies only to cases where the city and county contain a population of 80,000 inhabitants or more.

Doubtless a careful consideration of the Carkeek Amendment will suggest some desirable changes, but, in general, it is framed along the right lines and all those who favor such consolidation can well get behind the movement to have it submitted to the legislature in 1921 and by it presented to the people for adoption or rejection.

The Port Commission has suggested another large public improvement in the way of a public waterway, approximately 300 feet wide and 20 feet deep, between Lake Washington and Bothell, which would drain more than 1200 acres of farming lands and create several hundred acres of new industrial sites. The Port Commission would ask the legislature to grant to the Port District all the state-owned lands along the line of the waterway. The expense of the work would be borne in whole or in part by a local improvement district, which would include all the properties specially benefited by the construction of the new channel. The improvement would restore Bothell to its old position as a Lake Washington port. The expense of the proposal is placed at $1,750,000.00.

The 1919 legislature submitted to the voters of the state a proposal to bond the state for not to exceed $30,000,000.00 to provide for the construction of a state system of trunk-line, hard-surfaced highways. These bonds are to be paid out of a fund into which are to be paid the balance of the automobile license fees after deducting the expense of the administration of the department collecting. Opponents of the bill say that it provides for the immediate paving of 1516 miles of state highways within six years and assert that this improvement may be had without assessing a cent against real estate or personal property. It is said that taxpayers should vote for the measure because city as well as county property is taxed for road, bridge and permanent highway funds, of which millions of dollars have been spent in the past for grading, surfacing and paving on state roads. These roads must be paid for by general taxation, unless by some such means as in this present bill.

It is alleged that the bonding plan has been approved by about thirty-nine states; that Illinois in 1918 approved a bond issue of $60,000,000.00; that Oregon voted this year to increase its constitutional limit for bonds to $40,000,000.00; that Minnesota will vote next year on a constitutional amendment permitting the issuance of $100,000,000.00. It is said that the vehicle owners would save in tires and gasoline in one year more than $25,000,000.00 by the building of this system of roads.

This project which we have been discussing is known as the "Carlyon Bill" and should receive the attention of a League committee at an early date.

THE SECRETARY'S CORNER

The committee assignments for the coming Municipal League year are rapidly being filled by the President assisted by the Board of Trustees. At Wednesday's luncheon-meeting at the Elk's Club the following appointments were made: James W. Reynolds, chairman of the Program committee; Victor Zednick, chairman of Legislative committee; Malcolm Douglas, Americanization and Public Safety committees; Laurence S. Booth, chairman County-City Consolidation committee; Albro Gardner, Jr., Public Utilities committee; S. A. Keenan, Harbor Development and Program committees; Frank P. Helsell, chairman Charter Revision committee.

Mr. Jackson of the City Engineer's office addressed the members of the Board on the Zoning Commission, explaining its work and accomplishments thus far. He pointed out its need for funds to carry on its work and urged the League to back up the commission's proposed financial estimate for the ensuing year. The matter was referred to the newly appointed City Development committee, of which Robert F. Sandall is chairman.

Howard A. Adams, temporary chairman of the Membership committee is about to launch an intensive two-weeks campaign for new members. He will need the assistance and co-operation of every member of the League. Why not enroll yourself for that work, secure your quota in a limited time and be through for the year? Mr. Adams can be reached by phoning Elliott 130.

* * *

While the payment of membership dues has been going on steadily since statements were mailed on May 1st, there are still many members in arrears. Much time and expense will be saved if those who are in arrears will mail their checks at once to the office of the Secretary.

SCHOOL NOTES

Want a High Rating.

Music teachers in high schools asked that they be rated as high as possible in school departments instead of special music teachers, the classification asked for carrying about $300 a year more salary. The petition was taken under consideration.

A request from the Bethany Norwegian Lutheran Church for permission to use two rooms in the Cascade School during the summer for religious and general scholastic instruction in the English language, was refused. The members expressed the opinion that the use of school rooms may be granted in outlying districts for religious purposes where other facilities are not available. In the case of the Bethany Norwegian Lutheran Church, it was pointed out that the church has a building of its own adjoining the school grounds.

Johnson Sherrick was chosen head of the foreign language department at Lincoln High School, and Lyle Kaye was named head of the history department at the West Seattle High School, and Earl Ryan was chosen head of the foreign language department at Ballard High School.

A proposal of the building committee to establish a school laundry in connection with the proposed new school shops and warehouse at Aloha Street and Eighth Avenue North, was taken under consideration.

On the recommendation of the buildings and grounds committee, it was decided to move the portable buildings at Franklin High School from city property onto the school's new athletic field. Annual repairs and improvements to city school buildings and grounds, to cost $48,000 were authorized by the board.

BEARD POINTS WAY TO MUNICIPAL REFORMS

(By Eimon L. Wienir)

In an address recently delivered by Charles A. Beard, Director of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, helpful suggestions are contained for the betterment of municipal government.

Mr. Beard was formerly a professor of Columbia University and is considered to-day one of the greatest if not the greatest, authority on municipal government in the United States. And it is therefore with great interest that the writer followed the address as it appeared in the bulletin issued by the Civic League of Cleveland, before which organization Mr. Beard spoke. What follows is a digest of earlier portions of the address, followed by a direct quotation of the meat of the address.

After tracing the growth of the state and the extension of the functions of the state, Mr. Beard points out the examples of the numerous things the state and municipal governments do today: "The city determines the standards for building private houses, tenements and offices, it inspects boilers, elevators, mines and factories; indeed there is not a branch of private enterprise, nor of industry, with which the government does not come into more or less direct contact."

Our safety, our health, our comfort and our commerce depend in a great measure upon the skill, the efficiency and the loyalty of those in public service, declared Mr. Beard. And "upon the conduct of our police department and our courts of justice even perhaps more than upon any branch of the government depends the views which thousands, hundreds of thousands of aliens

STOP HANSON.

(By Eimon L. Wienir)

In his address to the Association of Commerce at Chicago yesterday Ole Hanson declared that the municipal ownership of the street railways in Seattle was a failure. He insinuated that the primary reason for this was the fact that public officials were pandering to the employees and those specially "interested." Such a statement is to my mind, wholly untrue, and seems to have been made by Mr. Hanson for the sole purpose of discrediting municipal ownership and operation, and especially Mayor Caldwell, or, what is more likely the case, of boosting Mr. Hanson's own stock. Such statements will become a man who was chiefly instrumental in the purchase of the road, and one who had the opportunity to inform himself as to the actual existing conditions in Seattle. Mr. Hanson in going about the country delivering speeches has power to hurt this city greatly. Some check to such statements as Mr. Hanson made in Chicago should be made.

form as to the American ideals and American government."

"In surveying these functions of Government we find that our Government to be efficient and strong must command as employees men and women who are proficient in all known sciences, arts and crafts. A glance through the roster of employees in New York City reveals this striking matter: We start with abstract clerks at the top of the alphabetical list and run down through accountants, actuaries, alienists, apothecaries, architects, auditors, bricklayers, cement testers, chemists, draftsmen, corporation counsel, demographers, detec-

TENNESSEE AND OUR SECRETARY'S COLUMN MODEL CHARTER

By Augustus Raymond Hatton
I

The attempt to get the Memphis council-manager charter bill through the Tennessee legislature developed an opposition which, for deliberate and cynical misrepresentation and general political nastiness, could scarcely be surpassed. The bill was based largely on the model charter of the National Municipal League, the matter of popular control went beyond the League's recommendations. Yet in spite of the strongly democratic character of the proposal, its opponents shouted of kaiserism, autocracy and municipal despotism. Asked for specifications and met by calm argument, they merely shouted louder. The volume of sound and degree of fury were indeed impressive. One who took vehement statement for fact would have been convinced ten times over that this bill was the most vicious measure ever introduced in an American legislature.

Curiously enough—or was it to be expected—the opposition was led by newspapers and men closely connected with public utility and other great corporate interests of the state, who now emerged as the self-accredited defenders of democracy and popular rights. Add to this the fact that this session of the Tennessee legislature belongs to the public utilities interests of the state. Those interests wanted a public utility commission bill to their liking and are reputed to have spent a large amount of money to get it. The money was used to get "safe" men elected and to convince the legislators of the merits of the utility commission bill.

The last of the Wednesday meetings for the election of committee personell took place this week. Nearly all of the assignments have been made and the balance of the assignments will be completed the coming week. The splendid co-operation thus far given Mr. Lawler and the Board of Trustees assures the success of the years' work.

It is not too late for any member of the League who desires to do active committee work to give his name to President Lawler.

* * *

It is with regret that the Board of Trustees accepted the resignation of James W. Reynolds has the Board. Mr. Reynolds has filed for the Superior Court bench, and it was because the League's by-laws provide that any candidate for public office shall become ineligible for service on the Board, that Mr. Reynolds sent in his resignation.

* * *

To the City Development committee has been referred the proposed extension of the municipal Public Markets. To the committee on Education was referred the matter of transferring the supervision of the play fields from the Park Board to the principals of the public schools adjacent play-fields.

* * *

That the "News" is read from cover to cover is demonstrated by the fact that numerous checks were received by the Secretary in response to his appeal to members to send in back dues. It is hoped that by September 1st, all members will have been paid up. Members will, I am sure, appreciate that much time can be saved by voluntary payment.

The League's Industrial Relations committee has been appointed with Mr. Haight as chairman.

Beard Points Way to Municipal Reforms

tives, dietitians, electricians, engineers, mechanical, electrical and civil, fingerprint experts, firemen, franchise searchers, housekeepers, linemen, mechanics, medical examiners, pathologists, pharmacists, psychologists, real estate experts, riveters, shoemakers, statisticians, surgeons, tin-smiths, transit men, upholsterers, veterinary, X-ray men and watchmen, and I have undertaken to mention only a few of the classes of the ninety thousand people in the city of New York that the city employs to carry on its business, and, as I said to a friend this morning, it matters very little to me who is Mayor of the city if the waterworks department neglects guarding the watersheds and the department of health, is not skillful in bacteriology. The water department may readily kill me by letting bacteria through the faucets, but I have survived a number of Mayors and mayoralty elections in New York.

Mr. Beard states the question: "How are we to get in every branch of our government the skilled and efficient and trained body of servants that we need." He believes in education; but thus far, he states, no thought has been given to the question of how to train public servants and how to make careers in the public service possible for them — though we spend millions to train lawyers and doctors to fit them for the private activities of life.

The tentative projects Mr. Beard has in mind to help solve this problem of securing adequately trained public servants, I shall give in Mr. Beard's own words:

"I think in the first place we must make provisions through our established institutions or through any modifications of them that seem necessary, for training men and women and furnishing careers for them in the great branches of public service. Our grade schools, our high schools, our technical schools and colleges ought to be geared up in their courses of instruction to the requirements of our government service, and our teachers should be able to give advice and counsel to their students on this subject as well as upon other branches of the vocational service. Then after we have provided a system of training for admission to the service, it ought to be broadly democratic, it ought to be such that there will be no barrier to any boy or any girl, no matter how circumstanced, for we don't want to build up in this country a bureaucratic aristocracy. We have found by experience that brains not only are not geographically distributed, but that they are not distributed according to the purses of the fathers and mothers.

"In the next place we should make provision for training in the service, and we see beginnings of that now all over the country. Fire schools, for example, are instances of it. Our great cities now have fire schools in which they train firemen after they are admitted to the service, train them all through the service. Police schools are springing up, also. Do you know that the policeman has many duties? The idea that a police force ought to be composed merely of men of big biceps is one of the most dangerous ideas that American citizens can get into their heads.

"Then, we need, after training in service, training for promotion in the service so that those who enter it may expect to rise in it from one range to another, to the highest branch of the service.

"In addition to training for admission and promotion, we need research in the field of administration. We believe in it, so far as its technical aspects are concerned. All of our great business corporations, or nearly all of them, that have technical services, now maintain laboratories of their own. Invention, like progress, has become collective not individual. The great corporations rely, as Edison relied, not upon sprouting sporadically some where some remarkable genius, but upon men of reasonable skill and training, who steadily and persistently hammer away at problems with which the corporation has to deal."

Tennessee and Our Model Charter

The Memphis charter bill as drafted contained adequate provision for the control of public utilities. When it went up against the legislature, it became apparent that it could not pass so long as those provisions remained in it. Everything relating to public utilities had to be eliminated.

II

A hearing was had on the bill on March 26. The chamber of the house of representatives was filled. The principal speech in opposition was made by G. T. Fitzburgh, one of the leading lawyers of Memphis, closely connected with the Memphis newspaper which represents corporate interests in west Tennessee. In his crusade against the Memphis charter he joined forces with the Nashville paper controlled by General Luke Lea. The attack of Mr. Fitzburgh was nothing if not vigorous. Vigor was the more readily possible because the speaker discarded the restraints which knowledge of the bill and accuracy of statement would have imposed. The eagle screamed and the measure was painted in colors so black that Stygian darkness would have been fair as a lily beside it. The peroration was an especially great effort—a plea that when the boys who broke the Hindenburg line in order to destroy the absolutism in Europe returned to Tennessee it should not be to find absolutism entroned in the largest city of that great commonwealth. That peroration should have drawn tears, though it is doubtful whether it did so unless, perhaps, from the speaker himself. Even that should not be asserted. His vigor of speech had put the orator into a profuse perspiration, and at a little distance perspiration may easily be mistaken for tears.

The speaker for the bill who followed Mr. Fitzburgh confessed himself embarrassed by the mere number of the misstatements which he was called upon to correct. However, he did take up the principal charges which had been made and answered them one by one. There was one cruel stab for the orator of the opposition in this calm presentation. The section which had been singled out above all others to be viewed with alarm was that regarding eligibility to the council. The choicest words of condemnation had been reserved for the deep and daring villainy of a provision which, it was declared, made it impossible for anyone but a member of the council to be a candidate and which would thus render the council first chosen self-perpetuating. Ah, now the mask was torn from this iniquitous proposal! Here was a skillfully laid plot to steal the government from the "peepul" of Memphis and place it irrevocably in the hands of a self-perpetuating group! So ran the argument about this provision—which, as the next speaker frigidly remarked, had been a part of the old charter of Memphis for years and had been taken over verbatim into the new draft.

Members of the legislature came around with expectant looks, and, it was firmly believed by competent observers, got from the opposition. The charter passed one house unanimously and failed in the other by two votes.

III

The above picture is not overdrawn. It indicates the kind of opposition which legislation in the public interest frequently has to encounter. Here was a bill providing a council to be nominated and elected in a manner to insure the maximum of popular control, containing the most advanced provisions for the initiative, referendum and recall yet drawn, providing for a manager to be appointed by the council and removable at any time, establishing the merit system and a well developed budget procedure—such a measure boldly attacked as a device to set up kaiserism in the largest city of Tennessee!

Why does not such an attack as that made upon the Memphis charter bill defeat itself? When they read the measures cannot legislators be counted on to react against such unfounded charges? That is to assume that members of state legislatures read the bills which come before them. Only a small fraction of them read even the general bills. (In Tennessee all bills are not even printed.) Local bills fare even worse. No one pretends to feel any responsibility for a local bill except the members from the city or district which it would affect. To other members such bills are of interest only as items of barter in the process of getting votes for their own pet measures. Consequently, so far as local bills are concerned, an unfounded and misleading statement if made with sufficient plausibility and force has about as good a chance of acceptance by state legislature as the truth which it seeks to supplant. That this was the situation in which the proposed Memphis charter found itself. It was a local bill. Therefore, in the final struggle the merits of the measure had little to do with its passage or defeat.

Actual contact with a few such cases as the above described takes the question of constitutional municipal home rule and reform of legislative procedure out of the realm of academic discussion. They begin to assume the proportions of issues vital to the future of American institutions.

VOL. IX. NO. 34.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, AUGUST 21, 1920.

La Grave Makes Statement

Seattle, Aug. 20, 1920.

A recent violent explosion in the Editorial rooms of the Seattle Times induced Mayor Caldwell to write a letter in which he said "The Times knows that the City now has a Light and Power plant of the value of approximately $10,636,682.00 not including floating assets of several million dollars."

The word "several" is rather indefinite but assuming that it means at least three, the total assets would amount to $13,636,682.00.

So far, so good, but when any one looks at the Comptroller's latest report, the one for 1917, he will find that the assets at January 1, 1918 were $7,422,416.65, including masonry dam and everything.

The question arises, "how did the Light plant get assets of more than $6,000,00 in two years?"

The Mayor also said - and it is unquestionably true "that no part of this has been paid for out of the General Fund."

A small part was no doubt paid for from the proceeds of bonds, another small part from profits of the plant, another item of $67,500 was deducted from Expense each year and added to the book value of the "Masonry dam."

The department has a few very peculiar accounts on its books, one of which is used as a dump ground for inconvenient expense items and may have converted $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 of these into assets by a few strokes of a pen. Even that falls short of the desired amount.

There is however, one sure thing. The Light department has no such amount of actual assets, and relies on inflated book values. For several years after the value of the Light plant was set up on the Comptroller's books at a valuation based on cost, less depreciation, the book value was approximately true, but for the past four years the expenses and assets have been so juggled that no one knows how much its profits have been or what its assets are, but it is safe to say that neither even approximates the amounts claimed.

There is a simple way to end all disputes - make an actual appraisal of the Light department properties and set it up on the Comptroller's books and by the way don't consider the Superintendent's opinion of the Masonry dam or the Cedar River system for fear the assets will shrink too much.

When this is done, set up the assets at their actual value, against the liabilities (which don't need any appraisal) and the difference will be the total profit to date.

In conclusion. The fundamental cause of all uncertainty as to profits and assets is the failure of the Light department to tell the truth once a month when it reports its claims to the Comptroller for payment.

If anyone will compel the department to tell the truth and stick to it - then compel the Comptroller to report the truth exactly as it appears on his books there will be no more dispute as to the finances of the Light department.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

(By Howard A. Adams)

The resignation of Maj. Malcolm Douglas as vice-president of the Municipal League was handed to President Lawler last Monday. Having filed his declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney, Major Douglas considered that it would not be in keeping with the spirit of the League for him to retain his position as an officer of the organization.

Maj. Douglas has been active in the work of the League for more than five years and his withdrawal from active participation in our affairs will be regretted. In his letter of resignation Maj. Douglas says, "I shall continue in the future as in the past to do whatever I can to help along the good work that the Municipal League is trying to do."

The special order of business at the meeting of the Board of Trustees Wednesday is the election of a vice-president to succeed Malcolm Douglas, resigned, and the election of two trustees.

A SUCCESSFUL ELECTRIC PLANT RUN BY WINNIPEG

A story of successful operation of a municipally owned hydro-electric plant is told in the 1920 report of the City of Winnipeg Canada. The report shows that last year the plant yielded total revenues of $1,228,255.59. After paying from this sum all charges of operation, maintenance, depreciation, and sinking fund, a surplus of $52,881.00 remained. The plant had on January 1st, 1920 over 39,000 customers. Following are extracts from the report:

"Realizing the great advantages afforded to manufacturers, power users and the householders generally, by having available an abundant supply of electric energy for power and lighting purposes, the City of Winnipeg in 1905 reached a decision to undertake an hydro-electric development as a municipal enterprise. After a careful examination of the hydraulic resources of the Winnipeg river, the engineers of the City reported in favor of the site at Point du Bois, the estimated cost of the development being $3,250,000.00, and in June, 1906 the ratepayers expressed themselves in favor of the City expending this amount of money on municipal hydro-electric works. The designs for the works were commenced in the fall of 1906 and tenders received and contracts let for the general works in January 1909, and for machinery for equipment of the generating station in September, 1909.

"The construction and equipment of the system, including the transmission line, terminal station and a portion of the distribution lines in the City was completed on October 16, 1911. Upon completion of a thirty

FALSE ECONOMY

Secretary's Note: The editorial which follows appears in the August number of "American Forestry" and ought to be of especial interest to citizens of the Pacific Northwest. Says the Louisville Courier-Journal: The time will come of course when building with wood will be out of the question unless there is an early development of reforestation.

Among the "economies" effected during the last session of Congress was a cut of nearly $29,000 in the regular appropriation for forest investigations in the Forest Service. It is unfortunate that Congress, in its need of retrenchment, found it necessary to cut most heavily in the appropriations for scientific work. Any one who is familiar with the splendid work done at the forest experiment stations and the great hardships and handicaps under which the enthusiastic scientific staff has been working for years in the hope of more liberal appropriations to enlarge the scope of the work and provide better facilities for it, will appreciate the serious blow which such a cut means to scientific work in forestry in this country.

The usual appropriation of $78,728 was never adequate to maintain the eight forest experiment stations in the West, and the investigative work in the East. Several years ago it was necessary as a result of lack of funds, to shut down the experiment stations in California in order to provide sufficient money to carry the rest of the experiment stations. With an appropriation of only $50,000 for the coming fiscal year, it will be necessary to stop practically all the field work at the experiment stations and retain merely a skeleton organization consisting of a single man. The plan recently adopted for providing in each western district a technical man to act as the connecting link between the administrative force on the forests and the scientific work in the district, and to see that the results of the experiment stations are applied to every-day practice in National Forest administration, must now be abandoned. Of course, no new projects of any kind, no matter how urgent, can be undertaken and even current records on some important investigations already under way may have to be either discontinued or greatly curtailed.

The cut in the appropriation for forest research will fall especially heavily on the work in the East. With the urgent demands for exact information in the management of the Western National Forests, forest research was, until recently, largely confined to western problems with only an accidental investigation of some eastern problem. It was definitely planned that in any enlargement of the scope of forest research the East should receive greater attention. A number of forest experiment stations in the New England States, the southern hardwoods, the southern pineries, and the Lake States, similar in scope to our western forest experiment stations, had been planned. Under present conditions, of course, nothing can be done in the way of establishing experiment stations in the Lake States, the Northeast or the South, yet the problems there, in the face of the rapidly waning supply of hardwoods and southern pine, are particularly urgent.

It is especially unfortunate that the decrease in the appropriation for forest studies should have come at a time when many organizations, Government, State and industrial, are awakened to the need of a better handling of the remaining forests and are depending on accurate knowledge for applying the different measures suggested for providing a permanent supply of raw materials for the people and industries of the country. The failure to secure this year adequate funds for forest research should not, however, discourage the efforts of those who tried to bring about a better recognition of the need of such investigations; every one who has the progress of scientific forestry at heart should double his efforts, and with renewed energy and hope, work for a better financial support by Congress of forest studies.

ELECTRIC PLANT SUCCESS

days' test the plant was turned over to the City for operation, and it speaks volumes for the excellence of design, construction and equipment of the works when the fact is known that from the time the electric power was first turned on there has been but one serious interruption in service.

The Plant Described

"The power house is constructed entirely of reinforced concrete; the size of the building is 250 feet long, 150 feet wide and 100 feet high, and is capable of accommodating an equipment of a rated capacity of 50,000 H. P. Provision has been made for future extension of the power house, which will give an ultimate capacity of 100,000 H. P.

"The area of the power site is 438 acres.

"Area of the flooded lands,

4,422.1 acres.

"The head is 46 feet, the alternators generating at 6,600 volts, while the transmission voltage is 65,000 volts.

"The first installation which was put into operation in October, 1911, consisted of:

"Five turbo-generators of 5600 H. P. each.

"The plant was so successful in its initial stages of operation that in 1913 plans were prepared for a large extension to the generating equipment, utilizing the full space provided by the present power house and the following additions were installed and put into service during 1914:

"Three turbo-generators of 7,000 H. P. each.

"Final tests at the stations prove that the above equipment is capable of delivering continuously 50,000 H. P.

"The transmission line is 77 miles in length, built on a private right of way 100 feet wide, with two separate lines on steel towers which are set upon concrete footings and carry the aluminum transmission circuits. A separate telephone line is erected upon the right of way for its full length, and telephone booths are located at convenient points."

Notes on Legislation Affecting Business Men

From "Commerce Monthly," a journal published by the National Bank of Commerce, New York City.

A National Budget: For the past twenty or thirty years there has been a more or less constant agitation for the adoption of a national budget system in this country, but it remained for the war and its mounting direct taxation to bring home to Congress the vital necessity of a consistent and businesslike plan of public expenditures.

The mutual independence of executive and legislature under our governmental system makes it a difficult task to secure coordination of revenue and expenditure, but the budget and accounting bill passed by Congress just before adjournment, together with the reorganization of budgetary procedure in the House, constituted a highly promising attempt at solution of the problem. The bill unfortunately incurred the executive veto because of its denial of power to the President to remove certain appointed officials; but the House repassed the bill after eliminating the objectionable features, and it is sincerely to be hoped that the measure will be finally enacted at the next session. Under proper administration and Congressional cooperation, such a bill should result in a material improvement in the degree of economy and efficiency with which our public business is conducted.

At present, estimates of expenditures presented by the various departments and offices are transmitted to Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury without revision. Only in case of an estimated deficit is provision now made for revision of departmental estimates by the executive, and for an attempt at coordination of income and expenditure before the requests for appropriations are acted on by Congress. This provision has not, however, proved effective in practice, largely for want of adequate machinery. The lack of central supervision of requests for appropriations results in much duplication of effort among different bureaus of the same department, for the properly administrative task of planning expenditures and work and eliminating such duplications is thrown upon Congressional committees, by whom it cannot ordinarily be discharged.

The proposed bill would have centralized the preparation of budgetary estimates of each department, as well as of the entire executive branch, and would also have limited the abuse of supplemental and deficiency estimates. Estimates would have been prepared for submission to Congress by a Budget Bureau, of which the Secretary of the Treasury was to be Director, but the actual head of the bureau would have been an Assistant Director, appointed by and directly responsible to the President. The Bureau would thus be independent of all the departments, but would have the advantage of intimate association with the Treasury. The Congressional control of the purse would not have been limited by this plan, but could have been exercised more intelligently than has been possible under the existing system, whereby the uncorrelated requests of bureau chiefs and department heads are simply transmitted to Congress for such action as seems to it wise. The bill would also have limited the present free access of departmental officers to the appropriation committees, which has often operated to disturb a department's plan of expenditure.

Appropriations Committee

Although a great deal is lost, temporarily at least, by the failure of the budget bill, the revision of the House to a single appropriations committee is itself an extremely important reform of budgetary practice. The committee has been increased from 21 to 35 members, and will hereafter be in a position to report on the entire budget at one time, with the exception of such deficiency appropriation bills as may prove to be necessary. This has not been possible since 1880, when the process of splitting off appropriation bills from the jurisdiction of the committee was begun. In brief, the revised rules will do for the consideration of the budget what the proposed budget bill would have done for its preparation.

In one respect these rules do not operate to secure a degree of coordination of expenditure with income as would be desirable. The Committee on Appropriations continues to be independent of the Committee on Ways and Means, from which it was divorced in 1865. However, it may be plausibly argued that the work involved in the consideration of both revenue-raising and revenue-spending bills is too great to be laid upon any one committee. Moreover, the consideration of all appropriation bills as a unit will compel Congressmen to consider the means available before assenting to new projects of expenditure.

MUNICIPAL : NOTES

BY ERED W. CATLETT

The closing of the registration books for the fall primary found 111,000 names registered. This is, as was to be expected, the largest total ever reached in this city. The large increase over the figures of last year also shows the extent of the interest aroused by the present national, state and county campaigns.

* * *

Press reports from Washington bring the information that the Federal Electric Railways Commission, appointed by President Wilson in May, 1919, has submitted a report saying that the experiments in municipal street railway ownership in Seattle, San Francisco and Boston have been of insufficient length to determine their success; that there is as yet no conclusive proof that municipal ownership is a satisfactory solution of the urban transportation problem; and that the highest wage scale on the continent exists here in Seattle after the second six months of employment in street car service. The report says that for the first three months of service San Francisco pays sixty-two and one-half cents an hour and Seattle fifty-nine and three-eighths cents an hour; for the second three months the same scale continues. In the second six months the San Francisco scale remains the same, while the Seattle scale advances to sixty-five and five-eighths cents. It is said the report deals at length with the jitney problem and recommends that the jitneys be placed under the same regulative control to which the electric railways are subject.

We are not disposed to take issue with the conclusion of the Commission that the experiment in municipal ownership here has had, as yet, an insufficient trial to determine its success or lack of success. In fact, it has been our contention all along that it is yet too early to determine whether municipal ownership of traction lines can or cannot be made a success. We confess to very considerable impatience with such statements as those ascribed to former Mayor Hanson in his speech at Chicago. No one with any practical sense imagined that a municipal street railway line could be handled free from political considerations any more than any other part of the city government, and Mr. Hanson's naive assumption that his own appointments were free from politics and made only for the good of the service, and that he in every case chose the man best qualified without regard to other considerations, makes one smile who knows the individuals and the facts. Politics will undoubtedly enter into the administration of a municipal railway system and the only question can be as to the extent to which politics will be permitted to interfere with the efficient management and control of the street railway properties.

It was also perfectly clear to anyone who had studied the matter that the city could not expect to operate the lines as cheaply as the private company, largely because of these same political considerations. It was contended, however, that this increased expense would not more than cover the difference between the cost to the company and the charges collected from the public by the company. In other words, it would not more than consume the profit made by the company. And it was urged that if the difference in cost were no greater than suggested, the public would be better satisfied with municipal control than with the private.

The innuendo in Mr. Hanson's statement that the lines were successful under the management of himself and his appointees and would have remained so on a five-cent fare is contrary to the facts. Mr. Murphine was struggling hard to preserve the five-cent fare, but even during his term a deficit of $500,000 was accumulated, if proper allowance were made for depreciation, and, although we recall Mr. Murphine's contention that such an allowance for depreciation should not be made, we have been convinced by the arguments of our engineering and accounting friends that such an allowance for depreciation should be made.

Other expenses have gone up since Mr. Murphine left office and neither he nor anyone else could have preserved the five-cent fare and have financed the road upon a sound basis. The fact that the fare has been raised is no argument against the efficiency of municipal ownership, as the fares have been raised all over the country under private ownership and in many cases have been raised more than in Seattle. The fact that it took so long to raise the fares here after it became apparent that they must be raised indicates one of the difficulties of municipal ownership. The city government cannot operate so efficiently or speedily as a private company.

In our discussions concerning the municipal traction system and its success we ought to bear in mind the fact that in all probabilities we have the traction system permanently on our hands to operate through our municipal government; that the time is past for any local discussion as to the advisability or lack of advisability of municipal ownership. Accepting that ownership as a fact, we ought to bend our energies toward making it a success and towards securing as much efficiency as is possible and increased efficiency from year to year in the municipal administration.

There are certainly times when the fight for greater efficiency in city government seems almost hopeless; we seem to advance so very slowly. At the same time, if we do not continue to struggle for the increased efficiency we may expect less satisfactory conditions, and after all, when the matter is looked at over a period of years, we have accomplished and do by our efforts accomplish some noticeable improvement. We are confident that in the main our municipal governments in this country are no longer corrupt, as they were three of four decades ago, nor are they so lacking in efficiency as at that time. They are far short of one-hundred per cent efficiency yet, but, since city governments are made up of human beings and human beings average far less than one hundred per cent efficient, we should not be surprised at a lack of perfection in city government, nor the possibility of continued improvement therein.

It is the purpose of the Municipal League to keep alive this hope for better things and to assist in progress toward better, more efficient, more satisfactory, municipal self-government.

Judge John M. Wilson, of the Superior Court of Thurston County, has handed down a decision sustaining the State Public Service Commission in authorizing the Seattle Lighting Company of this city to increase its gas rates. The increase ranges from twenty to twenty-five per cent and was effective last April.

Mayor Caldwell has sent a communication to the city council recommending that the city appropriate a sufficient sum to pay the Rainier Valley line for the fares of the fifty or sixty of the police force who reside in the Rainier Valley. As the city pays the street railway department for the fares of the policemen on the city lines, it is argued that it should act likewise in dealing with the men who happen to live upon the only remaining private line.

Mayor Caldwell has also suggested the establishment of a municipal camp on Mount Rainier, preferably upon the north side of the mountain. He suggests that the city could arrange to transport the people there periodically and collect a fee for the service and conduct of the camp sufficient to cover the expense and that in this way many people who could not otherwise visit and enjoy the beauties of Mt. Rainier would be enabled to do so. We shall be rather surprised if the proposal, however, does not meet a legal obstruction due to a lack of power in the city at the present time to engage in such enterprises.

Bureau of Statistics Issues Pamphlet

An eight page pamphlet containing a brief description of Brewster Flats and the plan agreed upon for its reclamation has just been issued through the cooperation of the State Reclamation Service and the Bureau of Statistics and Immigration.

In plain words and with no exaggerated coloring the description sets forth the location, the character of the land, the source of water supply, the estimated cost of construction, which is to be of a permanent nature, and the process by which the lands may be acquired. It emphasizes the point that it is not for persons who must have immediate returns from the investment, since it will take several years to complete the project, although trees may be safely planted a number of years in advance of its completion. One paragraph says:

"We wish particularly to caution prospective applicants that this does not represent an opportunity for a man and family with very limited means to at once go upon the land and make a living. It is our desire and hope to develop other opportunities in the State for that class of worthy citizens. This is an opportunity for experienced horticulturists, or their sons, and for professional and salaried people, and for others similarly situated, who desire in the course of a few years, under circumstances that they know will safeguard their interests, to practice the highest type of horticulture under the best possible conditions."

The standard farm unit is 20 acres, but one may obtain 10-acre or 5-acre tracts and as low as one of two acres. Amounts larger than 20 acres may be acquired by special consent of the board.

Toledo Commission of Publicity and Efficiency Makes Report

Of interest to members of the Municipal League is the semi-annual report of Toledo's Commission of Publicity and Efficiency. It is somewhat in the nature of New York's Municipal Research Bureau, and is exactly along the line suggested for the City of Seattle by Dean Stephen I. Miller, of the University of Washington in his address to the League at its last annual dinner.

That such a commission could accomplish splendid work in Seattle there can be no question. The League should inaugurate a movement for the creation of such a body for the city.

A summary of the report follows:

With the beginning of this year, the Commission of Publicity and Efficiency has begun to extend its activities again, after the war-time curtailment of its work. We are able to report therefore at this mid-year period, a number of important things accomplished since January 1, 1920.

Publications.

The Toledo City Journal. During the first six months of the year the Commission published 26 issues of the City Journal, 1500 copies of each issue. The number was reduced from 1800 copies, printed during the same period last year in order to keep within the appropriation for that purpose. Curtailment of distribution was made necessary on account of higher printing costs.

An index to the 1919 issues of the Journal was published as usual soon after the close of the year, and copies distributed to all who requested them. Sufficient copies of the year's files were bound in book form together with an index, to supply city departments. This custom, followed since the Journal was established, gives the various city officials convenient access to a complete file of the City Journal, fully indexed with its wealth of material, including legislation passed by Council and other information about the city. This is only another of the advantages accruing from the publication of an official periodical by the city.

Departmental Reports.* Fewer departmental reports were published this year by the Commission than have usually been printed, owing chiefly to failure on the part of departments to prepare annual reports promptly. The Commission urges that department heads give more attention to the subject of annual reports and that they prepare their reports promptly after the close of the year. A report is valuable in inverse ratio, to the time elapsing before its publication. This Commission can supply officials with samples of department reports from other cities and will be glad to advise with them as to the form of their reports.

The Commission published the reports of the Public Library, Division of Health, Division of Water and Division of Accounts. The latter report was condensed and analyzed and graphs preered showing where the city's money came from and how it was spent. Not until the Commission took charge of the publication of the city's financial report was it ever put in a form that was brief enough to be easily read and simple enough to be understood readily by the average citizen. The Commission has tried to popularize the basis, vital facts concerning the city's finances, and has then made them available to every interested citizen of Toledo.

The Mayors Budget

With the same idea in mind the Commission this year gave wide distribution to the Mayor's Budget for 1920. Heretofore 1,000 copies of the budget have been printed as required by the Charter, but no attempt has been made to distribute them and they have simply lain idle around the City Hall, eventually to be thrown away. This year they were printed by this Commission, and copies distributed to all the libraries of the city, in addition to being placed in the Mayor's office, the Council Chamber and in the lobby of the High Pressure Station. In each place a placard was posted, inviting the public to take copies of the budget. The results was that a large percentage of the copies were distributed. The supplies placed in the libraries and in the High Pressure Station where citizens go in large numbers to pay water bills, were particularly in demand and were soon exhausted.

The Supreme Court Suit

In order to get from the Supreme Court of Ohio a decision to the city's power to pledge its credit for acquiring a public utility, the Commission became defendant in a mandamus brought by the Law Director to compel publication in the City Journal of an ordinance to issue bonds for the purpose of acquiring a transportation system. They employed Mr. U. G. Denison as their attorney and a long defense was made, on the ground that such an ordinance is invalid. The Supreme Court decided against the Commission and the ordinance was published as ordered. As a result of the decision, however, all doubt has been removed as to the city's authority to determine for itself the purpose for which bonds may be issued, without specific authority from the Legislature. The decision was a victory for Home Rule.

The Municipal Reference Library

A start has been made toward a municipal reference library that should develop into a very useful source of information for city officials and employees and the general public. More attention will be given to this branch of the Commission's work from now on with the purpose of making it as useful as possible.

As the use of the Library grows, it will demand more and more attention and the Commission hopes eventually to add to its staff one or more assistants, trained in library work. When that time comes larger quarters will be needed. The Commission wishes to call attention now to this future need so that when plans for the new City Hall are drawn, they will include sufficient space for a well-equipped library.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett

In an address recently Claud C. Ramsey, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, emphasized a fact which the Municipal League has for a long time endeavored to enforce. Mr. Ramsay said that "the utter indifference of businessmen to their duties in politics is one of the distressing evils which confront the government." "Our businessmen have lost sight of the fact that they owe a part of their time, thought and energy to fulfilling the sacred political obligations every citizen must exercise if we are to have continued the blessings of liberty and the right to enjoy the fruits of our own labor."

Mr. Sherman Rogers in his address before the Members' Council of the Chamber of Commerce on Friday likewise insisted that the citizens owed a duty to the community to give as much time to furthering the interests of the community in peace times as in war times. At the present time this community needs to have this truth re-uttered. With the beginning of the war the interest in municipal affairs naturally lagged, and since the war ended it has not been possible to re-awaken it to the degree it enjoyed prior to the war. Business prosperity is perhaps largely responsible for this.

* * *

President Lawler has shown very commendable energy in filling the League committees for the coming year. That task is a more difficult one than it really ought to be and the difficulty is only to be explained by the fact that many citizens have lost sight of their public duties and need such a shaking up as Mr. Ramsey and Mr. Rogers have tried to give them.

Candidates' Investigating Committee will submit its report to the League at the first meeting of the new term:

The Municipal League is a body where many citizens could do very valuable work for the city and community. We extend an invitation to all who feel such a sense of duty to the community to join us and assist us in bettering conditions.

* * *

The announcement has just been made that a resolution has been introduced in the port commission abolishing the office of executive secretary, an office now being filled by Mr. C. J. France. The resolution does not state the purpose of the proposed action and the statements of the commissioners are somewhat at variance.

* * *

Mr. Lincoln is quoted to the effect that the political affiliations of Secretary France and his extremist ideas are detrimental to his work as secretary and that he has now lost his usefulness. He also says that the commission has come to the conclusion that the office is a useless one and that it should be abolished pursuant to the commission's policy to decrease costs.

Mr. Lippy's statement grounds his action upon the fact that the office has lost its value and should, therefore, be discontinued.

Mr. Christensen opposes the abolition of the office on the ground that it is still a valuable and necessary one and adds that the occupant of such office should be entitled to his own political views.

We hope that the commission is not acting for the purpose of punishing Mr. France for his po-

JAMES W. REYNOLDS

James W. Reynolds, ex-president of the Municipal League, is a candidate for the Superior Bench. He has been in the continuous practice of law for the past twenty-seven years, eleven years of that period he has practiced in Seattle, the other sixteen years he practiced in Pike County, Missouri, where he served for four terms as city attorney of the largest town in that county and was afterwards elected and served as county prosecuting attorney. He was admitted to the Bar in 1890, not being satisfied with merely a license to practice law he entered the law department of Michigan University at Ann Arbor and graduated therefrom in the class of 1892.

During the war he was especially active and is credited with being the first man in Seattle to tender his services as a Four Minute speaker for the government and the only man who remained in that service from the beginning to the end of its activities.

Candidates Being Investigated

The first meeting of the new term will take place Wednesday noon at Meves Cafeteria when the report of the League's committee investigating the qualifications of candidates for county offices will be submitted for approval. The committee has met regularly each day the past week and its report is awaited with interest by thousands of citizens who, each year look for the League for guidance.

A second meeting this week must be held to hear the committee's report on legislative candidates. Owing to the great number of such candidates and the fact that the primaries are so close at hand, the committee has deemed it necessary to divide the report and submit the portion ready as soon as possible. The time and place of the second meeting will be announced through the press.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

Political and social views. We have known Mr. France too long to believe for an instant that he is in any way unpatriotic. We know that he has for years been earnestly and sincerely striving for better social and governmental conditions, and, therefore he has taken more extremist views than we have been able to take and has affiliated with organizations with which we have not felt we could affiliate, yet, we believe in the utmost freedom of thought and expression of opinion within the bounds necessarily set by the actual safety of the state, and we have not yet seen anything from Mr. France's tongue or pen which seemed to us beyond these bounds. During war times tolerance must probably be confined within narrower limits, but in peace times we believe in a wide tolerance of political differences of opinion.

Mr. France's office is not a political office and his views on general social questions ought not to interfere with his usefulness as executive secretary. Mr. France has always been an earnest advocate of the port and of public operation of port facilities. That his heart and his energy are behind the real interests of the port is an undoubted fact.

If it is true that the position of executive secretary is no longer necessary and that the abolition of the position is simply for the purpose of greater economy and he doing away with a useless official, the question is a different one; but, if that be its real purpose, it is unfortunate that it has to be accomplished just at this time, when to too many people it has the appearance of being an act of intolerance.

At the present time our views are based entirely upon newspaper information, which may not be correct, and we shall be glad to hear the report of a committee which is being appointed by President Lawler to investigate and report on the facts.

City Engineer Dimock has made a report in which he estimates that the total expenditure upon the Swan Lake project, including the proposed reservoir at Volunteer Park and the pipe line connecting that reservoir with Swan Lake, will reach $5,750,000.00. At the present time $400,000 has been spent in preliminary development. The largest items of this expense are $287,000.00 for the acquisition by condemnation of a catchment area at Swan Lake, a reservoir site in West Seattle and the right of way for a pipe line for the supply of water to West Seattle; and $37,000 for the clearing of 213 acres of land in the vicinity of Swan Lake, which will be flooded by the proposed project.

REPORT OF CANDIDATES INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

AUDITOR, PROSECUTING ATTORNEY, SHERIFF AND COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Municipal League of Seattle,
Seattle, Washington.

Gentlemen:

Your committee appointed to investigate qualifications of candidates for County offices at the Primary Election, Tuesday, September 14, 1920, submits the following report. The Committee has not attempted to measure qualifications between Republican Candidates and Democratic Candidates, but has compared the merits of the Republican with Republican and Democratic with Democratic candidates. To date, the report covers all of the offices upon which we were requested to report, except the candidates for the legislature.

Owing to the fact that the committee was not completed until the last week in August it has not been possible to interview all of the candidates in time to submit the full report to the League Meeting today. A supplemental report will be made upon the legislative candidates Saturday.

This report covers four offices and 19 candidates; the committee has not deemed it advisable to include the usual data in this report such as prior committees have stated concerning the life history of the various candidates. We have been forced to confine ourselves to the facts which we considered most material in order that the report should not become too lengthy.

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Candidates' Investigating Committee will submit its report to the League at the first meeting of the new term

Tuesday Noon, September 14
At Meeves Cafeteria, Second and Seneca Report on Candidates for the following County officers—Auditor, Prosecuting Attorney, Sheriff, County Commissioners.

A Report of the Special Committee on the Port Commission Resolution abolishing the position of Executive Secretary, will be presented Tuesday noon, September 14, at Meeves Cafeteria.

Because Mr. Laurence S. Booth, of the committee is a member of the campaign committee for Malcolm Douglas, a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, he has taken no part in the discussion or report upon any of the candidates for that office.

Mr. Riddell, a neighbor and warm personal friend of Mr. Ferguson, a candidate for County Auditor, has likewise refrained from any participation in that portion of the report which relates to the candidates for County Auditor. With these exceptions this is the unanimous report of the committee.

Investigation has disclosed that what we believe to be excessive sums of money being spent by candidates for several county offices. This has been particularly true of several candidates for Sheriff. This tendency is an unhealthy one in an office the salary of which is small and the patronage large. We believe that with possibly one exception, the candidates for Sheriff have been reasonably frank in disclosing to us the amount of their expenditures. In the main we believe that these candidates are not so much to be censured for this as is the present system.

The investigation has convinced your committee that a permanent League Committee should be appointed for the purpose of devising improvements upon our present primary law, which should tend to prevent certain outstanding evils. We refer to the scramble of the unfit for office; the attempt by various candidates to match dollars; and the undue power for evil, as well as for good, in the Public Press, which the primary law now affords.

Candidates for Sheriff

With the exception of Robert T. Hodge, a former Sheriff, all of the other candidates for this office have shown a deplorable lack of interest in the Sheriff's budget, for the ensuing year. While several candidates have made promises of improvement both in efficiency and economy, with this one exception, no other candidate has made any study of the Sheriff's budget, nor given any time to the detailed figures by which such economy might be effected.

Comparatively very little money is being spent by Mr. Hodge, Mr. Coon and Mr. Sevareyns. The campaigns of Mr. Warren, Mr. Starwich and Mr. Gordon, give evidence of the expenditure of much larger sums of money than the salary of the office would seem to justify. The committee as before stated, however, believes the present system to be largely at fault in this regard. We feel that Mr. Warren and Mr. Starwich have been reasonably frank with the committee in admitting the amounts of their expenditures, while Mr. Gordon has not admitted the expenditure of a sum which the character of his campaign affords evidence. We have found no evidence of the use of money for any purpose which could be considered improper.

While Mr. Hodge was Sheriff, his conduct of the office was only reasonably successful.

Mr. Warren was Chief of Police in Spokane for a number of terms, and more recently Chief of Police in Seattle, in which position he showed himself a good disciplinarian when delinquencies of his force came to light. Improper practices however, on the part of subordinates escaped the detection of Mr. Hodge and Mr. Warren while they were in office; practices which should have been discovered and stopped. Mr. Warren's steadiness in an emergency was demonstrated by his handling of the general strike situation two years ago.

Mr. Gordon has been a Justice of the Peace, Clerk of the Police Court, Clerk of the Justice Court and Special Investigator for the Prosecuting Attorney's office. The positions which Mr. Gordon has held have not required a display of executive ability.

Mr. Starwich evidently lacks executive ability. He has been a Deputy Sheriff for 18 years and so far as we can discover his superiors have never entrusted him with an executive position. Mr. Starwich and Mr. Warren and Mr. Hodge have had opportunities of exhibiting qualities of personal bravery. These qualities are possessed to a high degree by all three men.

Mr. Coon has had several months' experience in the Marshal's office in Alaska, and has taught criminal law for one year. He has had considerable executive experience in various business enterprises.

Of the two democrats who are candidates for the office of sheriff, Mr. Severyns alone has appeared before the committee. He is a man thirty-two years of age; has had considerable experience in police work, having conducted criminal investigations in this state for private interests; has practiced law for a short time. His chief incentive for filing for the office is the fact that several of his friends urged him to do so.

Candidates for Prosecuting Attorney

The present incumbent, Fred C. Brown, is entitled to commendation for having surrounded himself with capable deputies. None of the other candidates has made any serious criticism of his staff. Mr. Brown has given no other evidence of the qualities of leadership. The office has not been as successful as the ability of the deputies indicates it should have been. Mr. Brown advises the committee that out of fifteen trials for homicide, his office has secured but seven convictions. The experience and training which he has had as a lawyer have not enabled him either to lead or assist his deputies.

The Prosecuting Attorney's budget provides funds with which to employ special investigators to aid in the enforcement of the law. During the last two years' administration of Mr. Lundin, one special investigator was employed.

At the time of Mr. Brown's election, Chief Warren at his request detailed Detective Charles Phillips to operate for approximately a year out of the Prosecuting Attorney's office, this detective making no report whatever during that period to his superiors in the Police Department. In addition to the use of Mr. Phillips as special investigator, Frank C. Gordon, now candidate for Sheriff, and Mr. Sullivan, who still is a special investigator were for a portion of the time employed as such in the office. Both Mr. Gordon, former Chief Investigator, and Mr. Brown advised us that it has always been, and still is the policy of the office to make investigations of crime only after complaint having first been made to the office. They state that in no instance has an independent investigation been initiated by any investigator acting out of the Prosecuting Attorney's office during the incumbency of Mr. Brown. The committee parallels the facts that, as we are advised, the former administration with one investigator employed the investigator nine tenths of his time in making independent investigations of crime, whereas the present administration with two and sometimes three investigators has not seen fit to initiate any. The committee knows of no better form of protection to law violators than the failure to attempt to investigate infractions of the law.

Malcolm Douglas was admitted to practice in 1914, and his experience has been relatively limited. He has, however, good legal ability. He has acquitted himself well in difficult executive positions, is a young man of force, initiative and independent judgment.

Charles Crouch has adopted as his platform the prevention of divorce by advising with parties, the dissemination of knowledge of our laws among the masses, and the elimination of unfounded charges of crime against innocent persons.

There are two candidates for the Democratic nomination. Dr. E. J. Brown, is a Dentist and Lawyer, and was formerly a member of the Socialist party and still believes in its principles. He has executive and business ability well to qualify him in these particulars. It is difficult for him to work with associates. His judgment of men is good.

Mr. Cauthorn has had some experience in the enforcement of the liquor laws. Believes he can improve prosecutions by taking a written statement of witnesses and by educating all peace officers to cooperate in detection of crime.

County Commissioner - Third Commissioner District

The four Republican candidates for County Commissioner are Tom Dobson, present incumbent, T. N. Rhodes, State Horticulture Inspector, W. W. Beck, retired, and M. J. Carrigan, former County Commissioner from the City district.

Mr. T. N. Rhodes believes he can increase the efficiency of the work on the County roads by personal investigation of the amount of work being done, but has no other definite ideas of economies he could effect. He feels that his Horticultural work would be of benefit to the County; that by getting people out on the land and caring for the roads to keep them there, he could be of service to the community.

Mr. W. W. Beck, has lived in Seattle for thirty-four years. Is an extensive property owner. He believes in the elimination of competition between the West Seattle Ferry and the Municipal Railway, and in making the County ferries self-supporting. Would improve and keep up the feeders to our trunk highways. Mr. Beck has taken a prominent part in public affairs, but has never before been a candidate for public office. His integrity is unquestioned. He is a man of ability, but is not accustomed and probably not qualified to work with associates.

Mr. M. J. Carrigan, former County Commissioner, has a thorough knowledge of County affairs and definite ideas on the needs of the County. He favors holding all County offices strictly to the budget as provided by law. He states that the county commissioners under the law have full control of expenditures of all county funds, except those appropriated for the judiciary, and believes the county commissioners should be held responsible for all waste in the expenditures of county funds by various departments. If elected he will vote for such rates as to make all county ferries self sustaining. He favors the abolition of the Des Moines-Portage ferry. Mr. Carrigan is adroit and able. His business judgment is good. He is capable of protecting the public interests.

Mr. Dobson has served one term as a county commissioner of this county. As such he has lacked initiative and independent judgment. He states that he believes the county ferries should be self-sustaining, but will not commit himself either to a raise in rates or to elimination of service for that purpose. He believes in reducing taxation, but his only suggestion is retrenchment by refusing to initiate new improvements. He believes all improvements which have been entered upon should be completed. Mr. Dobson has been well regarded in Renton where he has lived for many years as a successful business man.

County Auditor

All of the three candidates for County Auditor on the Republican ticket have been employees of county offices for years.

Mr. O. M. Spear has been in the County Auditor's office of King County for twelve years, serving as Index Clerk, Chief Clerk and Chief Deputy. He is energetic, competent and well qualified for the position, and believes he can cut the expense of running the office from $8,000 to $12,000 a year.

Mr. D. E. Ferguson has been in the County Auditor's office of this county for four and one-half years, and in the County Treasurer's office for six years. He believes he can save $10,000 a year in the operation of the office by eliminating employees.

Mr. A. Lincoln Smith is now Assistant Superintendent of the Purchasing Department. He believes a much more efficient system of accounts could be established in the Auditor's office. He has not made a sufficient study of the operation of the office to promise any material reduction in the expense of running it.

Various rumors have reached the committee and various charges have been made of which the committee deem it proper to advise the League. Charges of improper solicitation of campaign funds, charges concerning the purchase of the aviation field and the establishment of Drainage District No. 10 at Duval have been made to the committee. No time or opportunity to investigate these charges has been afforded. It will also be noted that we have not at this time compared the Republican candidates with the Democratic candidates.

We recommend the immediate appointment of a new League Committee to function between the primaries and the general election for the purpose of completing investigations by this committee and of making such further report as subsequent conditions may warrant.

Very respectfully submitted,
CLAUDE H. ECKHART

ELECTION COMMITTEE REPORTS

Note: Only candidates successful in the primaries are included in this printed report. Owing to the fact that there was no contest for the Democratic nominations in several legislative districts affecting the city, the committee made no report on such candidates.

The Municipal League, Seattle, Washington. Gentlemen:

Your Committee appointed to investigate and report upon the qualifications of the various candidates for county offices and for the legislature, to be voted upon at the primary election to be held September 14th, 1920, submits the following supplemented report covering legislative candidates only:

Representatives 41st District Republican

Paul W. Houser, of Renton, Washington: Has represented the 41st district in the 1913 and 1917 legislatures. Was an aggressive champion of the legislation he favored. Believes he can render valuable services in combating attempts to socialize the state.

H. P. Rude: Has been a resident of the city many years. Was formerly a member of the City Council of Seattle, since which time he has apparently taken little interest in public affairs.

C. Will Shaffer, Tolt, Washington: Has been for nineteen years state law librarian at Olympia, and during that time has been non-partisan adviser in drafting laws for successive legislatures. Resigned 1919 and is now engaged in the shingle industry. Favors a 'blue-sky' law and the consolidation of City and County governments. Well qualified, by

THE LEAGUE WILL MEET

Tuesday Noon, September 21st

AT MEVES CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA

Candidates for County Commissioner, 1st Dist.
Claud C. Ramsay, Joseph A. Sloan and C. S. Tripp, will speak.

An Open Letter to Chairmen of Committees

Seattle, September 17, 1920.

Dear Sir:—

I am writing to the chairman of the League Committees for the purpose of enlisting their active and hearty co-operation during the year ahead of us. I need not refer to the great good that has been accomplished by the League in the past as you are all familiar with its splendid record. If there ever was a time in the history of this city when there was need of an organization such as ours that time is the present. The League must necessarily function through committees. Problems are constantly calling for solution. In order that the solution shall advance the public interest, it is essential that each problem as it arises be thoroughly investigated by patriotic, loyal, and disinterested citizens.

While the Municipal League does not claim a monopoly of these attributes, yet we do contend that there is no other organization in the city so well equipped to represent all classes. Our objects are not only praiseworthy, but our aims and practices square with these objects. Succinctly stated, these objects are to serve the cause of good government and to present the facts to the people. Our success depends upon having all classes of citizens members of the League so that we may receive their divergent viewpoints and be able to arrive at more intelligent conclusions upon matters presented to us.

It is my fervent wish that you and the other committee chairmen enter upon the new year's work with your accustomed vigor and industry and see to it that all matters referred to your committee are promptly and thoroughly investigated, so that we may have reports from time to time at our regular meetings. This in my opinion, constitutes the real work of the League. We may have gifted speakers and entertaining tourists on our programs but if we are to reap any real benefit, and if the people of this city, particularly the tax-burdened homeowners, are to be benefited by our efforts, we must devote some time and energy to investigation, to ascertaining the facts and then fearlessly reporting the result.

Respectfully yours,

JTL:AM.

JAMES T. LAWLER.

FRANCE COMMITTEE REPORTS

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE THE REMOVAL OF C. J. FRANCE AS EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF THE PORT OF SEATTLE

To the Municipal League of Seattle:

Your Committee, appointed for the purpose of investigating the proposed removal of C. J. France as Executive Secretary of the Port of Seattle, reports as follows:

Mr. France advises the Committee that two of the members of the Port Commission, Messrs. Lippy and Lincoln, having publicly announced their intention to oust him from office, he realizes that, regardless of the justice of the case, and regardless of what action may hereafter be taken, his usefulness to the Port District has ended. He further informs the Committee that his name will be before the Farmer Labor Party Convention on September 14th, as a candidate for the office of United States Senator, and if nominated he would expect, in any event, to sever connections with the Port District in order to devote his entire time to his candidacy. He states that he has refused to resign upon request as a protest against the alleged injustice of being ousted on account of political views, and as a further protest against the proposed discontinuance of the office, the duties of which he regards as of extreme importance to the further development of the Port.

After a full and frank discussion with Mr. France and each of the Port Commissioners, your Committee has reached the following conclusions:

First: Mr. France's services to the Port District, from the time of its organization until the present, have been of inestimable value. It is a distinct loss to the compel a severance of the relationship that circumstances

Second: We do not regard it within the province of this Committee to pass judgment upon the political views of Mr. France. The Committee denies its own authority or that of any other body, public or private, to censor the political opinions of one whose qualifications to hold a non-political office are under investigation. If the removal of Mr. France were solely on account of political views, this Committee would unhesitatingly recommend that the Municipal League disapprove such action in strong terms..

Third: We do not believe, however, that the Port Commission is to be censured for the removal of Mr. France. We are satisfied that Commissioners Lippy and Lincoln are actuated by no personal ill will toward him, and that the abolition of his office is not due merely to the fact that he holds certain political beliefs, but rather to the effect which Commissioners Lippy and Lincoln believe Mr. France's political activities have had upon the relations between the Port District and those upon whose business patronage it must rely. The Port of Seattle is a business institution. However desirable freedom of opinion is, the Port Commission is not priarily concerned in enforcing that or any other abstract right. The practical problem before the Commission is to establish good will with those who are being urged to make use of the Port's facilities. If, for any reason, an executive officer of the Port becomes personally objectionable to the customers of the Port District, regardless of whether the prejudice existing against him is well founded or not, we believe it is the right of the Commission to remove him. If his duties can be performed by other members of the present Port Commission's staff, the office should be abolished. Commissioners Lippy and Lincoln advise us that they have determined to abolish the office, and do not intend to reinstate it.

Fourth: Your Committee regrets to state that much of the protest against Mr. France's connections with the Port has come from purely political sources. A political organization of the City was among the most active protestants, and although we know of no formal action taken by that body, a number of protests by various individuals contained a recommendation that one of the organization's members be appointed in Mr. France's place. So far as these protests were assumed to be based upon patriotic grounds, we question that patriotism which expresses itself in a willingness to employ the public service for political ends.

Your Committee must express regret that the present illiberal attitude manifested toward all holding political views not shared by the majority should have had any part in bringing about the loss to the Port District of an able and efficient public servant.

Respectfully submitted,
WALTER . MOSSAMAN

SHERMAN ROGERS ADDRESSES MEETING

A discussion of the shop representation plan for industrial harmony featured the open meeting held at the Plymouth church recently under the joint auspices of the Industrial Relations Committee of the Municipal League and the Labor Relations Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was presided over by James A. Haight, of the Municipal League, and the speakers were Sherman Rogers industrial editor of the Outlook and former Washington lumberjack, and Clyde B. Simmons, who explained how shop representation worked on the ships and docks of the Admiral Line.

Following the speeches there was an open discussion from the floor, the majority of the questions being asked by men who came to the meeting from the Central Labor Council.

Mr. Simmons said the Pacific Steamship Company had had its share of labor troubles and that when it decided to take up shop representation it secured the service of J. C. Lindsey, industrial expert of the Bloedel-Donovan Lumber Mills. In describing the system of shop representation followed by the Admiral Line, Mr. Simmons said:

"The basis of our work is the dock committee constitution, which was written by Mr. Lindsey after many conferences with the men and the management. The basis of this constitution is the report of the President's Second Industrial Conference. Its purpose is to promote unity of interests and organized co-operation between employer and employee.

"The dock employees are divided into five groups: each group meets privately and from their number elect representatives by secret ballot, these representatives composing the dock committee. This meets once a week. They elect a President and Secretary, who with the committee consider all questions regarding wages, working conditions and rules, hours, suggestions for improvement in working conditions, grievances, sanitation, health, safety, and such other subjects of mutual interest to the employees and the company.

"The Dock council is composed of representatives of the company appointed by the management from the staff and all of the elected members which comprise the dock committee. This council meets once a month. The chairman and secretary are elected from members of the council. Minutes are kept of each meeting, and copies are made which are distributed among the men, thus familiarizing each workman with the subjects considered by the Council and Committee. Constructive suggestions and criticisms as to betterment of methods, for the benefit of employees and employers are invited."

In introducing Sherman Rogers, Chairman Haight said, Rogers is an able apostle spreading the gospel of shop representation.

Mr. Rogers said that in the woods strike of 1917 he was one of the men who went out for an 8-hour day and that while there he got the idea that the trouble between employer and employee was due to lack of contact and understanding and that he decided to go east and tell employers that the man to blame for the present unrest is the employer, and that both appreciated the situation the other was in.

"There are 178 different kinds of shop representation" he said. Not all kinds will work in the same plant. No one proposition will work in every man's plant, but if you have the idea, if you believe in the men and show your confidence in them, I will guarantee you that you will not have any trouble in showing him that you have confidence in them. But you cannot fool the working man; you can't spread on a lot of camouflage. Your confidence must be absolute sincere, for there is not a person on earth that can catch the ring of sincerity as quickly as the working man."

experience, for the office.

Democratic

Harrison, W. Mason: Has been a resident of the city for twenty years and is the editor of the Rainier Valley Times. He is active in civic and community affairs and keenly interested in public questions. Is of progressive tendencies and well qualified for the office.

Representatives, 42nd District Republican

Thomas F. Murphine: Is a lawyer and has been a resident of the city for twenty-seven years. He served in the Legislature in 1913 and 1915, was assistant attorney-general in 1917 and superintendent of Public Utilities of Seattle in 1918-19. In the latter capacity he had charge of the Municipal Railway for one year. He states that he is the author of the Washington Logged-off Land Law and was the floor leader in the passage of the Mothers' Pension and Minimum Wage Laws. He is an advocate of municipal ownership, favors the short ballot and a reform of the election laws as to simplify the primaries and avoid minority rule. He is opposed to the practice of reorganizing the House before the Legislature convenes through obtaining pledges for Speaker; opposed to any further Legislative restrictions on free speech or free press. States that his present program is largely negative, and to prevent radical legislation.

George T. Ericksen: Is a native of Bothell and is thirty years of age. He owns considerable property and has apparently been successful in business. He is in favor of the Carlyon bill; has no definite program, except that he believes various state departments might be consolidated in the interests of economy. Though possibly deficient at the present time in age and experience, he is the type of man who might, with advantage to the public service, be induced to enter it.

Representatives 43rd District Republican

Pliny L. Allen: Was a member of the State Senate from 1907 to 1913 and a member of the House in 1919. Mr. Allen's record in the legislature has been satisfactory, his ability is recognized, and his state-wide acquaintanceship would be useful to him as a legislator.

Ralph R. Knapp: Is employed in the Scandinavian American Bank; was formerly principal of schools and newspaper man. Is a graduate of the University of Washington. Was a member of the 1917 legislature. Committee knows of no reason why Mr. Knapp should not be re-nominated.

Representative, 44th District Republican

Frank H. Manogue: Lives at Seward Hotel. Was formerly secretary of Councilman Sawyer. Has been a member of the last two legislatures. Has shown no independence nor initiative.

A. Cheshire Mitchell: Manager of the Butler Hotel, which position he has held for a number of years. Is not known to have had any legislative experience.

George F. Meacham: Is a real estate broker and has been identified with Seattle business for over thirty years, and prominent in public affairs. He should make a good legislator.

Representatives, 45th District Republican

Cornelius E. Hughes: Is a young lawyer who left a growing practice to enter the army. He favors city county consolidation; is interested in educational matters, desiring a committeeship along these lines. He is clean and progressive and would make a good legislator.

Robert Grass: A lawyer. Resident of the city for fifteen years. Has been a member of the last four legislatures, where he generally voted with the Republican organization.

Representative, 46th District Republican

Adam Beeler: Lawyer. Has been actively in practice in Seattle for thirteen years, but has never held public office. He favors city and county amalgamation and more stringent laws regulating the traffic in narcotics.

Adolph Behrens: Real estate broker. Has lived in the city twenty-seven years; is a man of considerable property. Favors re-districting the state to properly apportion representatives. Has appeared before several previous legislatures in behalf of the Duwamish waterway, and the Port of Seattle legislation. Favors consolidation of State Commissions and investigation of the road lobby. Mr. Behrens has never before been a candidate for office but has always been active in public affairs.

Representative 47th District Republican

E. H. Guie: Lawyer. Has served five terms in the legislature, having been Speaker of the House in 1899. In the last session he led the fight in the House against the effort to locate a road through the Cedar River water shed. His record as an intelligent and constructive legislator entitles him to favorable consideration.

Robert A. Tripple: Real estate and insurance broker. Was formerly a merchant. Has had no legislative experience but his varied experience in other lines qualifies him for the office.

RAMSAY AND SLOAN ADDRESS LEAGUE

Claude C. Ramsay, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and Republican nominee for the office and Joseph A. Sloan, Democratic nominee addressed the League Tuesday noon.

Mr. Ramsay said in part:

The utter indifference of business men to their duties in politics is one of the distressing evils that confronts this government.

So intense has the struggle for commercial supremacy become, so ardent the desire for wealth, so keen the competition in the great battle of life to succeed, that our business men have lost sight of the fact that they owe a part of their time, thought and energy to fulfilling the sacred political obligations that every citizen should and must exercise, if we are to have continued blessings of liberty and the right to enjoy the fruits of our own labor.

You business men may feel that a stroke of economy is made when you permit your great corporation of over six hundred and twenty-four millions in King County to be managed by a Board of Directors composed of three men, and where the salary of the Chairman of the Board is not as much as Schwabacher pays his head packer, and not as great as many large buildings pay their head janitor.

I met an old friend a few weeks ago and he remarked, "Ramsay, I voted for you and expected you to wipe out high taxes."

When I finished explaining to him that the City of Seattle is a taxing body; that the Port of Seattle is a taxing body; that the Seattle School Board is a taxing body; that there were also school districts, park boards, and state boards who were taxing boards, it dawned upon him that the county commissioners were not entirely responsible for all the high taxes.

As a matter of fact with eighty mills staring us in the face, the County of King, with its thousands of miles of roads and territory as big as the State of Massachusetts, required, during the war, a little over sixteen mills to run the county government. We hope to cut that down next year to fifteen mills. So you can readily see that as for the other sixty-five mills we have no say whatever.

If your whole county government were wiped out entirely, you still would have high taxes.

Since I have been on the board, the County Commissioners have not submitted a single bond issue. We inherited our indebtedness. We inherited our ferry system from the Port Commissioners; and also inherited the County Farm.

The people, themselves, voted most of the indebtedness.

The strongest pressure was brought to have the commissioners buy a site and erect a new jail. But, instead, we spent a few thousand dollars remodelling the old court house and today so far as air, sunshine, view and sanitary conditions are concerned, have one of the best jails in the United States and have saved the taxpayers three or four hundred thousand dollars. Before I came on the board a contract was made between Pierce and King Counties to control the "flood waters" of the White, Stuck and Puyallup Rivers and over one million five hundred thousand dollars have been spent on this work. King County paid sixty per cent of all expenses. More work remains to be done, but we have refused to enter into a new contract until the legislature passes laws so King County cannot be sued for protecting property. I have insisted also that Pierce County pay at least one-half the cost.

Before I became commissioner King County had gone across Snohomish County and spent about five hundred thousand dollars trying to put a road paralleling the Great Northern Railroad over the Cascade Mountains. We found the winter rains and melting snows every spring wash out the road about as fast as we rebuild. I believe in developing our roads at home first with the result that for the first time in the history of King County you now have a drive entirely around Lake Washington.

Shortly after going on the board, the County Commissioners were bombarded with requests to sell the idle ferry "Washington," or take out the machinery and store it, as the hull was said to be rotten, leaky

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett.

An impartial observer of the working of our direct primary, Sept. 14, could not fail to endorse the recommendation made by the League's Candidates Investigating Committee that a committee should be at once appointed to investigate thoroughly the primary law and its operation and to recommend changes to meet the evils found to exist.

In theory the direct primary gives the party voters a chance to express directly a choice of nominee for each office, but the privilege of making the choice is illusory, for, in the case of a lengthy ballot, such as we had on Tuesday, the 14th, the vote is in the majority of instances no real expression of choice on the part of voters generally.

With the exception of the candidates for governor, the candidates for the other state offices were largely unknown. There were no issues at stake between them and the majority of the voters had no real information upon which to base a choice. The same remark is true of most of the county ticket and of the state legislative ticket. In reality, in these latter cases the result was almost a lottery. It is not to be wondered at if we get a quality of state legislators not thoroughly satisfactory, when they are chosen in such haphazard fashion.

Some remedies are obvious. The ballot ought to be shortened. It is ridiculous to ask the voters generally to choose constables. The voters do not know the candidates for those offices and have no particular choice between them. They obviously ought to be appointed, probably by the justices. The county clerk, the county auditor and the county engineer and perhaps other county officers could, without danger, be made appointive. Inferior state officers as well should be placed on the appointive list.

Then, with the shorter ballot some plan must be resorted to for getting before the voters the qualifications of candidates. The League endeavors to perform some such function. Its committee reports have always been helpful, but it has recently been difficult to get any publicity for them, owing to the fact that newspapers at the present time permit their own views and wishes to exclude from their columns everything which may in any way reflect upon their particular candidates or be helpful to the opponents of their particular candidates.

What occurred this year affords a good illustration. The League report upon the principal county candidates was prepared and given to all of the papers. Reference to the report was made in one and a portion of the report was printed in another, but in the two largest papers no mention was made of the report and no portion of the report was set out. In the one case the substance of the report reflected upon one of the candidates championed by that paper. In the other case some personal pique seems to exclude from its columns all references to the League. It has for a long time failed to carry notices of our meetings. When the supplemental report prepared by the committee dealing with the legislative candidates was ready for publication it was also given out to the papers, but was also passed over without any reference. It was too late for the League to print the supplemental portion of the report prior to the election. If it could have been given publicity, it would have helped many voters materially in making a sensible choice between the candidates whose names were presented to them. If the newspapers of this community are not going to recognize that it is their duty to give to the public as much impartial information as possible concerning the qualifications of candidates, then we shall either have to adopt some method of enforcing that sense of responsibility, or adopt some other means of getting to the voters a statement of facts.

Upon the shoulders of the press a considerable portion of the blame for the unsatisfactory working of the direct primary must rest. It has been truly said that the columns of our daily press are now so full of propaganda that the intelligent reader has come to disbelieve and distrust almost everything he reads. The news columns are filled with syndicated articles written with bias and with a purpose and stuffed with opinion which ought to be confined to the editorial columns. In short, the direct primary has transferred to the press tremendous political power, and the press is certainly not exercising that power impartially or unselfishly.

In the third place, the amount of money being spent in our local campaigns is increasing in disturbing fashion. It must be obvious to anyone that there was spent in the last sheriff's campaign much more money than the salary of the sheriff would warrant. The same remark could be made with reference to other offices. The truth is that it is becoming so expensive to run for office that only men with money or financial backing, or men who are willing to misuse the powers of the office when gained, can afford to seek the public service.

There is much sentiment expressed now in favor of a return to the convention system, and that sentiment has been growing in the past two or three years. It is doubtful whether the sentiment is sufficient to secure such a change at the present time, but there is clearly plenty of sentiment to back changes to remedy the evils we have suggested in the operation of the direct primary.

There is also no blinking the fact that the results of the primary, so far as the county judiciary is concerned, were not entirely satisfactory. The provision of law which permits the judge who receives more than one-eighteenth of the total vote cast for judges to be placed upon the unopposed list at the election is faulty. It discourages the expression of a reasoned judgment as to the nine candidates best fit, and encourages the plumping of votes for a single or a few candidates. This is our first experience with this portion of the law and it has been sufficiently unsatisfactory to justify a change by the coming legislature in 1921. There seems to be little sound reason for the idea of setting aside any portion of the judges in an unopposed list.

Approximately 55,000 votes were cast in the primary election out of a possible vote of 130,000. The primaries are supposed to be party affairs. It is true that in theory all parties are supposed to participate and all voters may participate in the selection of the judges, but the primaries are participated in particularly only by those who feel the stronger party allegiances, and why the more confirmed party men should be permitted by a minority vote to set aside in a preferred list and, in practical effect, to elect our judges is difficult to see. The vote at the election will probably be nearly double the vote at the primaries and will much more nearly reflect general public opinion.

RAMSAY AND SLOAN ADDRESS LEAGUE

and unseaworthy. I think a deal had been nearly completed at that time to sell the boat as junk for something like five thousand dollars. We succeeded in having the old boat drydocked and examined, and it was found that augur holes had been bored, causing her to leak. We of course had her overhauled for a few thousand dollars and today that boat could not be duplicated for one hundred seventy five thousand dollars; she is one of the best boats the county owns and is doing service between Seattle and Kitsap County and did great service during the war carrying shipyard workers back and forth from Seattle to the shipyards.

We were persuaded to take over the Port Commission's transportation system, on the ground, that it was really a part of the road system.

We found in taking over the Port boats that the launches could not handle the traffic and half the time were out of order while the "Robert Bridges" could not be relied upon at all.

We discovered that the Port Commissioners had been compelled to pay out nearly six thousand dollars per year to hire private boats to keep up the runs of the undependable boats that the Port Commission had turned over to us. All this we discovered after the deal was closed. We then leased the four boats of the Anderson Steamboat Company; had them appraised by competent and reliable men; converted one of them into a small ferry to serve Mercer Island and bought all four of these splendid steamers for something like eighty thousand dollars. We then refused to build the new ferry.

If we cannot locate an industry on our immediate waterfront or tidelands, then we should try to locate some on one of the lakes, as the whole territory from Bothell to Renton is a part of Seattle. This county and city has an investment there of ten million dollars, counting the government locks and the city bridges and we must not allow sectional or selfish interests to drive industry away from Seattle. I firmly believe if proper and united effort had been made during the war, the United States Government would have established a great army and navy warehouse base on Harbor Island. If that had been done every railroad, every public and private dock and steamship line would have profited instead of being harmed.

In New Orleans I saw, on the waterfront, the Government's new fifteen million dollar army warehouse base. In San Diego the government is spending millions developing an air and seaplane base, while right here in our neighboring City of Portland, they have three fine government buildings,—two, each covering a whole block,—and we, have only one government building, covering about three lots, notwithstanding the fact that the foreign mail business of the Seattle Post Office comes next to New York City and the post office business of Seattle is exceeded in volume by only six cities in the United States of America—and you all know the volume of business done by the Port of Seattle.

Why is it that after an intense campaign to provide here a great landing field for sea and airplanes, there seems to be no further effort and some property owners and the petty politicians are criticising the commissioners for trying to do something constructive?

Do you gentlemen realize that the commissioners personally conducted that deal, got rid of fifty-three acres of idle land north of Ballard, which the county had owned for thirty years, for twelve hundred fifty dollars an acre, in exchange for this choice waterfront on Lake Washington with railroad in the rear for only eight hundred ninety five dollars per acre?

Is there a real estate man who will say that the commissioners did not drive a good bargain? With any real estate market whatever this "Lake front" ought easily to be worth fifteen hundred dollars per acre. Do you know that every Army, Naval and Postal Commission or Board who have seen this point,—say it is ideal? Do you know that the Secretary of the Navy said he hoped to see the great air and naval base of the United States Government for the Pacific Northwest located there,—and that this statement was warmly seconded by another Cabinet Officer—Secretary Payne of the Interior Department?

In a talk before the State Commissioners' Association in Everett last week I told them that—"there was too much divided responsibility among the many elective officials to insure either economy or efficiency in the administration of the county government; that we should elect fewer men to office and we should hold to a strict accountability those whom we do elect."

What great corporation would submit to a vote of all its stockholders the position of clerk at the heads of the various departments? If so, each one would run his department independent of any governing board; yet that is the way, under the law, our county government is run. And every elective head does pretty much as he pleases.

The County Commissioners are supposed to be the board of directors or governing body and are held responsible for other elective heads over whom they have little or no actual legal control. As it is, the County Commissioners are not even permitted to select their own clerk of the board.

In my opinion the laws for each county should allow a Board of Commissioners or Supervisors and they should be every branch of government and should appoint each head of every department with the exception of the Auditor, the Assessor and the Treasurer. These positions should be independent of anybody. The Auditor should do nothing outside of auditing and keeping a strict check on every branch of county expenditure. The Treasurer should receive direct all moneys, while the Assessor should be left free to use his free and best judgment in assessing all real and personal property. Other officers such as Prosecuting Attorney, Sheriff, and Clerk, it might be wise to have the presiding Judge or the entire bench sit with the Board and have a say in selecting men for these offices.

If some such system could be worked out we would undoubtedly have better and more efficient government.

BLAINE'S ADDRESS ON "RECLAMATION"

Mr. E. F. Blaine, chairman of the recent Reclamation and Development Congress which was held in Seattle, addressed the Municipal League Tuesday. He said in part:

"We have in the State of Washington approximately five hundred thousand acres of land which last year, produced crops totalling one hundred million dollars. We have left about three million acres of arid lands. Most of the work of reclaiming arid lands has, in the past, been done by the Federal Government. The Reclamation Act, however, is no longer functioning. By selling the remaining portion of arid lands in the United States, enough money could be raised to pay for the reclamation work necessary. One hundred twenty million dollars have already been spent in reclamation work by the government. The lands affected are estimated to be worth five hundred fifty seven million dollars; five dollars for each dollar invested by the government. The Reclamation Act provided that the money invested be considered a loan and is to be paid back to the government.

"Since the passage of the Act we have reserved large areas in the state of Washington alone. Five or six million acres of timber area have been reserved containing about ninety billion feet of lumber. If we could sell that timber, we could reclaim all the arid land in this state out of the proceeds.

"We are going to ask Congress to increase the Reclamation fund. The first Reclamation law was the result of many years of intensive work and special appeal

PORT COMMISSIONERS GRAFT IN POLITICS AND ATTENTION! IN BUSINESS

(By The Secretary)

The following Editorial taken from "Gulf Ports" Magazine, published in Galveston, calls attention to Portland's bid for commerce by sending permanent representatives to New York and to the far East. Why cannot Seattle do likewise?

The Editorial follows:-

"We throw our spotlight on Portland, Oregon. The joint traffic bureau of that port and the port commission of public docks have opened a permanent New York office, in charge of C. A. Lockhart, an experienced traffic man. The traffic bureau has appointed Joseph F. Buckley oriental traffic representative and has sent him on a tour of the Far East. A third appointment is that of William G. Tait, to cover the North China field.

"It requires no explanation to prove that expert traffic men, thus distributed, will bring results. Portland has taken a lead which other ports will be forced to follow, sooner or later. The plan may be varied, but the need of experienced representatives in competitive fields may well become as urgent as it is for private enterprises. Portland's initiative has created comment among the

From Toledo City Journal

It is the peculiar prerogative of every citizen of a democracy to denounce the actions of government officials, point out errors in their public and private conduct and spread rumors of corruption and dishonesty. For many years there has been a feeling among Americans that appointment or election to a public office was more likely than not to lead to the moral downfall of the person appointed or elected. It is so rarely that a Daniel comes to champion the defense of the public official that a recent editorial on the subject in the New York Republic is quite refreshing. Concerning the popular contrast between the efficiency and dishonesty charged against governmental administration, the editorial says:

"A certain natural squeamishness on the subject of bribery in politics and government is much to our credit. A few thousand dollars paid under ambiguous circumstances by an unauthorized subordinate put an end to one of the most promising Presidential booms. The few isolated cases of corruption among minor government officials during the war were visited with the promptest

Mr. Blaine's address last Tuesday was exceedingly noteworthy in several respects. He called attention to one of the most important subjects that affect the growth and prosperity of the state of Washington and of the entire Pacific Northwest, and his address gave evidence of a mastery of his subject incomparable to anything I have ever heard. That we did not have a larger attendance was undoubtedly due to the fact that the "News" did not carry the announcement as usual. This was due to the fact that the News had gone to press before we knew definitely that Mr. Blaine would speak. If members will get into the habit of coming to every Tuesday's meeting irrespective of any announcement they will find the program exceedingly worth while. Mr. James W. Reynolds, our former president, is in charge of the program work and those who know Mr. Reynolds' ability, as every League member does, will appreciate that Mr. Reynolds will have splendid programs. Every member can help by bringing some of his friends to the Tuesday's meetings, for only in this way will the League's attendance be large and the League prosper.

A. M. Young, a civil engineer associated with Messrs. Shack, Young & Myers, was elected to the Board and was present at its meeting Wednesday. We welcome Mr. Young heartily and feel confident that he will have an important part in directing the League's activities this year.

Irving M. Clark, who was elected vice-president to succeed Malcolm Douglas, has been unable to accept the appointment owing to the conflict of duties with other organizations, and the

RAMSAY AND SLOAN ADDRESS LEAGUE

(Concluded from last issue)

I could go into endless detail and show absolute want of co-operation and a lack of willingness on the part of almost every department under our present system to work together and pull together for the common good of all the people and especially the taxpayers, who have to foot the bills.

Three years ago a representative citizens' committee of heavy taxpayers appeared before the Board and earnestly insisted that they be allowed to select and we pay for the services of an efficiency expert to check up each and every branch of County government. We did this, giving him every assistance, and paid all the bills. In the highly interesting report of this efficiency expert the conclusion is reached that no permanent results for more County affairs can be had until our State Laws are so amended as to more clearly define the powers given the County Commissioners and other elective County Officials.

Allow me to suggest that you be slow to listen to the vile wagging of every slanderous character assassin's tongue and that you mingle a little more freely with your public servants and, in the right spirit, help them solve their many problems.

I, for one, while in office, will welcome such co-operation.

Mr. Sloan dwelt on his practical experience acquired by him in ship-building, road building, and other enterprises to fit him for the office. He criticized the commissioners who favored the districts from which they secured their nominations. This favoritism, in many instances, declared Mr. Sloan, is positive loss to the county as a whole.

Sloan pointed out that at the present time there is a general duplication of offices. He cited as an example the county garage where a superintendent at a salary of $3,000 per year was employed; a head mechanic at a salary of $2400 per year; and eight workmen.

Mr. Sloan entered into a thorough analysis of the Commission's policy of purchase and operation of the ferry system. He claimed that in many instances the cost of repairs of the boats was out of proportion to their cost and service rendered. He cited figures, showing the losses sustained by the commission on the ferry system each year of its operation.

Sloan stated that he favors eliminating the West Seattle ferry so that it would not be in competition with the municipal railway.

CALDWELL DISCUSSES MUNICIPAL RAILWAY PROBLEM

The following is Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell's address to the League at its regular meeting Tuesday noon:

* * *

SOME MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS NOW CONFRONTING THE CITY

When a candidate last spring for the office of Mayor I promised the people that if elected I would see that they were given the true facts concerning their municipally owned utilities. The statement was made with particular reference to the Municipal Street Railway.

In calling your attention to the Street Railway and its condition at this time I shall avoid any reference to the wisdom of purchasing the lines or to the price paid therefor. The sole object in speaking of the railways at this time is to lay before you certain actual facts, and the problem as it appears to me. There is also a question of policy involved in regard to which I am satisfied that the whole City Council and the Mayor will not be in entire accord, and the policy should be definitely worked out within the next few months. In the solution of this matter it is probable that your organization can be of some assistance should it consider the question.

The municipality of the City of Seattle in the operation of the Municipal Street Railway is endeavoring to do something that no Public Service Commission in the United States would for a moment tolerate on the part of a privately owned utility corporation. I have reference to this: The City of Seattle has not invested one dollar of the corporate funds in the railway system. It has, however bonds outstanding for the municipal railway purchase, construction and extension, amounting to $17,215,000, of which amount $775,000 are general bonds, voted by the people; $16,440,000 are utility bonds which are a lien upon and payable solely out of the receipts of the street car system. In reality then, our street railway is capitalized at $17,215,000. Now, the City, to date, has not had to pay any of the principal due on the bond issues. It is at the present time, however, paying out of the street car revenue all operating and maintenance expenses and is paying dividends of $72,138.19 per month on the capital valuation of $17,215,000, which I have already referred to. These

Tuesday Noon, October 12th,
AT MEVES CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA
DEBATE ON CARLYON BILL

C. H. Shields, Chairman Publicity Committee Washington State Good Roads Ass'n, will uphold the affirmative.

John C. Lawrence, formerly with the Public Service Commission, will present the negative.

The meeting will begin promptly at noon; addresses begin at 12:30 and close at 1:30. Come and bring your friends.

Dividends are being paid in the form of interest on the bonds; that on the general bonds being 4½% and 4%, and all of the utility bonds except $100,000 draw 5%; this $100,000 issue bearing 6%.

These dividends, amounting to $865,658 plus per annum, are certainly much greater than were paid by the Puget Sound Traction, Light & Power Company before we took over their system. In addition to the dividends we are paying operating expenses, which for the eight months ending September 1st amounted to $3,772,255.89. Included in this amount was expense incurred in maintenance of track and structures, $308,507.68, and in the maintenance and upkeep of equipment, $502,105.36. In other words, the amount that was set aside and used monthly for the upkeep of track and equipment averaged the first eight months of this year $101,326.63. The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices has figured that we should make a monthly depreciation charge of $56,415.63, on the same basis of figuring that they hold a privately owned and operated utility company should charge depreciation; (as a matter of fact, however, the Puget Sound Traction, Light & Power Company never made a depreciation charge in any such amount); and no depreciation charge was made under the previous management of the street railway under city operation. As a matter of fact, the report of the State Bureau was not completed until after Mr. Henderson became the General Superintendent of Railways.

It is interesting to note that the printed biennial report of the Comptroller of the City of Seattle for 1919 just issued shows (page 130, Exhibit "J," Statement "V") city railway fund net deficit for the year 1919, $517,173.79. Some of us at least had gained a contrary impression from reading the newspaper accounts of the street railway finances last year.

Remembering now that under the contract of purchase of the Puget Sound Traction Company's lines we agreed to pay all operating expenses and charges, including interest, out of the receipts, and that moreover we agreed to pay the $15,000,000 out of the receipts at the rate of $833,000 a year beginning March 1, 1921, by the terms of the purchase the payment of the principal in this manner is made a first lien upon the gross receipts. We are then confronted with this situation: The depreciation charge which the State Bureau says we should make amounts to $676,987.56 a year; the principal to be paid the bondholders for the Puget Sound Traction Company's system amounts to $833,000, exclusive of the interest which is now $750,000 a year, but which will, of course, decrease in proportion to the number of annual payments on the principal that we make. During the eighteen years that we will be paying this principal we will have charged as depreciation at the rate of $56,000 a month, as recommended by the State Bureau, a total of $12,185,776. In other words during the eighteen years in question we will have charged off the entire value of the lines and at the past and present rate will have put back into the lines in upkeep and maintenance $21,886,552, and besides this will have retired our entire capital stock of $15,000,000 (or $17,215,000) and the corporation of the City of Seattle will then own and be operating a completely equipped and rehabilitated street car system and will not have a dollar invested in it, the same having been paid for and turned over to the city by the car line patrons. In other words, the thing that we are trying to do, that no Public Service Commission would permit a privately owned utility corporation to do, is collecting from the patrons of the line enough money to pay all operating expenses, and dividends or interest on the capital invested, charge off the matter of depreciation over $12,000,000, and during the same period return our entire capital investment of $15,000,000 or $17,215,000; and I have no hesitation in saying to you that it cannot be done.

The State Bureau of Accountants have charged us with depreciation of $56,415.63 a month and they inspect our books and make their report on this basis. These figures are accepted as to depreciation and manner of arriving at the same by the City Comptroller, the official bookkeeper of the City of Seattle. In so doing, they are applying to the municipal lines a rule which they say a disinterested Public Service Commission would apply to a privately owned company, but they are ignoring the fact that under our contract of purchase we intend to retire our capital stock out of our earnings so that at the end of eighteen years we will not have a single dollar invested in the railway system. The line at that time will not belong to the patrons of the line but it will belong to the corporation of the City of Seattle and the latter will have no money invested in the proposition at all.

Consequently during the month of August, 1920, according to the last figures available, we expended in maintenance and upkeep of tracks, cars and equipment, and are charged with depreciation of track and equipment an additional $56,415.63, with these items included, one of which is actual and the other arbitrary, our total expenses for the month of August, including interest charges, the money for which an actually not set aside amounted to $531,321.86, and our total revenues amounted to $504,783.36; or a net loss, during the month of August, of $26,539.50. Excluding the arbitrary depreciation charge we made, in round numbers, $30,000.00, and this under the increased fares of 6¼c tokens and 10c cash. This, however, does not take into consideration the payment of the principal, for which we will have to begin setting aside a monthly installment of $64,076.93 beginning January 1, 1921. If we have to include the $56,000.00 for depreciation and $64,000.00 a month to retire our capital investment we would be, on the same basis as August 1920, approximately $90,000.00 in the Red each month. What are we going to do about it? In my own opinion we must adopt a policy of operation and bookkeeping that is either the same as that followed by privately owned utility companies or one that is adapted to the unusual and extraordinary thing that we are attempting to do, which no private company would be permitted to do, namely the retiring of our capital investment so that at the end of eighteen years we will have a street railway into which we have, in depreciation item alone, over $12,000,000.00, to say nothing of the $21,000,000.00 that we will have expended at the present rate in upkeep and maintenance of track and equipment.

Comparative Figures About 1920-1920
Operating costs Aug. 1919.....$393,019.75
Operating costs Aug. 1920.....$459,183.67
$56,415.63 of this increase was due to depreciation charge, not made in August 1919 in any amount.

The amount expended in August 1919 for maintenance and upkeep of track, cars, etc. was $94,550.88; and in 1920 the amount expended was $98,799.75.

With the interest on the bonds for August 1919 added to the foregoing operating expenses we have total expense for August 1919, $462,317.23;

With the interest on bonds of $72,138.19 and depreciation $56,415.63, we have total expense for August 1920, $531,321.86.

The gross revenue for August 1919 was $471,858.02, or a loss, were depreciation included (none being charged then) of $48,816.35.

In August 1920 the gross revenue was $503,599.44.

It will be seen that in making depreciation charge, $56,415.63 we have a loss for August 1920 of $25,519.53

Decrease of Passenger Traffic and Increase of Expense

In August 1919 the total number of passengers carried was 11,942,263; in August 1920, 9,964,100, making 1,978,163 fewer passengers carried than for the same period last year.

The city lines are being operated this year under a general wage increase of 11.38% over August 1919, and when we consider that approximately 70% of operating costs consists of labor, it is obvious that operating costs are materially increased without any fault on the part of the management. It should also be noted that industrial insurance for August 1920 in the sum of $3,973.52 was not included in the cost of operation in 1919 for the same period.

The employees of the Municipal Street Railway have been granted the same vacations as other Civil Service employees. Since most of them had not been with the City for a year during 1919 the expense of such vacations during that year was negligible. In the month of August 1920 the cost of vacations, exclusive of the Accounting Department which is under the Superintendent of Utilities and not under the General Superintendent of Railways, was $16,996.10; The cost of vacations for the year 1920 will be approximately $100,000.00.

This is an item of expense that the private management of the Railway did not have, since they did not have the Civil Service or Charter provision that all city employees are working under. Neither did the private company pay anything like 5% on the money invested.

As nearly as I can approximate it, the figures not being at hand, the private company claimed that it at no time during the last few years was able to pay more than three and a fraction per cent. on the money invested. Under the system of charging depreciation by the private company the charge was only a small amount compared to the $56,000 already referred to, and its system was to charge a certain percentage of the revenues as to depreciation only, which all accountants and Public Service Commissions claim to be unscientific.

The decrease in passengers carried was due in large measure to the closing down of the shipyards. The cars to and from the shipyards were packed and jammed, and in comparison to the loads now being carried was a profitable business.

Notwithstanding that the number of passengers fell off approximately two million for the month, the gross revenue showed net increase in August of this year over August 1919 of $31,741.42. Over $16,000 of this amount was consumed in vacations, which were not a charge in 1919, and with depreciation charge of this year of over $56,000, as against nothing for the corresponding period in 1919, it can be seen how deeply we would have been in the hole had the present management not inaugurated a number of economies of operation.

Jitneys

Much has been said by some people, and by one of the newspapers, to the effect that the jitneys must be abolished because the Municipal Railway is entitled to the nickels collected by the jitneys; that if the jitneys are abolished the street cars can be put on a paying basis without further increase of fare.

The latest available information for comparative purposes was obtained from an examination of the street car receipts for the four days in May on which no jitneys operated, on account of the taking effect of the jitney regulatory ordinance, the enforcement of which has been enjoined by the courts for the time being. The days in question were Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and comparing each of these days with the average for the three previous Fridays, Saturdays, Sundays and Mondays, we find that the fare increase for

Friday was.....	$295.64
Saturday.....	$223.34
Sunday, (decrease).....	$915.56
Monday (increase).....	$421.32

Leaving out the deficit, which was due to an abnormal condition, we have the average increase of fares for these four days, as compared with nine previous corresponding days of the week, of $313.43, or roughly speaking, an increase in the year on this basis would be $114,402.

The question, then, as I see it, is whether the city is to abolish the only means of rapid transportation that we have, and limit the transportation solely to the slow service of surface railways for the next 18 years until the vendors of the line receive their money out of the receipts.

If the contention is sound that the proceeds of all other forms of transportation belong to the street railway fund, to be paid to the people who sold us the line, and by the same reasoning the same people should advocate that we pass an ordinance prohibiting private car owners from riding in their private automobile until the street cars are paid for because every time they ride in an automobile they deprive the street car line of revenue, it could with the same reasoning be urged that the ordinance make it an offence to carry one's neighbors to work or about the city, because in so doing the private automobile owner is depriving the street car system of revenue.

The contract under which the city of Seattle purchased the Stone & Webster lines was virtually written by the attorney for those interests, in language which he deemed would fully protect the vendors. There is nothing in this contract to the effect that the city is to prohibit all other forms of transportation until they get their money. The jitneys were operating when they owned and when they sold the lines to the city, and thousands of people depend upon them as the only means of rapid transportation. For my part, while I consider it important to use every endeavor to collect enough money from the residents of Seattle to pay the former owners for these lines in accordance with the agreement entered into, at least until it shall have been set aside, I also consider that the welfare of the city cannot and will not be served by stifling all other forms of transportation for the next 18 years. Unless the city can offer some form of rapid transportation in lieu of jitneys, it should not in my opinion abolish the same merely to increase the revenues of the street car lines.

Our own experience in operation of busses in connection with our street car lines is hardly such as to encourage us entering into that field. During the month of August, 1920, the two bus lines that we operated were at an

Expense of	$2,218.72
Revenues	$1,183.92

Deficit for August.....$1,086.13
For the first eight months of 1920 these two bus lines were operated at a total deficit of $6,051.86.

Estimate of Revenue Before Fare Increase

It will be remembered that on May 18th, the General Superintendent of Railways made an estimate of the amount of revenue would be received from an increase of fare, and a majority of the City Council agreed in my office to raise the fare to 7 cents. But instead of carrying out this agreed plan, a substitute bill was introduced and passed and put up to me for my signature, increasing the fare to 6 1/4 cents for tokens and 10 cents for single cash fare. The estimate of the General Superintendent of Railways showed that an increase in fare of 1 cent would probably bring in $82,008 increase per month, or increase it to 7 cents would bring in an average monthly increase of $164,017. The figures for the month of August, which are the only figures for a full month under the increased fare, show that passenger revenues for August increased over June $82,781. Under the estimate made in May as applied to a 6¼ cent fare, it should have been $102,510. The reasons for making the comparison with June is that that is the last full month under the old rate of fare.

We have also increased the express revenues by raising the rate on bundles of newspapers, to the end that our income has been increased about $700 a month from this source.

Beginning with April last the monthly pay roll was cut about $15,000 a month. Other economies in operation have been put into effect. As against this, however, we have an increase of wages which went into effect October, 1919, of from 10½ to 11.7% over that previously paid. The present wages of trainmen have increased from 64 to 80% over those paid January 1, 1918, under private management. During the present year the annual vacations under civil service and the city charter are costing approximately $100,000. $56,415 per month is now being charged to depreciation as against nothing for 1919, and as against a relatively small amount charged by private management.

SUMMARY

Our capital investment in the railways is $17,215,000 of which only $775,000 are general obligation. On this capital investment we are actually paying dividends of $72,138.19 per month, or $865,658.28 a year.

We have actually expended in upkeep and maintenance of tracks, cars, etc. more than $100,000 a month during the first eight months of this year, and if this is decreased to $75,000 a month or $900,000 a year, we will have expended in the eighteen years that we are paying the principal the sum of $16,200,000 for upkeep and maintenance.

We are having charged off as depreciation by the city and state accountants the sum of $56,415.63 per month, or $676,987.56 a year, or during the 18 years we are paying the principal we will have charged off $12,185,776.

Based on the first eight months of this year we are paying an average of $57,984.51 a month for power, and for the 18 years at the same rate we will have paid from our receipts $12,246,54.16 for power.

For the same period of eight months of this year our average monthly wage and miscellaneous expense, exclusive of automobile busses and not including depreciation, is $253,602.25, or $3,043,227 a year. During the 18 year period that we are paying the principal we will have paid out $54,88,086 in wages and miscellaneous expense.

Now, in addition to undertaking to get all of the foregoing amounts out of the street car receipts we have agreed to pay during the 18 years $17,215,000 our capital investment, which means that beginning the first of next January we should set aside from these receipts a sum in addition to that now being set aside or charged as depreciation, $69,416 a month to meet the annual instalments on the principal of $833,000 and continue to do this for a period of 18 years.

The present scheme is to have the car riders pay all operation, upkeep, maintenance, depreciation, dividends on capital investment, and retire the entire capital investment in 18 years, at which time the car patrons will not own the lines, but they will belong to the corporation of the City of Seattle, which will at that time under the present plan not have invested a dollar therein.

Even if we concede that those who ride upon the street cars are the only ones interested therein, and that the merchants and property owners of the city find it of no financial benefit to them to have a going street car system, for which they would be willing to pay nothing, it is still a human impossibility to successfully navigate the fatuous course that we are now embarked upon. Shall we continue to raise the street car fares during the next eighteen years, until they reach a point where an insufficient number will ride on the street cars to make their operation worth while, or shall we give the Stone & Webster people a better contract than they made by asking an entrance into the general fund in order to keep the system going? Long after my incumbency as Mayor has been forgotten you will be wrestling with this problem unless the contract is rewritten, or cancelled.

CARLYON BILL DEBATED

Reported by the Secretary

Tuesday's meeting of the Municipal League was featured by a debate on the Carlyon road bill. C. H. Shields, chairman of the Washington Good roads committee speaking in favor of the bill, and John C. Lawrence, former member of the Public Service of the State Highway Board, and at present employed by the Spokane-Spokesmen Review to work against the bill, speaking in the negative. Dr. Carlyon, author of the bill, was present to hear the arguments and made a brief address at the conclusion of the debate.

Mr. Shields pointed out that under the present system in force for more than fifteen years, $17,000,000 has been spent by this state on roads and yet there is no through route from the northern to the southern part or from the eastern to the western part of the state. The Carlyon bill offered, he said, without one cent of taxation on property or industry to develop our highways at a rate necessary for our economic expansion. He also emphasized the effect that good roads would have on increased tourist travel in the state.

Mr. Lawrence's address yesterday was the first he has made against the bill. As an introduction he stated that he had many years of experience in road building and pointed to the fact that he had been a member of the State Highway Board during his service with the Public Service Commission. He then launched an attack against the cement manufacturers, declaring that they had pleaded guilty to a charge of being a trust in restraint of trade. "Will the bill produce more miles of good road without issuing bonds and mortgaging property of the State?" asked Mr. Law-

SCHOOLS' BUDGET ANALYSIS GIVEN

Analysis of the school budget and a study of the financial condition of the Seattle school district, read by A. H. Wiseman, chairman of the budget committee, was one of the interesting features of the first meeting of the Know Our Schools Club this year.

"The budget, of course, Mr. Wiseman said, "is entirely made up of figures and must be interpreted through understanding of originating causes. The classification, the amounts and the relative percentages all depend upon reasons not evident in the bare figures. Any criticism or comment, therefore, would be useless or unfair unless it took into consideration these material factors of the subject. For instance, the instruction item refers back to the abnormal change in all wage costs and is interdependent with the economic condition in all lines of human effort. This item of expense has long been under discussion, and the large increase in amount is the response to an inexorable demand.

Every item might thus, and in more detail, be analyzed, but to do so might easily involve this report in an exhaustless study of school conditions, systems, policies and laws.

One other item, however, calls for special reference; that of interest. It is necessary, of course, to provide for the fixed charges against the bonded debt, and this is subject to fluctuation with the rate of interest and the amount of unredeemed bonds. But there is another charge for interest that is part of the yearly expense. As we know, the receipts from taxes to be levied to cover the current year's budget will not commence to flow into the treasury until April following adoption of the budget, whereas the expenses commence July 1 of the preceding year. The finances of the district for some time have been such that the money in hand has not lasted until the tax-receiving period and the practice has been to issue warrants and depend upon the banks paying the holders upon demand and charging the school district interest, as on a loan, and at a rate to be agreed to. This rate is, of course, higher than the bond rate, but the duration of the loan is comparatively short.

THE CITY RAILWAY

C. A. La Grave

In his recent address the mayor has used the revenue and expense accounts, as well as the cash accounts, to prove that the city railway is a financial wreck — and he is certainly right in his conclusion.

In this case the cash and warrant accounts show how much the road has earned and how much it has cost in money to earn it.

On Sept. 30th last there was due to the city treasurer for money advanced to pay warrants $480,000 — due to others for warrants unpaid $44,000 — and for claims and pay rolls for September, approximately $375,000. All revenues to date had been collected and used, and there is an actual deficiency of $900,000 with nothing in sight to pay any part of it.

Next year $833,000 must be provided to redeem bonds.

No depreciation is included, and in fact no money has ever been set aside for a depreciation reserve either before or since we acquired the city railway. It may be side-stepped for a while longer, but unless at least $750,000 per year is set aside for a real depreciation reserve, there will be no money to pay for the extensive replacements that are inevitable in the near future—First Avenue for instance.

The Mayor refers to the statement which appears on page 130 of the Comptroller's report for 1919, which says that the railway lost $18,000.40 last year in real money and $499,000 in depreciation.

If anyone believes this statement he must believe that the railway lost $18,000 in money in nine months of 1919 and $900,000 in nine months of 1920.

As a matter of fact, this report which agrees in amount with a joint report issued some months since by the Comptroller and the one issued by Mr. Murphine, except as to depreciation, fails to include $500,000 of money actually spent, and includes $499,000 depreciation which had previously been charged off against the value of the road.

Both parties to this deal are in a peculiar position. They evidently made the Supreme Court believe that the road would pay a profit over and above all operating costs and payment of bonds, so the Court put the Utilities Act in the reverse, and the bonds were made a lien upon gross revenues prior to operating costs — apparently the seller was a better guesser than the buyer.

The city is bound to operate the road to get revenue to pay the bonds, but can't run it unless it pays the expenses of operation. When the city treasurer gets tired of financing a losing business, warrants will be a scrap of paper and no one will work without pay. The only way to run the road will be to place it in the hands of a receiver who will run it, collect the revenues, pay expenses and forget all about the bonds — the only recourse for the bond holders will be to take the road. — They may make it pay — the City cannot.

That we are at the peak of high prices of labor and material, and that if the contracts are let at this time we would only get 50% for the money spent, was the statement made by the speaker. He asserted that a recent inquiry to the state highway board of the State of New York disclosed the fact that the entire $30,000,000 bond issue would build but from 600 to 750 miles of road; the bill provides for the building of 1650 miles of road.

That state of Washington is ninth in road building among the states of the union as another assertion made by the speaker.

After Dr. Carlyon's brief address the Municipal League committee asked the speakers numerous questions dealing with interpretation of the bill. A week from Tuesday, the League committee will render its report. The committee is composed of Carl E. Croson, chairman; Ralph D. Nichols, S. A. Keenan, H. A. Woodcock, and H. L. Glenn.

standing has not only greatly increased in recent years, but has commenced earlier in the year, as shown by the following table:

Warrants Begin	Total Amt.
1916-17—December 1	$ 534,704
1917-18—November 1	758,248
1918-19—October 1	871,337
1919-20—September 1	1,598,861
1920-21—July 1 (est)	2,500,000

Such a large amount of current debt is startling, to say the least, and it is to be considered whether the schools should be in the position of borrower on demand for so large a portion of their yearly needs.

It is true, of course, that the uncollected taxes also have increased substantially in proportion to the increase in levy; but the payments for the last half of the year's taxes are not received until many months after the close of the school year for which the budget is arranged. The increase in warrants means an increase in the interest cost, some of which is entirely justified as representing short-time loans against deferred income, whereas to the extent that the situation is reversed, there would be more money on hand collected from taxpayers and not drawing full interest value.

The interest for this item in the budget is $45,000, and as the amount of estimated warrants is 40 per cent of the expected total revenues, this is now of such magnitude and disproportion that the public appreciates the situation and becomes reconciled to such readjustment as will bring it back to a normal basis.

This report might well go into other details of proposed expenditures, but it is to be remembered that the salary question for the current year was, and had to be, determined earlier in the year and contracts have already been entered into on the basis of the schedule thus agreed upon; and, furthermore, that considerable of the expense is based on methods and policies long since adopted. Whether they are wise or no presents another field of inquiry. A complete survey, of course, would involve a study of operation, maintenance and repairs, and including the purchase of supplies and materials, and construction costs.

Concerning general school policy, which is always an interesting factor of expenses shown in the budget, there has been compiled in Washington, D. C., by the Bureau of Education, an analysis of school expenditures in 45 cities having a population of 100,000 or over and for the year 1917-1918, this being the latest period covered. From charts available the following figures can be given, for cost per year for each pupil in average daily attendance, though the fractional figures are estimated and may be subject to slight alterations:

These tables show that Seattle has been foremost in liberality in school expenditures. The figures, however, do not tell all the story and should be used with great deal of caution. The following table shows the relative position of Seattle in each of the divisions of expenditure, together with the percentage of total division in the corresponding year 1917-1918.

	Pct. of
	Seattle's	Total
Instruction—	Rank.	Expen.
High School	9th	17.9
Elementary	7th	50.0
Total	3rd	67.9
Auxiliaries	1st	2.9
General	12th	3.6
Maintenance	9th	4.4
Operation	8th	10.6
Fixed	1st	10.6
Total cost per pupil 1st		100.0

It will be seen from the above that although Seattle ranks seventh in the elementary school average and ninth in the high school, she ranks third in total instruction cost.

ADDRESS BY PROF. WOOLSTON

(Reported by the Secretary)

Prof. Howard Woolston, of the sociology department University of Washington, addressed the League Tuesday on "The Laboratory of Municipal Statistics." The carrying of the "scientific method into the city hall" was the policy advocated by the speaker.

Prof. Woolston urged that various civic, social, and commercial organizations unite in bringing current as well as salient historical information regarding Seattle into the hands of newcomers and first voters.

"There is at present no regular way of keeping information regarding the municipality together and up to date. In political and municipal affairs we have a balance sheet every two or five years, instead of every day as have progressive commercial institutions.

"The University is not supposed to be interested in partisan or political interests; yet the University needs to have current problems and issues injected in its curriculum to keep its life stimulated."

Prof. Woolston urged that the League use its influence in helping to create at this university a municipal research bureau such as was created by the College of the City of New York some years ago.

At the conclusion of the address, James A. Haight emphasized the importance of the suggestion by pointing to the difficulty League committees have had in the past of securing authentic data to make comparisons between cities.

"The State University, by establishing a municipal research bureau, could save hundreds of thousands of dollars to the cities

DISAPPROVES JITNEY BILL ADOPT JITNEY ROUTES

The following committee report was passed by the League: Municipal League of Seattle:

The Public Utilities Committee of the Municipal League, to whom was submitted the ordinance relating to the operation of For-Hire Motor Vehicles commonly known as the "Jitney Initiative Bill", makes the following report:

This bill, which is being submitted to the electors of the city at the November 2nd election, provides that any person desiring to operate a jitney bus shall, upon making application therefor, stating the route over which the jitney bus is to be operated, the termini of such route, the hours and days of operation, and the rate of fare, upon making proof as to having given the surety bond required by the State law, be given a permit to operate of this state. It is the only body that is permanent enough to carry on such an experiment," declared Mr. Haight.

Upon motion made from the floor it was voted to authorize President Lawler to appoint a committee to work with this object in view.

After Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell had called for a "showdown" with jitneurs who objected to regulations not of their choosing, the City Council judiciary committee adopted the jitney bus routes drafted by Supt. Carl H. Reeves of the utilities department.

After the mayor's challenge a disposition to give and take was manifested and the two factions of jitney operators left the chamber apparently willing to accept the committee's decision. As a result, the ordinance amendments and the routes were sent to the Council for action Monday.

Superintendent Reeves said that should the Council pass the amendments and adopt the routes as expected, the jitneurs must then file new applications for permits, as all but a few were refused permits by the Council after the passage of the present ordinance.

"The sooner the jitneurs file their applications," said Mr. Reeves, "the sooner we will be able to draw up the time schedules for operation. If the drivers act promptly there will be ample time to have the schedules ready before the election."

Another Big Problem Pending.

OPPOSES STREET CAR TAXATION

A Recent Address Before the Municipal League.

Opposition to the proposal that they be taxed to pay off the $15,000,000 purchase price of the municipal street car system, as suggested by Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell is expressed in a statement of the bureau of taxation of the Chamber of Commerce, adopted by the board of trustees. The statement is as follows:

"Notwithstanding the fact that the purchase of the system was approved by the voters of Seattle under the pledge of the city government that no part of the cost would be allowed to fall upon the taxpayers, the payment of the $15,000,000 obligation through direct taxation is now being proposed in seriousness.

"Arguments advanced in justification of this project: are that the system, when paid for, will belong to the taxpayers, not to the car riders, and so should be paid for by the taxpayers; that downtown property receives the benefit from operation of the street cars and therefore should be taxed to help pay the cost of the system.

Reasons for Opposition.

"We believe that the argument that the system will belong to the taxpayers and that, therefore, they should pay for it, is no force, when applied to a utility under municipal ownership and operation, as the utility is operated for service and not for profit, and rates to patrons of the service are fixed at cost, leaving no profit to the owners, the taxpayers. Should the policy of paying for the street railway by direct taxation be followed, it would mean simply that property owners of Seattle would be forced to contribute $15,000,000 to the Street railway utility; that as the debt was reduced, fares would be reduced proportionally, whenever operating costs would permit. No profit would be allowed to revert to the general fund, to decrease the burden of general taxation and, in the end, the taxpayers would have contributed $15,000,000 for the benefit of the car riders.

"The argument that downtown property be made to contribute on account of the benefits conferred by the street railway system is also specious. Such property has already paid for the benefits so conferred in their general taxes which are levied on the basis of the values created by their location and accessibility on account of transportation service. To levy an additional tax on account of the municipal ownership and operation of the street railway system would mean the collection of forced tribute to the support of the railway utility.

Private Ownership Cited.

"Under private ownership, the property owners of the city were not forced to pay any tax in support of the street railway system. Why should they be compelled to do so merely because the city has acquired the system?

"The taxpayers are already paying some $400,000 additional taxes to make up for the revenues from the company under private ownership, forfeited, when the city took over the system and which, in strict justice, should be made up to them by a profit in operation paid into the general fund.

"No mention is made in this proposal to pay for the system by direct taxation of the owner of a home or building lot. Under our tax laws, and tax levied for the municipal street railway system upon downtown property would fall proportionately upon the owners of all taxable property. The owner of downtown realty might recoup himself by passing on the tax in increased rent to the merchants, professional men and others, who in their turn might recover it in increased charges to their patrons, but for the owner of a home in which he lives, or the owner of a building lot on which he hopes to build a home, there would be no escape. He could not pass on the tax. He could only pay or lose his property.

Save Cents, Lose Dollars

"But above and beyond all personal considerations, is the effect which the increase in taxation involved in this proposal would have upon the community. The necessity of curbing the increase of taxation in order to protect Seattle's opportunity to grow industrially is generally recognized, yet, if this $15,000,000 were collected from the taxpayers of Seattle in equal installments during the remaining years of the life of the contract, even if the interest on the debt were met by the utility, the annual tax rate of the city would be increased more than 15 per cent, based on present assessed valuation.

"The fact that Seattle people paid less for street car rides than people of competing cities would have no effect in securing of new industries or other investment, when offset by an increased tax rate. While saving pennies in street car fares, we would be losing dollars in industrial development and employment of our people.

"The proposal under discussion vitally affects Seattle's future growth and prosperity and demands the attention of all who are interested in Seattle's welfare."

DISAPPROVES JITNEY BILL

such jitney bus. This permit cannot be revoked excepting for failure to file the surety bond required by the statute or on account of habitual neglect to operate according to the terms of the permit without sufficient excuse therefor. The bill further repeals Ordinance No. 40886, which regulated the operation of jitney buses.

A study of this initiative measure discloses the fact that there is no real regulation provided therein at all, as the applicant fixes his own hours, route, termini, and rate of fare, and there is nothing to prevent such applicant if he desires to discontinue a route or change his hours from giving up his permit and then applying for another on different terms. In other words, the ordinance authorizes no regulations excepting such as are named by the applicant himself in his application for a permit, and in addition, the adoption of this initiative measure takes away from the City Council all power of regulation, as the Supreme Court of this state in Stetson v. Seattle, 74 Wash. 606, has held that the Council has no power to repeal or amend an ordinance adopted by the people under either the Initiative or Referendum provisions of the City Charter.

We believe it is conceded by nearly everyone that if the jitneys are allowed to run, they should be operated under reasonable regulations, and it being apparent that this initiative measure would prevent such regulations from being put in force, your Committee recommends that the league go on record against the adoption of this initiative measure.

Respectfully submitted,
O. B. THORGRIMSON,
Chairman.

Another big problem is still pending—that of time schedule. City officials have expressed the opinion the jitneys should give efficient service, and Superintendent Reeves will have this in mind when he drafts the set of schedules.

It is anticipated that there may be more difficulty in this matter than was experienced in the matter of routes. The schedules were not taken up because of an upset of the routes by Council would have necessitated a revision of the schedules too.

The schedule drafting will be speeded, as the jitneys' stand on the jitney referendum bill to be voted on November 2 depends on whether satisfactory regulation is adopted by the city before the special election.

The conference between the Council committee, the mayor, Superintendent Reeves and representatives of the Jitney Driver's Union and the Sound Transit Company decided to permit a charge of 15 cents on long haul such as the Alki run, and a maximum charge of 25 cents after A. M.

The jitneys' protest against the regulation that no bus should carry more than two more than the seating capacity was overruled. The committee agreed to let busses having standing room take on additional passengers accordingly.

Objects to Proposed Routes.

The Transit Company has taken strenuous exception to the routes drafted by Superintendent Reeves, but that official explained they had been drawn up with the approval of the company's agent who attended the conference, but that the company's trustees repudiated their representative's action. The company found fault with all but the East Union route, but all were adopted.

ed as recommended by Reeves.

Mayor Caldwell told the conference that the jitneur's patrons are entitled to consideration, but that neither the operators nor the patrons could run the city streets as they wanted, without regard to the general interest.

Hurrying to the side of the conductor, a passenger eagerly inquired:

"Do you think that I will have time to get a soda before the train starts?"

"Oh, yes," answered the conductor.

"But, suppose," suggested the thirsty passenger, "that the train should go without me?"

"We can easily fix that," promptly replied the conductor, "I will go along and have one with you."

REPORT ON PIKE STREET MARKET EXTENSION

To the Municipal League:

We, a part of your committee appointed to investigate and report upon the proposed extension of the present Pike Street Market, beg to report as follows:

The committee met at the office of Robert F. Sandall, its president, Thursday, October 28th, at which time Russell H. White was out of the city and unable to attend, Fred Bert Jr., was absent, and George B. Littlefield, unable to attend, but approving of the following report in conversation with the chairman of the committee.

The proposed extension of the Pike Street Public Market has been before the city council for some time. It was referred to the Board of Public Works by the council, for investigation. The Board of Public Works referred the matter to the following committee:

Carl H. Reeves, Supt. Public Utilities, Chairman; Chas. R. Case, Supt. of Streets and Sewers; A. H. Dimock, City Engineer; James E. Blackwell, Supt. of Buildings.

The above committee made the following report:

Sept. 23, 1920

In re Extension of Public Market, Honorable Board of Public Works Seattle, Washington
Gentlemen:-

We, your committee, to whom was referred the matter of report on Public Market and Department Store Company and Fairlay Investment Company, beg leave to report as follows:

That if a market of this nature is to continue in this locality of Pike Street and Pike Place, the plan of such extension of the so-called Pike Place Market meets with the approval of the committee, our approval "must be based solely upon the ground of advantages to the public which would unquestionably offset its disadvantages."

You are advised that there will be no obstruction to the development of the street railway system by virtue of the extension of the market as requested.

In approving this plan your committee is not unmindful of the fact that the problem of market extension is not confined to the market alone. The problem of traffic whether it be foot or vehicular, must be considered

INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY IN EUROPE TOPIC OF LEAGUE ADDRESS

(Reported by Eimon L. Wienir)

Henry de Man, famous Belgian labor expert, who has been on two missions for his country within recent months and who returns to Belgium in December to head the National Labor College, addressed the League Tuesday on "Industrial Democracy in Europe." He said in part:

"Though we live at a time when technical means of transmitting information to the people has never been as thorough as it is at present, nevertheless the press has misdirected and misinformed the people to such an extent that we know little or nothing in this country of the industrial changes taking place in Europe."

"The industrial changes heralded in Russia are nothing in comparison with those taking place in central and western Europe. Belgium affords the best example of the newer conditions. It is really a microcosm of Europe, a mixture of Anglo-Saxon, Teutonic and Latin elements; it is the oldest industrial civilization; and on account of its small size and homogeneous population it is an excellent place to study prevailing conditions in Europe."

"Out of a population of eight millions it has one million industrial factory workers. Belgium now has an eight hour day and wages commensurate with cost of living. But wages and working hours have ceased to be the important issues. A growing share in the way of what labor conditions shall be and control of industry itself are now the all important questions.

"The key to the quick recovery of Belgium lay in the ability to enlist the support of the workers in the task of re-starting industry. This was made possible by creating conditions giving labor sure means of controlling and determining conditions — industrial councils, formed through the free initiative between employers and employees organizations, and legalized after their creation by the Government.

"Prior to the war legal councils existed but these were entirely forgotten, giving way to the "free" councils. Potential strikes after the armistice, cost of living having gone up, labor having been out of employment for over four years, made it imperative to "find the way out." While the system is not ideal as yet and a violent struggle may yet come, nevertheless the destructive effect of such a struggle has been done away with. As to results: it has lessened the number of strikes; it has invested nearly 60,000 workers with some kind of responsibility in settling

POWER SALES OF CITY ELECTRIC PLANT

Editor, Seattle Municipal News, Seattle.

Dear Sir:

As one of your members it has been my privilege to attend many of the inspiring weekly meetings of the matters of public interest and welfare have been so ably presented by representative speakers for the occasion among which, Skagit Power Development, as presented by Mr. R. H. Thomson, may perhaps be considered as one of the most important and interesting. With no intention to criticize and only a desire to provide information not already given regarding this vast undertaking which involves the ultimate expenditure of an amount of money equal to four times the present total bonded debt of the City of Seattle, and which may possibly affect our future welfare and progress, your attention is directed to the following:

In accordance with a request from the City Council for information as to Skagit expenditures and probable cost for development, Engineer Uhden submitted a report, summarized as follows:

Expenditures to January 1, 1921, preliminary to plant construction, $1,832,829.52; Estimated cost for Gorge Creek development: Plan A, high dam, daily storage, 60,000 K. V. A. installation, $11,000,000; Plan B, low dam, no daily storage, 40,000 K. V. A. installation, $8,000,000; Plan C, low dam, no daily storage, 40,000 K. V. A. installation, $7,000,000; Cost per K. W. H., high tension busses, Seattle: (bear these figures in mind) Plan A. $.0043; Plan B. $.0052; Plan C. $.0045. Reporting to the City Council on August 2nd, 1920, City Engineer Dimock favors the adoption of Plan C. at $7,000,000, which involves the construction of a temporary timber diversion dam, providing no storage, to be later replaced by a high concrete impounding dam affording storage sufficient for daily regulation.

In the past the City has demonstrated a tendency to under-estimate rather than over-estimate the cost for work of this character but this fact will be here disregarded and the above figures assumed as correct. On this basis your attention is directed to the following: Gorge Creek development, Plan C, initial expenditure $7,000,000; Annual depreciation charge @ 3½%, $245,000; Annual bond interest @ 6%, $420,000; Annual payment to sinking fund for amortization, $288,000; Annual fixed charges, Gorge Creek plant, $953,000. Cedar River and Lake Union plants, present investment, not including 'floating assets of several million dollars,' $10,636,682; Annual depreciation charge @3%, $319,000; interest on $6,913,000 outstanding bonds, $320,000; Sinking fund for amortization, $284,000; Annual fixed charges, present plant, $923,000. Annual fixed charges under Skagit operation, both plants, $1,876,000. Should the City undertake the extension of the railway to Ruby during 1922 and 1923, as contemplated in the plan for future development, the cost for the extension, estimated at $1,500,000, must be added to the amount already involved in fixed charges making total payment for that account in excess of $2,000,000 annually. Should the City then proceed further, as planned, to build the immense dam at Ruby that will require 3 or 4 years to complete at a cost of several millions and from which the City could derive no possible benefit before 1925, the cost of this dam must also be included in the amount involved in fixed charges which would increase the annual payment therefor to approximately $2,500,000 with no addition up to this time in the amount of power available for sale.

The City Lighting Department reports total current sales from all sources for the year 1919 as 90,081,504 KWH and total revenues of $.0232 per KWH, distributed as follows:

Business, 23,213,703 KWH, $547,718.79 or $.0235 per KWH.
Residence, 14,868,733 KWH, $744,649.14 or $.0501 per KWH.
Private AC, 40,029,318 KWH, $438,475.86 or $.0110 per KWH.
Private DC, 1,696,274 KWH, $40,284.60 or $.0238 per KWH.
Domestic Power, 2,045,242 KWH, $61,650.65 or $.0301 per KWH.
St. Railway, 2,555,990 KWH, $25,601.90 or $.0101.
St. Lighting, 5,672,244 KWH, $227,564.76 or $.0402.
Total sales, 90,081,504 KWH, $2,- 085,945.70 or $.0232 per KWH.

For the 8 months period from January to August inclusive, 1919:

Total current sales, 54,520,208 KWH.
Total revenues, $1,280,390.76.
Average selling price $.0235 per KWH.

For the corresponding period of 1920:

Total current sales, 47,413,343 KWH.
Total revenues, rebates disregarded, $1,405,649.38.
Average selling price, $.0296 per KWH.

Current sales, decrease in 1920, 7,106,865 KWH, equal to 13.6%.

Revenues, increase in 1920, $125,258.62, equal to 9.7%.

Selling price, $.0061 per KWH, equal to 26%.

For the period of July and August only, 1919:

Current sales, 14,248,107 KWH, Revenues, $287,773.28, selling price $.0202 per KWH.

For the period of July and August, 1920:

Current sales, 9,721,871, decrease 4,526,236 or 32%. Revenues, $295,199.21, increase $7,425.93 or 2.5%. Selling price, $.0304 per KWH, increase $.0102 or 50%.

The increase in average selling price for July and August, 1920, over 1919, amounting to 50%, was due partly to an increase in rates effective in July, and to a change in the general character of sales made, the reduction in sales for power purposes at low rates being largely replaced by an increase in sales for residence lighting, etc., at the higher rates.

Operation and maintenance costs for the year 1919 amounted to $1,189,837.97 for current sales totaling 90,081,504 KWH, equal to $.0132 per KWH. Should the business of the Lighting Department continue at the rate established by the months of July and August, 1920, the annual sales will approximate 60,000,000 KWH, and the cost of production under Skagit operation in 1923 would be as follows:

Operation and maintenance, as of 1919, $.0132

Fixed charges, not including R. R. extension, $1,876,000; $.0313

Total cost, annual sales of 60,000,000 KWH, $.0445.

Should circumstances arise that will enable the City to recover its lost business by 1923 the cost to the Lighting Department will be as follows:

Operation and maintenance, as of 1919, $.0132

Fixed charges, including R. R. extension, $2,000,000; $.0222

Total cost, annual sales of 90,000,000 KWH, $.0354.

If it were possible to dispose of the entire output of the Gorge Creek and Cedar River plants operating simultaneously to capacity on the present load factor increasing annual sales by 1925 to 120,000,000 KWH, the cost would be approximately as follows:

Operation and maintenance, as of 1919, $.0132

Fixed charges, R. R. and Ruby dam included, $2,500,000; $.0208.

Total cost, annual sales of 120,000,000 KWH, $.0340

Furthermore, deduction of stream-flow of Skagit River from records of the U. S. Geological Survey from 1909 to 1919 inclusive show the necessity for the operation of Cedar River and Lake Union plants as standby during the six-months period of low water in the Skagit, from October to March inclusive, when the demand for power is greatest which necessitates the employment of operators at the standby plant and a consequent increase in the cost for operation and maintenance, estimated at one-half cent per KWH, which should be added to the costs shown above.

The foregoing figures show the cost to the Lighting Department under Skagit operation to be approximately ten times the estimated cost for power delivered from the Gorge Creek plant as reported to the City Council by the Skagit Engineer. With average selling price at three cents, as of July and August, 1920, and costs ranging from four to five cents, the City will again be called upon to increase the schedule of rates of the Lighting Department in order to make up a deficiency that will exceed one million dollars annually which would otherwise invite disaster and force the Utility into bankruptcy to keep company with the Seattle Municipal Railway.

Yours very truly,

B. H. PETLEY

Civil Engineer, 1616 Hoge Building.

in connection with this plan.

This however is not true of some other features of the plan. A letter from the Superintendent of Streets and Sewers is hereto attached and covers in detail the questions which arose in committee in re traffic in general. In other words, your committee wishes to impress on your Honorable Body the fact that the net increase in the traffic on Pike Place, due to an enlarged market and the opening of Elliott Avenue and streets to the north, must be considered and provision made for such increase by sooner or later providing additional roadway and sidewalk space.

The proposed plan will remove from the roadway area all farmer's stalls, which in itself is highly desirable.

Your attention is also called to the fact that provision has been made in the redrafted traffic ordinance, now before the city council, for a thirty minute standing provision on Pike Street and Pike Place, west of 1st Ave., thereby assisting the traffic in this congested area.

We are also of the opinion that the outlook over the comfort station at Pike Place and Pike Street should not be reduced in area or otherwise curtailed.

A letter from superintendent of buildings covering building matters in general is also hereto attached.

Your committee is also of the opinion that all stalls should be rented direct from the city, rather than have some rented by the Farket Company and some by the city, owing to the fact that this would sooner or later lead to difficulty in the controlling of the farmer's stalls and the enforcement of rules governing them.

Your attention is directed to a letter from the commissioner of health, hereto attached, giving his views on this particular matter.

You will also find attached to this communication Council File No. 78459, together with other papers submitted to the Board of Public Works and this committee.

We, your committee, approve of the above report. We favor the retention of the market in its present location; of its extension to meet with the present demand, and insofar as the same can be done with respect to the widening of streets, and other necessary improvements.

We especially feel that the stalls should all be rented direct from the city, rather than have some rented from the city and some from the Market Company. If this is not done we fear that there would be difficulty in properly controlling the market by the city. Respectfully submitted industrial disputes; and it has resulted in Belgium being the first industrial nation in Europe to get on its feet again.

ROBERT F. SANDALI

Chairman City Development Committee.

"The only way for Europe to recover from the effects of the war, is, in my opinion, to find machinery that will give normal expression to labor over the whole system of production. If it will try to solve its problems in the same spirit of "give and take" as did Belgium then our comparative success gives me permission to be optimistic as to results."

MUNICIPAL STATESMANSHIP

(Reported by Eimon L. Wiener)

Richard F. Scholz, Prof. University of Washington, addressed the Municipal League Tuesday on "Municipal Statesmanship." He said in part:

"Statesmanship is the constructive-ability to work our forward looking programs and to crystallize public sentiment behind them. A statesman must see things as a whole and in perspective; he must face realities --- in all facts, whatever they may be, and no matter how uncomfortable; he must have courage and vision.

"Of the three great problems facing Seattle today, the transportation problem, which is intimately connected with housing problems, is one of the most important. We must keep the transportation feature separated from the financial. If we have made a mistake, we must face it.

"The second problem facing Seattle is that of industrial peace. Not only process of production is involved. It is a matter of politics, --- the science of teaching men how to associate with the ability to cooperate, and, if necessary, to learn how to compromise. The great industrial problem today is not that of fight for distribution of wealth, but for economic power. We must know what is going on in Europe and especially in England. The old world, from the industrial standpoint, is the new world.

"The process of industrialization which began in 1890, when Western land was no longer available has the safety valve of free lands. We must adjust our political machinery to the new social and industrial conditions. We need a new attitude.

"The race question is of extreme importance to Seattle. Your function is to stop exploiting the race issue for the purpose of increasing circulation of a newspaper. In exclusion is the solution of the Japanese question, let us have it, but by all means, let it be gotten by honorable methods --- diplomatic intercourse through the Federal Government.

"We ought to have a community newspaper in Seattle, one that will bring out both sides to the question. Our present troubles are largely due to the fact that the thousands of readers of one newspaper will not read the other, and learn the other side."

TOLEDO GRANTS STREET RAILWAY FRANCHISE

From "The Toledo City Journal"

Toledo's street car question has been permanently settled.

By a vote of more than two to one, Toledo's electorate approved the service-at-cost ordinance granting a franchise to the Community Traction Company, a newly incorporated company, formed to take over the street railway interests of the Toledo Railways and Light Company. By approximately the same majority they voted down the two proposed bond issues for a municipal transportation system.

The new franchise will go into effect as soon as the Toledo Railways Light Company and the Community Traction Company have filed with the Clerk of Council their formal acceptance of the ordinance, and the transfer of the property has been effected. The date of the transfer will be the date of the taking effect of the ordinance.

Fare to Go Down

After these formalities have been completed, the first effects of the franchise upon the car-riding public will be in the lower fare that will go into operation at once. The fare will be reduced from its present level of seven cents cash fare and three tickets for 20 cents, and two cents for transfers, to the new rate of six cents cash fare, five tickets for 30 cents, and one cent for transfer. This rate will be in effect for six months, after which the fare will be determined automatically by the level of the reservoir known as the Stabilizing Fund.

Also among the first steps to be taken will be the appointment of a Board of Street Railway Control by the mayor. This board will be made up of three electors of the City of Toledo, appointed for terms of two years, four years and six years respectively. These three persons must not be in the employ of either the city or the company, nor be shareholders nor holders of bonds of the company, nor be members of the Ohio legislature. They are to be unsalaried.

STREET CAR FINANCES REPORT

Seattle, Washington,
November 1, 1920.

The Municipal League,
Seattle, Wash.

Gentlemen:

There was recently referred to your Utilities Committee for investigation and report the various problems now confronting the Seattle Municipal Railway system. Your committee took up the consideration of these problems with the full appreciation of the public's growing interest in the matter, and its desire to receive authentic information as to the actual status of our railroad properties, and advice as to the best methods to pursue to correct the manifest difficulties under which it is operating.

It at once became apparent, however, that so much was involved in such an investigation, that there were so many collateral issues, that no worthwhile report could be made unless more time and funds were available than the committee has at its disposal. The committee is strongly of the opinion that a report based upon insufficient investigation, with suggestions of partial or ill-considered remedies is certain to do more harm than good.

With the railroad problem are involved the following:

- The Jitneys
- Subways
- Increased fares
- Tax burdens and tax limitations.

It is believed that the League will be best, in such vital matters, to discourage the issuance of reports, unless based on thorough investigation by competent men, even though such reports may not issue more than once a year or two years.

The Committee has, however,

The Street Railway Commission

When the Board of Control has been organized, they will select a Street Railway Commissioner who will then be appointed by the Mayor upon their recommendation. This Commissioner will be the paid representative of the Board of Control and the City, charged with the duty of protecting the rights of the public in the operation of the system. His salary, office rent, and supplies will be paid for by the Company. His office will be in connection with other city offices, rather than the company's offices as is the case in some other cities where similar franchises are in effect.

Another immediate job of the Board of Control is the preparation of a plan for the re-arrangement of the street railway system with the view of more efficient operation and better service. The franchise requires that this plan shall include provisions for a crosstown line. The only limitation placed on the Board in planning a re-arrangement of the system is that it shall not involve a cost of more than one million dollars, nor impair the ability of the company to meet its obligations and earn its specified return on its investment.

SHOP COMMITTEE PLAN EXPLAINED

(Reported by Eimon L. Wienir)

Mr. J. C. Lindsay, Industrial Engineer, at the present employed by the Admiral Line, addressed the Municipal League Tuesday. Mr. James A. Haight, in introducing the speaker pointed out the fact that the League has had an industrial relations committee for several years past, and that it was the result, largely, of the work of the League committee in causing to be prepared and presented to the Legislature a Bill relating to industrial matters that the present labor commission was created. He introduced Mr. Lindsay as one of the "apostles in the way of bringing about harmonious and intimate relationship between employer and employee." Mr. Lindsay said in part:

"We should do something to better the reputation of Seattle throughout the country at large to overcome the misrepresentations which have been spread and which we know are absolutely untrue. Los Angeles is growing by leaps and bounds principally because it is considered to have the best industrial relations of any city on the Coast. Seattle is known to have the worst.

"While in Chicago recently attending a convention of some forty-eight hundred representatives of various industries, I was repeatedly asked the question, 'How is the revolution in Seattle?', and on numerous occasions on that trip I was asked questions which made me firmly convinced that the people of the country, as a whole, regarded Seattle as a veritable nest of revolutionary activities.

"It is, of course, to the interest of the employer to fight for the open shop as it is for the employee to fight for the closed shop, but there is a middle road

THE LEAGUE WILL MEET
Tuesday Noon, November 23rd
AT MEVES CAFETERIA—SECOND AND SENECA
Major Carl H. Reeves, Supt. of Public Utilities will address the League on Problems Confronting the Department

—a common ground that can be arrived at by conference, each party trying to meet the others' desires. That, in short, is the shop plan.

"The 2nd report of the Second Industrial Conference called by the President, in its report, favored the Whitley Commission Plan proposed in England. This plan, in effect, recommends the establishing of conferences of districts within a state group of states and nationally, which conferences are to be known as "Adjustment Boards" and where employer, employee and the public at large should be represented. This is carrying out the shop plan to its logical solution.

"The shop plan is to divide the plant into zones: to have the men within the zone secretly elect its own committeeman; the committeemen to meet weekly, semi-monthly or monthly, as the case may be; these meetings not to be attended by foremen or officers of the Company unless specifically invited so to do. Once a month a meeting to be held between the employees and a limited number of officers of the corporation when all matters affecting employer and employee are discussed freely.

"These conferences result in better methods of doing work and lead to harmonious relationship. Absolute sincerity and frankness on the part of each is essential. Each must have its cards face open on the table and each side must concede to the other what it can.

"Forty per cent more efficiency has been secured in our plant by this method; and pilferage, which heretofore has been common and expensive to the company, has been reduced to a minimum.

"Through the 'production bonus' method, which we are now working out a 100% efficiency program we believe it can be secured in our plant."

MUNICIPAL RESEARCH COMMITTEE ACTIVE

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM

Mr. J. Y. C. Kellogg, member of the Civil Service Commission appeared at the meeting of the Board of Trustees Wednesday and urged appointment of a civil service committee of the League to investigate and study certain improvements in civil service rules. The following letter sent by the Secretary to the chairman of such a committee sets forth the matters suggested by Mr. Kellogg:-

Nov. 17, 1920.

Chairman Civil Service Committee,
Municipal League,
Seattle, Wash.

Dear Sir:

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees today, Mr. J. Y. C. Kellogg, at present a member of the Civil Service Commission of the City of Seattle, appeared before our body and asked our co-operation in this: that we appoint a committee to make an investigation and study with a view of recommending certain changes that would lead to the improvement and efficiency of civil service commission of the city. The Board voted that this be done and authorized the President to appoint a committee of five, of which you are the chairman.

The following are suggestions made by Mr. Kellogg: Mr. Kellogg pointed out that the present plan of standardization used by the Civil Service Commission of this city would not have come but for the help of the Municipal League. Owing to the fact that at the present time the authority and power of the Commission is somewhat limited by the overlapping authority and power of the City Council, an impartial and independent organization, such as the Municipal League, is, is needed to step in and to investigate the following matters:

1. A resolution should be proposed that would give power to the Commission to require each Civil Service employee of the city not to engage in a general strike so long as he remains an employee of the city.

2. Within each classification made by the Commission, there exists within that classification a graduated salary scale ranging for example from $180.00 to $225.00 per month. The City Council indicated that it would have the Commission act as a sort of advisory committee as to salary increase within each of the classes. The council, however, has not acted officially and it may or it may not accept the recommendation of the commission. Mr. Kellogg suggested that the Commission is the proper body to have the power to determine the salary adjustment within each class.

3. The Corporation Council of this city made a decision last week whereby employees may be advanced from a lower to a higher classification by the head of his department, delegating him additional duties and without requiring the employee to take a civil service examination. If this decision is allowed to stand, the heads of the department could evade civil service rules and the commission would be powerless to stop them.

4. The salary schedule should be revised from time to time to meet the ever changing cost of living. Power could be given to the Commission to study and revise salary schedules and each year, before the budget is made up, to make a report to the said Council, asking them to approve the new schedules.

5. The matter of the retirement of super-annuate employees (with the possibility of giving the commission the power to have an expert employment man on the job to weed out inefficient men.)
6. Civil service rules should be modernized and presented as amendments to the charter of the city.

Trusting you and your committee will give these matters your earnest consideration, I am

Yours very truly,
EIMON L. WIENIR
Secretary.

LEAGUE TO AID IN REVISING BUILDING CODE

Initial steps for revision of the city building code, readjustment of boundaries of voting precincts, and introduction of a new traffic ordinance, with important provisions, were the outstanding features of Monday's meeting of Seattle's city council.

A communication from James E. Blackwell, superintendent of the building department, was referred to the public safety committee, urging revision of the city building code. Blackwell declared the present code, adopted July 22, 1913, does not satisfactorily meet present conditions, seven year's experience having shown "some defects in the ordinance, come sections of doubtful interpretation and some of actual conflict." It is particularly essential, Blackwell stated, to decide what buildings regulations shall be made retroactive.

Appointment of an advisory committee to assist the council in framing the new code was suggested, each of the following to have a representative on the committee: City building department, board of appeals, architects, civil engineers, Master Builders' Association, corporation counsel, school board, health department, park board, fire department, Washington surveying and rating bureau, Building Owners and Managers' Association, Chamber of Commerce, Municipal League and Manufacturers' Association.

casting the only negative vote the council appropriated $175,000 to continue construction work of the Skagit power project.

TRAFFIC ORDINANCE INTRODUCED

The traffic ordinance introduced in the city council Monday was drafted by the public utilities department after conference with the different interests affected and in conjunction with the police traffic division. The ordinance, covering 100 type-written pages, reenacts most of the present code, but includes several new provisions of far-reaching effect.

The proposed ordinance extends the limits of the downtown district where parking automobiles is prohibited and

The American Red Cross

The "Greatest Mother" concept which was visualized in the famous art poster used by the American Red Cross in its second war fund campaign has had its symbolism adapted to the Red Cross work of the post-war era and will illuminate the main poster to be used in the Fourth Roll Call November 11-25. This adaption will bear the title "Still the Greatest Mother in the World." Everyone is familiar with the original "The Greatest Mother in the World," the effectiveness of which has been shown in part by the fact that it has furnished a synonym for Red Cross that has come to almost a household term. More than any other symbol, except the red cross itself, the public has made it the trademark of the American Red Cross.

standing permitted for only thirty minutes at a time. The new district includes First, Second and Third Avenues from Jefferson Street to Virginia Street, and prohibits standing in this district at any time between the hours of 8 a. m. and 10:30 a. m. and 4 and 6 p. m. except while actually loading or unloading. On side streets in the main business district where standing is now permitted without time limit, the new ordinance permits standing for only an hour at a time, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

The parking and standing regulations applying to the downtown district are extended to the automobile section in the proposed ordinance, which also prohibits use of exhaust whistles and sirens and authorizes the police department to establish emergency zones in cases of danger to traffic. The ordinance was referred to the public safety committee, which has already tentatively approved the measure.

MAYOR SUGGESTS LIBEL SUIT

Declaring the City of Seattle should institute libel proceedings against the publication for alleged misrepresentation of Seattle's experience with municipal ownership of public utilities, Mayor Caldwell transmitted to the council a copy of the October issue of the Public Service Magazine, published in Chicago, in which appeared an article headed "Municipal Electric Plant Proves Burden," and purporting to give facts and figures concerning the financial status of the city's street railway and light departments.

The article alleges that "the total bonded indebtedness of Seattle is $38,316,250, and when additional bonds already authorized are sold, it will total $47,651,250, which is nearly 20 per cent of the 1919 assessed valuation of all taxable property in the city." "This," Mayor Caldwell asserted, "is a gross misstatement of fact, evidently designed to create the impression that our municipally-owned utilities are being contributed to by the taxpayers of the city in their annual taxes and hence that Seattle is a good place for capitalists and new residents to stay away from."

Statements by the superintendent of lighting and the general superintendent of railway controverting the allegations in the article named were inclosed with the mayor's communication, which suggested that these letters and the article to which they pertain be referred to the corporation counsel for the purpose of determining whether there is sufficient basis for a libel suit against the magazine.

The matter was referred by the council to its city utilities committee without discussion.

bureau and giving data as to expense, costs, time of organization etc. Dean Condon who had been active for a number of years past in attempts to establish a similar bureau related his experience with one of the local organizations and the work done. The committee came to the conclusion that an active co-operation of various civic organizations and public spirited citizens would be necessary in order to make a success of such an undertaking; and the committee decided to call an evening meeting in the very near future inviting representatives of various organizations and other public spirited citizens interested. The time and place of such a meeting will be announced in these columns and through the press later.

You and each of you are hereby summoned to appear within sixty (60) days after the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: within sixty (60) days after the 30th day of October, 1920, and defend the above entitled action in the above entitled court, and answer the complaint of the plaintiff and serve a copy of your answer upon the undersigned attorney for plaintiff, at his office below stated; and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you according to the demand of the complaint which has been filed with the clerk of said court.

The object of said action is to obtain the judgment of the above entitled court that that certain mortgage dated February 2, 1914, made by Ludwig Brooks and Lena Brooks, then husband and wife, to Bothwell & Crockett Company, a corporation, and which is now of record in the office of the auditor of King County, State of Washington, in Volume 592 of Mortgages at page 139 of the records of said King County, State of Washington, and which said mortgage has been assigned to plaintiff, is a valid first mortgage lien upon Lot Eighteen (18) in Block Three (3) of Boston Heights Addition to Seattle, situate in King County, State of Washington, and every part thereof, for security of payment of that certain promissory note and interest coupon notes described in said mortgage, and certain sums set forth in said complaint amounting to, for the principal of the said promissory note and said interest coupon notes and taxes and assessments paid, the total sum of Twenty-two Hundred Seventy-three Dollars and Eighty-eight Cents ($2273.88), with interest on the portions of said total sum at the rate of ten per cent (10%) per annum as follows:

On $1500.00 from February 2, 1919;
On $52.50 from February 2, 1916;
On $52.50 from August 2, 1916;
On $52.50 from February 2, 1917;
On $52.50 from August 2, 1917;
On $52.50 from February 2, 1918;
On $52.50 from August 2, 1918;
On $52.50 from February 2, 1919;
On $406.38 from June 10, 1918;

and for the further sum of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) attorney's fees, and for plaintiff's costs and disbursements in said action, and to obtain judgment for the foreclosure of said mortgage and sale of the said lands and premises at foreclosure sale and the application of the proceeds of said sale to payment of the costs of such sale, and then to payment of the sums and amounts hereinbefore set forth to the plaintiff, and that defendants and each of them and all persons claiming by, through, or under them, or any of them, be by such foreclosure sale foreclosed and barred of and from all claim, right, and equity of redemption in or to said lands and premises and every part thereof, except only the statutory right of redemption for one year after such sale, and for such other, further, or different relief in the premises as shall be equitable.

MAJ. CARL H. REEVES ADDRESSES LEAGUE

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Major Carl H. Reeves, Superintendent of Public Utilities of the city addressed the Municipal League Tuesday noon on the traffic problem existing in the city. He said in part:

"Undoubtedly, one of the biggest traffic problems before the city today is that created by the building of the new stadium at the University of Washington. To my mind, it is going to force the erection of the Montlake bridge over the canal. The council will probably present the matter of a bond issue for consideration to the people next spring. This may solve, to a large part, the traffic situation existing in the northeast part of the city."

"In spite of the fact that the city has lost a great many of its workers by the closing of the ship yards, the traffic has increased materially during the past year. According to a check made in October traffic over the Fremont bridge increased five per cent; that over the University bridge increased twelve per cent; while the Ballard bridge held its own and a slight decrease was shown over the West Seattle bridge. In the nineteen hour period over which the check was made this year, one hundred eighteen thousand persons were recorded as having passed over the bridges."

Based on figures of two years ago, with some slight corrections, Major Reeves declared, the Montlake bridge would probably cost in the neighborhood of eight hundred thousand dollars.

Tuesday noon, November 30th, J. D. Ross, Superintendent of Seattle Light Department, will address the Municipal League.

Candidates Investigating Committee will report on School and Port Elections

C. F. Uhden, Chief Engineer of the Skagit Project, will address the League Tuesday, December 7th, on the Skagit power development. Mr. Uhden came from Spokane where he was chief engineer of the Washington Power Company. While in that corporation he had charge of three hydro-electric projects ranging in price from three and one-fourth millions to six million dollars each. Each one of these projects is in actual operation in Eastern Washington today and furnish a large part of the power to the Milwaukee Railroad. Mr. Uhden's address is awaited with eagerness by those who want direct information of the present work of the Skagit project. A large attendance is expected Tuesday noon.

A special committee appointed by President Lawler to investigate the qualifications of candidates for school and port elections will bring in its report. Owing to the fact that the report will not be ready for publication until Tuesday noon, it is not produced in this issue. The report, however, will be given to the newspapers for publication and copies of the report may be had by calling the Secretary

Main 476. Come to the meeting Tuesday and hear it read by the chairman of the committee, John D. Hall. The other members of the special committee are A. H. Wiseman, Nelson R. Anderson, C. E. Bogardus and A. J. Balliet.

COUNCIL IS FREE TO BAN
JITNEYS

No legal bar exists that would prevent enactment of legislation either regulating or abolishing jitney operation within the city of Seattle, according to information conveyed to the city council by corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier in a communication giving the status of pending litigation on the jitney question.

Although restrained from enforcing the present jitney regulation ordinance until the state supreme court decides an appeal from a decision in the superior court of King County denying a permanent injunction, the city is free to pass other legislation on the jitney question, Meier points out.

"On November 17, 1920, the case of H. P. McGlothorn, plaintiff, against the city of Seattle, defendant, in which theretofore

MATTERS ACTED UPON BY COUNCIL

Business transacted by the council at Monday's session included the passage of an ordinance authorizing the board of public works to sign a special use permit with the United States forestry department for the use of a right-of-way 100 feet wide along the north bank of the Skagit River in connection with the city's hydro-electric development and the adoption of a bill changing the name of Fourteenth Avenue Northeast between Northlake Avenue and Ravenna Boulevard to University Way.

An appropriation of $10,000 was voted by the council for the purpose of enabling the board of public works to make borings and soundings at the southwest shore of Cedar Lake to determine the feasibility of plans by J. D. Ross, superintendent of lighting, for construction of a tunnel between the dam and the powerhouse as a means of making possible full use for hydro-electric purposes of water stored in the lake.

For Movable Bridge

A bill appropriating $5,000 to enable the board of public works to prepare preliminary plans and specifications for a movable span bridge, with approaches, across West Waterway at Spokane Street, was referred to the finance committee. Funds for the construction of this bridge will be derived from the sale of bonds authorized by a vote of the people at the city election last spring.

Appointment of L. B. Youngs, superintendent of the city water department, as chairman of the board of public works for the ensuing year was announced to the council by Mayor Caldwell. Mr. Youngs has held the position seven years.

the Chamber of Commerce suggesting construction of a bridge at Montlake Avenue over the Lake Washington canal as a means of furnishing transportation facilities to the University District, and particularly the Stadium. The mayor recommended that a proposal to issue bonds for this purpose be submitted at the city election next March. The matter was referred by the council to its streets and sewers and finance committees.

Jamaica ginger is classified with intoxicating liquors in an ordinance introduced in the council Tuesday and referred to the public safety committees for investigation. The proposed ordinance would make Jamaica ginger subject to the same city laws that apply to the sale of intoxicating liquors. The measure also revises the city liquor ordinance, bringing its provisions up to date and making them conform with state and national laws.

A request from the American Nitrogen Products Company for the right to purchase surplus power from the Skagit project for use in the air nitrate industry was referred to the utilities and finance committees. To the same committees was referred a claim by the Mandic Construction Company for sums aggregating $8,000 alleged to constitute "payments wrongfully and unjustly withheld by the city of Seattle from the claimant" for work performed on the Skagit project.

COUNCIL IS FREE TO BAN JITNEYS

a temporary injunction had been issued, was finally disposed of in the superior court by the entry of a judgment denying a permanent injunction and dismissing the case." Meier states in his communication.

"Pursuant to the provisions of Section 7299, Pierce's 1919 Code, the plaintiff has given notice of appeal to the supreme court, and has filed, within the time fixed by law, a bond in the sum of $2,200, being the amount fixed by the court to keep the temporary injunction in force pending the determination of such appeal.

"Under these circumstances, although the final judgment of the superior court was to the effect that the city was proceeding in a lawful manner in the matter of the regulation of the operation of jitneys within the city, it cannot proceed to the enforcement of the provisions of its ordinance because of the continuation in effect of the temporary injunction during the pendency of the appeal.

"If the city council desires that the unregulated operation of jitneys shall continue during the pendency of the appeal, it may permit the same by refraining from further legislation in the premises. On the other hand, if you do not desire to permit the unregulated operation of such jitneys, or their operation at all, there is no legal impediment to the repeal of said Ordinance No. 40886 and the enactment of an ordinance containing such provisions as you might deem proper in the premises."

Adopting a recommendation by its city utilities and finance committees, Seattle's city council at its meeting Monday, formally rejected legislation designed to compromise differences between city officials and the jitney interests over enforcement of jitney regulations.

A resolution specifying a policy to be followed in fixing jitney routes and establishing the termini of these routes and an ordinance amending the existing regulation ordinance so as to permit the jitneys to charge a maximum fare of 25 cents were postponed indefinitely by the council, the vote standing six to three.

Councilman R. H. Thomson, A. T. Drake and William Hickman Moore joined in a committee report recommending indefinite postponement of the two measures while Councilmen Oliver T. Erickson, John E. Carroll and Robert B. Hesketh signed a report favoring adoption of the proposed legislation.

STREET RAILWAY CONFERENCE DUE

With the overdraft on the city railway fund to be increased to more than $600,000 by disbursements for street railway operating expenses aggregating $343,152.73, a conference of city officials will be held in the near future, according to plans announced Tuesday, and a proposal to increase the fare charged on the car lines will be considered.

Councilman R. H. Thomson, chairman of the council city utilities committee, said that he had been in conference with D. W. Henderson, general superintendent of railways, on the subject of street railway finances, and that data is being gathered to determine accurately the rate of fare necessary to place the street railway on a paying basis. As soon as these figures are furnished an ordinance specifying the new rates of fare will be drafted and presented to a conference of Mayor Caldwell and city councilmen, he stated.

Admitting that an 8-1-3-cent fare is being considered, Thomson declared no definite decision has been reached as to the exact fare necessary. This cannot be determined, he asserted, until a complete statement of operating costs and other financial obligations to be discharged, together with an estimate as to revenue receipts, is available.

That a proposal to increase fare will meet with opposition in the city council is practically certain. Councilman Oliver T. Erickson has publicly declared himself as in favor of reducing fares instead of increasing them, and using the receipts to pay off bonded indebtedness, cost of operation to be defrayed from the city's general fund. Other councilmen were unwilling to indicate their views on the proposed fare increase, declaring their intention to await Superintendent Henderson's statement on the situation before determining their course.

The city railway fund was overdrawn $324,901.81, according to the records in the city treasurer's office. Additional warrants against this fund aggregating $343,152.73 will be issued by City Comptroller Harry W. Carroll in the regular semi-monthly disbursement of funds to meet the cost of city government. Of this $343,152.73, the sum of $137,075.93 will pay salaries and wages of employees of the street railway department for the first half of the month of November, while $206,076.80 will be for supplies and materials on bills rendered Nov. 1.

Outstanding warrants against the city railway fund not presented to the city treasurer for payment, aggregating $8,741.75. With the $324,901.81 overdraft and the $343,152.73 additional warrants issued Wednesday, this makes the total deficit in the railway fund $676,796.29 against which the only offsets are the passenger and freight receipts of Tuesday and Wednesday, which will not exceed $30,000, and other small accounts receivable, making the total deficit at least $600,000. This deficit will be reduced day by day during the next two weeks from the revenues of the railway system, so that the overdraft on the city railway fund will be about $330,000 by the time the next payday, Dec. 10, is reached.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

By Fred W. Catlett.

The corporation counsel's office has ruled that the city is without power to impose a wheel tax on motor vehicles using the city streets. The suggestion has been made that such a tax could be justly levied to offset the loss of revenue on the Municipal Street Railway System because of the special benefit received by the private vehicle owner. The opinion states that such a tax would be in the nature of a license and that the city is prohibited by state law from imposing a license other than an occupation license effecting vehicles for hire or such as may be engaged in intercity service.

The port commission election will take place on the 4th of December. The contest lies between Commissioner Lippy, who is seeking re-election and State Senator George B. Lamping, an unsuccessful candidate for the republican nomination for governor. We believe, and here we state an individual opinion only, as a League committee is at work investigating the candidates and will make a report on Tuesday upon which the League will take formal action, that Mr. Lippy has served the port well and faithfully, part of the time without any monetary compensation. There is, in our judgment, no reason why he should not be re-elected and many reasons why he should. Without in any way reflecting on Mr. Lamping's record or personal character, we believe he represents in this contest interests which are inimical to the welfare of the Port of Seattle.

It is perfectly clear to even the casual observer that the Farmer Labor and Triple Alliance groups, having suffered so recently a stinging defeat when fighting in the open, have decided to endeavor to accomplish the election of their candidate by supporting him under cover. Immediately after the election their local representatives announced that they would have candidates at the port and school election. They have apparently changed their plans as we have suggested.

ed. That their candidates however are Senator Lamping for the Port Commission and Judge Windsor for the School Board is plain. In addition, Senator Lamping has unpatriotic and also unwise anti-Japanese support which would certainly not tend to increase the value of his services to the board. These interests behind the candidacy of Senator Lamping are not only dangerous but powerful. They are counting upon the small vote normally cast at the port election. Under these circumstances it is clearly the duty of all citizens to make an unusual effort to vote and to get their friends to vote on Saturday, December 4th.

The school election occurs on the following Tuesday, December 7th, and presents another clean-cut issue. Mr. Shorrock who has served continuously on the board for a period of 18 years and Mr. Carl E. Croson are pitted against Judge Richard Windsor and Dr. E. J. Brown. Judge Windsor has doubtless been of service to the board but in our judgment he is now too old and infirm to be of future service and should be replaced by a younger man. In addition to that Judge Windsor was the man who nominated Robert Bridges in the Farmer Labor convention and he is a representative of that group. More than that, whether consciously or not, Judge Windsor has represented upon the board during the past year a disorganizing element which has injured the school administration and which ought to be entirely eliminated as soon as elections permit. As for Dr. Brown, he is so well known as to need little discussion. He is the best example at present of the perennial candidate; in fact he doesn't limit his candidacy to one per year for he has just emerged from the race for prosecuting attorney.

In our judgment he has no particular qualifications for the office of School Director and some qualities which would render him an undesirable member of that board.

The street railway situation is still unsettled. It was brought to the front recently by a statement issued by James F. Leghorn, a member of the staff of the State Auditor. If space will permit, Mr. Leghorn's statement will appear in another column of this paper. It may not be beyond criticism but it makes clear the large facts in the problem and shows the need of haste on the part of the city in taking some action towards its solution. Mr. Leghorn, as he does not hold an elective office feels free to state frankly that the fares should be raised and that a raise to 8 cents is necessary. We did not notice that he made any allowance for a falling off in the traffic due to the raise in the fare and we fancy it will probably be necessary to place the fare at three for a quarter in order to provide for the lessened number of passengers.

Coupled with the increase of fare however, the council ought to deal with the jitney problem. We are not of those who believe that "the jitney must go" but with this raised fare it will become so serious a competition with the street railway that the city council will have to find some means to compel the jit-

Buy $250.00 worth or a carload or a trainload—the more you buy the cheaper it is, and remember it is the total of all your purchases that counts in figuring up your discounts. Order—Sell—and Re-order. Then do it all over again.

ORDER—SELL—AND RE-ORDER

CREDIT SALES:

Depot Quartermasters are authorized to sell surplus canned meats for cash, bankers' acceptance, or on not to exceed ninety (90) days straight credit in the commercial sense.

Credit will be extended only to those individuals, firms or charitable organizations which can establish a satisfactory credit rating (Dunn's, Bradstreet's or Banks), or to Municipalities having a bona fide purchasing organization. The credit risk in each case is left to the decision of the Depot Quartermaster.

FREIGHT PREPAID

Shipments of not less than carload lots will be made at government expense to any point in the United States outside a radius of 20 miles of the point of storage from which shipment is made.

The government will not be liable for any demurrage or switching charges that may accrue after goods are loaded for shipment. Prices quoted are in all cases f. o. b. storage point, with freight prepaid, as above specified on carload lots.

SAMPLES ON REQUEST

Depot Quartermaster in your district, will on receipt of price of samples wanted and postage costs, be glad to send same to prospective purchasers in their respective zones.

GUARANTEED CONDITION

The government guarantees to deliver all meats in perfect condition. The most rigid inspection will be made of each shipment before it leaves point of storage, thus insuring full protection to all purchasers.

ORDER NOW

We respectfully suggest that immediate steps be taken by interested parties to familiarize themselves not only with the superior quality of these canned meats, but that they compare the prices herein quoted with prices for the same commodities from other sources so that they may fully realize the immensity of value to be obtained by participating in the distribution of these goods.

neys to increase their fares so that there may be a wider margin between the street car fare and their charge.

We believe that a suggestion made by the Mayor some time ago offers the correct solution. That was the jitney should be required to pay the city so much per passenger carried. We do not know just what this figure should be but suggest five cents. This would be just towards the jitneys who are making more than ordinary use of the city streets and doing more than their share as individuals in complicating our traffic problems. It would not, in our judgment, reduce the number of passengers carried by the jitneys materially if at all. On the other hand it would compensate the street railway for losses due to the jitney competition. It would still permit those who are not able to own private automobiles to have the more rapid service which many of them apparently desire. This requirement would compel the jitneys to charge at least a 15 cent fare. Those who ride on the jitneys would have no real reason to complain because the service they obtain is worth the 15 cent charge.

Whether these suggestions offer the best solution or not they offer a solution and the city council ought to take action of some sort in the very near future for the cash deficit has reached large proportions and ought not to be permitted to increase. We might say in closing that we do not take the view that this increase of fare furnishes any argument against municipal ownership. Even when the fare is raised we shall probably be paying less proportionally for our transportation than for most of the other necessities of life. An increase of 60 per cent in cost of transportation will compare favorably with the advances in food prices and clothing costs.

Through the Junior Red Cross the school children of this county have an important part in work of the local Red Cross chapter. Throughout the Northwest school children are taking a keen interest in the activities in which they are engaging as members of this organization. These activities do not interfere in any way with the regular work of the schools, but they do add zest to class room studies.

In Portland, Tacoma, and Spokane the Juniors have financed clinics, where children have been given dental and medical examinations. In numerous counties throughout Idaho, Oregon and Washington they have made provisions for first aid kits in every rural school. Besides other activities, the Juniors of Boise, Idaho, are providing flowers for the Barracks Hospital in that city where many disabled ex-service men are receiving treatment. Poor, crippled children in many towns have received badly needed attention, and the bills have been paid out of funds raised by the Junior Red Cross.

Through the Junior Red Cross thousands of children in Europe have been fed and given medical care through contributions by members of the Junior Red Cross in this country. The Juniors of the Northwest gathered large quantities of clothing for the "Wild Children of the Urals," who were recently returned to their homes by the American Red Cross after having wandered uncared for over the wastes of Siberia. And now, through the Junior Red Cross, it is being made possible for children in this country to correspond with children in other lands.

D. SASTER RELIEF PROVES BEST NATIONAL INSURANCE

When the man on the street is asked for his annual Red Cross dues of $1 during Roll Call week, November 11 to 25, he will know that half of that dollar stays in his own community. If he has done an average amount of Red Cross reading he will know that a small slice out of the other 50 cents is appropriated to "disaster relief."

But unless he is one of the exceptionally few he will not know what "disaster relief" has meant to the world during the life of the American Red Cross, nor will he realize what small slices of dollars will do if there are enough of them.

In the Northwestern Division, time after time the relief organization has met its crisis and has stood the test.

Twice in Oregon in December of 1919—at Mosier when fire left families destitute and again when the Marshfield chapter cared for survivors and recovered bodies of the dead from the wrecked schooner "Chanslor"—the test was met. In 1920 came the landslide at Juneau, Alaska, and the hotel fire at Klamath Falls, Oregon. More people learned that "disaster relief" means things in the lives of men.

In the 38 years since its incorporation up to June of 1919, the American Red Cross had participated in 180 disaster relief expeditions. It directed the expenditure of approximately $12,500,000. Before the organization had attained its present large membership funds often were raised through popular subscription for such large disasters as the Mississippi floods and cyclones of 1882 and 1883, the Texas famine, the Armenian massacres of 1893 and 1894, the Martinique volcano eruption and many others.

A list of all the Red Cross relief work in times of fire, flood and famine would take pages. Long before the organization under the stress of war and war's results had grown into the lives of millions, disaster relief was one of its foremost activities. The Congressional Charter under which the Red Cross has operated since 1905 sets forth as one of the chief purposes of the organization: "to continue and carry on a system of * * * relief and to apply the same in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence, famine, fires, floods and other great national calamities."

And now, with its wonderful organization of chapters, branches and auxiliaries reaching to the farthest parts of the nation, its members instructed and ready for action when the occasion arises, Red Cross "disaster relief" has become accident insurance for the world.

SCIENTIFIC INVESTIGATOR SHOWS WHY AMERICA CANNOT ADOPT EUROPE'S POLICY IN CONTROLLING VICE AND DISEASE

Why America cannot adopt Europe's policy in dealing with prostitution and disease is set forth in "Social Hygiene Legislation," a recently published handbook of the American Social Hygiene Association. The explanation is based on an expert investigation of the European plan and is in answer to a small group of Americans who insist that Europe has a system for handling prostitution that America would do well to follow.

The principle of the European policy recommended by this group for America, the handbook explains, is that prostitution can be made safe through regulation. In a few words, prostitution is tolerated on certain conditions, mainly by subjecting it to certain rules which practically constitute a license to practice prostitution.

To investigate this method, Abraham Flexner, of the General Educational Board, was sent to Europe by the Bureau of Social Hygiene of New York City, and was given no instructions except to make a thorough and impartial examination of prostitution in Europe and to report his observations and conclusions to the Bureau. The first discovery made by Mr. Flexner was that the regulatory system prevails only in a small part of Europe and in no two places alike. It has died out in Great Britain, Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Switzerland, except in the city of Geneva, and is on its last legs in France, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden and Italy.

Three processes are supposed to be involved in the European regulation system if it is to be successful. Prostitutes must be segregated, they must be registered, and they must submit to medical inspection. Mr. Flexner found that there is no such thing as segregation of prostitutes in Europe, not even the small fraction that is regulated by the police. He says that the bulk of prostitution, even in regulated cities, lives where and as it pleases.

As to registering all or nearly all the prostitutes, he says, "nowhere is more than an unimportant fraction registered." He explains that it is only a small number of the helpless and stupid prostitutes that can be listed. "The majority cannot be registered. They are too cunning to be trapped. They disappear here and reappear there."

As to the medical inspection of prostitutes, Mr. Flexner has this to say: "There are several reasons why medical inspection is believed to be futile. In the first place, too few women are examined; for if, as I have said, the police never apprehend more than an unimportant fraction, medical inspection never reaches at all the bulk of those diseased. In the next place, medical inspection does not continuously protect even the registered women. The women pronounced diseased are forcibly confined to a prison hospital. Now the prostitute resents imprisonment. She learns quite early the signs of infection; discovering herself infected, she does one of two things—covers them up, a trick at which she is expert, or as the phrase is, she 'disappears'—does not report for medical examination, meanwhile plying her trade in secret. When, therefore, medical inspection is urged on the ground that in Europe it is employed to reduce disease, you may confidently reply that regulation in Europe has most completely collapsed at precisely that point."

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1920.

PRICE 10 CENTS

ADDRESS OF J. D. ROSS

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

J. D. Ross, Superintendent of City Lighting Department, addressed the Municipal League Tuesday noon. Stereopticon slides were shown during the course of his address to illustrate the work now in progress in connection with the Skagit project and at the Cedar River dam. The largest audience of any this year attended the meeting. Mr. Ross discussed the financial situation of his department and outlined plans for increasing the capacity of the city's lighting plant. With the completion of the work now under way, including enlargement of the Cedar Falls hydro-electric plant and the Lake Union steam plant and construction of the first unit of the Skagit development, the production of electrical energy will be increased from 25,000 kilowatt hours, the present capacity of the plant, to 75,000 kilowatt hours, he asserted.

Emphasizing the advisability of increasing the amount of current generated by water power, Ross said production cost at the steam plant is 1.6 cents a kilowatt hour, and at the Cedar Falls hydroelectric plant three-quarters of a cent a kilowatt hour, while Skagit power will be produced at one-quarter cent a kilowatt hour. He said in part:

"The city lighting plant is worth today approximately ten million dollars. Last year we had an income of two million, one hundred thousand dollars. The profit in 1919 was four hundred seventy two thousand dollars; the cost of operation was two hundred two thousand dollars; Cedar River construction work sixty seven thousand dollars; Skagit project assessments amounted to ninety-six thousand dollars. The difficulty to day is that we have not enough power to sell. If we had had the power we could have made a far better showing and the department would have been a large concern today. We could have gone after the business instead of waiting until the business came to us.

"The trouble with the Cedar River plant has been that the bed is of shifting sand whereas the ideal condition requires it to be of solid rock. There is no material available there with which to seal the dam. To bring in material covering approximately one hundred fifty acres would be prohibitive in cost.

"By running a tunnel, as I have proposed, we shall get three times the power we get out of the plant at the present time.

"Heretofore there 'never has been any delay in building the new steam plant, but there is always opposition in building the hydro electric plant.

"When the first unit of Skagit is complete, we will be able to sell 75,000 k. w. instead of 25,000 k. w., as we are doing at present. We will have a plant costing 3-4 cent per k. w. instead of 1.6 cents, present cost at the steam plant."

Los Angeles, Mr. Ross stated, is getting a great deal of business from Seattle because of their ample power supply.

Will Address the Municipal League

TUESDAY NOON, DECEMBER 7

At Meves Cafeteria, 2nd and Seneca

Ross rapped the Electric Company for their breach in good faith in purchasing two other sites near the Skagit showing, he said, that they intended to monopolize all the power in this section of the country. "The Company, not only has no legal right to the Skagit at this time, but has no moral claim whatsoever," Ross said.

REPORT ON CANDIDATES

(Adopted by League Tuesday)

The Municipal League:
Gentlemen:

Your Committee on Investigation of Candidates for Port Commission and School Directors begs leave to make its report as shown herewith.

CARL E. CROSON

Has been a resident of Seattle for eight years; is a graduate of Harvard University and a lawyer. He has had actual experience as a teacher, having served five years as teacher, principal of a high school and as principal of an Academy. He is chairman of the New Industries Department of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Labor Relations Committee. He organized the Seattle Four-Minute-Men, was a regular campaign speaker for the City and State in the Liberty Loan, Red Cross and Boy Scout drives and finally, after making special arrangements for the care of his child, volunteered (being draft exempt) for army service, and at the conclusion of the war was located at Camp Zachary Taylor at Louisville, Kentucky.

Being a man of excellent character, marked energy and of well known executive ability, the committee believes him ably qualified for the position he seeks as school director.

RICHARD WINSOR

Has served as director since 1912. Always conscientious in discharge of duties and deeply interested in the welfare of the schools. His able and faithful service is deserving of public gratitude. Recently his physical condition and health at his advanced age have prevented as active attention to the exacting duties as before.

qualifications, record and interest are so well and favorably known to the public that little need be said other than his long experience and ripened judgment would render his absence from the Board a distinct loss to the community.

EDWIN J. BROWN

Lawyer and dentist; candidate for election as School Director; is the same Mr. Brown who has run for office many previous times.

T. S. LIPPY

Candidate for re-election as Port Commissioner, is a man of strong character, executive ability, a successful business man, and free from political association and influence. He practices a strictly business administration and favors managerial form of operation.

Much credit to the success of the Port's enviable record during the three years of Mr. Lippy's tenure of office has been attributed to his efforts.

By reason of the valuable experience he obtained as Port Commissioner, coupled with the favorable record he has made, the committee believes it a matter of good business to return him to office.

GEORGE B. LAMPING

State senator; late candidate for governor; in insurance business. Says he filed for Port Commissioner because he feels the business men of Seattle did not give him the support he was entitled to in his candidacy for governor. Says he has not promised, directly or indirectly, any position or favor, if elected. Has no definite plan for important changes in management or operation of Port; admits not having made sufficient study. Favors managerial form; open shop without discrimination against union labor, except that ex-service men should receive preference, efficiency being equal.

Is supported by Union Record, Longshoremen's Union and Bolo Club. Denies having sought endorsement from radical elements. Offers no particular reason for change in the office.

rights of creditors. The officers of a city and county, their compensation, qualification, term of office and manner of election or appointment, shall be as provided for in its charter.

Section 2. The Secretary of State is hereby directed to cause the amendment proposed in this act to be published for at least three (3) months next preceding the said election, in some weekly newspaper in every county where a newspaper is published throughout the State.

Section 13 There shall be printed on all ballots provided for said election the proposition to be voted upon in substantially the following words:

"For the proposed amendment to Article XI of the Constitution empowering the Legislature to provide for combined city and county municipal corporations containing a population of at least eighty thousand."

"Against - the proposed amendment to Article XI of the Constitution empowering the Legislature to provide for combined city and county municipal corporations containing a population of at least eighty thousand."

Section 4. If it shall appear from the ballots cast at the said election that a majority of the qualified voters voting upon the question of the approval and ratification of said amendment have voted in favor of the same, the Governor shall make a proclamation of that fact and the said amendment shall be held to have become adopted and to become a part of the Constitution.

TO RETURN CAR SYSTEM

The following resolution, introduced by L. D. Lewis Tuesday, was referred to the Public Utilities Committee for report:

Whereas, Experience has shown that the street railway system purchased by the City of Seattle from the Stone & Webster interests was valued far above its reasonable market value, and

Whereas, It is a matter of common knowledge that traction properties throughout the world have been, and are being, rendered less valuable by reason of the competition of motor transportation, and

Whereas, Each increase in fare renders the system less valuable to the City of Seattle, and

Whereas, These and other considerations have demonstrated the contract between the before mentioned parties impossible of fulfillment. Now be it

Resolved by the Municipal League of Seattle that it is against public policy to continue to operate the system longer than is necessary, and that on the contrary steps should be taken to return the system to its former owners at the earliest possible date.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

The work of the League's committees the past week or two has shown more convincingly than ever that the League is alive to ever present civic problems and is helping in their solution. While some may criticize the League as being too conservative, there are others who claim it to be radical. The fact remains that the League has been holding a middle course and its expressions are an accurate gauge of the large group of citizens of the community.

The League today is confronted with the same difficulty as has confronted it before: namely finances and ever-growing necessity for greater membership. The membership committee has, thus far this year, been dormant. A reaction has set in against campaigns and "drives" but there ought to be, on the part of every member of the League, a sincere effort to bring in new members to the League from week to week. If every member of the League would bring a guest to the luncheon Tuesday, he would be rendering a service, not only to the League and to the city, but to the guest as well. Membership cards can be secured from the Secretary at any meeting, or at his office. Won't you help the League in this work?

Many members of the League are still in arrears in the payment of dues for the current year. Much unnecessary labor could be saved this office if such members would send in their checks without delay.

There has been a decided slump in the number of resolutions introduced at the Tuesday meetings during the past year. The matter of initiating investigations should not come wholly from the members of the Board. There are many matters brought to your attention which do not come to the attention of the Board or to the officers. By securing your cooperation, the League will be continually alive and helping to better civic conditions.

The League welcomes editorial contributions to this paper. The only requirements are that the articles be legible and that your name be signed to the article submitted.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMITTEE REPORT TO BE SUBMITTED TO LEAGUE TUESDAY NOON, DEC. 7th

To the Board of Trustees of Municipal League of Seattle:
Gentlemen:

Since rendering its last report, your Public Utilities Committee has been giving further consideration to the street car situation and, pursuant to your request that at this time a report be made by the Committee in regard to increases in fare, herewith submits the following:

The majority of your Committee providing for the submission of such proposed amendment to the qualified electors of the State for their approval or rejection.

Be it Enacted by the Legislature of the State of Washington:

Section 1. That at the general election to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, 1922, there shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the State for their approval and ratification or rejection, a proposed amendment of Article XI of the State Constitution by the addition thereto of a new section, to be known as Section 6, reading as follows:

Section 16. The Legislature shall, by general law, provide for the formation of combined city and county municipal corporations, and for the manner of determining the territorial limits thereof, each of which shall be known as a "city and county", and, when organized, shall contain a population of at least eighty thousand inhabitants. Any such city and county shall be permitted to frame a charter for its own government, and amend the same, in the manner provided for cities by Section 10 of this article: Provided, however, that the first charter of such city and county shall be framed and adopted in a manner to be specified in the general law authorizing the formation of such corporations: Provided, further that every such charter shall designate the respective officers of such city and county who shall perform the duties imposed by law upon county officers. Every such city and county shall have and enjoy all rights, powers and privileges asserted in its charter,

And So On and So Forth

not inconsistent with general laws, and in addition thereto, such rights, powers and privileges as may be granted to it, or possessed and enjoyed by cities and counties of like population separately organized. No such city and county shall become indebted for any purpose other than a strictly municipal purpose, nor shall it become indebted for such purpose, in any manner, to an amount exceeding three per centum of the value of taxable property therein, without the assent of three-fifths of the voters therein voting at an election to be held for that purpose, nor with such assent shall the total indebtedness at any time exceed ten per centum of such value, to be ascertained by the last assessment for the purpose of general taxation: Provided, that any such city and county, with such assent, may become indebted to a larger amount but not to exceed five per centum additional for supplying such city and county with water, artificial light and sewers when the works for supplying such utilities shall be owned and controlled by such city and county;

Provided further, that in the event of the consolidation of any other municipal or quasi-public corporation with such city and county pursuant to general law, such city and county, with such assent, may incur a further indebtedness in an amount equal to, but limited to the purposes of, that indebtedness which might have been incurred by such other municipal or quasi-public corporation had the same remained separately organized. The provisions of Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 of this article shall not apply to any such city and county: Provided, that the salary of any officer of a city and county shall not be changed after his election or appointment or during his term of office, nor shall the term of any such officer be extended beyond the period for which he is elected or appointed. In case an existing county is divided in the formation of a city and county, such city and county is of the opinion that the street car system should be self-supporting, and assuming that there is no change in the present scheme of retiring the fifteen million dollars of utility bonds, issued in payment of the system, within the time provided by such bonds, it seems to your Committee, from the financial statements attached to its last report, that it is absolutely imperative to raise the rate of fare and that the lowest fare which will bring returns sufficient to pay operating expenses, proper depreciation charges, and the interest and principal of the bonded indebtedness is from eight to eight and one-half cents, and in view of the fact that there is already pending before the City Council an ordinance providing for three fares for a quarter or ten cents straight for a single cash fare, this Committee recommends that the League go on record as favoring such increases.

In addition to raising the rate of fare, we believe that there should be a rigid regulation of the jitneys as to routes, schedules, fares, and character of service, with possibly some system of substantial license fees provided which would make some return to the municipality for the use of the streets.

TABLE OF DISCOUNTS

The discounts to apply on all purchases of surplus canned meats on and after November 15th, 1920, are as follows:

$250.00 to $1,000.....	Net
$1,001.00 to $2,500.....	5%
$2,501.00 to $4,000.....	10%
$4,001 and over.....	20%

On full carload lots, shipped at government expense, if value of full carload is less than $4,001.00, then 20% discount will be allowed on the value of the carload.

CUMULATIVE PURCHASES COUNT

To stimulate purchases of carload lots and to promote sales in large quantities, further discounts as follows are authorized to customers ordering or re-ordering in carload lots, the value of all purchases of canned meats made on or after November 15th, 1920, only, to be considered in connection with the scale of discounts, as follows:

When purchases reach $50,001.....	24% net to prevail
When purchases reach $100,001.....	28% net to prevail
When purchases reach $500,001.....	32% net to prevail
When purchases reach $1,000,001 and over.....	35% net to prevail

The foregoing means that the total purchase by a customer in carload lots from time to time will be taken into consideration and the proper discount applied on the sum of all the purchases, including the first carload lot.

GREATER DEMAND CANNED MEATS

You cannot buy too much—the public everywhere is waiting for more of this delectable wholesome food, furthermore the greater your purchase the greater your saving and the greater your trade response. This canned food will leave your store as fast as it arrives, so order a trainload, a carload or at least the minimum purchase of $250. Your Customers Expect You To.

CREDIT SALES:

Depot Quartermasters are authorized to sell surplus canned meats for cash, bankers' acceptance, or on not to exceed ninety (90) days straight credit in the commercial sense.

Credit will be extended only to those individuals, firms or charitable organizations which can establish a satisfactory credit rating (Dunn's, Bradstreet's or Banks), or to Municipalities having a bona fide purchasing organization. The credit risk in each case is left to the decision of the Depot Quartermaster.

FREIGHT PREPAID

Shipments of not less than carload lots will be made at government expense to any point in the United States outside a radius of 20 miles of the point of storage from which shipment is made.

The government will not be liable for any demurrage or switching charges that may accrue after goods are loaded for shipment. Prices quoted are in all cases f. o. b. storage point, with freight prepaid, as above specified on carload lots.

SAMPLES ON REQUEST

Depot Quartermaster in your district, will on receipt of price of samples wanted and postage costs, be glad to send same to prospective purchasers in their respective zones.

GUARANTEED CONDITION

The government guarantees to deliver all meats in perfect condition. The most rigid inspection will be made of each shipment before it leaves point of storage, thus insuring full protection to all purchasers.

ORDER NOW

We respectfully suggest that immediate steps be taken by interested parties to familiarize themselves not only with the superior quality of these canned meats, but that they compare the prices herein quoted with prices for the same commodities from other sources so that they may fully realize the immensity of value to be obtained by participating in the distribution of these goods.

Authority to establish rate increases corresponding with those proposed for Seattle's municipal street railway is asked by the Seattle & Rainier Valley Railway Company in a new tariff filed with the state public service commission at Olympia yesterday.

The new tariff advances the price of commutation metal tokens within the City of Seattle from 6¼ to 8 1-3 cents, transfers to be issued on 10-cent fares only. It is proposed to make the new rates effective Jan. 1, 1921.

W. M. Brown, general manager of the Rainier Valley Line, said last evening that the new tariff is based on the Thomson ordinance which as originally drafted did not authorize transfers on metal token fares. He was not prepared to state what effect adoption by the council of a bill granting transfers on token fares would have on the company's pending tariff.

Friday afternoon the Council referred the proposed ordinance increasing street car fare to the Utilities Committee for report. The Utilities Committee will meet Thursday.

Decision to postpone until next Thursday final action on the Thomson ordinance establishing an 8-1-3 cent metal token fare on the municipal street railway was reached by the city council.

A political cartoon by J. Neel. In the center, a man in a suit and hat, with the word 'ECONOMY' written on his chest, is being crushed by a large, dark, hooded figure. To the left, a young boy in a cap looks on. In the background, a woman in a hooded cloak stands near a wooden fence. A large bucket filled with coins is on the left, and a box of coins is on the right. The cartoon is signed 'J. Neel' in the bottom right corner.

at a special session Thursday afternoon after a motion to pass the measure as emergency legislation had been defeated by a vote of 6 to 3.

The postponement was taken on recommendation of Mayor Caldwell, who suggested that Councilman Robert B. Hesketh, one of the three councilmen voting against the ordinance, be given more time in which to consider the matter.

Earlier in the committee session the council had amended the ordinance to provide for the transfer privilege on metal token as well as cash fares and to continue in effect the reduced rates granted disabled exservice men attending vocational training classes.

In a communication to the council Mayor Caldwell approved the proposed legislation and announced his intention to sign the ordinance when passed. In oral statements to the councilmen, in connection with discussion of Councilman Hesketh's vote against the measure, the mayor indicated his belief that the legislation should be in emergency form.

Promise that his investigation of the transaction whereby the city acquired the traction system of the Puget Sound Traction, Light and Power Company will be completed soon and a report submitted was also made by Mayor Caldwell in his letter to the council.

In opening the communication, the mayor said: "I had hoped to complete the investigation of the street car deal, authorized and directed by the council, before the matter of providing additional revenue for the street car lines had to be acted upon," and in closing he added, "so far as the investigation of the street railway purchase is concerned, this has been delayed by matters seemingly beyond my control, but I expect to have the same concluded and make a report to the city council with my recommendations some time next month."

Purchased Under Statute

In announcing his intention to approve the ordinance increasing fares, the mayor said:

"The car lines were purchased under authority of state statute and bonds issued in payment, payable from the gross receipts of the car lines. As long as we have the car lines, and no other method of making payment is authorized by the voters of the city, I have concluded every effort should be made to increase the revenues of the street railway system. In view of the rates being charged in other cities throughout the United States, it cannot be said that we have used every reasonable effort to increase the revenues by leaving the fare at 6 1-4 cents. The increasing of the car fare at this time is particularly unfortunate, in view of the existing imminent unemployment, and will doubtless work some hardship.

"The ordinance issuing bonds for the street railway, which is still the law, obligated the city to charge a sufficient rate to meet the obligations of principal, interest and operating expenses, if it is possible to do this at least until matters should be changed by vote of the people or by court proceedings, if it should develop that the latter are possible. We have sold and are now preparing to sell other utility bonds for the development of the light and power plants, including the Skagit project, and enlarging the water system.

"I have therefore concluded that it is the duty of the city toward other utilities to endeavor to live up to the contract under which persons acquired bonds from the city. In other words, any change of course from that upon which we started or any relief from existing contracts should be had in some other manner than by refusing to charge a rate on the utility that will permit of our keeping our obligations insofar as it is possible for this to be done."

Must Care For Deficit

Whatever action may be taken in regard to increasing fares, city officials will be compelled to provide some means of immediately taking care of the deficit in the city railway fund. City Treasurer Ed L. Terry stated definitely recently that the fund will go on a warrant basis Dec. 25, according to announcement previously made, whether fares are increased or not. The deficit Wednesday amounted to $583,000, he stated.

According to Supt. D. W. Henderson's estimate of revenue receipts under the new rates of fare, it will be at least six months and possibly a year before the deficit in the railway fund can be wiped out. Unless some means of replenishing the fund by Dec. 24 is worked out by city officials, payment on warrants issued for street railway expenses, including wages of employees, will be refused by the city treasurer and holders of the warrants will be forced to market the script wherever possible and probably at a discount. This will continue until operating receipts have wiped out the deficit in the railway fund.

Discussion on Taxes

Discussion of the feasibility of a resort to general taxes as a means of financing in whole or in part operation and maintenance of the car lines and payment of interest and bonded indebtedness was a feature of the council session yesterday. Councilman Philip Tindall, in referring to this subject, declared that two obstacles seemed to block the plan; the fact that no provision for an appropriation for this purpose from the city's general fund was included in the 1921 tax levy and the possible impairment of the city's credit that would result from financing a city utility by general taxes instead of its operating revenues.

Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier advised the council that in his judgment the council could appropriate money from the general fund in support of the street railway, or any other city utility, even though the procedure would create a deficit, provided the statutory limit of indebtedness be not exceeded.

Decision to Amend

The decision to amend the Thomson ordinance so as to provide for universal transfers was reached by the council immediately after it had convened in regular session and then resolved itself into committee of the whole to consider the fare bill. Councilman Hesketh, who made the motion to provide universal transfers, as authorized in the existing fare ordinance, declared refusal to grant transfers on metal token fares would work an unnecessary hardship on many patrons of the car lines. Councilmen Tindall and John E. Carroll, who seconded the motion indorsed Hesketh's statement.

Councilmen Drake and Thompson defended the provision limiting the transfer privilege to 10-cent cash fares, maintaining that the transfer right is abused by numerous patrons, causing heavy loss to the railway fund. This statement was confirmed by Supt. Henderson.

The Hesketh motion to provide universal transfers was adopted by a seven to two vote. Councilmen Hesketh, Carroll, Tindall, Moore, Haas, Bolton and Erickson supporting and Councilmen Drake and Thomson opposing.

Emergency Clause Left In

The council then took a recess of thirty minutes in order to give the clerk time to re-draft the bill in accordance with the amendments adopted.

In the belief that the seven votes necessary to pass the measure in that form were available, the emergency clause was left in the bill. Preparations were made to have the measure engrossed and presented to the mayor for his approval immediately after the council session, so that its provisions could be made effective at once. After a conference between Mayor Caldwell and Superintendent Henderson, it was announced that the increased rates would be put into effect this morning if the bill passed as emergency legislation.

Lacking the seven votes required as an emergency bill, the measure was declared rejected.

The object of said action is to obtain the judgment of the above entitled court that that certain mortgage dated February 2, 1914, made by Ludwig Brooks and Lena Brooks, then husband and wife, to Bothwell & Crockett Company, a corporation, and which is now of record in the office of the auditor of King County, State of Washington, in Volume 592 of Mortgages at page 138 of the records of said King County, and which said mortgage has been assigned to plaintiff, is a valid first mortgage lien upon Lot Ten (10) in Block Seventeen (17) of Renton Hill, an addition to Seattle, according to the recorded plat thereof, situate in King County, State of Washington, and every part thereof, for security of payment of that certain promissory note and interest coupon notes described in said mortgage, and certain sums set forth in said complaint, amounting to, for the principal of the said promissory note and said interest coupon notes Twenty-eight Hundred Thirty Dollars and Fifty-four Cents ($2830.54), with interest on the portions of said total sums at the rate of ten per cent (10%) per annum as follows:

On $1800.00 from February 2, 1919;
On $63.00 from February 2, 1916;
On $63.00 from August 2, 1916;
On $63.00 from February 2, 1917;
On $63.00 from August 2, 1917;
On $63.00 from February 2, 1918;
On $63.00 from August 2, 1918;
On $63.00 from February 2, 1919;
On $589.54 from June 8, 1918;

and for the further sum of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) attorney's fees, and for plaintiff's costs and disbursements in said action, and to obtain judgment for the foreclosure of said mortgage and sale of the said lands and premises at foreclosure sale and the application of the proceeds of said sale to payment of the costs of such sale, and then to payment of the sums and amounts hereinbefore set forth to the plaintiff, and that defendants and each of them and all persons claiming by, through, or under them, or any of them, be by such foreclosure sale foreclosed and barred of and from all claim, right, and equity of redemption in or to said lands and premises and every part thereof, except only the statutory right of redemption for one year after such sale, and for such other, further, or different relief in the premises as shall be equitable.

A NEW METHOD OF SELLING BONDS

By B. H. Nenny
London, Ontario

Resulting in the sale of $400,000 debentures since its inception in London, Ont., a year ago a new plan of disposing of city securities is regarded as a distinct success by both City Treasurer James S. Bell and members of the city council.

Under the new arrangement city debentures are sold directly to the citizens instead of finding their way to the public through bond houses. When authorized debentures are not available, but are expected within a short time, the city treasurer accepts money for which he issues a receipt. This is used for current expenses, reducing the amount of short term loans which it is necessary to make from the banks each year until municipal taxes have been collected. As soon as a debenture issue is authorized the money is applied to its account, the interim receipts are called in and the bonds are issued in their places. Interest is paid on the money from the moment it is accepted by the city. This policy has the effect of keeping the market for city debentures always open.

When the plan of selling debentures over the counter of the treasurer's office was adopted it was found that many sales were being lost because debentures were not always available. Citizens who came with a few hundred dollars to invest would be told to return in a few weeks when it was expected that bond issues would have been authorized. Most of these prospective investors, however, did not wish to have their money lying idle. They accordingly went elsewhere and invested in other securities.

The Gravity of Washington Logged-Off Land situation

In the opinion of the city treasurer this was needless loss. Debentures to finance public improvements are always certain to be issued each year. In many cases the work is under way, but the bonds cannot be sold until it has been completed, although it is certain that they will be issued before the end of the year. The city treasurer saw no reason why money could not be accepted for these prospective bond issues. He tried out the plan and found that it was highly successful.

That was a year ago. Since January 1 of the present year, $100,000 of debentures to finance a new reservoir; $85,000 for extension of the water system and $80,000 for extension of the electrical system, were sold in this manner.

Municipal debentures are found to make a strong appeal to the smaller investors. They have as much confidence in them as in the government Victory bonds. The facilities now for investing in debentures on any business day of the year are making practically every citizen a bond holder.

London claims to be, not only the first Ontario city to adopt this plan, but also the first Ontario city to sell its debentures directly to the citizens. The policy was adopted on a large scale soon after Canada's declaration of war on Germany in 1914. It has been pursued successfully since then with one or two exceptions. On these occasions the quick sale of large issues was desired. This could not be accomplished by gradual disposal of small amounts and the whole issues were disposed of to bond houses.

Solved

"Now, Johnny," said the teacher, "suppose you wanted to build a $1,000 house and had only $700, what would you do?"

"I suppose I'd have to marry a girl worth $300," answered the young financier.

"THE KING CAN DO NO WRONG"

"L'état c'est moi" said Louis XIV; and as long as that was true the king could do no legal wrong. Kings have been beheaded and governments uprooted, but the "doctrine" still lives. Divine rights and democracies seem so utterly inconsistent that it is almost impossible to conceive one within the other. Yet so thoroughly has the "divine right" doctrine been woven into American municipal law that until now it has been almost futile to attack it.

Case after case has gone to every supreme court in this country testing the responsibility of cities for the tortious acts of employees. In as many cases the "doctrine" has been a determining factor, in the decision. Formerly its application afforded complete immunity to the government from all responsibility, but the rule, as now generally recognized, attaches liability in those cases where the act complained of is in the commission of some "ministerial function."

The legal differentiation between "governmental" and "ministerial" is as ambiguous as it is curious. No attempt could be made at a classification. The definition of McQuillan is illustrative: "What are governmental powers and duties, and what are corporate ministerial duties, is not subject to precise definition further than to say this: The powers and duties of municipal corporations are of two-fold character: the one public, as regards the state at large, in so far as they are its agents in government; the other private, in so far as they provide the local necessities and conveniences for their own citizens."

Until recently driving a fire truck has been a glaring example of a governmental function; and an injury sustained by an individual through neglect of the driver could not legally be compensated.

The decision of Fowler vs. City of Cleveland offers the only exception. In that case a bystander was injured by the negligent driving of a fire truck. Contrary to innumerable other cases, the majority opinion held that the action of the fire department in driving a hose truck was ministerial, and that the city should be liable. To the average reader this would appear sound and progressive, but it is not progressive enough for Judge Wanamaker. "I heartily agree with the authority and soundness of this judgment. I as heartily disagree with the grounds of the judgment." The majority opinion whittles down the sphere of the governmental function to the aggrandizement of the ministerial. Judge Wanamaker would annihilate the ministerial function altogether, and hold the municipality bound to pay for all injuries in the exercise of its police powers and governmental functions. To him the immunity of a city in the exercise of a governmental function is part and a parcel of the immunity of the sovereign state. "The doctrine," he believes, "has been shot to pieces on so many battlefields that it would seem utterly folly now to resurrect it."

The niceties that may be raised by scholars of political philosophy can no longer be considered practical. The power to compel is inherent in the people, not the sovereigns. It is based on natural not legal justice. Common councils in many of our cities, appreciating the injustices caused by adhering to the rules of law, allow claims over the objection of their legal advisers. Judges, too, must sooner or later come to the realization that their decision must be more largely governed by the mores of the day than the conviction of the community, as to what makes for general welfare.

It is interesting to note that the Georgia supreme court passed upon precisely the same set of facts as appear in the instant case with opposite results. No mention of the Fowler case was made in the opinion.

MUNICIPAL NOTES OF TIMELY INTEREST

Fred W. Catlett

The City Council, at a special meeting Thursday evening, passed a thirty day ordinance increasing the street car fare to eight and one-third cents, if tokens are purchased. The single cash fare of ten cents, and the rates to school children, together with transfer privileges, remain unchanged. The ordinance was signed by the Mayor immediately after its passage, and it will be effective on the 8th day of January.

In order to avoid speculation in tokens, new tokens of different design will be adopted. The old tokens will not be redeemed in cash and cannot be used for fares after January 8th; but they may be exchanged for the new tokens at the rate of four of the old for three of the new. This exchange can be made only at the office of the Superintendent of Public Utilities, prior to February 1st.

It is generally held that an ordinance such as this can not be subjected to a referendum vote of the people.

The action of the City Council in increasing the fares is, in our judgment, not open to reasonable criticism. Indeed it is difficult to see how any other course could have been taken.

Leaving out of consideration the question of the propriety of a depreciation charge, the cold fact remains that a very large and increasing cash deficit exists in the street car fund. The City is in no different position from that of an individual and the private corporation, in that it cannot operate indefinitely at a loss, unless it provides for the deficit in general taxation. This the city is not at the present time willing to do; and the existence of a cash deficit means that the bills of the street railway have in the past been paid by moneys drawn from other funds. This is not proper and it was perfectly clear the sureties of some of the official bonds would sooner or later object. Quite naturally, the surety on the treasurer's bond was the first to raise the point and insist that the treasurer decline to pay further warrants on the street railway fund. This meant that the banks would take the city warrants at par, or that the persons doing business with the City Street Railway and its employees would have to accept discounts on the warrants. Any such requirement would have been unfair to them and would undoubtedly have produced labor trouble.

Temporarily, the city could provide for the payment of warrants issued on the 10th, but very soon would have to secure the cash with which to reimburse the funds employed temporarily to relieve the street railway fund. The only valid criticism, in our judgment, which can be made of the action of the city officials is that it was delayed so long.

At the same time that the ordinance increasing the fare was passed a temporary loan was authorized from the Interest, Bond and Redemption Fund to the Street Railway fund. The Interest, Bond and Redemption Fund contains the money set aside monthly to pay the semi-annual interest on the bonds secured by the street railway, and this fund will have to be reimbursed before the semi-annual interest date, or the city may find that it has made itself generally liable for that interest, since the bonds are a first lien upon the gross earnings of the lines.

* * *

The last two meetings of the League have been highly encouraging. The attendance has been very large and the interest shown keen. The attendance and interest indicate a return to the general interest and participation which existed prior to the war.

Mr. Uhden, who addressed the League last Tuesday, is the special engineer in charge of the Skagit project. He presented a large number of figures to show, not only what had been expended to date on the Skagit project, but what the various phases of development would cost and what the power would ultimately cost when delivered in Seattle. His figures, if accurate, showed that the Skagit project in spite of the enormous cost, would produce very cheap power in large quantities and that there was a market for power in the Puget Sound country sufficient to take care of the production of the new project.

Mr. J. D. Blackwell, in remarks from the floor subsequent to the address of the day, presented seemingly inconsistent estimates of the probable expense of the project, and estimates which were constantly increasing. He argued that the City of Seattle should give careful consideration to the possibilities of the Skagit project, in the light of additional facts and figures now available before going on further with such an enormous work.

Mr. Uhden, replying to the apparent inconsistencies, explained them by saying that they were estimates for different sorts of construction, and that he was still prepared to stand behind each and every one of the estimates. Mr. Uhden thought that the City of Seattle ought to have dis-ssed the question now raised, fore entering on the work; that had now gone so far that it ight not to back out, and ought t to jeopardize its present in- stment in the project by a re- sal to provide the necessary nds for continued development. It is our feeling that a thor- gh discussion of the question the present time can do no rm. If the facts should show at the City has again made a nder, further loss can perhaps avoided. We shall of course nsider the question in the view existing circumstances and th the intention of going ahead th the project unless its present ics are able to present a case ich shows quite clearly that e project is of very doubtful ccess.

The object of said action is to obtain the judgment of the above entitled court that that certain mortgage dated February 2, 1914, made by Ludwig Brooks and Lena Brooks, then husband and wife, to Bothwell & Crockett Company, a corporation, and which is now of record in the office of the auditor of King County, State of Washington, in Volume 592 of Mortgages at page 133 of the records of said King County, and which said mortgage has been assigned to plaintiff, is a valid first mortgage lien upon Lot Ten (10) in Block
Seventeen (17) of Renton Hill, an addition to Seattle, according to the recorded plat thereof, situate in King County, State of Washington, and every part thereof, for security of payment of that certain promissory note and interest coupon notes described in said mortgage, and certain sums set forth in said complaint, amounting to,

for the principal of the said promissory
note and said interest coupon notes
Twenty-eight Hundred Thirty Dollars and Fifty-four Cents ($2830.54), with interest on the portions of said total sums at the rate of ten per cent (10%)
per annum as follows:

On $1800.00 from February 2, 1919;
On $63.00 from February 2, 1916;
On $63.00 from August 2, 1916;

On $63.00 from February 2, 1918;
On $63.00 from August 2, 1918;
On $63.00 from February 2, 1919;
On $589.54 from June 8, 1918;

and for the further sum of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) attorney's fees, and for plaintiff's costs and disbursements in said action, and to obtain judgment for the foreclosure of said mortgage and sale of the said lands and premises at foreclosure sale and the application of the proceeds of said sale

to payment of the costs of such sale and then to payment of the sums and amounts hereinbefore set forth to the plaintiff, and that defendants and each of them and all persons claiming by through, or under them, or any of them
be by such foreclosure sale foreclosed and barred of and from all claim right, and equity of redemption in or to said lands and premises and ever-part thereof, except only the statutory right of redemption for one year after such sale, and for such other, further or different relief in the premises as shall be equitable.

"LOGGED-OFF LAND" SUBJECT ON SPEAKER

(Reported by Eimon L. Wienir)

Mr. W. A. Irvin, who recently took part in the conference on logged off lands in Seattle, addressed the Municipal League at noon Tuesday. He said in part: "It would be idle to impress upon you the value of agricultural lands. Land is the basis of all wealth. Agriculture ranks as one of the foremost industries we have in America. Legislatures have always been anxious to get land to the people so that it should become tax paying. They have, however, proceeded in a haphazard policy with the result that lands are being depleted at the expense of the people. Unless something is done to remedy this condition, it will not be more than twenty-five years before we will not be producing agricultural commodities for our own consumption.

"The lumber business has been the most important business in this state. It left us a legacy which is a liability. I refer to logged-off lands. How to change this liability into one of the best assets of our state in order to bring a vast influx of farmers into our state and, among other things, to reduce the taxation now a heavy burden upon us, is a problem.

"It has been evident that we cannot expect, in the future, help in the way of reduction of taxes from Government officials. We must increase taxable property and procure an increase in the number of tax payers.

"Capital, credit and education is the way to solve the problem of the logged-off land situation. Australia cannot subdivide its land fast enough to meet with demands as a result of similar policies adopted by it. California, too, has adopted the same policy. The state is the proper institution to carry such a policy thru. Bonds extending over a period of from twenty-five to thirty years and not taxation is the way in which the state can do this."

Judge Austin E. Griffiths, at the conclusion of the meeting, called attention to the fact that the Act of the 1919 legislature providing for the purchase of powder by county-commissioners and re-selling them at wholesale prices to farmers has not been carried into effect. "Heretofore," Judge Griffiths said, "the County Commissioners have given us an excuse that there is not a sufficient demand for powder to purchase it." Judge Griffiths stated that were farmers to be apprised of the fact that commissioners have powder for sale at wholesale prices that large quantities could be sold at a great saving to the farmers of the county.

A resolution was introduced to the effect that a permanent body be appointed by the Government of the state to study the subject of logged-off lands and to enforce whatever legislation was passed.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees held at the Elk's Club December 8th, President Lawler was authorized to appoint a representative of the Municipal League to serve on the commission recently authorized by the city council to prepare a revision of the building code. J. R. Nevins, an architect recently elected to membership in the League, was appointed as the League's representative and it is understood that he has excellent qualifications for service in the capacity for which he was selected.

Four members of the revenue taxation committee were present at the board meeting, C. B. Fitzgerald was chairman of the committee, the other four members present being Messrs. La Grave, Butler, Hilen and Rawlings. The subject of taxation evoked much discussion especially in view of the coming session of the legislature. The secretary was instructed to write to various municipalities and get together all

SHOWS INTEREST IN RESEARCH BUREAU

Mayor Caldwell has shown his interest in a Municipal Research Bureau for Seattle and has sent the Municipal League the following letter:

MAYOR'S OFFICE

Seattle, Washington

December 13, 1920.

Seattle Municipal League,

510 Central Building,

Seattle, Washington.

Gentlemen:

I hand you herewith an article from the last issue of Printers' Ink which was forwarded to me through the courtesy of Strang & Prosser Advertising Agency of this city.

Being along the line of work which the Municipal League has advocated in the past I thought perhaps it might interest you to republish it in the Municipal News.

A Municipal Research Bureau for the City of Seattle has been urged in the past, but unfamiliarity with the subject rather caused me to be skeptical of the propriety of endeavoring to establish something of that sort here. However, observation of other places and accomplishments there has impressed me with the desirability of some such plan for Seattle. In any event publicity of the actions of the Philadelphia Bureau of Municipal Research will doubtless be of interest to Municipal League members.

I was interested to notice from the article that it takes $75,000,000 a year to administer the affairs of the City of Philadelphia. Taking Philadelphia's population as shown by the census for the year 1920 of 1,823,779 and our own population of 315,000 and the amount levied for municipal expenses for the coming year (1921) in Seattle—

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

$8,016,384.41, it appears that if it is meant that it would take $75,000,000 a year to administer purely governmental affairs of the City of Philadelphia our own cost of government is remarkably low, for on the basis of our cost and our population Philadelphia's should only be $46,-406,851 plus.

The foregoing Seattle figures are exclusive of any of our municipally owned utilities, the estimates for which for the ensuing year are between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000, but it is expected that these utilities will during the coming year as during the past take care of their own expenses from their revenues. It is possible that Philadelphia may have included in this $75,000,000 the expense of administration of its water supply system. I believe it does not possess either a light plant or a municipal railway. If this is a fact the comparison is probably not entirely fair. The obtaining of information of this sort, however, and a comparison of the expense of city government in the City of Seattle with that of other cities would in my opinion afford us some basis for combatting the unfavorable advertisement that has been given us on account of our high tax levy, the impression going out that we have an extravagant and wasteful government.

Yours truly,
HUGH M. CALDWELL,
Mayor.

Campaign for Better Citizenship

And Better City Government

Large display advertisements are appearing in Philadelphia newspapers in a campaign to interest the citizens of that city in two important subjects. First, efficiency in the management and operation of the municipal government. Second, the work of the Bureau of Municipal Research.

The Philadelphia Bureau of Municipal Research has been in existence eleven years, and during that time it has done a good job—all its activities and its accomplishments being in the interest and welfare of all the people. And yet until this new advertising campaign was launched not more than a handful of Philadelphians knew what the Bureau was doing and how the city was benefiting from its work.

The decision of the Bureau to tell its story to the people and the launching of the present advertising campaign, carries with it an important lesson to every city of any size in the country and can be profitably studied by the various groups of business and professional men and women in those cities, who realize the necessity of making their municipal governments as efficient as possible.

The remarkable growth of American cities during the last half century, and particularly during the last ten years, as shown by the 1920 census, has created problems of management and operation in connection with the functioning of municipal governments that were undreamed of a few decades ago. Each year sees these problems growing bigger and more difficult to handle.

In many instances politics and wire-pulling have, in years past, gained the upper hand and the administration of municipal affairs in the interest of all the people has fared rather badly. Out of the politics, the exposes and the reform movements with which we are all familiar, has sprung a civic consciousness and a realization on the part of the civic, business and professional leaders of various cities, of the need for efficiency of the highest calibre in the management of municipal affairs.

In Philadelphia, as in many other cities, this realization has crystallized in the form of a Bureau of Municipal Research. These Bureaus are maintained by private contributions and are under the guidance of trained experts in various phases of municipal activities. But while they are private organizations to the extent that they are maintained by private contributions, their activities are of a public character and entirely in the public interest. And it is a genuine tribute to the political parties in many of our American municipalities that they have come to realize the quasi-public character of the Bureaus of Municipal Research and similar organizations and are glad to co-operate with them in solving the many municipal problems of the day.

The Philadelphia Bureau has been in existence for eleven years. It was organized by twenty-five citizens, who are prominent in various lines of activities and who became trustees; most of them are still associated with the Bureau. Up until a year ago the paying members totalled less than 500. To-day, the Bureau's membership numbers about 2,000.

Wider Knowledge Required of Bureau's Activities

Recently the trustees came to the definite conclusion that no matter how generous and loyal the 2,000 members might be in their support of the Bureau, the work of the organization was entirely too big and important, both in its interests and its responsibilities to be carried on by so small a group of people. So the present campaign was started — not to raise funds but to acquaint the close to 2,000,000 people in Philadelphia with the accomplishments of the Bureau of Municipal Research and its programme for the future.

The campaign started on October 25, and will continue in practically all the big Philadelphia dailies for an indefinite period. The space used runs all the way from half pages down to three columns wide by 225 lines deep. The cost runs into thousands of dollars, probably somewhere from $15,000 to $20,000. One interesting phase of the campaign is that it is being paid for entirely by members of the Bureau, who not only believe in efficiency in municipal government but also in the efficacy of advertising as the best means of awakening the citizens to the work of the Bureau and interesting them in its activities and membership.

the data available on recent proposals and measures on the subject of taxation. This data, when secured, will be helpful to the committee, and no doubt some policy will be formulated by that committee in the very near future.

Prof. F. J. Laube was suggested as an additional member to serve on the committee and he has been invited so to serve.

To the Municipal Finance Committee was referred a communication received from a citizen calling attention to the unwarranted action of the City Council in permitting Councilman Drake to have a leave of absence for six weeks with pay.

The Legislative Committee, of which Arthur H. Hutchinson is chairman, has now under consideration the matter of proposing a consolidation of school and port elections to the Legislature. To this committee was also referred the matter of curbing excessive campaign expenditures.

The Candidates Investigating Committee, of which Mr. C. F. Ridell was chairman, made a recommendation that the League investigate the matter of excessive expenditures by candidates with a view of checking the same. The committee's report is awaited.

with interest.

A communication was recently received from the American Public Utilities Bureau stating that this Bureau was recently organized because it was felt that such an institution was needed in the interest of coordination of effort on behalf of the public and because, as is generally recognized, this is the most critical period in the development of the public relations of all the utilities. The Bureau, which is located at 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, under William Wagner, as Executive Secretary, is intended to be a national agent, whose purpose it will be to help by counsel and expert service all cities throughout the country that want help in solving their local utility problems. It is stated that an organization of specialists has been provided to render effective service with the greatest possible economy.

In the letter from The Lakewood Engineering Company of Cleveland, the League is asked to help along this idea:

"That if road building materials were transported and stored at point of consumption during the Fall, Winter and early Spring months, the construction of highways would be greatly facilitated."

"Open top cars are more available during these months than when coal and harvest movements begin. Contractors having materials on hand when their season opens next spring, will go to production without facing expensive delays incident to the railroad congestion and car shortage."

In a communication from the National Municipal League written by R. S. Childs, Chairman of the Finance Committee, the League is asked to increase its dues as a sustaining member. The letter calls attention to the increased cost of printing used in issuing the National Municipal Review, the principal expense item of the League, and points to the fact that the present outgo of the organization is $24,000.00, whereas the present income is but $15,000.00.

"Observe, that with a stronger financial backing we can, for instance, put our 'Model City Charter' in the hands of Charter Commissions without charge. This will facilitate its adoption and extend the field of our service. We have committees at work on a model state constitution, a model municipal bond law, a model public utilities law, a model statewide election law, and a model municipal pension law. Good committee work costs money, especially if we are to make the reports generally available for educational purposes. This kind of service we can hope to work toward if you help us."

Several committee chairmen have been rather tardy in the presentation of reports to the League. Many matters have been referred to our standing committees which have not, as yet, been reported on. The secretary will get in touch with such committees during this week with a view of cleaning up all matters by the first of the year.

COMMITTEES' NEW ASSIGNMENTS

Secretary's Letters to Committee Chairmen

Mr. Frank P. Helsell, Chairman Charter Revision Committee: This is to confirm assignment made to you yesterday at Board of Trustees' meeting.

The mayor has recommended the submission to popular vote of charter amendments making the commissioner of health a member of the board of public works and eliminating the position of general superintendent of railways from the civil service.

It has been reported that the Mayor's suggestions were based upon a communication from Dr. H. M. Read, commissioner of health, who asserted that under the present system the health department is "charged with the supervision of sanitary matters originating in and adopted by a board of men who have had no training in sanitary matters."

"I can see much of merit in the suggestion of the commissioner of health, and I believe that in event the personnel of the board of public works is changed, the commissioner of health should be made a member thereof," the mayor said in his letter to the council. "I do not believe that the suggestion of the commissioner of health or the changes contemplated by the city council, if carried out, will solve the cumbersome nature of our city government as at present constituted, but until some radical change is made I recommend that the commissioner of health's idea be given favorable consideration.

"At this time I wish also to invite your attention to the propriety of submitting to the voters at the coming spring election a charter amendment whereby the position of general superintendent ent of railways may be eliminated from civil service. I believe the council will recognize the limitations placed upon the city's selection of a general superintendent of railways in having to confine ourselves to the eligible civil service test for this very responsible position.

"There is some question at this time as to the status of the present general superintendent of railways which will in the near future be determined by the civil service commission. The adoption of such a charter amendment would settle his status as—under civil service."

December 23, 1920.

Mr. O. B. Thorgrimson, Chairman Public Utilities Committee,

The Board of Trustees have referred to your committee the following matter: Councilman John E. Carroll introduced an Ordinance at the last meeting of the city council to submit at the March 8th election the proposition of levying yearly a tax of not to exceed $1,500,000.00 to aid in paying the cost and expense of operation and maintenance of the railway, the sum levied to equal the railway bonds interest and principal due each year.

The intent of the ordinance is to take care of the annual bond interest and original payments, which will decrease each year, by taxation, leaving the other expenses of the railway to be met with the revenues of the line.

The Board suggests that your committee study this proposed ordinance and report thereon in time to advise the voters of the League's stand thereon.

In view of the ever-growing interests in the street railway situation, would it be possible for your committee to make a supplemental report to the League at an early date.

With sincerest personal greetings, I am

Yours very truly,
EIMON L. WIENIR
Secretary.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees yesterday, there was referred to your committee the matter of investigating the proposed discontinuance of the West Seattle ferry. In view of the fact that a decision may be made by the County Commissioners at an

STATUS OF THE WATER DEPARTMENT

By John Lamb, Ass't Supt.
Seattle Water Department

In the early days of the city nearly every spring on the western slope of the First Hill was used as a source of water supply, and in later times practically every spring on the slopes of all the hills in the city. Previous to the acquisition of the Spring Hill Water Co. by this city, two important pumping plants had been installed, the Union Water Co's plant, which pumped from Lake Union, and the Spring Hill Co.'s plant, which pumped from Lake Washington.

The city bought the Spring Hill Water Co's plant in 1890, and the Union Water Co's plant in 1891, thus establishing the municipal water plant. The purchase price of the Spring Hill Plant was $350,000 and the Union Water Co. Plant $28,000. In 1891 the Holly pump was installed at Lk. Washington Sta., which gave this station a capacity of about 10,000,000 gals. per day.

Owing to the rapid growth of the city a shortage began to develop in a few years, and Cedar River Water Supply No. 1 was projected. Warrants to the amount of $1,250,000 were issued, and the system was completed and put into operation in Jan. 1901, thus giving an additional supply of 22,000,000 gals. per day. This installation consisted of the Headworks, the pipe line 28 miles long to Volunteer Park, the pipe having an inside diameter of from forty-two to forty-four inches, and Lincoln Park and Volunteer Park reservoirs. About 1 mile of this pipe was constructed of steel, the balance of wood. This, however, did not long supply the city's needs. About 1905 a shortage again began to develop, and Cedar River Water Supply No. 2 was projected. Bonds in the sum of $2,250,000 were issued, and the system was completed and water received in the city on June 21, 1909. This second line consists of 34 miles of pipe varying from 42 to 60 inches in diameter, about 5.3 miles being steel, the balance wood. The capacity of this second line is about 44,000,000 gals. per day.

A NEW YEAR'S WISH

May the new year, 1921, bring to you and yours happiness, success and prosperity. May it revive our spirit and clear our vision so that we will be enabled to see and understand the problems confronting us in the great city in which we live; and, understanding, help in their solution. May the Municipal League of Seattle become an ever greater force of clear-minded disinterested men working for the good of the community. May its officers and members be ever alert and ever jealous of the city's good name. And may the results of the coming year's work be a blessing to Seattle.

EIMON L. WIENIR.

In connection with these installations the distributing mains in the city have been extended from year to year until now there are 655½ miles, which added to the 63 miles of force main from Cedar River, makes 718 miles of pipe, which represents a total length that would stretch from Seattle two-thirds the way across the State of Montana, and about half the distance to St. Paul, Minn.

We have 6 large storage reservoir in the city, and 16 standpipes having an aggregate capacity of 270,000,000 gals. The consumption of water during very dry weather in the summer now runs in the neighborhood of 50,000,000 gals. per day; in the winter about 35,000,000.

The city is divided into 3 zones, the location of the zones being determined by the elevation. Elevations below 225 feet are in the low service zone; from 225 to 325 are in the Intermediate and all above 325 are in the high service. The elevation of the water at the intake is 553 ft. The water is delivered directly into Vol. Pk. Res. from Cedar River, which reservoir has an elevation of 420 feet, giving a fall of 115 ft. from the intake to the delivery end of the pipe.

The low service reservoirs have an elevation of 316 ft. and deliver water by gravity to the low service zone. The Int. Service Reservoirs deliver by gravity to the intermediate zone. The water for the high service zone has to be pumped, either from the low or from the Int. Serv. reservoirs.

Computations made from the year 1902 to the year 1911 indicate that run-off of Cedar River at Landsburg is about 21,000,000 000 cu. ft. per year. As the city uses only about one and three-quarter billion cu. ft. per year, the quantity of water available, if it could all be impounded and used, would easily supply a population of 4,000,000 people. The watershed has an area of 142 miles, about one-half of which has been acquired by the city.

Financial: There have been 10 issues of general bonds; three issues of utility bonds, and 4 issues taken over with Ballard and Columbia, when those suburbs came into the city. The general bonds issued aggregate $3,180,000; the Utility bonds $3,775,000; the Columbia and Ballard bonds $81,980,—making a total of $6,836,980.00. Of these issues $2,993,257 have been paid, leaving a debt on the 1st of Jan. 1920 of $3,843,722.

The cost of the plant up to date has been $13,947,107. We have written off for depreciation $2,802,277., leaving a net value of $11,144,830. To this must be added the inventory value of the department's real estate, amounting to $1,958,204. — giving a gross value of $13,103,033. Subtracting the outstanding bonded indebtedness we have a net value of $9,259,311.

Revenue and Expense: The revenues for 1919 were $1,222,630.50. The expenses were — for operation$264,531.53 for interest$192,444.53 for depreciation$263,597.38 making a total of$720,573.44 which deducted from the total revenue leaves a balance of $502,057.06.

We do not set aside any fund for depreciation, so that if we add the depreciation to this $502,057.06 we shall have $765,654.44 available for use. I will not go into all the details of these expenditures, but will summarize the 3 chief items of outlay, or reserve; we paid for redemption of bonds $283,586.40, for new construction $209,963.29, and had a fund balance of $211,681.21 — a total of $705,230.90.

We increased our stock of materials and equipment and incurred several other expenses which would require too much detail to be presented.

Proposed Improvements: At the present time our water supply is in this condition: Pipe line No. 1 brings in every day only half enough to supply the city's demand; pipe line No. 2 brings in not quite enough to supply the demand each day in pairs during the last 3 years in summer. Whenever it is necessary to shut down No. 1 for summer time, we found that the reservoirs would fall in spite of the supply brought in by No. 2. No. 1 has been practically rebuilt and will not give us much trouble for some years to come, but No. 2, which has now been installed for 12 years, is showing material decay, and is likely to be shut down in the near future for repairs during long intervals. As No. 1 can not supply the demand the situation can readily be understood.

When the reservoirs are full they will furnish 5 or 6 days supply in summer time, but long before they are empty there would be a serious shortage of water, and in many cases a complete absence of it in some of the higher portions of the city.

When the bridge across Cedar River went out in 1911 the first district to suffer was that supplied by Volunteer Park — the Intermediate district, and here lies the urgent need of more storage in the heart of the city. To carry the water from Maple Leaf Res. at the North city limits down town would require from 5 to 7 miles of large pipe, which, at present prices of iron and steel, would be more expensive than the building of a reservoir.

In 1916 a joint report was made to the City Council by the City Engineer and the Supt. of the Water Dept., in which it was proposed to begin the construction of a system which would ultimately cost about $8,000,000., and would supply the needs of 1,000,000 people during the summer months, allowing 150 gals. per capita for each inhabitant. This plan involved the following additions:

Concrete conduit from Landsburg to Swan Lake, $573,000.; Swan Lake development, $777,000.; Pipe Line No. 1, in steel, $625,000.; Pipe Line No. 2, in steel, $1,180,000.; Pipe Line No. 3, in steel, $1,650,000.; Pipe Line No. 4, in steel, $1,600,000.; Enlarging Volunteer Park Reservoir, $190,000.; Enlarging Lincoln Park Reservoir, $70,000.;

West Seattle Reservoirs, $483,000.; Additions to the distribution system, $1,034,000.; Total $8,182,000.

There are 3 items of the above which are supremely urgent and should be undertaken without delay — the Volunteer Park enlargement, the Swan Lake development, and Pipe Line No. 3 from Swan Lake to the City.

In the original estimate these 3 items were figured at $2,617,000. but the great rise in the cost of labor and material has made it necessary to authorize an issue of $6,000,000. for this work. It is proposed to raise the water in Swan Lake from elevation 468 to elevation 488. This would give a storage which could be drawn against of from 4,000,000,000 to 6,000,000,000 gals., depending upon the depth below the surface at which the intake pipe is placed. The present pipe lines from Landsburg can empty into the lake about 80,000,000 a day. This would furnish the city with a storage basin which would supply its need from 3 to 5 months in summer and from 4 to 8 months in winter.

When the proposed reservoirs are built in the city we would have city storage as follows:

Lincoln Pk.	45,000,000 gals.
Beacon Hill	110,000,000 "
Green Lk.	110,000,000 "
Vol. Pk.	83,000,000 "
West Seattle,
low service	25,000,000 "
West Seattle,
high service	125,000,000 "
Total	498,000,000 gals

As none of the bonds authorized have yet been sold, loans to the bond fund for the construction of these works have been made by the Water Dept. to the amount of $800,000.00, about half of which has already been used.

Just a word as to rates: When the city took over the Spring Hill plant the fixed rates for dwellings were $1.50 per month and upward; the meter rates were 40 cents per hundred cu. ft., except for very large quantities. The fixed rates for private dwellings now run from 65 cents to $1.05, and the meter rates from 4 cents to 10 cents, the bulk of the rates paid being 6 cents per hundred cu. ft.

early date, may I suggest that the same receive the immediate attention of the committee and that you report thereon at next Tuesday's meeting.

The Board also requests that you, at this time, investigate the matter of the operation of the Lake Washington ferries with a view of ascertaining whether the same are being operated economically and efficiently. As this matter requires some considerable study. I would suggest that your committee give the matter investigation as soon as possible.

Yours very truly,

EIMON L. WIENIR
Secretary.

 On $63.00 from February 2, 1919;
 On $589.54 from June 8, 1918;

and for the further sum of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) attorney's fees,
 and for plaintiff's costs and disbursements in said action, and to obtain judgment for the foreclosure of said

mortgage and sale of the said lands and premises at foreclosure sale and the application of the proceeds of said sale
 to payment of the costs of such sale,
 and then to payment of the sums and amounts hereinbefore set forth to the plaintiff, and that defendants and each of them and all persons claiming by,
 through, or under them, or any of them,
 be by such foreclosure sale foreclosed
 and barred of and from all claim,
 right, and equity of redemption in or to said lands and premises and every part thereof, except only the statutory

VOL. X. NO. 1.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, JANUARY 1, 1921.

NEW YEAR'S DAY

It is customary for editors to pen an appropriate editorial for New Year's Day. The writer is not an editor. Therefore, this is not an editorial. As President of the Municipal League, for the current year, he avails himself of this opportunity to extend the greetings of the season to all of the League members, and to wish that each and everyone will enjoy a plentitude of the good things of life during 1921.

It has been said that man's life is but a collection of days, written all over with thoughts and words and deeds and bounded together in a volume. Through the last twelve months, we have all been writing and we have now reached the bottom of the page. The fifty-two paragraphs are now completed and we are ready to turn the leaf. There is no use in hankering after the old pages. Whatever is written is written. Let the finished page remain turned down. Keep you pen on the fresh page so firmly that when the breezes of memory blow, they will not get under the leaf and throw again the old record, (if you have one) before your eyes.

Retrospection is often a wholesome occupation, but not so if it brings back unpleasant memories. Better not look back at all if one cannot do so without falling headlong into the dumps. An expert in the art of living tells us that he made it a practice to forget the things which were behind. Of course he meant the disagreeable things, the unpleasant memories. A retentive memory is a blessing only when it retains things worth preserving.

The old year ought to be looked at just long enough to get out of it all its instructions and admonitions. A glance backward will reveal the places where we slipped and fell, and the glance ought to be sufficiently prolonged to enable us to snatch from every blunder a wholesome lesson, to wrest from every misfortune a fairer grace and to gather up from a whole series of disappointments and losses a fresh determination never to be conquered.

For many of us the last month of a year is depressing. In December we realize how far short we have fallen of our January's resolutions. We have not done many things that we intended to do. We have done miserably things we expected to do well. What is a New Year for, if we are not going to venture farther out upon the sea? Only he is blessed who is living in an enlarging world. A horizon that is stationary cramps and suffocates the heart. Unless we do more this year than we did last year, then life for us has ceased to be progressive. In the words of the poet, "Unless above himself he can erect himself, how poor a thing is man!"

I conclude with this simple prayer:

"Low at the threshold of this white new year,
I kneel in prayer,
Lord, may it be,
A Temple unto Thee,
Wherein each rounded day may stand,
A column grand."

PETLEY HAS PLAN TO MAKE CARLINE PAY PUBLIC UTILITY REPORT BY CHAIRMAN

The following address was delivered by B. H. Petley, civil and hydraulic Engineer, before the Municipal League at its meeting Tuesday. "Making the Car Lines Pay," was his subject.

The adoption of this plan in no way interferes with the present arrangement designed to produce the necessary revenue; the new 8 and one-third cent fare ordinance and the sale of tickets to school children is contemplated in this proposal, which leaves the matter optional with the patron so far as the payment of fare goes. All of the figures here used were furnished by the Railway Department from their records and reports.

Fully 95 per cent. of the gross revenue of the Railway Department is derived from passengers who ride but once or twice daily, about 20 per cent one way and 75 per cent two way, while less than 5 per cent of the revenues derived from those riding three or more times daily. An increase in the rate of fare charged has the effect of reducing to a considerable extent the number of passengers riding, the reduction being far greater proportionally in the close-in districts, that bring in the largest and most profitable returns. The amount of de-

Mr. Eimon L. Wienir,
Secretary, Municipal League.

Your two letters of December 21st and 23rd, requesting the Public Utilities Committee of the Municipal League to make further report on matters connected with the municipal street railway, received. The writer has consulted with several members of the Committee in regard to these matters and reports as follows:

As to the proposition to construct a subway, we feel that it is a matter so far in the future that it is not a live question at this time, and that therefore it is not necessary to report upon the feasibility of such a scheme. If you desire any recommendation on this matter from our Committee, it is that the whole question of constructing subways by the City be deferred to some future time.

As to the Ordinance introduced by Councilman Carroll, submitting to the people the question of levying one million and a half a year to aid in paying for the operation of the street railway, this committee has already taken the stand that the railway system should be self-supporting and of course it necessarily follows that we do not believe any amount should now be voted from the general fund to pay the cost of maintenance.

As to a further supplemental report, which you mention in your letter, the writer does not know on just what phase of the question you desire a further report. We have already recommended the raising the fare to a figure which, in our judgment, will probably take care of the maintenance and interest charges of the street railway system and eventually pay up the deficiency, and have also made a recommendation in regard to the jitney situation. If you will advise the writer just the exact questions you desire a further report on, I will be glad to take the matter up with the Committee.

Yours truly,
O. B. THORGRIMSON.

crease in the number of passengers carried is also dependent upon the percentage of increase in the rate of fare charged and its effect is a constantly increasing one as shown by the statement of July, August and October, the increase from 5 cents to six and one-fourth cents causing a 3 per cent decrease in the number of passengers carried in August and 9.5 per cent decrease in October, after making allowance for allowance for school rides that did not occur in July. An increase to 8 and one-third cents, which is but slightly less than the fare charged by jitneys, with the advantages they have to offer in comfort and speed, will cause a great diversion of traffic to that means of transportation. A reduction of service in street car transportation when made necessary through loss of patronage is of tremendous advantage to the jitney and, in some cases, has brought about a condition where it would be considered advisable to discontinue all street car operation on some lines. A fare of 8 and one-third cents is admittedly too high, but is made necessary by reason of the fact that an insufficient number of passengers are carried at 6 and one-fourth cents to pay for cost of operation and overhead.

During the month of November, there was an average of nearly two seats furnished for every passenger carried figuring the cars both ways. This applied to peak load as well as to off peak period, the average number of passengers carried per hour in the two periods being approximately the same. Double the number of cars are required for operation on peak as on off peak to transport approximately an equal number of passengers and, therefore, at twice the cost. No reduction has been made in the number of cars operating since July, showing that though the number of passengers carried may greatly decrease the number of cars operating and therefore the total operating cost, must remain practically constant under the present system of operation.

Some of you will recall what the Stone and Webster people have said, that in order to make a street railway successful you must create as far as possible the habit of riding on street cars by the public, and any suggestion along this line is desirable and should be given consideration, even though it is a little out of the ordinary. The ordinary method of periodically raising the fares will not apply in the extraordinary situation. Some advocate of a plan to include the losses in the general tax levy, on the assumption that the business interests, who are the chief beneficiaries from street railway patronage, would be required to pay the bulk of the expense. Apparently this would seem to be the case, but further consideration will show that it is the home-owner or owner of vacant non-income bearing property that will ultimately foot the bill through payment of increased prices for the things he buys.

The plan here proposed includes the optional sale of monthly passes at a fixed price, individual, non-transferable, requiring no transfers. The price determined upon is the cost to the passenger of two rides at 8 and one-third cents each per day for thirty days, equal to $5.00 per month; also the sale of passes to school children at $2.50 per month, which will include travel to and from school and for rides that would otherwise require the payment of 8 and one-third cents. These passes are comparable to the monthly payment for telephone service at a fixed charge, the patron enjoying the privilege of unrestricted use of same but no advantage is taken to secure a greater service than is required. In the case of the street railway, by this plan, the patron may ride as much as he finds necessary or convenient, but the rides he takes over and above the regular trips to and from town on peak load must necessarily be made on off-peak load at which time there is a large surplus of equipment and therefore with no additional to the railway, relatively speaking.

The total cost for street railway operation for the year 1921 will approximate $5,758,292.00, way operation for the year 1921 amounting to $868,150, the total cost will approximate $6,626,442.00.

On the basis of an average of 310,00 passenger rides daily, 10,000 of which are school rides, the maximum revenue to be derived monthly on the adoption of this plan will be about as follows:

150,000 passes at
$5.00	-750,000.00
5,000 passes at $2.50.....	12,500.00

Gross Revenue, per month,	$762,500.00
Gross Revenue, per year,	$9,150,000.00

On the basis of 100,000 adult passes and 5,000 children passes, with 25,000 passengers riding twice daily and 25,000 once daily at 8 and one-third cents fare, and 5,000 school children on 2 and one-half cents fare, the gross revenue would be as follows:

100,000 passes at
$5.00	$500,000.00
25,000 patrons at 16 and two-thirds cents daily	125,000.00
25,000 patrons at 8 and one-third cents daily,	62,500.00
5,000 passes at $2.50,	12,500.00
5,000 patrons at $1.00 monthly,	5,000.00

Gross Revenue, per month,	$705,000.00
Gross Revenue, per year,	$8,460,000.00

1: The plan above outlined for putting the street railway on a paying basis may be tried out without interference with the present arrangement for single fares and at a cost equal to the cost of printing the necessary passes.

2: Under the plan the City is provided with sufficient funds at the beginning of each month to pay all operating expenses, and to meet interest and bond payments as they fall due.

3: The use of passes will cause a reduction in the time required for the loading of passengers, eliminating the handling of money and of transfers issued or received, thereby permitting a greater use of one-man cars and a consequent decrease in the cost of operation.

4: The general use of monthly passes will permit a regulation of service consistent with the amount of traffic, the laying off of cars in no wise affecting the revenue of the system.

5: Conditions under which passes may be sold will bring about a more uniform distribution of traffic by diverting non-essential riding on peak to the off-peak period, thereby improving service, reducing cost for operation.

6: Bookkeeping will be greatly simplified; passes may be sold or redeemed at any time of the month and may be purchased by mail for every member of the family; the adoption of a color scheme will prevent interchange of passes; the use of passes will become so general and convenient as to reduce the number of private automobiles and jitneys operating thereby greatly improving traffic conditions in the business district.

7: There are numerous other advantages that will develop as operation under this plan proceeds.

Respectfully submitted,

IF RENTAL CONSIDERED FERRY PAYS

The West Seattle ferry would still be self-supporting if the offices and store-room purchased by the people when they voted to buy the ferry had been turned over to the county by the port commission, according to Jackson Silbaugh, who yesterday noon addressed the Municipal League on the subject. The buildings in question produce a monthly rental of $700, according to Silbaugh and would in his judgment make the ferry a self-supporting institution.

Prefacing his remarks with the statement that the loss in the operation of the West Seattle ferry had resulted in a movement to discontinue the operation of the boat Silbaugh took up the complete history of the ferry's operation.

The report of J. R. Nevins, the League's representative on the Commission for revision of the building code, will be printed in an early issue.

 Alexander Brooks, Amelia (also known as Amalie) Hirschberg, Johanna Lindo (formerly Johanna Phillips),

Amelia Hirschberg, as surviving executrix of the will of Ludwig Brooks, deceased, and Amalie Hirschberg, as administratrix of the estate of Lena Brooks, deceased, Defendants.

You and each of you are hereby summoned to appear within sixty (60) days after the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: within sixty (60) days after the 30th day of October, 1920, and defend the above entitled action in the above entitled court, and answer the complaint of the plaintiff and serve a copy of your answer upon the undersigned attorney for plaintiff, at his office below stated; and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you according to the demand of the complaint which has been filed with the clerk of said court.

The object of said action is to obtain the judgment of the above entitled court
 that that certain mortgage dated February 2, 1914, made by Ludwig Brooks
 and Lena Brooks, then husband and wife, to Bothwell & Crockett Company, a corporation, and which is now of record in the office of the auditor of

 and which said mortgage has been assigned to plaintiff, is a valid first mortgage lien upon Lot Ten (10) in Block
 Seventeen (17) of Renton Hill, an addition to Seattle, according to the recorded plat thereof, situate in King County, State of Washington, and every part thereof, for security of payment of that certain promissory note

and interest coupon notes described in said mortgage, and certain sums set forth in said complaint, amounting to,
 for the principal of the said promissory
 note and said interest coupon notes
 Twenty-eight Hundred Thirty Dollars and Fifty-four Cents ($2830.54), with interest on the portions of said total sums at the rate of ten per cent (10%)
 per annum as follows:

On $1800.00 from February 2, 1919;

 On $589.54 from June 8, 1918;

and for the further sum of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) attorney's fees,
 and for plaintiff's costs and disbursements in said action, and to obtain judgment for the foreclosure of said

mortgage and sale of the said lands and premises at foreclosure sale and the application of the proceeds of said sale
 to payment of the costs of such sale,
 and then to payment of the sums and amounts hereinbefore set forth to the plaintiff, and that defendants and each of them and all persons claiming by,
 through, or under them, or any of them,
 be by such foreclosure sale foreclosed
 and barred of and from all claim,
 right, and equity of redemption in or
 to said lands and premises and every part thereof, except only the statutory right of redemption for one year after such sale, and for such other, further,
 or different relief in the premises as
 shall be equitable.

COMPTROLLER STARTS BUDGET REFORM

The following letter from Harry W. Carroll, City Comptroller, together with his proposed budget bill and data obtained from other cities, was referred by the board to the League's Finance committee for consideration and report.

The Municipal League,
510 Central Building,
Seattle, Wash.

Gentlemen:

I herewith submit to you a copy of a proposed Budget Bill, which, if passed by the next legislature, will embrace the City of Seattle, together with my views upon same, as expressed to Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell.

You will note, that I am ready to support this bill, inasmuch as I am certain, that same will bring about much-needed reforms in our fiscal methods. As a matter of fact, the City of Seattle does not at the present time operate under any Budget System, that is calculated to protect or control. While it is true that estimates of expenses are made up, but unless there is some guarantee to the taxpayers, that these estimates will be adhered to, the fundamental principles and benefits of the budget will not obtain.

This proposed bill will place the responsibility for the preparation of the Budget with the Mayor, who, with the advice of the Heads of the Departments, will formulate a definite program for the needs of the City for the following year.

This completed plan must then be submitted to the Council, who, after publication of the budget and public hearings upon same, may revise same by increasing or decreasing any items therein. After the final approval of the Mayor's Budget by the Council, the money is appropriated and the program is turned back to the Executive and Administrative Departments for specific performance.

The Comptroller is thereafter required to open accounts with the appropriations as set up in the Budget, and he, as well as the Heads of the Departments, will be held personally responsible for any expenditures in excess of the allotted sums and these officials may be removed from the office for violating or evading these provisions.

Emergency expenses are clearly defined and limited to a one mill levy per annum (approximately $250,000.00).

If you desire to use these data or any part of same for the information of the public, you have my permission to do so, or for any other purpose, calculated to support this measure.

Felling assured of your co-operation in any proposal for the betterment of our City, I am

Respectfully yours,
H. W. CARROLL
City Comptroller.

BUDGET DATA

From Cities With Population of Over 100,000

For the purpose of comparing the methods of preparation, appropriation and administration of the budget of other cities in the United States with those of Seattle, a brief questionnaire was sent out on April 25, 1920, by the undersigned to the auditors of the first thirty-seven cities, in point of population, containing the following questions:

1. Does your city operate under an annual budget of estimated revenues and expenses?
2. If so, is same appropriated by one lump ordinance for the entire fiscal year?
3. After having been appropriated, what are the duties of the auditor or comptroller, relating specifically to the departmental and other expenditures, as set up in the budget?

If convenient, a copy of your statutory provisions relating to questions 2 and 3 will be appreciated.

On May 12, 1920, additional letters were sent to the next 31 cities, in point of population, to which there was added one more question, as follows:

4. What amounts, if any, may be expended for the prevention of epidemics, such as influenza or riots, strikes and other emergencies, the occurrence of which could not have been anticipated, and by what methods are funds provided for same?

COMPARATIVE COST OF GOVERNMENT

The following article was furnished the Seattle papers by the Taxation League of Seattle:

Clark R. Jackson, for seven years tax commissioner of the state of Washington, on a recent trip down the coast made, at the request of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial club, an investigation of the comparative costs of running the various city governments. The budget estimates and the costs per capita of four departments in the various cities are as follows:

Police
	Per capita	Total
Seattle	$3.88	$1,225,822
San Francisco ..	$3.63	$1,531,896
Los Angeles	$2.61	$1,502,341
Portland	$3.35	$865,598

Fire
	Per capita	Total
Seattle	$4.85	$1,531,896
San Francisco ..	$4.06	$2,064,526
Los Angeles	$3.03	$1,749,143
Portland	$3.72	$962,030

Parks
	Per capita	Total
Seattle	$0.78	$245,823
San Francisco ..	$0.80	$406,000
Los Angeles	$0.61	$353,160

Library
	Per capita	Total
Seattle	$0.86	$270,400
San Francisco ..	$0.28	$145,000
Los Angeles	$0.56	$321,158
Portland	$0.71	$183,470

The comparative cost for public schools in the various cities is as follows:

	School Amount	Cost Census	Pupil
Seattle	$4,828,000	67,319	$71.72
Portland	3,499,750	58,780	59.54
San F.	4,509,000	76,841	58.68

While the cost per child for education in Seattle is already so much greater than in other Pacific Coast cities this will be still largely increased the ensuing year when it will amount to $91.15 per child.

Figures compiled by F. W. Hull, Assessor of King County, show that of every dollar collected in taxes in King County, 36½ cents goes for public schools regardless of the higher institutions of learning. This is the way every dollar of King County taxes is apportioned:

Schools36½ cents
Municipal purposes35½ cents
County purposes12 cents
Road purposes9 cents
.....7 cents

The growth of the amount of money handled by the city is shown by a comparison with two years previous. In 1918 the total disbursements of the city treasurer were $15,669,762.53 and in 1919 they were $27,493,818.08 as compared with $32,661,901.99 for the year just closed, a sum totaling twice the amount expended in 1918. The receipts for the same period necessarily show a proportionate increase. In 1918 the total received was $16,829,701.62, in 1919 it jumped to $30,062,142.72 and in the year just closed amounted to $36,094,930.75.

eight questionnaires, replies were received from fifty cities, including San Diego, which ranks number 120.

For ready reference, these replies are herein tabulated in alphabetical order, with the respective answers to Questions 1 and 2, and it will be noted that of the fifty cities, forty-four cities appropriate the entire budget by one lump annual ordinance, three did not answer this question, two make semi-annual readjustments and only one operates under monthly ordinances, as does Seattle. Extracts from state laws, city charters and ordinances, wherever available, have similarly been assembled in alphabetical order; these legal provisions, with proper references, are briefly quoted and the more important provisions are recited verbatim.

No tabulation was prepared to the answers to Question 3, covering the duties of the comptroller in relation to the budget; it is sufficient to state, that in every city where the budget is appropriated by one annual appropriation ordinance, the chief auditing officer of the city is the principal agent for the control of departmental and other expenditures of the city, as set up in the annual appropriation ordinance.

The outstanding feature of the information obtained is, that the City of Seattle stands practically alone among all of these cities in its budgetary procedure. Section 10, Article IX of the charter of this city, as amended in 1914, provides that "On or before the 10th day of July of each year the heads of all departments shall submit to the finance committee of the city council an estimate of the probable expenses of their several departments for the ensuing year." After these estimates, hereby required, have been considered by the council, same are adopted by resolutions; this is a form of legislative action, which cannot be reviewed by the mayor, and the executive department is therefore, completely shut out from any and all participation in the budget. Subsequently, an ordinance is passed by the council, which must be approved by the mayor, fixing the tax levy.

The budget is not set up in this tax levy ordinance; it is simply a decree that so much money shall be raised by taxation, but does not recite the purposes for which these moneys are to be expended. The mayor invariably signs this ordinance, as there is practically no other course open to him; he has no official knowledge of the financial program and is therefore, without power to object to any item or to increase any allowance.

As stated, no other city, from which data were obtained, grants to the legislative body the exclusive authority to propose all expenditures and dispose of all public moneys; invariably the budget, with its schedules recited in detail, is passed by ordinance, which requires executive approval. As a matter of record, a majority of the municipalities are operating under a so-called executive budget, which is prepared either by the mayor alone, or by a board of estimate, consisting of the mayor, comptroller and a number of other city officials.

This budget is then submitted to the legislative body for approval; some cities permit the city council to increase or decrease the executive budget, subject to the mayor's veto, and in other cities the "city council may reduce or reject any item, but shall not increase any item for any purpose contained in said estimate."

Conclusion

The City of Seattle is operating under antiquated fiscal methods and the charter provisions and ordinances relating to finance are inadequate; the comptroller, though originally intended to "exercise general supervision of the financial affairs of the city" is without power to perform these duties; even such minor supervision as the assembling of annual estimates of departmental expenses, whereby he would be enabled to indicate unusual requests and to act in an advisory capacity in other respects, have been taken from him and absorbed by the council by the amendment passed in 1914.

The mayor knows practically nothing of the regular financial operations of the city; authorities in the shape of general appropriation ordinances are presented to him without detail, which ordinances must be signed on the wheels of the city government would stop.

A revision of these methods whereby the duties and responsibilities of the legislative, executive and administrative departments will be clearly defined and apportioned in accordance with well-established principles seem imperative, if this city is to take its place among the progressive municipalities of the country.

COUNCIL WILL LET STREET CONTRACT

Contracts for street improvement projects aggregating estimated cost more than $50,000, giving employment to a large number of laborers, will be let by the board of public works in the next two weeks.

The board will open bids at its meeting today on the Fifteenth Avenue Northwest grading and curbing project, estimated to cost $108,257, and on the grading of Eighth Avenue North and Aloha Street, estimated cost $7,252.

On Friday, Jan. 14, the board will open bids on one of the biggest street improvements on the council calendar for the present year, the paving of Twentieth Avenue Northwest from the West Wheeler Street viaduct to the Fort Lawton entrance. This work, when completed, will provide a paved thoroughfare through the Magnolia Bluff section. It is estimated to cost $259,857.

Bids will be opened at the Jan. 14 meeting on the following projects, whose combined cost will exceed $100,000: Construction of sewers on Earl Avenue Northwest from West Seventh Street to Loyal Heights Addition; paving of Nicker Street from Third Avenue North to Fifteenth Avenue West; and paving of First Avenue North.

SANTMYER RESENTS SCHOOL COMPLAINT

Charges by J. E. Blackwell, city building superintendent, that school buildings are "in a deplorable condition, few if any of them having been constructed in accordance with the law," are untrue or in themselves an indictment of the building department, under whose supervision they were conducted, according to Walter J. Santmyer, engineer member of the board. "Every school building in this town was constructed under permit from the city building superintendent to say that they do not comply with building regulations is a severe charge against his own department," said Santmyer. "That applies to portables, to which Blackwell is objecting specifically, as well as other buildings. We have put up at least twenty-five portables since Blackwell has been in office, on permits from him.

"As a matter of fact our buildings are not in a deplorable condition or anything of the sort. We have spent $200,000 in the last two years bringing them up to normal, after letting repair work lag to a certain extent during the war due to high prices and the request of the government that public work be suspended. Building costs have not enabled us to put through our building program as rapidly as we had anticipated, and we are being forced to use some buildings longer than we had wanted to. But we are keeping these buildings in good repair, and cannot be blamed for these outside influences, such as high building costs, which have to a certain extent upset our program. What we need from the building department is less criticism, based on technicalities, and more cooperation"

SCHOOL CLINIC IS ORDERED ABOLISHED BY SUPREME COURT

Ruling of the Superior Court Reversed—Statute Does Not Provide for Expense, Is Decision

Maintenance of the free public school clinic at Seventh Avenue and Madison Street was made illegal recently by a decision of the supreme court reversing Judge Calvin S. Hall of the superior court and denying the statutory powers of officials of a school district to equip or employ at the expense of the district, physicians, dentists or nurses for treating pupils.

The action was brought last year by O. C. McGilvra, as a tax payer of school district No. 1, who sought an injunction to restrain the officials of the district from expending funds for this purpose. Judge Hall, in denying the application, held that the good accomplished by the medical department was so great in comparison with the inconsequential expense of maintaining it that the expenditure was justifiable.

According to a dispatch from Olympia, however, the supreme court ruled that the injunction should be issued to McGilvra.

Frank B. Cooper, superintendent of schools, was unable to say whether this decision, in doing away with the free clinic, would also force the discharge of the twenty-four nurses now employed by the district. He thought that they might be retained, however, as inspectors. He expressed the hope that at the coming session of the legislature some action will be taken to make the resumption of the clinic possible.

A Municipal League Committee, headed by Lewis Schwellenbach, will report to the League Tuesday as to legislation necessary to overcome the decision of the Supreme Court.

NEW HEADLIGHT LAW SOUGHT FOR STATE

Declaring that the present state law governing automobile headlights is loosely drawn; that its provisions are such that the law is not being enforced, and that fatal accidents are resulting from faulty headlights permitted because of the present law, Prof. F. A. Osborn, head of the department of physics at the University of Washington, asked the cooperation of the Municipal League in securing the passage of a new law at the coming session of the legislature, in an address delivered before the League Tuesday noon at Meeves Cafeteria.

Prof. Osborn presented a law drafted by the National Illuminating Engineering Society as the most desirable legislation obtainable on regulation of headlights. He stated that the law had been drafted by the society after a lengthy investigation and much experimental work, and is a scientific conclusion as to the safest method of automobile lighting. The society is made up entirely of scientists, and is not interested in any make or method of making headlights, he said.

Prof. Osborn explained that the proposed law regulates the tensiety of the light, the width from each side of the machine that it should be thrown, the tensiety of the light at each side of the car, and the height at which direct rays of light should show sixty feet in front of the car. The suggested law, which is known as the "model headlight law," has been adopted in California, New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, says Prof. Osborn.

At Wednesday's meeting of the Board, the matter of securing necessary legislation on the subject was referred to the Public Safety Committee, of which Jackson Silbaugh is chairman.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1921.

The League will meet at BLANC'S CAFE (opposite new County-City Building) Tuesday noon, January 18, 1921. Mrs. Josephine Preston, state superintendent of public schools, will address the League on the subject of the public school administrative code commission bill. By special arrangement, a FIFTY-CENT LUNCHEON will be served. Bring as many of your friends as possible to this meeting.

MRS. PRESTON TO SPEAK AT BLANC'S CAFE

The first meeting to be held in the League's new meeting place, Blanc's Cafe, will be featured by an address of Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston, state superintendent of public instruction, who will speak on the proposed public school administrative code commission bill against which measure she is waging a vigorous fight. It has been stated that a controversy over this measure bids fair to be one of the memorable struggles of this session of the Legislature, affecting as it does every school teacher and child in the state.

The purpose of the bill is to change the administration of the public school system through the reorganization of the State Department of Education, the establishment of the county school district with adequate supervision of all schools with financial support justly assessed and equitably distributed. The bill contains eight new sections, amends 64 sections of the present code and repeals 94 sections.

The first eight sections, on which Mrs. Preston is making a particularly strong fight, reorganize the Department of Education. They provide for an ap-

THE ANNUAL BUDGET MUST PAY OWN WAY

When the City Council adopts the annual estimates, it fixes a maximum limit of expenditures for the purposes named thereon and when it passes the tax levy ordinance it provides revenue which can legally be used for the payment of the items specified in the budget and for no other purpose. When the Council appropriates money for a purpose not named in the budget it provides that the amount thereof shall be included in the tax levy for the succeeding year. Then when the Comptroller pays such item by warrant, he pays it from the revenue for the current year. This practice helps to create the confusion and contention which has probably induced the Comptroller to support the new budget bill.

This bill may do some good by conferring the veto power upon the Mayor, but when it authorizes a levy of $250,000 for the payment of emergencies which may never exist, it will create a fund which will be a constant temptation. The shifting of responsibility for preparing and administering the budget is of little importance, as the power of the City Council to increase or decrease the amount of any item can only be affected by the veto. The worst feature of the bill is the attempt to Mayor Caldwell's letter, showing his opposition to going into the public treasury to finance the car lines was addressed to Geo. A. Leibes, accountant in the city comptroller's office. The mayor, after thanking Mr. Leibes for his suggestions "for relief of the financial embarrassment of the municipal street railway," says:

"The plan suggested by you is the same principle as that recommended by the Federal Railway Commission of Electric Railways, appointed by the President, and of which Mayor Baker of Portland was a member. That committee recommended that extensions be made under the local improvement plan.

Mayor States Position

"My position on this matter, however, is that the city is under neither a legal nor moral obligation to raise funds from any other source than the car line receipts to pay the principal and interest, operating and maintenance expenses; that since Stone & Webster made the contract and agreed to look to this source alone for their money, they should continue to look for it, and if the contract is not capable of performance according to its terms, modification thereof must be made by consent of the parties, or a decree of the courts should

JONES TELLS OF SCHOOL REVENUES

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Reuben W. Jones, Secretary of the Seattle School Board for the past eighteen years, addressed the Municipal League at noon Tuesday on the subject of school revenues. After outlining the early history of revenue measures passed by Washington legislatures, Mr. Jones emphasized the fact that the state at an early day, passed laws supplementing school revenues derived from grants of the Federal Government. This was first on the basis of $6 per child, later $8, and again amended to $10, continuing at the latter amount for over twenty years.

The state imposes a tax based on the number of persons between the ages of 4 and 21 years residing in the state. At the special session of the legislature last March, the amount per child was advanced to $20, leaving the county at $10, this advancing the tax levy for 1920 from 1.8353 mills to 1.2592 mills, and now, at the present session, the Code Commission proposes another $10 advance, or $30 per child, which will advance the state tax to about 7 mills. Mr. Jones opposes this advance for many reasons, especially at this time of extreme stress for tax payers, and

"This is bad business from whatever angle it is viewed. It works against the company's own interest, multiplying the popular grievances and adding to the sum of public dissatisfaction against the day of reckoning that surely will come soon or late. The New Orleans Company, merrily collecting its straight 8 cents per ride, ought in fairness to its patrons to make some return in terms of etter service. We do not know what the trouble is, but we are convinced that the peak hour service at least can be improved. If the will to improve it exists, we think that the company has to secure the services of traffic experts who can find the way."

The arraignment of the street car management has a strictly familiar sound, and, judged by the criticism of our own street railway management and the suggestion that an expert be employed, we would assume that some inexperienced street railway man is responsible for their trouble. However, none other than our former townsman and lifelong street railway man, A. L. Kempster, left Seattle and went to New Orleans with the management of the street railway system there. The question naturally arises, then, would a change of management or hiring of experts solve our troubles? Or are they so fatal that no matter how heroic the treatment the business cannot be revived under the present contract?

From a compilation made by Bow, Jones Co. of public service bonds in default, we are informed that 56 street railway companies have defaulted in their bonds, with an aggregate face value of bonds defaulted of $486,350,000; that it is the largest amount of public utility bonds ever in default at one time in the United States.

Companies in Receivers' Hands

From the report of the American Electric Railway Association it appears that 77 electric railways went into the hands of receivers in the two years 1918 and 1919 with outstanding capital of $13,389,742, and securities and bonds outstanding $476,172,206, an enormous total of stocks and bonds involved in receivership proceedings of $789,561,948. In 1920 and prior to August 15, 1920, an additional line went into the hands of receivers with total capital stock and bonded debt of $24,029,200, or a total involved in receiverships in two years and a half of over $800,000,000. These were followed in August, 1920, by the following lines going into the hands of receivers, one in August, one in September, and two in December, namely: Ash-Abula Rapid Transit Company, Kansas City Railways, Barre & Mount Pelier Traction & Power Company, and the Denver (Colorado) Tramway Company.

What Happened in Seattle

But what happened in Seattle is that instead of permitting this system to follow the other companies into receivership, these lines were turned over to the city at an original cost valuation, without any depreciation, and the city fondly imagined that it could do what the private company could not do, namely, meet all of its obligations and retire the entire original capital investment from the receipts from the car lines. And this, it should be remembered, is the sole obligation of the city, as expressed in its ordinances — to pay these amounts, including principal, solely from the receipts of the car lines.

It is interesting in this connection to notice how the city of San Francisco has acted. San Francisco several times voted down proposals to purchase existing street railways. They were owned and operated by the San Francisco United Railroads Company. According to reports, the United Railroads Company, in its last published report to the California State Railway Commission, had $42,948,000 of capital stock, $36,648,000 of bonds, and $6,702,161 of current liabilities outstanding.

Unable to Pay Interest.

The company was unable to pay any interest whatever on its capital stock in 1918. It failed to pay interest on its entire bond issue also. Of $1,645,220, which fell due in that year, the company paid only $656,735.25, the remainder being left to add to $2,378,350 of interest accrued in previous years and unpaid. It is reported that very recently the company has reorganized on a basis of capitalization of $47,500,000, which means that $38,798,761 of water was extracted at one squeeze.

Getting back to our Seattle situation, we will recall that nothing was struck or squeezed from the company's valuation, nor had anything been deducted, for depreciation during the years of operation.

Under the foregoing circumstances, are we really justified in slurring the present management of the street railway system, which is in the hands of a man of 18 years' experience at this business?

THE BUDGET

(Continued from page one) tighten the grip of the political bureau which in January 1918 installed for the city Comptroller a system of accounting which has for three years past made it impossible for him to show either on his books or official statements the truth as to the operations or conditions of the general or any utility fund. No additional law is needed to cure this case. There is a section in the criminal code of 1909 which covers such statements.

An amendment to the constitution is proposed to provide for an appointive executive head of the state school systems with salary, qualifications and tenure to be determined by the board.

The office of county superintendent of schools is discontinued after September 3, 1923 according to the provision of this bill. The meeting place has been changed from Meves Cafeteria, where it has been held for the past two or more years, to Blanc's Cafe, immediately opposite the new County-City building. A beautiful room with seating capacity for one hundred fifty is provided for, and a special fifty cent lunch will be served members of the Municipal League and their guests. It is hoped that the new meeting place will be attended by all of the active members of the League and will draw to it many who have not been in regular attendance.

LEAGUE ADOPTS REPORT ON SCHOOL CODE

Without a dissenting vote the report of the League's special committee on the school administrative code was adopted as read. In pursuance of a motion made from the floor the report was mailed to the committee on Education of the State Legislature. The report follows:

Your special committee on Senate Bill No. 10 relating to the Revision of the Common School Code of the State of Washington reports as follows:

It is apparent on even such a brief study of the measure as your committee has been able to give in the few days since its appointment that much earnest and conscientious study has been given the subject by the commission. Unquestionably many of the proposals made are wisely conceived and cannot fail to result in real improvement of our educational system.

At the same time some of the changes proposed represent a radical departure from our present system in directions in which there is wide divergence of opinion on the part of thoughtful people.

It is, therefore, the belief of your committee that the measure should be so amended as to afford relief from conditions which now seriously handicap educational progress without committing us to policies concerning which there is considerable uncertainty. In other words, we would suggest that changes be so limited as to correct the all too evident abuses without involving us in experiments, the result of which is more or less uncertain.

The Bill provides radical changes in our educational system along three lines:-

First, The State Board of Edu-

Councilmanic Candidates will address the League

Tuesday Noon, February 8th, 1920

at BLANC'S CAFE (opposite County City Bldg)

A Fifty Cent Lunch Will be Served

cation is to be completely reorganized.

Second, our present system of administration of the rural schools in small districts is to be merged into a county unit.

Third, the method of financing schools is to be changed by levying a very much greater tax instead of supplementing a moderate state tax with school district levy.

First, as to the State Board of Education, the commission proposes that it be "partially reorganized" thru the appointment by the Governor of a State Board by the governor, of a State board for terms of seven years—with broad constructive powers looking toward the upbuilding of a strong effectual state department of education with professional experts dealing with the important fields of educational endeavor. An amendment to the Constitution "is to be proposed" to provide for an appointive educational head of the state school system with salary, qualifications, and tenure determined by the "State Board of Education".

It is the evident intention of the commission to create an Administrative board free from political influence and with power to employ such technical experts as may be required to place the state system on a high plane of efficiency. Your committee believes that the substitution of an appointive superintendent for an elective official is a wise move and calculated to secure and maintain a higher level of professional efficiency than the present system.

Believing as we do that our educational system should be as completely removed from political influence as is possible, we feel that the State Board of Education, as now constituted, is too valuable to be discarded. Its membership consists of the president of the University of Washington, the president of the Washington State College, and the following named by the governor: the principal of one state normal school and three professional educators holding life diplomas in this state, one of which must be the superintendent of a first class school district, one a county superintendent of schools, and one a principal of a four year accredited high school. To this we feel should be added three lay members appointed by the governor for terms of six years, one being named every two years. That section of the proposed code which provides that members can be removed only for stated cause should be eliminated.

Second, County consolidation as proposed provides a greatly needed reform. With executive authority placed in the hands of technical experts, leaving to the elective county board the deter-

LEAGUE TO VOTE ON COMMITTEE REPORT

The following report, submitted by the Civil Service Committee of the League, will be voted upon at the next meeting of the League. The report follows:
To the Municipal League:
Gentlemen:

The following matters were referred by the League to us for investigation and report.

1. A resolution should be proposed that would give power to the Commission to require each Civil Service employee of the city not to engage in a general strike so long as he remains an employee of the city.

2. Within each classification made by the Commission, there exists within that classification a graduated salary scale ranging for example from $180.00 to $225.00 per month. The City Council indicated that it would have the Commission act as a sort of an advisory committee as to salary increase within each of the classes. The council, however, has not acted officially and it may not accept the recommendation of the commission. Mr. Kellogg suggested that the Commission is the proper body to have the power to determine the salary adjustment within each class.

3. The Corporation Counsel of this city made a decision last week whereby employees may be advanced from a lower to a higher classification by the head of his department, delegating to him additional duties and without requiring the employee to take a civil service examination. If this decision is allowed to stand, the heads of the departments could evade civil service rules and the Commission would be powerless to stop them.

4. The salary schedule should be revised from time to time to meet the ever-changing cost of living. Power could be given to the Commission to study and revise salary schedules and each year, before the budget is made up, to make a report to the said Council, asking them to approve the new schedules.

5. The matter of the retirement of super-annuated employees (with the possibility of giving the Commission the power to have an expert employment man on the job to weed out inefficient men).

6. Civil service rules should be modernized and presented as amendments to the charter of the city.

Our work extended through December and January. Two of our meetings were devoted to consulting two experts on Civil Service and municipal government. We selected and studied what in our judgment were the best available reports and statistics on those reforms in civil services and city government that have succeeded in practice. Inasmuch as all of the above matters to be reported on, except the sixth one, relate to minor details for improving the Civil Service, we decided that before the Civil Service of Seattle or of any other city can be improved to any great extent, it first becomes necessary to remove from politics the offices of those who select and superintend the Civil Service employees. Accordingly our first recommendation is:

That city Civil Service commissioners, the heads of the city departments and their deputies, be included under Civil Service.

Our reasons for this recommendation are as follows:

The logical reason for electing or appointing a public official is that his office involves the duty of determining policies. Civil Service commissioners, the heads of the city departments and their determine: their duty is honesty and efficiency in performing their prescribed work. Technical knowledge for such offices can be fairly tested by written examinations and particularly by past experience. Personality can be fairly accredited by allowing the appointing power to select one of the three or more applicants that have passed the highest examinations.

Further, we were gradually and finally led to the conclusion that Civil Service in its nature is supplementary, and that before it can operate as intended, the system which it supplements must be reformed. Accordingly, our second recommendation is:

That a law be passed by our state legislature authorizing all cities to adopt the City-Manager form of government.

Our reasons for this recommendation are as follows:

Under the present system there is:-

(1) A lack of centralized and direct responsibility. This is illustrated by, a tendency on the part of the heads of departments, to tolerate an over-supply of employees, to retain inefficient and broken-down employees, to tolerate employees performing their work languidly, and to recommend salary promotions and increased salaries in general.

(2) The short term of offices, particularly of elective executive offices, tempts heads of departments to organize a political following and to exploit their offices. It also discourages successful and high-minded business and professional men from seeking office.

We find that the city manager form of government to a considerable degree remedies these defects, as follows:

(1) Any inefficiency or abuse in the legislation or in the management of the city falls back on the city commissioners who are held solely responsible to the citizens who elect them. Any inefficiency or abuse in the administration is referred back by the city commissioners to the city-manager, who is directly responsible to these commissioners who appoint him, discharge him at will, and dictate the policy he must follow. Any inefficiency or abuse on the part of subordinates is referred back by the city-manager to the heads of the departments, who are held directly responsible to the city manager who selects and discharges them, subject to civil service rules.

(2) The only elected officials are the city commissioners, usually five in the larger cities. This short ballot enables the citizens to elect these commissioners without being confused by a multitude of candidates or misled by a slate prepared by politicians and newspapers. Further, the direct responsibility above outlined stimulates efficiency and places credit where it belongs, all down the line. Finally, with Civil Service including heads of departments and deputies, a superior class of citizens would be induced to seek administrative offices, knowing that only the better fitted are eligible and that their term is secure during efficient and honest service.

RESOLUTION TO BE VOTED UPON TUESDAY

A resolution was introduced at the last meeting that the League go on record as being opposed to the holding of school and police elections with the general or city elections. A vote on this resolution will be taken Tuesday.

Digest of Investigator's Report on Street Railway Lines

Charges of constructive if not actual fraud on the part of the Stone-Webster interests with reference to the value of the street car lines turned over to Seattle in the $15,000,000 purchase; recommendations that the City Council return the property taken on a contract which is impossible of performance and as the return of the bonds, and recommendation, in event the Council is unwilling to take such action, that the taxpayers themselves initiate proper legal proceedings to relieve themselves from the unjust burden, as made by attorney Wilmon Tucker as special investigator for Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell city's street car purchase report to the mayor.

No evidence was found as result of the investigation that any city officials profited financially by the transaction.

The property as of purchase date represents a value not to exceed $7,843,000.

No valuation was made of the result of the investigation that on behalf of the city of Seattle prior to the sale of the lines to the city. The only valuation that was ever made was one made on behalf of the comparison through engineers in its employment.

Total actual loss to the general fund for the year and three quarters that we have actual been operating the railway line $1,250,491.65; and total estimate for the present year, 1921, an additional $722,854.

The expenditures from the general fund above referred to were for additional expense of the various city departments.

The losses to the general fund from the street railway acquisition were loss of taxes within the city limits; loss of gross revenue, and bridges.

After these months of ownership ship and operation it is now practically certain that this street railway system cannot be paid for according to the plan adopted in the ordinances.

They parted with nothing of value on account of the transfer of the lines that cannot and will not be restored to them in the event that it is legally determined that the contract should be cancelled or if it is impossible of performance by the parties hereto.

It has never been held in this state that the general fund of the city can be held liable for a deficit created in the operation of a public utility purchased according to such plan as that adopted under the ordinances referred to. To so hold would permit the City Council to do by indirection what it is expressly prohibited from doing.

From my investigation of the facts and the law I have reached the following conclusions: First, that the company was guilty of constructive if not actual fraud in reference to the value of the property, by which the city was induced to agree to pay more than twice its real value.

Second, the contract is impossible of performance according to its terms, and the city is under no obligation to enhance the value of the bonds by furnishing additional funds or security in an endeavor to carry out the contract.

mination of general policies, this plan represents the best solution yet devised for the problem. We would suggest, however, that this section be amended in such a manner as to provide that the present school directors of local district (the sub-district under the proposed plan) be retained. We make this recommendation because of the conviction that every local community can wisely be entrusted with a certain amount of control over its school affairs. This should, however, be limited to the right to nominate teachers subject to the approval of the superintendent of the county district and to the administration of the school plants in the interest of the local affairs, subject, however, to the final authority of the county board. To retain these directors as elective officials instead of having them appointed by the directors of the county board as is proposed in the bill under consideration will, we believe, make for greater local interest in school matters.

Third: As to finances, it is the conviction of your committee that the proposal making it mandatory that the state raise a fund of $30.00 per census child be eliminated. It is only a year since the state fund was raised from $10.00 per census child to $20.00 per census child. The amount raised by state wide taxation was doubled to meet an educational emergency. This we believe has been done. Nothing in the present situation seems to call for further increase at the present time. With the county school district as a unit for local taxation, present unepualities can, we are satisfied, be largely eliminated. To go further in state wide taxation will, we feel, open the way, in some sections at least, for a wasteful use of school funds simply because they are available.

We are satisfied too that the proposed method of dividing state funds among districts is unwise. Where half the fund is distributed on the basis of teachers employed and only half on school attendance too large a premium is placed on the small class unit. We, therefore, feel that the present system of distribution of state funds should be continued at least until conditions become more settled.

It has been pointed out to this committee that the proposed changes would cost the Seattle district in excess of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) increased taxes per year, while leaving the total taxation for King County substantially unchanged. In making the above recommendations, however, we have endeavored to view the question in the light of the best interests of education—not in the light of sectional advantages or disadvantages. If it were clear that such an increase in city taxation were in the best interest of education broadly viewed, we should feel that this added burden should be cheerfully assumed.

We are not, however, satisfied that this is the case, as we understand that King County schools can continue to pay greatly increased salaries and otherwise maintain a highly efficient system of schools on the present financial basis. What is true of King County must be measurably true, at least, of the state at large.

In this report we have endeavored to deal only with large outstanding principles of the bill. Because, however, of the importance of the whole subject we would suggest that the commission be continued. Sections of the bill concerning which there is much difference of opinion could profitably be given added study and the bill more carefully drawn. It might also be submitted for study and endorsement to boards and individuals interested in the cause of education. When finally adopted in its entirety it would then have intelligent backing.

Committee Report on Councilmanic Candidates

Statements by candidates for the city council of their views on city taxes, the Skagit project and the municipal railway are emphasized in a report submitted to the Municipal League at its meeting yesterday noon and approved by an unanimous vote.

The report was prepared by a special committee consisting of Robert Howes, chairman; Paul V. Dick, J. L. Baldwin, H. C. Force and Charles J. Ryan, appointed for the purpose of conducting an investigation of the fourteen candidates for the three councilmanic positions to be filled at the city election March 8. All the candidates appeared before the committee and each was given half an hour to state his position and answer questions. In addition, each candidate filled out a questionnaire. The report in full follows:

T. H. Bolton.

City councilman 1914 to date; age forty-eight; born in Canada; resident Seattle nineteen years. Believes street railway system is on paying basis and will be in clear by June 1, 1921; favors 5 cent fare from residence to business and industrial districts, no transfers otherwise; believes 8 and one-third cents fare loses cream of business; system should stand on its own resources; would eliminate jitney competition; favors Skagit project; considers Uhden's estimates satisfactory; budget can and should be adhered to under normal conditions. Would reduce wages proportionally when living costs fall. No definite plan to reduce taxation.

Committee believes he has made a fairly good councilman; is representative of a class, union labor, rather than of public as a whole.

John Bushell

Age seventy-two; born in England; lived in Seattle thirty-one years; until recently in the auction business; now retired; believes in retrenchment of expenses in all city departments, particularly by eliminating dead timber; that 5-cent carfare between the center and circumference of the city and no transfer with other economies, would produce sufficient to operate, maintain and pay for the system; no general taxation for street car system; favor every honorable and legal means to void the purchase contract.

Committee believes his heart is right, but a younger man with more experience in large business affairs is needed at the present time.

John E. Carroll.

Councilman for one and a half years; age forty-four; justice of the peace of Seattle for ten years; served with the A. E. F. as major of infantry; believes the municipal railway should be self-supporting. Against paying the railway deficit out of the general fund; supports grand jury and investigator's view on modification or rescission of purchase contract; against reduction of city employees' wages; does not see how taxes can be reduced.

The committee believes that while Mr. Carroll has a commendable record as justice of the peace, his business experience has not been broad enough to enable him to grasp sufficiently the important affairs of the city, and that he has not shown able leadership in the council.

A. Lou Cohen.

Cigar merchant; age fifty-six; resident of Seattle thirty-five years; heavy taxpayer; believes the city made a poor bargain in purchasing the car system, and thinks it should be tested in court; favors 5-cent fare with a 2-cent charge for transfers, but will support continuation of a 8 and one-third cent fare so long as necessary to make the road self-supporting; will not vote one cent of general taxation to help pay for the car system or its operation unless the supreme court says it must be done.

Has not given much consideration to the Skagit River project, but would favor its investigation by a competent board before going on with it, and is disposed to follow their recommendation; believes in making a budget and sticking to it; would vote for a deficiency appropriation only in case of a real emergency.

The committee considers him a conservative and successful business man with knowledge of the city's affairs.

George F. Cotterell.

Age fifty-five; born in England; resident Seattle thirty-six years; prominent political speaker; mayor of Seattle 1912-1914; supported building Division "A" of the street railway system and constructing Cedar River dam against engineering report; wants 5-cent fare and small transfer charge.

Charles W. Doyle.

Born in Iowa; aged forty-nine; resident of state thirty-three years; grammar and high school education; occupation, painter; business representative of the Central Labor Council; has never held public office.

Believes in municipal ownership of public utilities; in favor of reducing the car fare immediately to 5 cents or less and paying the deficiency by taxation; is not in favor of returning the lines, even if it were possible, nor of cutting wages, but states that he will vote for the latter as soon as living costs decrease sufficiently to warrant and he would then be in favor of a proportional city believes that public utility should be run for the benefit of the people and not necessarily self-supporting and gives it as his opinion that every one pays taxes, either directly or indirectly, and that his method of paying the deficit would therefore be equitable; is in favor of going ahead with the Skagit project and would not be in favor of incurring any further expenditure to obtain further information through the means of a board of competent independent engineers; believes in the budget system, but thinks that emergencies will arise where deficits would have to be voted.

Mr. Doyle plainly has the support of the Union Record and the Central Labor Council.

Robert E. Dwyer.

Age 33; lawyer, engaged in insurance and bonding business; resident Seattle ten years; captain in A. E. F.; member 1917 legislature; candidate at Republican primaries for insurance last year; believes in rescinding street railway contract; against reduction of city employees, wages; has not given much consideration to Skagit project; opposed to radicalism.

Committee believes Mr. Dwyer is a man of good educational qualifications, but that he has not given enough study to the city's problems to have a grasp of the situation.

A. F. Haas.

Age 75 years; born in Michigan; resident Seattle thirty years; common school education; city councilman for ten years; not particularly aggressive, but has good record as conservative member; opposed purchase street railway system, and thinks operating expense, maintenance, depreciation, interest and bond retirement should all be paid out of earnings of all municipally owned public utilities; and that they should be run in the same manner as a conservative board of directors would run a private enterprise; believes city should now go ahead with Skagit project, but favored less expensive program, developing smaller projects when the subjects was first considered and thinks city wages may be cut, but that 15 per cent would be too much at present; believes budget should be lived up to except in extreme emergencies, and that each department should keep within its own budget.

Committee believes his past record best indication of his qualifications.

C. B. Fitzgerald.

Age 40; born in Wisconsin; city councilman 1914-1919; mayor 1919-1920; at present in real estates business; believes all public utilities should be self-supporting and no other funds should be used in their support; that service should be held at a price that will provide operating expenses, interest and bond obligations; that retirement of the street railway bonds as provided in bond agreement, is a proper substitute for depreciation charges; considers that a depreciation charge in addition to bond retirement out of earnings a double charge, would not reduce the rate from present rate until system could show a surplus, believes repudiation untenable; that there are no grounds for a suit to rescind; believes an expert impartial commission should investigate the Skagit project as a check on city employees' estimates, and their conclusion followed even though it meant abandonment of the Skagit in favor of a more desirable project; favors operating within the budget as far as possible; was chairman of finance committee and largely instrumental in the purchase of the street railway system and acquirement of the Skagit.

Committee believes that he has a comprehensive understanding of the city's financial problems and thinks that as chairman of the finance committee of the council at the time of the advisory referendum on the purchase of the street railway system he should have more fully advised the public as to the value and earning capacity of the system in protection of the city's interest.

J. A. Johnson.

Age sixty, resident Seattle twenty-two years; superintendent of buildings 1917; appointed by Ole Hanson; building contractor of considerable experience; believes that neither the most rigid economy nor raising of fares will enable the city to meet the railway problem, and is in favor of taking legal steps to reduce the burden; believes that public utilities should be self supporting, and that taxation should not be resorted to; is in favor of going ahead with the Skagit project; and believes in the budget system; believes that the pay rolls in the various departments can be greatly reduced; states that while building superintendent he increased efficiency and reduced expenses of his department, and that the council can do the same for the whole city.

Committee believes that he does not measure up to the qualifications for the council.

C. A. LaGrave.

Born in Wisconsin; age seventy-one; Seattle nineteen years; common school education; accountant of twenty years' experience in public offices; believes street railway should meet maintenance, operation, interest, retirement of bonds and depreciation; that city council "went outside of contract in appropriating money from the general fund," and states that he would not under any circumstance vote to do so; is convinced that an impossibility to carry out contract; gave no definite idea of what he would do when the crisis comes; believes in the budget system and in adhering strictly to it; favors lower taxes and states that he knows of numerous places where economies can be effected.

While your committee considers Mr. La Grave a capable accountant and a man of good character, we believe he lacks other desirable qualifications for an efficient councilman.

Edw. W. Melse.

Age 38, born in California; resident of Seattle for 40 years; now employed as license inspector of City of Seattle; was chief deputy in City Comptroller's office for six years; opposed to general taxation for municipal railway; in favor of either reducing the purchase price or returning same to former owners; believes in reduction of fares as soon as possible; has not formed any definite ideas on the Skagit proposition; believes in the budget system and in living up to it; has some definite ideas towards decreasing taxes; says he will conduct affairs of the city without favor or political influences. In the committee's opinion shows familiarity with city's affairs and possesses average ability.

S. S. Slaughter.

Age 36; born in Indiana; resident of Seattle twelve years; carpenter and builder; says he represents no special group or body of men, being merely solicited by his friends to run; favors repudiation of municipal railway contract; favors reducing the fare to 5 cents immediately; not familiar with the Skagit project but in favor of going ahead with it; believes in budget system; has had no experience in matters of city government, and has rather vague ideas of how affairs should be conducted he seems quite satisfied that he could accomplish many things. In the opinion of the committee does not measure up to the requirements.

William Phelps Cotton.

Age 28; born in Michigan; resident of Seattle seventeen years; lieutenant in World War; in favor of modifying the street railway contract or rescinding same, and from a legal point of view thinks it can be done; not very conversant with the Skagit project, but is in favor of going ahead with it, carrying it on in a business like manner as if it were under private management; in favor of a city budget and of living up to it when made.

Impresses the committee as being quite sincere in his ideas and ambitious, but rather young and inexperienced in matters of city government.

THE CITY MANAGER AND CIVIL SERVICE

Concluded from last week)
Standard Charter Details

The city-manager plan, (or council-manager, or commission-manager plan,) provides for a single elective governing board of popular representatives usually called a "council." No other elective officers. The title of Mayor is often given to the chairman of the council, but he has no veto or separate administrative powers. The council receives nominal salaries or none, and the members give only their spare time to municipal work, and thus are left free to continue their private careers without interruption.

Their functions are to hire and supervise an appointive chief administrator, the city manager, who holds office at their pleasure; also to pass ordinances and to contribute to the city government the amateur and representative element.

The city manager, as chief executive, appoints, directs and can remove the rest of the administrative staff, subject to the usual civil service restrictions. He is not necessarily or usually a local resident. Supposedly he is an expert in matters of municipal administration. In small cities he is frequently a practical civil engineer, thereby making a separate city engineer unnecessary. In large cities broad executive experience is, of course, a major requirement. The city manager's salary is the largest in the city's service.

A logical exception to the appointive power of the city manager is a civil service commission appointive directly by the council.

Non-partisan Ballot

All nominations are made by petition and appear on the ballot at the primary election in alphabetical order or in an order determined by lot or by rotation, without party labels. The highest names in the primary election go on the ballot at a final election two or three weeks later. If a political party endorses a candidate, the action is apt to be denounced as contrary to the spirit and intent of the charter as adopted by the people and the partisan endorsement becomes an unwelcome handicap to the candidate. Under both the old commission plan and the manager plan, the non-partisan election feature works exceedingly well.

Several cities combine the two elections into one by various methods of which the Hare plan of proportional representation used in Ashtabula, O., and Sacramento, Cal., is considered the most promising.

Initiative, Referendum and Recall

Nearly all the city-manager charters include these much-discussed features, but as yet they have been little used in any of these cities. In cities, at least, these devices do not seem to have proved to be a important as their supporters assert nor so dangerous as their opponents fear. The city-manager government is so promptly responsive to public opinion that "the gun behind the door" stays there.

A small boy came hurriedly down the street, and halted breathlessly in front of a stranger going in the same direction.

"Have you lost half a dollar?" he asked with his hand in his pocket.

"Y-es, yes, I believe I have!" said the stranger feeling in his pockets. "Have you found one?"

"Oh, no," said the small boy. "I just want to see how many have been lost today. Yours makes fifty-four!"

A Lesson

Teacher: What does the reign of King Charles I. teach us?"

Tommy: "Please, sir, not to lose our heads in moments of excitement."

"He seems very narrow-minded in an argument."

"Not at all. He admits that there are two sides to every question—his side and the wrong side."

OPPOSES BOND ISSUES

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS VOTE OF "YES" ON CHARTER
AMENDMENTS NOS. 1, 4, and
5, AND "NO" ON OTHER AMENDMENTS AND THE
TWO BOND ISSUES

The report which was voted upon separately was adopted in full. It is as follows:-

To the Municipal League of Seattle:
Your committee on the proposed charter amendments and bond issues to be voted on at the next city election respectfully reports as follows:
Amendment No. 1 provides that the superintendent of railways, the Board of Appeals and the non-compensated officers be exempt from civil service examinations.

The Board of Appeals is a board of three citizens who decide appeals from decisions of the Superintendent of Buildings under the Building Code.
Neither these officers nor the non-compensated officers such as members of the library and park boards have been required to take civil service examinations. If the superintendent of railways is allowed to remain subject to civil service rules, he cannot be removed except for cause.
It would seem that this office is so important and responsible that it should be filled as the pleasure of the executive. We, therefore, hold that the offices mentioned be exempted from civil service rules and that the vote of "yes" be cast on this amendment.

Amendment No. 2 provides that the present maximum tax levy for the park fund of one mill on each dollar of the assessed valuation of the taxable property in the city be repealed and that the limit be fixed by the city council.

It is to be noticed that there is no proposal to amend the minimum limit of the tax to be levied for park purposes. Obviously the amendment is proposed in the hope that a more liberal tax will be imposed for the park board, while no matter how great the necessity may be for reducing the tax below the present three-fourths of a mill minimum, no opportunity for making such reduction is afforded. All this notwithstanding the fact that the present revenues of the park board is upwards of $290,- 000 and the interest on the bonds issued in payment for park purchases is paid from the general fund.

In considering the question, what is the maximum limit of municipal taxation, manifestly taxation that is so high that it seriously or entirely stops a city's growth is above that maximum. Clearly Seattle's taxation is away beyond that limit.

With the American Can Company abandoning its reinforced concrete building, four or five stories high and covering an entire block because we charge them $78,000 for manufacturing cans in this city, when Seattle is the gateway to their Seattle market and is also the point where they can most cheaply assemble their raw materials, the blindest spender of Seattle's public moneys must be able to read the handwriting on the wall.

The Seattle Chamber of Commerce has for several months been conducting an expensive advertising campaign for Seattle with an ability and intelligence that has received praise all over the country, but with little if any tangible results. The would-be establisher of a manufacturing plant is warned away by the heavy taxation that awaits him and he will stay away until he can afford to come.
There must be a sense of proportion in all things. Seattle's park system is the most beautiful in the United States, but its unique beauty is in its views of water and mountains and it will not be less beautiful if it is economically maintained.

But first of all the people of Seattle must secure productive employment for her citizens. No man haunted by the dread of unemployment can enjoy our parks no matter how attractive they may be.

Clearly then if at any time a broad enlargement of our park program is justified, this is not that time. Let us rather do away with every unnecessary expense until our growth again becomes strong and full and we are within reach of the 500,000 population that we would now have if prudence of the same kind had governed our financial affairs in the last decade that prevailed fifteen of twenty years ago.

We, therefore, recommend that amendment 2 be rejected, and that the vote of "no" be cast thereon.

Amendment No. 3 proposes to increase the salary of the Corporation
Counsel from $4,800 to $6,000.

Your committee have a very high opinion of the ability and loyalty of the service to the city of Mr. Walter Meier, the present incumbent. We also believe that it is sound economy to pay a high salary to an official who as Mr. Meier is doing, competently fills an office entailing great responsibility and require exceptional ability. But as we have before said this is not time to increase city expenses and we do not believe that the city of Seattle can raise and lower its city expenses at the same time.

We, therefore, recommend that Amendment No. 3, be rejected and the vote of "no" be cast thereon.

Amendment No. 4, proposes that city elections be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of May instead of the first Monday of March.

The change will enable the election and the preceding campaign to be conducted under more favorable weather conditions and will afford a reasonable time for the registration of voters. At present the time during which the poll books are closed to registration prior to election leaves too short a time after January first for the voter to have a reasonable opportunity to register. We, therefore,

OPPOSED TO H. B. 174

After adopting the oral report of the special committee, headed by James A. Haight, the officers of the League sent the following telegram to Fred W. Hastings, who is in charge of the fight to kill the bill:
Fred W. Hastings,
Olympia, Washington.

The Municipal League at its meeting today adopted a resolution that House Bill One hundred seventy four would impair and destroy city's light and power projects and tend to the monopolization of the state's water power resources.

James T. Lawler, President
Eimon L. Wiener, Sec.

MAYOR OPPOSED TO H. B. 174

February, 26, 1921.

Hon. Fred W. Hastings,
State Senator, Olympia, Wn.

Dear Senator:

My attention has been invited to House Bill 174, which I understand has passed the house and will therefore doubtless come up shortly in the senate.

This bill as I understand it, contains a provision which would require the City of Seattle to obtain a certificate of necessity from the Public Service Commission for the extension of its municipally owned utilities under certain circumstances therein set forth. I also understand the bill repeals Section 105 of the Public Service Commission law, and if passed and approved will put the municipally owned utilities under the Public Service Commission.

As Mayor of the city, I feel it my duty to file a protest against the passage of this measure, as I am satisfied it would work an injustice upon the people of this city. Under existing laws the people of this city are permitted to acquire public utilities, and to operate and manage the same.
After permitting the cities to get into the utilities business, this proposed measure would now take away from the cities the full management of the same, and would require the people of the cities to go to Olympia to have the matters of their rates and service and extensions passed upon by a person or body far removed from the location of the utilities.

For instance, this city has acquired and is successfully operating its light and power system, and is engaged in making extensions thereof.
The present plan will handicap the management and extension of the municipally owned utilities, and the effect will be to greatly benefit the privately owned utility.

To illustrate, Stone and Webster interests have turned over to the city the unprofitable end of their business in the northwest. I do not know what the final outcome of this matter will be—for instance, whether the contract as made will stand, and if so whether the people of the city of Seattle, finding that they have to carry this burden, will decide by vote of the people to distribute the burden in some manner different from that specified in the ordinance under which the lines were turned over to the city. If the public service commission is given jurisdiction in the matter, it will be no longer possible for the people of the city to determine this matter for themselves, as to how they desire to carry the burden. As to the part of the business which Stone and Webster is still operating, namely, the light and power, they could, through the public service commission prevent the city from extending its lines into districts now served by the private company, and could take away the rate making power of the city on its own utilities.

As mayor of the city and as a private citizen, I consider that no more vicious form of legislation has ever been introduced in the legislature than the present one. As a member of the Republican Party I would very much dislike to see that party responsible for such a bill, as we will in my opinion get some decidedly bad effects from it in the future.

Yours truly,
HUGH M. CALDWELL,
Mayor.

INCOME TAX EXPERT ADDRESSES LEAGUE

William T. Beeks, head of Internal Revenue Bureau for Northwestern Washington and Alaska, addressed the Municipal League last Tuesday on the subject of income tax "problems." His address was noted with careful interest. Although dealing largely in interpreting the technicalities of the law, many humorous points were brought out by the speaker.

One of the features of Mr. Beek's address was his explanation of how depreciation off-sets for the Municipal Railway could be claimed under the law. Issuing a certificate to the patrons of the carlines purchasing each dollar's worth of tickets, at the end of the year the patrons could claim, being part owners of the railroad, the proper amount for depreciation, stated Mr. Beeks.

It was noted that many members took advantage of the income tax blanks brought by the speaker.

SECRETARY'S COMMENT

It was gratifying, indeed, to see the report of the special committee reporting on the five charter amendments and the two bond issues which are to be submitted to the voters on March 8th, given such prominence in the daily newspapers. The P. I. reprinted in full and the evening papers gave a digest of the report.

It is disclosing no secret to state that the League is solicitous in securing publicity for its reports and its activities. The very nature of the League's object is to disseminate information to the citizens and residents of the city as a whole. This, it cannot effectively do alone through its meetings and the publication of its own paper which reaches its members only. The daily newspaper, it is needless to say, is the great factor in public as well as commercial life of the city. It is equally true that it is a great factor in the life and development of a civic organization.

The committee was headed by James A. Haight as chairman, and consisted of H. A. Raser, Irving M. Clark, Russell H. White and C. E. Bogardus. It received a sincere vote of thanks from the Board of Trustees for their thorough and efficient report.

OPPOSES BOND ISSUES

recommend that Amendment 4 be adopted and that the vote of "Yes" be cast thereon.

Amendment No. 5. proposes that a civil service employee appointed to a position not under civil service rules shall at retirement resume his former position. The amendment guards against any doubling of positions through the resumption of his former position by the employee. It says, "The last appointee to the position in the classified civil service from which such officer or employee was appointed and the last appointees in position subordinate, thereto, shall resume their former relative positions respectively in the classified civil service." The procedure secured by this amendment now prevails in the police and fire departments. It permits a subordinate to receive the appointment of chief in his department and upon retirement to resume his former rank or position. It relieves him and the city from being penalized for his ability that led to his promotion and for his wider experience in the higher position. We, therefore, recommend that Amendment 5 be adopted and that the vote of "yes" be cast thereon.

Proposition A. submits to the voters an issue of $200,000 of general obligation bonds bearing interest not to exceed 6 per cent per annum and running from eleven to twenty years, for the acquisition and improvements of playfields and playgrounds and the resurfacing of park boulevards and parkways.

We can not close our eyes to the financial situation of the city. These bonds are not like utility bonds whose interest is paid and whole principal is gradually extinguished from the revenues of the utility. The vice of ordinary bond issues is that they entail a permanent burden in the form of interest that no amount of economy can remove.

Your committee is not unmindful of the value of playgrounds and of the needs of durable and suitable hard surface on some of its boulevards. We believe that by a policy of retrenchment in operating expense and the distribution of new acquisitions and permanent improvements over a longer time, the ordinary revenues of the park board will take care of both.

We, therefore, recommend that proposition A be rejected and that the vote "no" be cast thereon.

Proposition B. submits to the voters an issue of $750,000 of general obligation bonds bearing interest not to exceed six per cent per annum and maturing in from eleven to twenty years for the construction of a bridge across Lake Washington Canal at Montlake Boulevard. This bridge when constructed will be situated south of the University Campus, not far from the Stadium and main highway to Laurelhurst, and about a mile east of the University Bridge.

What we have already said applies to this proposition. Retrenchment in city expenses is the word of the hour. The people need steady employment and plenty of it and we can't get it unless we cut our taxation down to the point that will let industries in. Once we are a basis that will give industry a fair chance, once our people are again steadily employed at good wages, the various conveniences that we want to enjoy will be within our reach. But industry and pay roll come first at this time.

We, therefore, recommend that Proposition B be rejected and that the vote of "no" be cast thereon.

Respectfully submitted,
JAMES A. HAIGHT,

EX-MAYOR HANSON CRITICIZES OPERATION OF STREET RAILWAYS

"I would say that somewhere in this great land of ours there are some street car men or engineers who are worth $15,000 per year, and it is my belief that the mayor of this city and the citizens cannot condemn the street car lines or the transportation lines of this city as a municipal failure until a fair trial is had. There is no business man in this community who will agree that after you have spent $1,200,000 in maintaining the street car lines that they have depreciated in addition thereto $673,000 plus $236,000. The fact is that money has been spent for maintenance and charged to maintenance which should have been charged as a capital investment and not as maintenance of the old property pure and simple. The fact is, there has been inefficiency; the fact is, there has been a slowing up of the cars; the fact is, there has been poorer service; the fact is, that everything has been done that could be done to employ as many men as possible in the operating department. All anyone has to do to come to this conclusion is to compare the number of car miles run in 1920 with the number of car hours it took to run these car miles in. When the street car lines were taken over, the traction company had already devised a plan to install one-man cars; they had, however, only installed twenty-eight one-man cars and were operating the balance as two-man cars in 1918. The percentage of electric car hours operated by one-man cars for the last three months of 1918 was exactly 7 per cent. The traction company, as well as other traction companies in the United States, decided that the one-man cars could be used on most of the lines and in most of the cities to a great advantage. In Everett and Bellingham they were to be used 100 per cent; in Tacoma, 75 per cent., and in the City of Seattle at least 50 per cent of the total car hours could, according to their report, be operated by one-man cars. Everett and Bellingham all are now one-man cars; Spokane are all one-man cars; Tacoma has not quite reached 75 per cent, but the City of Seattle in 1920 only operated 14 per cent of their electric car hours with one-man cars.

"I find on careful computation, that by operation 50 per cent of the car hours run in the City of Seattle with one-man cars the street railway department of the City of Seattle would have saved in wages alone approximately $450,000 for the year.

$18,197.66 a Day.

"Despite all the disasters that have overtaken the street car system, despite its mismanagement, despite the unsympathetic attitude taken by the present operators of the Seattle street car system, I find that upon the increase to 8 1-3 cent fare that the receipts for the first forty days were $727,906.67, or an average of $18,197.66 per day. It may be that you say, 'well, this is a good time of the year.' As a matter of fact, the records show that these forty days are a little under the average, so these forty days can be taken as an average forty days. From the best information that I can secure from the fact of the enormous amount of money spent in maintenance last year, from the fact that $236,000 were charged off absolutely for obsolescence, in my judgement, the street car lines of the City of Seattle can be operated, maintained and all interest charges paid on approximately $15,000 per day. This leaves $3,000 plus per day for the retirement of the bonds as they fall due. It is my belief that with the inauguration of the 50 per cent of the car hours run by one-man cars that we gain another $450,000. This will of course, shorten and reduce the pay roll, but it will in time not only reduce the obligation faster but reduce the fare to the car rider of the City of Seattle.

"I hold no brief for the traction company; I hold no brief for the city officials of the past, but as a citizen of the City of Seattle, I propose, first, that not one single dollar shall hereafter be taken from the general fund in order to carry on any public utility. Second, that one of the best and most experienced transportation experts in the United States be secured by the present city government, and told to make good on the present car line. Thirdly, I propose that immediately the city street railway department shall put into effect the economy of the one-man cars. Fourth, that the public utilities be removed from politics.

"I think that with these four things accepted that our troubles are at an end.

"If what I have stated is true, there is but one road for the people of the City of Seattle to travel and that is to demand of the present city government the employment of a transportation expert and not until then will we know what kind of a deal the city secured when they purchased the street car lines from the Puget Sound Traction, Light and Power Company."

Think ahead and you will get ahead and keep ahead.

KING ADDRESSES LEAGUE

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Henry R. King, a prominent Seattle business man and member of Seattle School Board, addressed the Municipal League last Tuesday on the subject of "Your Schools, What do you now about them?". The speaker was introduced by Vice-president, Frank P. Hell as "one of the most loyal and efficient of Seattle's citizens." Mr. King said in part:

"I know that I speak for the School Board and for the executives of our school system when I say that we welcome the operation and the constructive criticism of the Municipal League, further, we welcome any investigation the League might make of any phase of the school system.

"I am against any proposition which would tend to make my present position a paying job. There are too many men unqualified for such a position who would find it desirable to run for office if there were a salary attached to it.

"I have been reliably informed by one of the officers of the National Schools Association that our present superintendent of schools, Mr. Cooper, ranks among the first twelve superintendents of schools in the United States and first on the Pacific coast.

"The budget of Los Angeles for the year 1921 calls for an expenditure of over eleven million dollars, an increase of over three million for last year. Chicago is planning to build four high schools at a cost of three million dollars each and even elementary schools at even hundred fifty thousand dollars each. I give these figures to show that not only are the schools costing vastly more than they did, but that in addition to rise in cost, improvements in the facilities are being made generally throughout the country.

"In a survey of school expenditures we find that 70 per cent of the total budget goes for salaries of the teaching force," King said. "This being the principle item of expense, there is little chance of reducing school costs without lowering the compensation of teachers, which is not to be thought of. Seattle teachers are well paid, and in my opinion rightly so. I will say frankly that I don't believe the teachers have ever been adequately compensated in dollars and cents.

"The contention has been made that supervisors be eliminated. This would be an exceedingly unwise step, for these supervisors perform an important service in the schools. No private corporation would hire a large number of workmen without supervisors to direct their activities. Even if supervisors were eliminated, the saving would be insignificant, as the expenditure for this purpose amounts to only 1 per cent of the total budget.

"The only fault in our present system of compensating teachers—a fault that will have to be corrected sooner or later—lies in the fact that we set up a stone wall and say to the teachers 'This far you can go but no farther.' We have no right to say to our elementary grade teachers that the greatest compensation they may expect is $2,100 a year, or limit high school teachers to $2,400 no matter how long they may have taught or how efficient they may have become."

King also declared himself opposed to a reduction in the number of teachers, asserting that impairment of efficiency will result, if instead of one teacher for thirty pupils as at present, each instructor be assigned forty-five pupils.

Mr. King then pointed out some of the unusual features of Seattle's school system; namely, the Boys' Parental School at Mercer Island. Mr. King said that very few boys are returning to this school when they leave. As high a type of work is being done at this school as any in America.

The Girl's Parental School at Brighton Beach, headed by Miss Allen, was also highly commended by Mr. King.

One of the reasons why our schools cost us much more than

BOND ISSUES ARE DEFEATED

John E. Carroll, A. Lou Cohen and Cecil B. Fitzgerald were elected to the city council, and charter amendments and propositions, with the exception of the change in election dates from March to May, were defeated in Tuesday's election.

The councilmanic candidate finished in the order named. Carroll and Cohen won by large margins, but Fitzgerald wrested third place from T. H. Bolton by a scant 1,200 votes. George F. Cotterill was only 300 votes behind Bolton. Charles W. Doyle was sixth, with less than half as many votes as Carroll.

The complete returns from the councilmanic election follows:

Carroll	31,282
Cohen	24,943
Fitzgerald	20,316
Bolton	19,073
Cotterill	18,881
Doyle	15,017

The returns on the five charter amendments and the two propositions follow:

Charter Amendments—
	Yes	No.
No. 1	12,148	19,333
No. 2	7,842	23,793
No. 3	6,231	26,667
No. 4	16,610	15,148
No. 5	11,682	18,012
Propositions—
A	13,514	20,969
A	13,514	20,969
B	17,090	21,069

Interest in the election was intense in the University District, where there was considerable sentiment in favor of the Montlake Bridge proposition—which was defeated. Yet the vote as a whole was light, only about 44,000 votes being cast in all. Many voters registered their choice for only one or two candidates, and less than 75 per cent of them paid any attention

H. B. 174 KILLED

House Bill, 174, which was reported on by a special committee headed by James A. Haight, has been vetoed by Governor Hart. The committee's report as adopted stated that if this bill became law it would impair, if not actually destroy, the city's light and power projects and tend to the monopolization of the state's water power resources. The dispatch from Olympia follows:

Municipally owned utilities will not be subject to the provisions of House Bill 174, requiring that a certificate of necessity and convenience must be issued by the director of public works before a public service company may extend its services into a territory already served by a similar utility, due to the action of the house this afternoon in sustaining the governor's veto of Section 2 of the bill.

This repealed Section 105 of Chapter 117 of the session laws of 1911 which exempted municipally-owned utilities from the jurisdiction of the public service commission, which will be superseded by the director of public works when the new civil code becomes effective.

The vote to sustain the governor's veto was 78 to 1. Representative Grass of King casting the single vote to retain the objectionable section in the bill.

The probabilities are that the house members been aware of the significance of this section of the bill it would have been stricken before the measure was passed. The section concealed its purpose by exempting publicly owned utilities from the jurisdiction of the public service commission by mere reference to the section of the law without quoting its specific provision.

Having overridden a veto of the governor's in the morning session, the house balanced its account with the chief executive by sustaining his veto of Section 2 of House Bill 174 this afternoon.

CIVIC OFFICIALS ARE MUCH PLEASED AT VETO OF SECTION

City officials yesterday expressed hearty approval of Gov. Louis F. Hart's action in vetoing section 2 of House Bill 174, the certificate of necessity and public conveyance act.

Elimination of this feature of the bill will permit municipalities owning and operating utilities to retain control of these utilities as to rates, service and extensions.

Under instructions from the city council, the special legislative committee of that body opposed passage of the bill, especially if section 2 should be retained. Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier represented the city government at a hearing before Gov. Hart in Olympia last Monday, voicing vigorous protest. Councilmen William Hickman Moore and Philip Tindall joined in the protest on behalf of the city.

FIRE LOSSES IN AMERICA

According to the supervisor, surveying department, National Board of Underwriters, the loss from fire in buildings and the maintenance of fire department and water-supply service cost the United States more than $2,000,000 a day. Last year 15,210 persons were burned to death in the United States, while 17,641 were seriously injured in fires. Ninety-two per cent of the fires were caused by carelessness or neglect. Although one-fourth of the population of the country is living in temporary quarters, 889 homes are burned up every day. Sixty five per cent of the fires in this country occur in dwellings.

MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANTS

The last report of the United States census showed that there are now 2,318 electric light and power plants municipally owned and operated in this country. In 1902 there were 815 municipally owned plants and 2,508 privately owned and operated. From 1902 to 1917 the number of privately owned plants increased 80 per cent, while during the same period municipally owned plants increased 180 per cent.

HOW INDIANAPOLIS REGULATES DANCES

Following are the chief features of the Indianapolis Dance Regulation:

1. Public dance halls are prohibited entirely.
2. Dancing schools are permitted to hold dances for their pupils, but such dances must not be thrown open to the public, and no admission fee may be charged.
3. Individuals, firms, clubs and associations may give dances after getting a permit from the city, for each dance. A fee of two dollars is charged for this permit.
4. When application is made for a permit, (now presented to the Superintendent of Policewomen), the applicant agrees to employ a matron, who must be approved by the police. The matron has complete control over the dress and conduct of persons attending the dance.

5. The city's own policewomen keep further watch over the conduct of dances, by dropping in at irregular intervals and quietly observing the gathering.

6. It is required also that a special policeman must be secure to attend each dance to maintain order, and, if necessary, to carry out the orders of the matron.

A public dance hall is defined as a place to which the public is invited promiscuously to attend upon the payment of a fee or otherwise. Prohibiting the public dance hall make is unnecessary to provide for an annual license such as many cities have. Since dances may be given only for particular groups at particular times, a separate permit is required for each dance so held.

It will be noted that no license is required for dancing school. This might leave a loop-hole by which the ordinance could be evaded. Perhaps a license should be provided for such schools and supervision given them.

The Chief of Police of Indianapolis reports that the provision requiring a matron at each dance who has been approved by the police has worked out satisfactorily. This involves no additional expense to the city, and permits each society or club to select their own matrons, so long as her record is good.

KING ADDRESSES LEAGUE

schools of other cities of like size was shown by Mr. King. Seattle is working on a 30 limit of pupils to one room whereas Minneapolis is working on a basis of 45 to one room; as showing the efficiency of Seattle schools. Mr. King quoted the fact that 21 per cent of the graduates of the elementary schools go into Seattle's high schools.

Mr. King urged the establishment of an intermediate school such as is now in existence at Rochester, New York to bridge the gap between the elementary schools and high school, whatever the financial status would permit.

"In supporting the practice and vocational training, we must not overlook the cultural education of the child. We have a recreation period of eight hours. We must prepare the child to use this recreation period in the highest way. This, the old or cultural education can do."

At the conclusion of the meeting, it was moved and seconded that the President appoint a committee of five to visit the Boys' Parental School at Mercer Island, the Girls' Parental School at Brighton Beach and the Childrens' Laboratory Work conducted by Miss Goohue. The committee consists of Edward W. Allen, Frank P. Helsell, Edward C. Kilbourne, Richard M. White and Prof. L. T. Neikirk.

CLEVELAND TO OPERATE ON PAY-AS-YOU-GO BASIS

Beginning with 1921, the city of Cleveland, purports to be operating on a pay-as-you-go basis, so far as its ordinary running expense is concerned, states Civic Affairs, the bulletin published by the Civic League of Cleveland.

The article says in part:

"The practice of funding operating deficiencies started in a small way; grew worse during the war, and developed to alarming proportions in 1920. At the close of 1919 the city had issued $7,000,000 in bonds to pay its deficits; in July, 1920, again, it issued $5,750,000 for a like purpose, and that proved insufficient by over $800,000 at the end of the year.

"There was no defense of this practice, except as the restricted tax laws made it necessary. It was not disputed that the legal revenues were insufficient to meet the minimum needs of the city and it would have been difficult to say how much of the large deficits of the last two years could have been reduced without going below this minimum."

The article ends with the following significant statement as a conclusion:

"If ultimate financial disaster is to be avoided, the city must conduct its activities within the revenues authorized, and officials must curb expenses to that end. The deficit which is piling up will be utterly indefensible. The present city administration was in power last year when the campaign to put the city on the pay-as-you-go basis was under way;

it participated in that campaign; its spokesmen declared that with the increase in the tax rate which is now in effect they could run the city upon its revenues, and they pledged themselves to do so. If they incur a deficit they will have done it with their eyes wide open, and cannot shift the responsibility. It is up to them immediately to begin adjusting the city's expenditures to its income. If they run until near the end of the year and then try to retrench they will disastrously cripple the service; if they economize and cut wisely now they can save heavily without curtailing anything essential. If they do neither the deficit is certain.

WOULD PROHIBIT SHINGLE ROOFS TO PREVENT FIRES

Civic organizations of Terre Haute, Indiana, have been urging passage of an ordinance prohibiting shingle roofs throughout the city.

The proposed ordinance was designed to cut down the fire loss in that city. It is pointed out that many fires start on shingled roofs, from sparks coming from chimneys. With a roof of some non-combustible material all of these fires would be eliminated, it is argued.

LOWER TAX ON BUILDINGS TO STIMULATE HOUSING

As a means of encouraging home building and thereby relieving the housing shortage in Pennsylvania cities, the Allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny County, are urging a reduction in the tax rate on buildings, improvements, live stock and machinery. They have petitioned the state legislature which meets in January, to pass three bills, namely:

First: A bill or amendment to what is known as the "Pittsburgh Graded Tax Law" which will immediately reduce the tax on all buildings or improvements on land to one per cent of the amount levied on land.

Second: A bill or amendment which will give counties the immediate or future right to vote on land.

Third: A bill or amendment which will give school districts the immediate or future right to vote on the proposition of reducing the tax on all buildings or improvements on land, live stock or machinery to one per cent of the amount levied on land.

Already Tried in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh already has a lower tax on buildings than on land, the present tax being 32 mills on land and 26.3 mills on buildings. The proposed amendment would make the difference much greater. We quote from a letter sent out to the organizations of Pennsylvania:

"We must meet the present housing and taxation crisis with some very definite proposals. Our people are in desperate need of homes at proper rentals. This means continued unrest. Prompt action is needed.

"Increasing cost of public affairs means increasing taxation. Result will be still higher rents and an increasing burden on our productive capacity.

"Tax burden on homes will make demand for taxing personal property and machinery, which will increase our present troubles, add materially to living costs and to manufacturing and distributing costs. Like all burdens taxes, must be well adjusted to be carried with comfort."

"We need houses of all kinds, and UNTAXING them will stimulate building on the vacant land which is of no real value to the community so long as it remains vacant."

FIVE CENTS FOR POUND OF ICE AT OMAHA PLANT

Omaha makes, sells and delivers ice to its citizens. The municipal plant has a capacity of 112 tons per day. During 1919 the amount of ice made and sold equaled about one ton to each family. There are 19 distributing stations at which 17 pounds of ice is sold for a nickel.

EFFICIENCY BOND ISSUE WINS IN CHICAGO

Chicago voters approved an $8,000,000 deficiency bond issue at an election held on February 22nd. The Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency, in a report issued prior to the election, urged that the bond issue be defeated on the grounds that the issuance of bonds for the payment of debts incurred for operating expenses was wrong in principle. The bonds had run over 20 years the payment of the deficit of one year.

The Chicago Tribune, which had opposed the issue, says concerning the vote:

"The real reason for the result may be traced back to the fact that approximately 535,000 registered voters failed to go to the polls. Of the average 401 eligible to vote in each precinct only an average of 156 availed themselves of the privilege.

"The other 350,000 voters decided the bond issue; and the Lindin-Thompson organization was sufficiently strong to control a majority of them. In the primary last fall the leaders of the city hall organization claimed that they demonstrated that they could deliver 100,000 votes in a primary or election, and that number is usually large enough to turn the tide of an election when the full vote does not go to the polls.

"In its organization, the city hall claims to have 22,000 active workers—men and women who will turn out on any day and at any hour and can be relied upon to deliver the maximum results. This means almost ten workers to each precinct and each of these ten apparently gathered in and voted like other persons yesterday, according to the returns.

Machine Changes Tactics.

"A new method was adopted by the Lindin-Thompson organization to gain its bond victory. In all of its previous fights there have been banners and bands and red fire, speeches, and much hip, hip, hurrah. This time it was different. The mayor did not make one speech. There was not a pamphlet, letter, or card circulated in favor of the bond issue until six days before the polls were opened.

"To the uninitiated citizen it looked on the surface like no campaign whatever on the bonds. This apparently was part of the program to keep the opposition voters uninterested in the subject, and it proved highly successful."

The Bureau of Public Efficiency points out that approval of the $8,000,000 bond issue would exhaust the city's bonding power. "If the city were to sell at once all the bonds already authorized its bonded debt would be within about $4,400,000 of the limit of its bonding power. The proposed bonds if voted cannot, therefore, all be issued except as the present debt is reduced by bond redemptions, or as the sale of bonds heretofore authorized are postponed. If possible the city should always have a reserve of borrowing power to meet urgent needs which cannot be foreseen. For this reason alone it is bad policy and bad financing to authorize the bonds now proposed and thereby to exhaust the present and to incumber the future bonding power."

A new source of revenue is proposed by Philadelphia. An ordinance providing for taxation of all railroad sidings, bridges and conduits, crossing or encroaching upon the streets of the city has been drafted. A charge of 70 cents per square foot per year for bridges and 50 cents per square foot for all ground within the street lines occupied by railroad sidings is to be made. It is expected that $500,000 revenue may be received each year.

Detroit Department of Public Works has established an employment bureau through which employment on public work in the various city departments is being provided. 11,204 have registered to date, and 3,857 of this number have been given work.

CITY-PLANNING NOTES

One of the newest cities to start city-planning work is Poughkeepsie, where the president of the Chamber of Commerce has appointed a city-plan committee.

In Indiana the movement for city planning is practically statewide. In Indianapolis, Terre Haute, South Bend, Elkhart, Fort Wayne, Muncie, Marion, Anderson, Mishawaka, there is definite city-planning interest manifested. In Marion and Elkhart a city plan, or at least some phases of it are being prepared. In Indianapolis and Terre Haute there is a city-plan committee, and in most of the other cities there is a city-plan committee of the Chamber of Commerce. All this interest is now being crystallized in an effort to pass a city-planning and zoning bill at the planning and zoning bill at the Indianapolis committee is known as the Committee of One Hundred, and was appointed by the president of the Chamber of Commerce.

St. Paul, Minnesota, will continue the city-planning program under way. The work is now well started, and Messrs. Bennett and Parsons, Consultant City Planners, will make their preliminary plan report on a general street plan the first of the year. The city council has appropriated for work in 1921—$23,000, and a balance of $10,500 in the present year's funds has been re-appropriated, $8500 for a zoning survey and $2,000 for a survey of street railway facilities, and a report on rerouting.

Mr. George H. Herold, Secretary of the Plat Commission, is also managing director and engineer for the St. Paul City-Planning Board, thus making possible to correlate the work of these two bodies and control the development in the entire county area surrounding the city.

The waterworks of Providence, R. I., according to the Auditor's report in 1920, had a net profit of $285,000 after paying all interest and setting aside $140,000 for depreciation.

Kansas City has organized a "Commission on Ventilation for Greater Kansas City." It will investigate air conditions in schools theatres and other public buildings.

Memphis, Tenn., is beginning the construction of a municipal auditorium and market-house combined. The auditorium will have a seating capacity of 12,500.

SECRETARY'S COMMENTS

The Board of Trustees of the League has joined the City officials and other civic organizations in welcoming the delegation of Chicago city councilmen. While this is being written the plans for the entertainment for the delegation to spend Saturday in Seattle provide for a short street car ride in the early forenoon; a visit to the County-City Building for the purpose of inspecting the records in connection with the transportation matters; an automobile drive to the various dock facilities, proceeding first south then north to the Bell Street dock where a luncheon will be furnished under the auspices of the Port Commission. Those representing the Municipal League are: Pres. James T. Lawler, Sec. Eimon L. Wiener, Fred W. Catlett, Frank P. Helsell, Edward W. Allen, Jackson Silbaugh.

The visiting councilmen are members of the committee on local transportation of Chicago's city council and their visit to Seattle is primarily for the purpose of acquiring first-hand information about the municipally owned and operated street railway system. A delegation of Chicago newspaper men make up the rest of the party.

Every opportunity will be afforded the visitors to inspect fully the municipal car lines and city officials expect to submit to rigorous questioning as to the city's experience in municipal operation of its transportation system.

Of interest to the membership is the work of the original civil service committee, which in its recent report recommended that the City of Seattle adopt the manager form of government. This committee meets on the average of thrice a week with the object of perfecting a thorough report. It will endeavor, it is understood, to follow clearly the necessity for the adoption of this form of government and will endeavor to secure the co-operation of all civic organizations in this enterprise.

To the special committee which had reported on the bond issues at the recent election, the committee being headed by James

A. Haight, has been referred further consideration of the House Bill. H. B. 174. The Board of Trustees have appointed out that Section 1 of that bill, as passed by the legislature, will tend to the monopolization of the State's hydro-electric power in the hands of the now existing power companies. The committee is urged to report at the next meeting so that the Governor will have the benefit of its considerations.

The poll tax law was referred to a committee headed by Jackson Silbaugh. The committee drafted its report prior to the announcement of the Governor that he had signed the bill. The report will be read irrespective of that at the next meeting.

The boosters' committee have perfected an unique plan, which its committee is holding secret, but which will be presented to the membership in the very near future.

Prof. Frank T. Laube of the Political Science Department of the University of Washington has accepted the League's invitation for March 29. He will speak on taxation, a subject on which he is an authority.

Dean Magnuson of the University of Washington will address the League shortly on hydro-electric power development.

While the attendance at the League meetings has been on the whole fair, nevertheless the officers of the League are dissatisfied. With the splendid programmes that have been given the last few weeks, the delightful meeting place and the consequent impression of the esprit de corps, the attendance should soar beyond the one hundred-fifty mark. Many members of the League have, during the war, broken their habit of regular attendance. These members, who we know desire to encourage the League's work, should attend more frequently. Those who have attended have derived genuine pleasure as well as important information.

Put a little mark in your calendar for Tuesday noon and get into the habit! The luncheons are fifty cents.

THE WAYFARER PRESENTED TO THE LEAGUE

Reported By
Eimon L. Weinir

Dr. James E. Crowther, author of the Wayfarer, gave one of the most notable addresses given the League this year, when he presented the "Wayfarer".

It is impossible for me to adequately report Dr. Crowther's address; for the writer was carried away by the description of the stupendous production. No one, but the author himself, could do justice to the theme.

Seattle is to be the home of the "Wayfarer". It will be presented annually at the Stadium, the proceeds derived for the first three years will be given to the completing of that beautiful structure. A board of trustees, consisting of 27 representative Seattle men has charge of the administering of the fund.

Following is a synopsis of the "Wayfarer" as prepared by Dr. Crowther:-

PREFACE

This Passion-Pageant is not a commercial enterprise. The author has made it a condition that neither he nor anyone associated with it shall be the recipient of personal profit. By the articles of Incorporation and the By-Laws, the Board of Trustees is required to devote all profits to public welfare interests of the community, choosing.

The supreme mission of "The Wayfarer," is a spiritual one. This Passion-Pageant shall guide pilgrims of the night to Him who is the Light of the World, whose mission will have been accomplished. The writer is humbly grateful to the Divine Authority that "The Wayfarer" has inspired tens of thousands of discouraged hearts. "It may be itself in weakness like in mine, itself in weakness, like in mine"

J. E. CROWTHER

THE WAYFARER

Theme:

Much that has been authoritative in the past is being questioned and challenged in the present hour. The foundations of the industrial and social order are being shaken. The whole world is in turmoil and in process of reconstruction. Many devoted people are bewildered, discouraged, dismayed.

The Wayfarer belongs to this despairing class. He is guided back to faith and service by a divine messenger called Understanding. She unfolds to him the presence of God through all the ages, triumphant over every foe. One word will state the central theme of this Passion-Pageant,—“Emmanuel”,—God with us”.

PROLOGUE, THE GOD OF WAR. Herein is depicted the crash of the world war which is the occasion of the Wayfarer's despair. From this scene Understanding leads him through the ages, and shows him that moral victory is the aftermath of seeming defeat; that the crown is won by way of the cross.

EPISODE 1, THE BABYLONIAN CAPTIVITY. The Hebrew Captives in Babylon illustrate the imperishable hope of the triumph of God's Kingdom. Except for a Faithful Remnant, all have adopted the pagan customs of their captors. The Faithful have assembled for worship by the rivers of Babylon. They voice their despair. An angel renews the assurance that they shall become a great people. Their Messiah is at hand. Gloom is now transformed to gladness. In spite of all outward appearances, they are not forsaken of God.

EPISODE II, THE BIRTH OF CHRIST. This episode unfolds to the Wayfarer, God's mystic ways in the world. God starts his world empire with a helpless babe. “Strange that God should come as a babe, and not as a nipotence fulfills itself in weakness. It may be that God's omnipotence fulfills itself in weakness, like to mine.”

EPISODE III, THE TRIUMPHAL ENTRY. This scene is after the Wayfarer's own heart. Everywhere there is music, laughter, sunshine, flowers, victory. But he has still to learn that Christ's Kingdom is founded, not upon the palm branches of popular acclaim, but upon the imperishable rock of truth.

EPISODE IV, THE CRUCIFIXION. The Wayfarer is confronted with an incredible reverse, and bewildered by the greatest of all mysteries. The Christ becomes a prisoner. The Prince of Life dies as a felon on a Roman cross. “How can the triumphant Christ become the victim of a Roman spear? How can God be defeated in his own world? All hopes of Christ's triumph and reign are shattered.

EPISODE V, THE RESURRECTION. This is the turning point in the Wayfarer's spiritual experience. Christ has triumphed over the last enemy—Death. “No foe, not even sable Death can stay the forward marching of the King.” Hitherto the Wayfarer has known only a historical Christ. Now he possesses a living, personal, unconquerable Christ, who is the “Ruler of the Kings of the Earth.” In the long run there can be no defeat for those who side with God.

EPILOGUE: THE GOLDEN AGE. The Wayfarer beholds a great host who have triumphed in the ages past. He looks upon the America of today with her mighty world task, and joins the ranks of the crusaders for truth and right. Amid his toil he sees the vision of the Golden Age that is to be, culminating in the triumphal procession of the nations on Emmanuel's Coronation Day. “The Kingdom of this World is become the Kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ.”

HEROISM SHOWN BY AMERICAN WORKERS OF NEAR EAST RELIEF

Cables Reveal Appalling Armenian Need—Hundreds of Thousands Starving.

By CHARLES V. VICKREY
General Secretary, Near East Relief

Charles V. Vickrey

Approximately 500 American men and women are standing loyally and heroically at their posts in Armenia, Turkey and the Near East. Many of them during the long winter of isolation are undergoing what we in America call “hardship.” But these, our fellow citizens in the Near East, are volunteers serving with a high purpose, and they do not recognize hardship when they meet it.

They have had their opportunity to withdraw with honor from the field of famine and desolation. They have refused to leave, because they know that their departure would mean death for tens of thousands of women and children whom their efforts have kept alive and whom they are determined to save for a better future.

A dozen cables are on my desk from various centers in Armenia, Anatolia, Cilicia and Syria pleading piteously for the lives of hundreds of thousands who are homeless: “Sixty-five thousand refugees Constantinople alone;” “Refugees flocking into Aleppo;” “Twenty thousand refugees at Ismid;” “One hundred thousand people at Alexandropol will starve unless relief is provided;” “Refugees arriving from Caucasus, escaping persecution, naked, destitute! Urgent need to save most of them from death;” “Two hundred thousand starving between Kars and Alexandropol! Severe winter adding to distress.”

Above all towers the mute appeal of the more than 100,000 little children, orphaned, homeless, whom these American relief workers have saved and whom we here at home must sustain not only through the winter and spring, but through the summer and autumn as well. If we do not provide, they perish! And with them dies the hope of a New Near East.

The Easter season is here—the season that commemorates the Great Sacrifice for mankind. America is known as a Christian nation. She is also the wealthiest nation that history has ever known.

Can we really enjoy our wealth and claim the name of Christian if we turn a deaf ear to the appeal which General Leonard Wood, in behalf of the Near East Relief, has sent forth broadcast for a Lenten Sacrifice Offering to save these little children in Bible Lands?

White: What for?
Brown: For good.

ROCKWELL TALKS ON 1921 LEGISLATURE

Senator T. D. Rockwell, a member of the legislature, in reviewing the record of the recent session in a speech before the league Tuesday, declared that while he opposes the poll tax on principle, except in emergencies, it is unjust and unequal, its adoption was made advisable in this case by the necessity of raising funds with which to pay the soldiers' bonus.

"We will collect approximately $2,500,000 a year from the poll tax," Rockwell said. "This means we will have revenue sufficient to pay off the soldiers' bonus bonds in five years, which will obviate the necessity of levying of a one-mill tax over a period of years on the already overburdened property of the state. "The claim has been made that the poll tax works a hardship on the laboring man. In this connection it might be well to emphasize that fact that it will also reach some of the wealthiest men in the community who under the present system escape the payment of taxes. It serves a purpose also in bringing to the people the direct realization of the fact that they must pay for the bonds which they vote at the polls.

Characterizing the administrative code as the "longest step in the right direction ever taken by the state government," the senator declared that it centers full authority over the state's business in the governor, giving him power to appoint administrative officers, fix their salaries, and remove them at any time he deems best without going to any court or other tribunal.

In this connection the speaker alluded to the payment of tribute to Gov. Hart, expressing confidence that he will properly use the powers

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE PLANS REFERENDUM ON HOUSE BILL NO. 174

The Municipal League, in adopting the report of the special committee headed by James A. Haight which reported that House Bill No. 174, the "Certificate of Necessity" Measure passed by the state legislature at its recent session would tend to get a monopoly of all the hydro electric power of the state of the now existing powers, went on record as favoring a referendum on the measure.

The original committee which consisted of James A. Haight as chairman, Irving M. Clark, C. E. Bogardus and Russell H. White has been supplemented by the following: George E. Wright, Fred W. Bert, Jr., and Lawrence S. Booth. As this is being written, a plan is being formulated by the committee to organize an executive committee composed of representatives of various civic organizations for the purpose of making the referendum a success.

Concurring with the resolutions adopted by the City of Spokane, the Seattle City Council went on record at a special session Thursday afternoon as favoring submission to a referendum of House Bill 174. It is understood that the larger cities of the state will be asked to give their support to the referendum.

Adopting a resolution drafted by Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier at the request of the council utilities committee, the council requested the mayor, corporation counsel, and the chairman of the council judiciary and city utilities committees to "render all assistance possible in support of the movement to refer the bill to the people of the state".

The following is the report of the committee:
To the Municipal League, Seattle.

Your committee on House Bill No. 174 passed at the last session of the legislature and approved by the Governor, reports as follows:

This act provides that "No public service company or prospective public service company shall hereafter construct, extend or thereafter maintain or operate any part of its plant, system or facilities for the purpose of rendering service in a locality where similar service is then being rendered

LEAGUE BACKS POLL TAX BILL

To the Municipal League:

Your Special Committee to whom was referred Senate Bill No. 170, passed by the last legislature, and known as the poll tax bill, has duly considered the matter and submits herewith the following report: "

This bill provides that all persons over 21 years of age and under 50 years of age, except idiots, insane persons, and persons supported by and at public expense, shall pay annually as a poll tax the sum of five dollars.

It makes it the duty of the County Assessor, at the time of listing personal property, to prepare a list of all inhabitants of the county, who are liable for the payment of a poll tax.

It makes it the duty of the industrial department of the state to furnish the County Treasurer, on or before April 30th of each year, a list of all employers within such county.

It is then made the duty of all employers of labor after the 1st day of May in each year, before making to any employee a payment of wages or salary, to require from such employee satisfactory proof that the poll tax has been paid, and if such proof is not furnished, to deduct the amount from such wages or salary. In case such employer omits to perform this duty, he himself becomes liable for the amount of the tax.

A like duty is imposed upon the Auditor and County Clerk to see to the collection of the tax from those serving as witnesses or jurors.

It shall be the duty of the County Treasurer, on the 1st of June of each year to certify to the Sheriff a list of the persons liable to such tax who have not paid the same.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

The sheriff is required to make collection in the same manner as now provided for the collection of delinquent personal tax. This operates as a lien upon all real or personal property and nothing is exempt from levy in the enforcement of its collection.

County officials are not to be allowed any extra compensation for the labor performed in the collection of this tax.

One fourth of the tax goes to the counties.

The bonus law appropriates eleven million dollars to take care of the compensation allowed soldiers of the late war. The money is raised from the sale of bonds drawing interest at a rate per cent not exceeding 6 per cent. A levy of one mill on all taxable property is set apart to take care of the bonds and interest. In case this levy is not sufficient to take care of the principle and interest on the bonds, the remainder is to be taken care of from the GENERAL FUNDS.

The poll tax law protects all general funds under the bonus law by providing that the legislature appropriate moneys from the general fund to cover any deficiency after the one mill tax has been exhausted but such amount shall not be "in excess of the moneys transmitted to the general fund under this act".

Your committee fully appreciates the seriousness of the situation confronting the last legislature in the matter of taxation. We have never faced a situation so discouraging to the small home owner as now. It is to this class more than any other that the poll tax promises some measure of relief.

Your committee believes that the present plan is the best that could be devised to take care of the present emergency. A large part of this tax will be paid by persons who have heretofore paid nothing to the support of the Government. We believe also that the law is well drawn and with proper encouragement instead of hostility on the part of public officials and others, it will yield a large income with but little extra expense in its enforcement.

Your committee recommends that the law as passed by the legislature and signed by the Governor, be approved, and the League lend its influence in the proper understanding of the law and a cheerful acquiescence in its enforcement.

Respectfully

JACKSON SILBAUGH.
M. L. BAKER.
ROBERT F. SANDALL
H. C. GLEVIN.
HOWARD A. ADAMS.

Working Plan Sought

Methods of administering the new poll tax were practically decided at a conference between County Commissioners Claude C. Ramsay and Lou C. Smith, County Assessor Frank W. Hull, County Treasurer William A. Gaines, Arthur Schramm Jr. of the prosecuting attorney's office, and Fred Chestnut and Chad Hughes, state accountants.

The principal item of discussion was the question of how the added expense of collecting the new tax should be borne, the legislature having specified no way and the county departments having adopted budgets contemplating no such burden. Those present, however, decided that the poll tax could be collected by creating a new fund. This fund, it was agreed, must be accumulated gradually from the collections of the tax itself. It probably will be known as the poll tax fund, and will be based on the $1 out of each $5 to which the county is entitled under the act.

Hull Sees Deficit

"Undoubtedly," said County Assessor Hull, following the conference, "it will be necessary to run "in the red" for the first year, but by borrowing sums to start with we can eventually repay this expense money. A certain amount of the collections can be credited to the fund."

County Assessor Hull also issued an appeal to the employers of the county. This appeal is as follows:

"All employers are requested to furnish the assessors with a list of the names, ages and addresses of all their employees between the ages of twenty-one and fifty. All government, county and city officials are requested to furnish the names, ages and addresses of all their employees between the ages of twenty-one and fifty. This will save a great deal of expense on the part of this office in calling on same. However, if the lists are not furnished, each and every one will be listed personally by a deputy."

SENATOR ROCKWELL REVIEWS RECORD OF 1921 LEGISLATURE

conferred upon him and administer the state's business successfully.

Governor Is Praised

"The governor has demonstrated that he is not a 'rubber stamp' official and that he does not lack nerve," the senator stated. "His veto of the appropriations for charitable institutions which, though performing useful and commendable service, are nevertheless not properly a part of the state's business and therefore not entitled to support from state taxes, proved his courage."

The most important piece of legislation before the session, so far as the City of Seattle is concerned, was the budget bill, Senator Rockwell said.

"This measure was so drawn as to be applicable only to the City of Seattle. It would have given the city a real budget system instead of the pretended system now in use. It would have enabled the mayor to have a part in the preparation of the budget and would have provided $250,000 for emergencies, which would seem to be sufficient leeway. The bill was strangled by a King County senator, for reasons as to which I am not informed."

PLANS REFERENDUM

ordered by any other public Service Company in this State, without first applying for and obtaining the certificate of public Necessity and convenience from the Director of Public Works as here provided. Upon the filing of an application for such certificate the director of public works shall give reasonable notice in writing to the public service companies then furnishing such service in such locality or vicinity of the time and place when such application will be heard and after hearing and investigation, if the director of Public Works finds from the evidence that the Public Necessity and Convenience required that such service be furnished by the Public Service Company applying for such certificate, the Director of Public Works shall grant such certificate of Public Necessity and Convenience."

The act contains the following proviso "Provided, however that this certificate shall not be construed as requiring such application or certificate for the extension by any public Service Company, whether privately or municipally owned or operated of physical property or service within the locality in which such Public Company may now be furnishing similar service to the public or as requiring such application or certificate for the construction of additional plants or extensions of existing plants outside of the limits of such locality for making such service within such locality."

It will be noted that this proviso enables the existing water power companies of this state to thwart the efforts of any proposed water power company to develop any of the water power of this state with a view to the public distribution of said power.

The new company can find a market for the power it develops only by procuring a certificate of Necessity and Convenience. The hearing on the application for this certificate can be had only after notice to any existing company furnishing such service in such locality or vicinity. During the time allowed for the notice of hearing the existing company can extend its facilities so that at the time of the application it can make a showing of such abundance of capacity for service and such an absolute want of necessity or convenience to be subserved by the new company that the director of work will be forced to deny the application. If the new company has made any expenditures of money in order to provide the facilities it has sought through its application for a certificate of public necessity and convenience to market, it will find that it has a property on which it can obtain no return and it will be forced to sell to one of the existing water power companies of the State, at the price that may be fixed by said water power company.

One experiment of this sort would be enough to deter all other persons attracted to this state by the prospect of developing its water power from making a similar attempt. In fact, an inspection of the act would be deemed by any man or group of men desiring to develop hydro-electric power as a cordial and emphatic invitation to go elsewhere, than to the state of Washington.

We have been boasting of our water power. We have taken a great deal of pleasure in emphasizing the fact that this state of Washington had in its upwards of 9 millions of horse power of water power a natural supply of water power far in excess of that of any other state in the Union and unexcelled by only one or two countries in the industrial world. By this act we give notice that the enterprise of the world is not sought in the development of this power and that we wish it to be developed by our present water power companies in such amount and at such times as they think best for us to receive the benefit of it.

The undeveloped water power of this state is estimated at upwards of 9,100,000 horse power.

The power projects that Seattle and Tacoma are aiming to develop will cover upwards of 550,000 of this horse power leaving 8,500,000 to be developed by the existing water power companies of this state.
